ANDHRA UNIVERSITY CONVOCATION

The December Position
In the Near East

Sequel to Italian Reverses

GREEKS' RELIANCE ON SEA POWER

By Cable) London
The Yorkshire Post military correspondent writes:
We are turning the course of the war against the enemy and are in the position of operating on home and overseas fronts closely linked with one another yet fully independent and self-contained.

The extent of Italy's failure on land, sea and air is having a profound influence on Axis policy and its immediate results can be summed up as follows:

1. The Grecian victory has restored Russia's influence in the Balkans which Hitler set himself to weaken.
2. Bulgaria under Russian advice denies the use of her territory to the Germans and is to spend four millions on frontier defence.
3. Rumania is less sure of herself and is toning down her Axis enthusiasm.
4. Turkey has made her war front at the Straits and the policy of Russia and Bulgaria indirectly assists her and Greece.
5. Spain has backed out.
6. The advance on Egypt is held up.
7. Syria is resisting Axis pressure.
8. The campaign against Greece is turning into a war on Italy.
9. Sea and air control of the Mediterranean have solidified against the enemy.
10. Yugoslavia remains in danger of violation of her territory by the enemy.
11. Italy's military disaster has stopped the German forward march.
12. A flank attack through Syria on Palestine and Egypt is remote as is the project of sea and air bases nearer Alexandria.

This may be called the December position. Six weeks ago such a catalogue could not have been written. It is possible to day at the end of one month's warfare between Italy and Greece.

Nazi hints to Bulgaria

Reported Overtures to Turkey
by Von Papen

(by cable) London
The News Chronicle Zurich Correspondent cables:
Having failed to get Bulgaria to sign the Three Power Pact Germany now appears to be trying a new method of getting Bulgaria and Turkey to play the Nazi political game.

The Berlin correspondent of the TRIBUNE DE GENEVE in an inspired message on the 29th says the Wilhelmstrasse believes the "accession of Bulgaria to Axis coalition is only of secondary interest when it is not accompanied by enthusiasm".

Moreover, it is declared in Berlin that the Bulgarian hesitating attitude is not going to help in the "realisation of Bulgarian territorial claims on Greece and Turkey".

For Turkey, Von Papen apparently brought from Berlin an "attractive" proposal intended to make Turkey more friendly to German claims, in which case "Turkey will be able to counter-balance the increasing Russian influence in Berlin".

In other words Germany is now trying to play the anti-Russian card in Turkey.

An article from the Vichy correspondent of the Neue Zuercher Zeitung devoted to Marshal Petain reveals that the political climate of Paris is extremely uneasy.

Unemployment figures are terrifying. Fuel is extremely scarce and the presence of the German occupying troops creates depression, while the absence of the Government from the capital is also disturbing. This explains why the Vichy Government has started an energetic persecution of communists.

Dr. C. R. Reddy's Welcome Speech

A. P. Madras, Dec. 7
Welcoming the Governor at the Fourteenth Convocation of the Andhra University, Dr. C.R. Reddy touched on certain matters of vital interest to University and said: "But for war and the red ruin it is raining and the Nazi Fascist clouds spread balefully in the skies, I should have characterised the year and quarter that has elapsed since the last Convocation as one of the happiest epochs in contemporary Andhra history. But the victory in this war will be our victory, the fruit of the world's indomitable instinct for saving from destruction all that is good and noble in civilization, and of the efforts that we shall make in proportion to the moral enthusiasm which fighting for a big world ideal is bound to evoke in many hearts."

He added the question of amending the Andhra University Act so as to remove the unworkable features and harmonise it with the present life and requirements of the University had been pending for a long number of years. He begged that these very necessary measures be kindly undertaken by the Governor without further delay.

Daily News

Bangalore City—Dec. 8, 1940.

TO OUR READERS

We have no desire to write at length about "ourselves" and our policy.

The "DAILY NEWS" stands for, precisely, on all fours, what the "Tainadu" stands for. We stand and work for peaceful and progressive realization of Government of the people by the people and for the people under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore. In respect of All-India, we work and stand for the achievement of Independence of India by peaceful and legitimate means.

We shall try to make the "Daily News" not only a mirror of public opinion but also an echo of people's voice as far as it lies in our power to do so. It shall also be our duty to suggest and indicate the lines of popular progress on non-communal, non-class, nationalistic lines.

With malice to none and charity to all, and without fear or favour, we propose to discharge our duties and responsibilities as fair and impartial critics of public questions and public policies, in the columns of the "Daily News" with an eye only to the well-being of the people of all classes and communities.

We are hopeful of securing a position of power and influence for the "Daily News" in the journalistic world of India in general, and Mysore in particular. While paying our tribute of admiration and homage to the daily journals of Madras and other cities, we are sure that there is something which we can usefully contribute in our humble and unpretentious way to education and enlightenment of the State and the people of Mysore.

The financial resources being very slender, we are not able to at present all that is in our courage and heart. We shall actively do our duty to-day and tomorrow. But we assure our readers the "Daily News" will the step by step with the Majestic that it would the hands of its His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore. We can do no more in this article, we hope you have done the public duty, to be conscious as I am of the Conference.

profession and great service in the past. n of the fact that in the discharge of the responsible duties that devolve on you, you are animated by high and honourable ideals. I have every reason to hope that you will render in the future even greater service to the people and the State. One writer calls the Press the "People's University" and another the "World's Cyclopaedia of Life"; it is in fact an important educator of mankind, and in its direction the essential principle to be borne in mind is that the truth in all its simplicity and fullness should prevail.

This is indeed a great and glorious message worthy of being preserved by every journalist as a priceless treasure. We hope that this will serve as a beacon-light to us and illumine our path which is beset with dark difficulties.

May God bless the "Daily News" and its readers!

OUR CONGRATULATIONS.

We offer our sincere and heartfelt congratulations to the Mysore Congress on the cent-per-cent success that it has achieved in the Bangalore City Municipal Elections that were held on 4th instant. The ratepayers of the City of Bangalore also deserve very warm congratulations on the right choice they have made. Nor can we ignore and omit mentioning the good humour of the defeated candidates, some of whom are ex-Presidents and Vice-Presidents having rendered valuable services to the Municipality. They had to bow to the inevitable, in spite of themselves. They were out of time and out of current. The popular awakening and enlightenment that has stamped its hallmark on the Congress organisation could not recognise those who stood by themselves and for themselves. This remarkable success is a great testimony to the regard and affection in which the Congress and its workers are held by the ratepayers of Bangalore. People who declared from house tops that Mysore Congress is dying and is dead have to revise their views and learn a new lesson. The Mysore Congress is a progressive force in our country and none can ignore its influence. We hope the Government will, in a statesman-like manner see the things in their proper perspective and adjust their policies in the interests of the people and the State. The Mysore Congress is anxious to shake hands with the Government, if there is a reciprocal feeling on the part of the authorities. As Mr. D. V. Gundappa would put it, let us shake hands and not shake our fists.

H. A. the Maharaja of Mysore His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore left Bangalore this morning for Mysore.

Good Wishes to "Daily News"

Mysore Congress President's Message

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam Iyengar, President of the Mysore Congress, in a message to Mr. P. R. Ramaiya, Proprietor, "Tainadu" says thus:

"It gives me great pleasure to learn that you are publishing a new daily in English. A high class English daily newspaper has been a long felt want in the State and I am glad we shall have one under your able management. I send my heartiest congratulations to you and to Mr. P. B. Srinivasan, the talented Editor of Tainadu."

I wish the "Daily News" a long life of service to the country."

'Unparalleled success' of Congress in election

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam congratulates Bangalore

(From Our Correspondent)

Mysore, Dec. 7

For the 'unparalleled success' of the Mysore Congress in the Bangalore Municipal Elections, Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, President of the Mysore Congress, congratulates the people of Bangalore in a press statement. He says:

"The Mysore Congress is deeply grateful to the people of Bangalore City in securing them unparalleled success in the Municipal elections and great credit is due to the volunteers, children, youth, lavanidars, leaders and workers of every division, authorities and the police. Special thanks are due to the 'Tainadu' and 'Visvakarnataka' for the splendid support they gave. The public of Bangalore have covered themselves with glory. I humbly congratulate them and also the Congress candidates everyone of whom succeeded. The result proves the remarkable support of people to Mysore Congress and also the failure of congress candidates elsewhere is due to official interference and I suggest to Government to keep their hands off the general elections, otherwise, popular indignation is certain to grow resulting in another struggle. It is now the duty of the Government to respect the popular verdict in Bangalore and Mysore and befriend Congress and cease repression and establish peace and harmony in public life."

Mahatma Informed

Bangalore Dec. 7 News has been received here that Mahatma Gandhi was glad to learn that Mysore Congress achieved cent per cent success in the recent Bangalore City Municipal Elections. The news reached Wardha after prayer time, last night. Mr. H. C. Dasappa sends hearty congratulations to Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, and other Congress workers,

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I am not a smoker, either habitual or occasional. But I like smokers and their company. Some are good men and true, who smoke. They are good mixers. They puff off their cares as they puff off smoke. They carry their burdens easily and lightly. Be he a premier, a cabinet minister or a mayor, the smoker with his pipe in his mouth walks on unconcernedly and does his duty without fear or favour. When his duty is over, he throws away his mantle as he throws away his stumps.

Lord Baldwin, ex-Premier of England, with a pipe in his mouth, with supreme unconcern, managed the exit of a king with the least disturbance to himself and to the people at large. That is a typical smoker.

We have in Mr. Churchill, the present Premier of England, a smoker with grit and determination. With great skill, he has managed to see that Hitler's Blitzkrieg passed off like a puff of smoke over the skies of England. I wish Hitler were a smoker. He would have had some commonsense and not dragged the world into a war of destruction, doing good neither to himself nor to others.

Some journalists are good smokers and good mixers too. Smoke is the cement which binds one journalist to another and binds him to the world at large. A journalist's work partakes of the nature of smoke and he dashes off something to-day which passes off like a puff of smoke, leaving no trace behind. I am told in the recent conference of editors at Delhi, hundreds of cigarettes were consumed. The correspondent of the "National Herald" has recorded the following observation in his diary:—"Whenever Journalists meet, the biggest consumption is of cigarettes and we must have smoked lots and lots of them, we familiarly discussed the whole universe which is the newspapers' province."

It was only a few days ago that I read the part cigarettes played in improving the relations between a boss and his subordinates. The following has appeared under "Over a Cup of Tea" the "Indian Express" on Friday last.

It was a race-day when the editor was not available. The late G. S. Raghavan, a character with the salt of journalism in his being, gave a banner-line to Mrs. Besant message as "STAND FOR PARANTAPA!" Horniman disliked Moderates and Dr. Paranjpye he had criticized strongly in the morning paper.

When he saw the headline in bold type his dislike of the Moderates and his ignorance of Sanskrit led him to think that Dr. Paranjpye had shot into prominence. Raghavan said it was 'Parantapa'—but only after an outburst from the editor as to what Mrs. Besant could ever have meant by taking notice of any Moderate leader. Convinced of his error, Horniman made amends and gave a large tin of cigarettes to Raghavan who then proceeded smoking joyfully into the small hours of the morning.

"Cent per Cent Success for the Congress", "Glorious Victory" These are the words that are passing from mouth to mouth in the streets of Bangalore to-day. There is unprecedented jubilation all over the city. The Congress leaders themselves never expected this exceptional success. All glory to Bangalore. Bravo Bangalore!!

Foreign Inspiration Behind Rumanian Crimes FORMER MINISTER'S APPEAL

(By cable) London

Mr. V. V. Tilea, former Rumanian Minister in London, who was 'recalled' in July but refused to go and retired to Oxford, asks people "not to judge the peaceful freedom-loving Rumanian nation by shameful horrors from which every human being must shrink". Rumanians had not known in modern times a political assassination. It was introduced to them by foreign inspiration.

"That a handful of young men who were suffering from a mental disease should have committed such crimes is due to Himmler's instigation."

"I can affirm, with complete confidence, that it is condemned by 99 per cent of the Rumanians themselves."

"But these acts of lunatics prove also how weak and unpopular the present pro-Nazi regime is in Rumania."

"The Rumanian nation has survived for 2,000 years in that dangerous corner of Europe—the crossroads of all invasions.

"It will still survive and rise to a free, peaceful life so as to be able to collaborate with those nations in a civilised and human commonwealth."

"That explains why to-day practically the whole country is praying for an allied victory for this alone can grant them freedom."

"Those who know Rumanians, or who know something about them, will agree with me."

Study of Law

Sir Mirza M. Isma
Address

Belgaum, D. Addressing the students of Lakhamagouda College, Belgaum, Sir Mirza Ismail, the Dewan of Mysore, said:—

People are apt to look at the study of Law as a merely a vocational value for preparation for admission to practice of Law. This is only a mistaken view. One is only to recall the fact in England, for example, this Court which train Bars in the institutions which dictators are separate from courses in Law at the Universities. British Universities upon legal studies as co-terminus in value in respect to discipline with subjects Mathematics, Science, and Economics. A greater has said that "Law is one of the first and noblest of human sciences; a science which more to quicken and into the understanding than the other kinds of learning together." We may not be prepared to go so far with them as to put Law above other branches of learning as an argument for sharpening the faculties, but we can no hesitation in recognising a large element of truth in the dictum. One has only to recall the mental agility necessary to deal with the principles and practice of Law of Evidence, and the intricacies of the Law of Equity, to realise how powerful an argument for mental discipline sharpening of the faculties studies can be. Therefore studies rightly occupy an end place among the broad learning in which a study graduate in the British universities.

The Rule of Law

The rule of Law who fundamental a feature of society thus owes a great debt to the work of lawyers, the jurists and as legal practitioners. The members of the profession also play a very important part in the public life of the country by participating in political activities. Lawyers always played a prominent part in the political affairs of the country, and a number of them in recent years occupied the highest posts in the Government of Great Britain and in the Crown. There is no doubt to believe that the future life of this country or any other will show any marked change in this respect although as of other professions are to be taking a more prominent part in politics than was the case some time ago. Political Law are so closely allied to the natural and aptitude that the members of the profession should enjoy a large place in the councils

M.L.A.'s Sentenced

A.P. Gorakhpur, Dec. 7.

Thakur Sinhasan Singh, Thakur Praghu Singh and Ramdhari Pandey, M.L.A.'s of U.P., were sentenced to three months simple imprisonment each in connection with Satyagraha.

At the same time it is well that the members of the legal profession who enter politics should remember always their special allegiance to Law and Order. While they are entitled to exercise all the rights of citizens to bring about suitable modifications in the political practice and structure which changing conditions may demand, they should always remember Burke's warning, "How weary a step to those take who endeavour to make out of a great mass a true political personality."

It is not inappropriate that in the present context I should recall the view that was expressed at the time of the French Revolution that a very great proportion of the National Assembly was composed of practitioners in Law, and all that followed could be ascribed to this fact.

Sense of Comradeship

The life of the community is much wider than the exercise of a profession, the making of laws, and the carrying on of the government of the country. The great values of life are to be found in the quiet pursuit of art, cultivation of personal relationships, and above all, in the practice of religion. While I hope that those of you that are marked by exceptional gifts of talents and character will rise high in the profession and occupy places of prominence and service in the public life of the country, every one of you should live the full and many sided life of a private citizen, whose pursuit of the great values of life constitutes the essence of civilised life. Cultivate a sense of comradeship, and make yourselves members of clubs and other groups where greater intimacy is possible than in large organizations, and seek for yourselves in quietness and thought the greater spiritual values that we associate with the great religions of our country.

The Village School
Master

He can Make or Mar the Village

"We talk very lightly of Indian progress, not always fully cognisant that Indian Progress means in the main, the Progress of the Indian peasant. The Progress of the Indian peasant depends, in no small measure, on the intelligence, equipment and sense of responsibility which are to be found in the Village School teacher. He can make or mar the Village, and in doing so he can help the cause of Indian Progress or hamper it" said Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, in his speech on the occasion of the opening of the Kannada Primary Teachers Training College, Belgaum. In his speech, he said:—

"It is not enough to find a building, the equipment and the easily available supply of children for a primary school. Everything hinges upon the personality of the teacher, and the qualifications of the teacher, and this is especially so in a country like ours where the one-teacher school is so common. We have experienced in our own State, and I am sure your experience is not quite different from ours, great difficulty in getting trained teachers for our primary schools. This lack of qualified teachers is one of the chief causes that account for the great wastage during the four years which are necessary for ensuring literacy. Therefore, you have done well in starting this Institution, and I have no doubt its personnel, equipment, curricula and methods of study are all calculated to turn out thoroughly well-qualified teachers for the primary schools.

"Some of the teachers that leave this Institution will no doubt find their work in towns, but by far the larger number will undoubtedly have to work in village schools. I trust, therefore, that the authorities of this Institution will make every effort to give the teachers what is usually called a 'rural bias.' They have not merely to train children whose subsequent lives will mostly be spent in villages, but a primary school teacher will also have to act as the guide philosopher and friend of the villagers. In a number of villages the primary school teacher will probably be one of the few, if not the only person, with any claim to education. On him will devolve the responsibility of helping the village community understand and solve a number of its problems, social and economic. A right-minded teacher can do a great deal to raise the quality of life in a village, but unhappily, as we know only too well, he can also be an active fomentor of trouble and party strife in villages.

Newspapers and official Intervention

Task of Advisory Committees

The 'Amrit Bazar Patrika', noticing the speech of Mr. A. A. Hayles, at the Mysore Conference writes thus:

Mr. A. A. Hayles, editor of the 'Madras Mail' put it in a nutshell when, opening the first Mysore Journalists Conference on Sunday last, he said that "there has been much stupid withholding of news, much unnecessary suspicion of the intentions and purposes of newspapers." The main task of the Advisory Committees of representatives of the Press in Delhi and provincial centres—recently constituted as a result of the efforts of the Indian section of the Indian and Eastern Newspaper Society—will be to guard against such senseless and exasperating official intervention. We regret, however, to have to say that not all Provincial Governments have so far shown any great inclination to consult these committees on matters affecting the Press. The fact is that Red Tape has never been noted for its elasticity and there may still be officials in high places who feel that recent rescission of an objectionable order on the Press is an unjustifiable encroachment on their rights.

What, after all, is the broad principle according to which a statement in the Press is judged? Is there any infallible method which, when applied by official experts, can establish beyond doubt that it is a "prejudicial" one? Does it depend on who writes, or on the idea he expresses, or on the attitude of the listeners? These are important questions—for in these is involved the big problem of freedom of expression, the greatest of the civil liberties on which democracy depends. We are reminded of a story in this connection.

The following extract from an article was placed by an American professor before a number of persons who were asked whether they identified the writer and whether they agreed with the views expressed: "The country, with its institutions, belongs to the people who inhabit it. Whenever they shall grow weary of the existing Government, they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it, or their revolutionary right to dismember or overthrow it." After a perusal of the statement, nearly all of them replied that it could have come only from Lenin or Stalin and that they strongly disagreed with it. When the professor told them that Abraham Lincoln was the "culprit" they became thoughtful and admitted that of course it was perfectly true. One wonders how a similar statement in the Press would react on the Bengal Government.

'THE IDEAL PAPER'

Mr. D.V. GUNDAPPA'S DREAM

In his masterly address at the Mysore State Journalists Conference, as its President, Mr. D.V. Gundappa gave a picture of 'The Ideal Paper' Every journalist has been dreaming of such a paper. We also cannot imagine when if ever the day will come that is propitious for the birth of a newspaper of that kind. But, all the same, it is worthwhile to have an ideal before us. This is what Mr. D.V. Gundappa is dreaming of:—

"I sometimes dream of a type of newspaper which leaves no room whatsoever for any suspicion of partisanship or private interest of any kind, and is a pure aid to intelligence. Its reporters and writers, like good civil servants, belong to no party. They recognize no claim upon their loyalty which is inconsistent with their loyalty to the country and to humanity. They take every care humanly possible to guard themselves against the workings of subconscious bias and temperamental preference. They find their editor first inside of themselves: their paper is conscience become articulate and seeking converse with other consciences. Its record of news will all be impersonal or photographically objective; and its budget of views will all be 'Personal' and frankly signed in large part. Its reports will not be tendentious; and its editor need not regard himself as under an obligation to discover or imagine a theme for discourse every day. There need be no such thing as a leading article at all, the editor being content to write over his signature, and that only when he has some thing to say, like any contributor. Its space will be available to everybody who has anything to submit for the consideration of the public, irrespective of the nature of his doctrine or his point of view. The only condition, apart from questions of the economy of the paper's space and resources, is that the writing should be decent and responsible and not injurious to the integrity and harmony of civic life; and to judge of this will be the main responsibility of the editor. Would not such a paper go as far as is humanly possible for any towards the ideal of eliminating bias and partisanship and helping our quest for the truth and justice of things?"

Birth of a Rupee

Fascinating Story Told in "Making Money"

(Contributed)

The fascinating story of the coining of rupees has been brought to the screen in "Making Money", Famous Cine Laboratory's splendid documentary film which is now being shown throughout India.

Taken in His Majesty's Mint in Bombay, the film depicts all the processes that go to the production of the gleaming silver coins on which the country's monetary system is based. Skilled workmen are shown tending ingenious machines and busy among piles of silver and coins that a millionaire might envy.

The story of the rupee begins when ingots of silver and other alloy metals are placed in oil-fired furnaces, to be heated white-hot until the metal runs like water. This precious liquid is poured into moulds to emerge again as silver bars. Then great rollers flatten the bars until they are the thickness of rupees, razor-sharp punches cut out the round blanks and thudding pressed put on the impressions and the milled edge.

All these spectacular operations and many more smaller but equally important processes are features in the film. "Making Money", however, does not stop when the rupees leave the Mint. It follows them in their travels, shows their part in rearing great buildings, in running the transport service, in rewarding the industrial magnate and the village craftsman.

Beautifully photographed, the film is technically among the best produced in India. It is available with commentaries in English, Hindustani, Bengali, Tamil and Telugu.

Congress & Country Synonymous

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam on Mysore City's Victory

Special thanks to Mysore Voters

Bangalore, Dec. 8. Mr. K. T. Bhashyam Iyengar, the President of the Mysore Congress in a statement to the press says thus:

I tender my grateful thanks to the people of Mysore City for securing such a tremendous victory for the Mysore Congress, at the elections held yesterday. They have once again risen to great heights and maintained their proud record of 1938.

Bangalore and Mysore Cities have given a crushing reply to those who accuse the Congress as consisting of a few unimportant persons. I hope that now at least all will realise that the Congress and the Country are synonymous if not identical.

Once again, on behalf of the Mysore Congress I tender my grateful thanks to the people of this City. I congratulate the successful candidates, the voters who contributed to our success, not forgetting the little boys and girls whose love and enthusiasm for the Congress were unbounded.

My special Congratulations to Srimathi P. Kameswaramma the first elected lady councillor for Mysore City.

M.N. Roy Indicts Congress

"This is India's War"

A.P. Nagpur, Dec. 8. "From the larger international as also from our particular national interest we cannot be indifferent to this war. It is not England's war; it is India's war and it must be won" said Mr. M.N. Roy, addressing a public meeting yesterday night under the presidency of Dr. M.N. Khare. If Britain won the war, the status quo of India would be maintained and perhaps there would be some improvement. At any rate nothing could be lost, added Mr. Roy. Criticising the Congress demand for National Government and the rejection of the offer of Viceroy's Executive Council, he said, if Congress Co-operated with the British Government in the expansion of the Executive Council, Government would have been compelled to come to an agreement with popular representatives.

Daily News

Bangalore City—Dec 9, 1940.

A NEW APPROACH
NEEDED

We are glad to note that another earnest attempt is being made to bring about a happy understanding in India between various political parties and Government. Though it is not known for what purpose Mr. Jayakar is going to Delhi, newspapermen guess that it is to discuss the political situation with the Viceroy. Mr. Jayakar has, along with Sir T.B. Sapru played a considerable part in the recent political history of India by attempting to bring about an understanding between Government and Congress. Whatever may be the view of Col. Amery and his henchmen, the political situation in India is not one which permits anybody to sit complacently with folded hands. The spectacle of hundreds of Satyagrahis of name and fame marching into jails with anti-war slogans on their lips, is not one which could cheer and comfort Indians, to whatever political persuasions they may belong. We are happy to note that Mr. Fazlul Haq, the Bengal Premier, is addressing Mr. Jinnah to make a fresh move with a view to negotiating with Congress.

In the same connection, 'The Times' in a leading article says, 'a new approach to the Indian problem is needed today.' The paper adds, "On our part there should be fuller explanation of concessions which have been offered and interpretation should not again have to wait until Indian politicians have refused concessions which may not have been fully explained to them. It is also possible that the British official attitude in India towards proposed concessions have been covered by assumption that Indian communal problem is insoluble."

To some extent it is true that there is an assumption on the part of British officials that the Indian communal problem is insoluble.

We wish to state, that time and again, propping up of this communal problem, betrays lack of correct appreciation and want of sympathy to India. The only practical solution was offered by Mr. C. Rajagopalachari when he suggested the formation of a National Government at the Centre responsible to the legislature. The Whitehall and New Delhi rejected this solution and plunged the country into Satyagraha. The situation in India has become intolerable and things cannot be allowed to go on at this rate. Mahatma Gandhi a staunch friend of Britain. He wants justice both to India and Britain. But, Col. Amery and his tribe, have refused to see the truth though they have eyes to see it. Before the situation in India deteriorates, we hope the British public will realise the true state of affairs in this country and direct the Secretary of State to come to terms with Mahatma Gandhi, who alone has in India the power to deliver goods. Will the British Press educate the British public in the matter?

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

It was our good fortune yesterday to congratulate Mysore Congress on its cent per cent success in the Bangalore Municipal Elections. We also congratulated the Bangalore ratepayers. It has fallen to our good luck today to congratulate Mysore Congress again on its glorious success in the city of Mysore. The Garden city of Mysore has not lagged behind Bangalore, the citadel of political progress. We heartily congratulate the successful congress candidates and the devoted ratepayers of Mysore. They have showered their affection and esteem on Mysore Congress in an unbounded measure. Our sincere congratulations to Srimati P. Kameswaramma also, who, though an independent candidate we are sure, will fall in line with Congress in the Municipal Council. She is a patriotic lady, hailing from Andhra, with a record of service to the nation. In Mysore, she has been taking her due share in the civic activities of the town.

All over India, this remarkable success of Mysore Congress will resound with glory. In a sense, the Mysore Congress is part and parcel of the great Indian National Congress, and the feeling of kinship is genuine and natural.

In the light of these results, we hope the authorities will have a correct appreciation of popular feeling towards Mysore Congress. Mysore Congress has, in fact, been an idol of the people of Mysore who adore it with all the devotion at their command. We repeat what we wrote yesterday that the opportunity time has come for Mysore Government to note the change that has come over the public life of the country. Let no side issues detract them from the vital issue which is crying for a solution from them. We request Government to reciprocate the feelings of the people in respect of their attitude towards the Mysore Congress.

May we hope, the authorities will seize this golden opportunity, justice to, and preservation of the premier also look after the Office Assistant of the State?

More Good Wishes

"A Red Letter Day"

Mr. K. Chengalaraya Reddy, sending his good wishes to 'Daily News' writes:—

I rejoice to learn that Sri P. R. Ramaiya, Founder and Proprietor of 'Tainadu' which occupies such a foremost place in the Press of today has decided to start an English Daily in Bangalore City. An English Daily for the Mysore State has been a long-felt want and Sri P. R. Ramaiya deserves the warmest congratulations and thanks of the public of the State for having fulfilled such a want. It is a matter of great significance that the announcement of publication of the Daily has been made on a red-letter day in the history of Mysore. The cent per cent success of the Mysore Congress in the Bangalore City Municipal elections is, I think, a case of breaking all previous records in parliamentary elections in India. I am almost tempted to say that the announcement of the starting of the paper has been made on an auspicious day when the people of Bangalore City have shown their affection to and confidence in the Mysore Congress in such an abounding and unprecedented manner. I am sure the "Daily News" will win the affection and confidence of the public of Mysore in a similar manner.

We are living in a very critical period in the history of the world. A terrible war is raging in many parts of the globe and Satyagraha in British India under the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi is being conducted with a brilliance and effect all its own and we in Mysore have our own problems and programmes of action which are fraught with far-reaching consequences. At a time like this, it is the duty of the people of Mysore and, may I also say, the Government of Mysore, to act in a manner which is conducive to the best and permanent interests of the State. The election results announced today show without a shadow of doubt which way the wind is blowing. The Congress stands for Responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja. The people stand solidly behind the Congress. I hope that the Government will draw from this the only inference that there can be no contentment in the country till Responsible Government is established.

"TAINADU" has laboured greatly and nobly for the vindication of fundamental rights of citizenship and for the fulfilment of the cherished ideal of the people of Mysore. It has also not been found wanting in the least degree in the matter of loyalty to the throne in Mysore. It is continuing its services in the above directions in an exemplary manner. It is, therefore, that I welcome the starting of the English Daily paper, 'Daily

News comes from Mysore that all the Congress Candidates have scored victory in the Municipal Elections held yesterday.

The Garden City of Mysore has repeated the performance of the City of Beans. Some people with imagination regard the Cities of Bangalore and Mysore, as the two eyes of the State. It is the practice of doctors to examine the patients by looking into their eyes. I think our Dr. Royan, the mayor of the City of Bangalore, will certify the health of the State to be sound. Anyway, the rate-payers of the Cities of Bangalore and Mysore have contributed a twinglory to the State.

At the time I received the result of Mysore City Elections, a friend of mine waxed eloquent and said, "The success was due to the effective propagandistic methods and slogans adopted by Mysore Congress". I said, "Very Good". He pitied the defeated candidates who were not effective in their propaganda. I do not agree with my friend. They did house-to-house propaganda, morning, noon, evening and night. I know they denied themselves sleep and made a pilgrimage to their voters from house-to-house. But their propaganda was of whispers, while the Congress spoke through the loud-speaker. Men, women and children listened to this new music of elections and on the day of reckoning, the Congress loud-speaker with the van, wheeled round the town with reverberating music. Young children added to the chorus, waving tiny national flags. From street to street these urchins marched with the slogan, "ಯಜ್ಞೇ ಶಾಂತಿ, ಶಾಂತೇ ಯಜ್ಞಃ". This slogan caught the imagination of the ratepayers and they marched to the Polling Booths and recorded their votes in favour of Congress.

I was speaking of slogans. These are days of slogans. You may even say this is an age of slogans. Hitler has a slogan, Mussolini has a slogan, Stalin has a slogan, and Churchill has a slogan. Who has not a slogan? In British India there are war-slogans and anti-war slogans. War sloganists enjoy official hospitality and catch words. They get into jails.

What is a slogan? The Oxford Dictionary says, "Highland war-cry; Panty cry, watch - word, motto." Perhaps the best synonym would be "catch-word". Slogan then is a political catch-word. These slogans catch the imagination of the man in the street. High-brows may have content for these slogans and catch words. They may think that these slogans degrade humanity. But the man in the street thinks otherwise.

Mahatma Gandhi has made a request to the public of Bombay to revise their sporting code and to erase from it communal matches. This is a timely word of advice. Enough mischief has been done by having Hindu, Parsee, Muslim and other communal eleven. By such divisions, unsportsmanlike things have happened in the past. Let atleast, the sporting field of life be untouched by the communal spirit. It is time that communal taints are banished from the sporting world.

Communal minded people are less sportive. Did not Mr. Mohamed Ali Jinnah reject the sporting offer of C. R. J. Where is sport in communalism?

News' by the same management. I tender my heartiest congratulations to Shris P. R. Ramaiya and P. B. Sreenivasan on their new venture and wish it every success.

Mr. K. R. Subbannachar, M. L. C. writes from Holenarasipur:—

I am glad to hear of your decision to start a daily paper in English. I wish you every success in your new enterprise. My compliments to Mr. Srinivasan.

Mr. W. H. Hanumanthappa writes:—

I wish all success to your noble attempt in publishing an English Daily (Daily News). The publication of such a paper was keenly felt all these years. Mysore must be proud of welcoming such a Daily. May God help you in this concern.

Mr. H. Sreenivasa Jois writes from Chitaldrug:—

It is with great pleasure that I learn about your new enterprise in the matter of starting an English Daily and I wish you great success in the same.

Mr. K. Hanumanthiya, Municipal Councillor and Member, Mysore Congress Working Committee writes:—

I read in "Tainadu" of 6th instant that you are starting an English Daily by name "Daily News" and the cent per cent success of the Mysore Congress in the Bangalore City Municipal elections. These two items of news vied with each other in making my heart throb with joy. I cordially welcome your laudable effort and pray for a brilliant, patriotic, and prosperous career for your new "hopeful" "Daily News".

Mr. B. Subbiah, Municipal Councillor writes:—

The news that you are starting

Large Haul of

The Bombay Customs authorities have seized gold sovereigns worth over Rs 1,27,000 from an Arab country craft due to leave port shortly. The coins have been confiscated on the suspicion that there was an attempt to smuggle them out of India.

The export of gold and silver coins from India has been prohibited under the Defence of India rules.

The seizure was made by the rummaging staff of the Customs, who thoroughly searched an Arab country craft anchored in the harbour and was due to leave Bombay shortly. The cargo lying in the vessel was scrutinised and it is stated the officers discovered concealed in the sides of the vessel 4,507 gold sovereigns.

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

Recent Political Developments

(From our special correspondent)

New Delhi, Dec 5

New Delhi is busy with conferences, jute, Indo Burma trade, handloom industry and various other matters. Still the thought uppermost in the public mind is the political situation which is steadily deteriorating from day to day. The only answer which one gets from official circles is that the situation has been forced upon them and that the Government cannot shirk its primary duty to maintain law and order. The only silver lining to the cloud so far as one can see is that a commendable feeling of restraint is being shown. The desire of Mahatma Gandhi to keep his movement within certain narrow limits and eschew demonstrations and any sort of public excitement has been brought out in his public statements. Nor have the authorities rushed to take any precipitate action by arresting Mahatma Gandhi or declaring the Congress as illegal or anything of that kind. This has given rise to the hope that something may yet be done to restore political harmony in the country. In politics it is never too late to mend matters however serious the situation may be at the moment, for one gesture, given the right spirit may transform the whole atmosphere. And so among the departing members of the Central Legislature whose session concluded on Monday last, one could notice the feeling that deplorable as have been the recent political developments in the country a statesmanlike solution is still possible.

Some Suggestions

Several suggestions from non-party leaders have recently come into prominence. The names of several ex-members of the Viceroy's Cabinet are connected with the move for forming a representative committee or delegation to meet political leaders and the Viceroy for deciding on an agreed scheme for the war period for reconstructing the Central Government. Their intentions are undoubtedly laudable but the difficulties inherent in the situation are so great that there is no inclination in any quarter to build any large hopes on these efforts of non-party leaders. On the other hand the suggestion has been made by Mr. P. N. Sanyal, a former President of the Liberal Federation that a goodwill mission should come out to this country from the United Kingdom. If this mission consists of men like Sir Stafford Cripps (now in Russia) Lord Samuel and others who can command public confidence in this country and at the same time are in a position to influence the policy of the Churchill Cabinet it might not be entirely useless. Both in England and in India there is now an insistent demand that a new approach should be made to the Indian problem and that not in the old manner of slow and halting but coming but in a bold and generous spirit. The Lucknow Anglo-Indian daily, "The Pioneer" writes "What is needed is a great intellectual and honest effort aimed at assuring for all parties a real share in the Central Government and none a monopoly of power. Britain should take the initiative not only because the parties in India have failed to settle their differences but also because she is one of the parties to the dispute".

Whose Initiative?

Who then should take the initiative at this critical moment to find a way out of the political difficulties? It is clear that unless the Government takes the initiative no useful purpose is likely to be served. The concluding speeches in the Central Assembly on the Supplementary Finance Bill gave one the impression that an opportunity may soon be found to bring the leaders of the Congress and the Muslim League together for political talks. In fact it was Mr. Jinnah who appealed to the Congress members and said that they should get together to formulate a joint demand to the British Government, and the reply of Mr. Bhulabhai Desai was in every respect satisfactory. The expected meeting has, however not taken place. Mr. Bhulabhai Desai is now in jail along with many other Congress leaders. The two speeches of Mr. Jinnah in Delhi subsequent to the Assembly session showed, however that his mind was moving in a different direction now. He characterised the Congress movement as an attempt to coerce the British Government to coerce the Muslims. He has gone further to hurl a threat that if the British Government showed any sign of yielding to the Congress demands the Muslim League would have to intervene to assert its own rights and claims. In every speech of his, Mr. Jinnah has raised the cry of Pakistan as their irrevocable political claim. On the other hand there has been a counter move from Hindu bodies for resisting this demand for the partitioning of India. At least three speakers in the Council of State, Mr. P. N. Sanyal, Pundit H. N. Kunzru and Mr. S. N. Malhotra spoke out strongly against the Pakistan cry and said that they would on no account agree to the partitioning of India. In the result the situation facing the country is both complex and novel partly because of these communal demands and counter demands and partly because of the absence of any move from the Government to re-examine the problem and find a solution.

The Next Step

The position so far as the Government is concerned is that the offer contained in the August declaration of the Viceroy will be held and stand the Government have agreed to accept the offer. But the Government are concerned to avoid themselves of it, it and what the choice. But the simple fact is that the choice is a political one and possibly be revived, for having been rejected by all the parties concerned as totally inadequate, from the point of view of transfer of power to political parties it cannot serve as a basis of bringing them together in the Central Government. The object which the Viceroy had in view viz, the association of leaders of political parties in the Central Government can only be achieved if an acceptable scheme can be offered at least now. So far as the Congress is concerned the general view is that it will still be agreeable to any popularly based National Govt. on an all-party basis at the Centre. In Congress circles no serious importance is attached to the apprehensions expressed by Mr. Jinnah, for they apparently feel that once the leaders of the Congress and the Muslim League sit together to form a Cabinet acceptable to both and deciding on a common programme of work, they are not likely to experience any great difficulty. This feeling is largely due to the fact that the Congress is prepared to go to the utmost length to accommodate the Muslim League and remove its fears. As a matter of fact it was found during the recent session of the Central Assembly that the Muslim League and the other non-official parties invariably voted together on the issues which came up before the House. As Mr. Jinnah has agreed to keep the Pakistan question aside for the present, at least for the period of the war, this need not interfere with the formation of a National Government on an all party basis. Two suggestions are therefore made for the consideration of the Government in the course of political talks here. The first is that the Central Legislature should be immediately dissolved and fresh elections ordered so that a representative House in the fullest sense may come into being. The second is that the British Government should accept the principle of a National Government and leave it to the parties concerned to form an all party Cabinet.

The Surplus Problem

Much was expected of the Eastern Group Conference, but it has come and gone leaving only an acute feeling of disappointment. What new industries are likely to come into existence in this country as a result of this conference? To what extent will these countries be able to assist India to find a market for her surplus

TO-DAY'S WAR DIGEST ITALY

Italy is providing daily sensations. Another prominent War Lord has resigned "at his own request". This time he is Admiral Domenico Cavagnari Chief of the Italian Naval Staff. No sooner Marshal Bodoglio laid down his august office others followed suit. These "own request" exits have shaken Sgt. Mussolini who from his snug and cosy Palazzo Venezia is looking up to the skies for the needy help. These dramatic exits coincide with the inglorious retreats in Albania and the resigned Generals have set their seal of disapproval on the shaky methods of Fascist Italy.

Mussolini without wasting a single second has commanded Admiral Riccardi to assume the Naval Command forthwith. Riccardi is a man of experience having commanded 30 Ships in 1939. No doubt Admiral Riccardi will try to satisfy his chief setting at rest the recent dislocations but it is very difficult to establish the confidence that has been rudely shaken in recent months.

The Greek Front

Argyrocastro has fallen—that is the news which has enlivened the freedom loving people throughout the World. The war weary nations of Europe have felt comfortable on the happy turn-overs in Albania. All along the Southern Front from Santi Quaranta to Premeti the Italians were retiring till a very late hour yesterday. After all Koritza Argyrocastro is an important base whose strategic value need cause no fear in anybody. The Italians are fleeing westward towards Delvine. We hear the heartening news that the Greek Infantry have defeated the Italian Alpine troops.

The whole of Athens—the glory of Ancient Greece—is rejoicing over their "second Koritza"—the victory at Argyrocastro. Though a severe gale and snow storm are sweeping the mountain ranges the Greeks continue to advance north of Pogradetz. Huge crowds at the Grecian Capital cheered their King and Prime Minister for the brilliant success at Argyrocastro. The King followed by General Metaxas appeared on the balcony of the Royal Palace in answer to thier shouts. With the taking of Argyrocastro one quarter of the population and one seventh of the territory of Albania have been freed from the yoke of the Italian terror.

The Blitzkrieg

The "Blitz" for which Herr Hitler is famous has proved abortive once again over London. Hardly before, the dusk on Dec. 8th an alert broke out, the longest all clear spell over London. Reverting to its former tactics

Sree Pyarelal Left Ashram for Satyagraha

Sree Pyarelal, a prominent leader of the Satyagraha movement, has left his ashram to join the struggle. He is expected to lead a large number of volunteers in the coming days. His departure is seen as a significant boost to the movement's morale.

Liquidation of Rural Debts

Revenue Commissioner on limits of Mortgage Banks
(From our own correspondents)

The Revenue Commissioner has issued orders regarding the liquidation of rural debts. The orders specify the limits within which mortgage banks must operate. This move is aimed at protecting the interests of rural borrowers and ensuring the stability of the financial system in the countryside.

Bengal Premier's Move

"No useful purpose Served"

Says Sir Raza Ali

A.P. Dec. 10. In the course of a statement referring to Mr. A. K. Fazlul Huq's latest move to bring about a settlement between the Congress and the Muslim League, Sir Raza Ali says he does not consider Mr. Huq's well-meant effort to devise means to bring together the Congress and Muslim League, can serve any useful purpose at present. He adds Mr. Jinnah made the position quite clear in his speech in the Assembly on 19th November when he expressed the League's readiness to negotiate with the Congress. Sir Raza Ali thinks with most Congress Leaders in jail it would be difficult to see how Mr. Fazlul Huq's effort could be successful. In any case from Mr. Jinnah's statement it is for the Congress to make the next move.

The Luftwaffe tried to 'blitz' London, but failed. Five hospitals, churches and a convent were hit. Many nazi bombers were destroyed over London.

Dormitory shelters have been provided for about 1,50,000 people in the London region adding to the comforts of underground shelters. Over 80,000 timber bunks giving sleeping room for 2,40,300 people have been delivered. There is lull in Nazi Air tactics.

R. A. F.

As usual the R. A. F. bombing attacks continue unabated over large tracts in Germany and Africa. Brest was smashed and Herr Hitler is shivering in his shoes over this incident. In Africa R. A. F. activities are menacing.

If Govt. Accepts Poona offer?

Congress Prepared to Review Situation

Maulana Azad's Reply to Pressmen
A.P. Patna Dec. 10.

Asked what the attitude of the Congress would be if the Government came out with a gesture, for instance, an expression of their readiness to accept the Poona offer, Maulana Azad, Congress President, at a Press Conference today said that the Congress would be prepared to review the entire situation. He added the Poona offer was a good step and if the Government came out from their side with something incorporating the salient points of the Poona offer it would be entirely a new proposition.

Asked what the attitude of the Congress would be if India was attacked by Fascist Italy, Maulana Azad said the responsibility of defending the country from Fascist invasion could have devolved upon the Congress only if it had any say in the defence preparations of the country. The Congress, he observed, refused to defend India only to keep British Imperial interests intact.

Sir Mirza's visit to Aundh is seen as a significant event in the history of the Khilafat movement in the region. It is expected that his presence will further strengthen the ties between the Khilafat movement and the local population of Aundh.

Kempe Gowda's Dream Comes True

BANGALORE-A GROWING CITY
Municipal Commissioner's Report

Bangalore, Dec. 10

"The area of Bangalore City will very soon exceed 15 square miles with a corresponding increase in the population which may easily exceed two and a half lakhs—that is the heartening opinion of Mr. S. Narayana Rao, our worthy Municipal Commissioner. When Kempe Gowda the founder of this city dreamt his dream of expansion his boundary never extended beyond the place orchard to the north, Turikanpaya to the west, Lal-Baah to the South and Wilson garden to the East. But now the city knows no bounds. It has defied the sentiments of Kempe Gowda all for the better."

The Administration report of the Bangalore City Municipality just issued is a pleasant reading in itself. It is a record of noble civic worth set up with cooperation of the Council and its Executive with Municipal Commissioner as the custodian of City's Civic interests. The charm of the report lies in its descriptive sentences a continual toil to further the amenities of the City's categories.

7 lakhs of rupees on public Health and Convenience, one and a half lakhs on improvement works, Four and half lakhs on water supply nearly Rs. 80,000 on street lighting are some of the high lights in our City's expenditure. As the revenue of the Municipality does not expand to meet the needs of the growing expenditure from taxation has been resorted to much to the dislike of the ratepayers.

The City has 135 miles of roads but nearly one fifth of the mileage has been tarred.

The entire City has to be provided with underground drainage but so far Rs. 7 lakhs have been spent out of a comprehensive figure of Rs. 40 lakhs. As the Government has agreed to meet the expenditure in equal proportions a sigh of relief is felt by all those who love the City's sanitation.

The total revenue of the Municipality is somewhere in the neighbourhood of Rs. 19 lakhs but the demand of civic amenities is growing day by day.

The population of the City as per last Census was 172,000 nearly 9000 babies open their eyes in this city giving birth rate of 50.71 per 1000 of population.

compared with 46.68 in the previous year. An argument in favour of birth control.

382 applications for coffee clubs were received, says the report. 250 licences were granted and in 40 cases licences were refused as the places were found to be unsatisfactory.

The people of this City are becoming radio-minded as a result of successful drives towards this. At three places loud speakers pour sweet music but a better efficiency is needed on the part of tuners. We wonder whether they have been trained to handle a set properly. The sound that emanates from the Municipal Garden radio is something that is not music.

The city consumes 3 million gallons of pure filtered water and for this we pay 4 lakhs annually. The receipts under this head is small and the council has to make good the deficit.

Mr. S. Narayana Rao, a jewel in the Mysore Civil Service deserves to be complimented on his excellent work.

German Day Raiders' New Technique

Dodging Spitfires At Low Levels

(By Cable) London
A Daily Telegraph reporter writes—

Day raiders are trying a new technique to dodge Spitfires. They slip over the coast in ones and twos at a low altitude, sometimes almost skimming the rooftops. Normally they fly as high as 37,000 feet.

This afternoon I was standing on a cliff edge when a Messerschmitt 109 passed immediately overhead at less than 200 feet, making towards the sea from this island and going flat out for home. Two other German planes had crossed at a low height, almost over the same spot, and escaped a few days ago.

In this however the ground defence had prepared an unpleasant surprise and the German had the hottest reception I've ever seen given to the enemy. Many machine-gun nests were active and there was a pandemonium of sound and tremendous fire was centred on the plane.

Bigger anti-aircraft guns joined in the chorus and black bursts ringed the sky round the raider. The machine seemed to jerk spasmodically, as if it had been hit, and as it vanished into the haze it seemed to be in a long shallow dive into the sea.

The Germans may be using these fast low fliers for reconnaissance with a view to future attempts at landing raiding parties. At any rate low planes have not attempted to use their machine-guns on ground targets.

The German big guns opposite gave the Dover area an off day.

Hiding the Truth

German Press Ignores the Greek War

(By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph correspondent on the German frontier cables: One of the most curious aspects of the Italo-Greek campaign is seen in the failure of the German Press to take note of it. Beyond occasional Italian communique, German readers have had no means of ascertaining what is going on.

Officially it is stated in Berlin that there is no war, as none has been declared. Everything is done to give the appearance, by brief references to the campaign, that only skirmishes are taking place.

Mistake Of Fascist High Command

Will New Italian Offensive Yield Results?

(By Cable) London

Italy's defeat on the Albanian front was due to a mistake on the part of the Italian High Command, states the Rome correspondent of the Madrid newspaper A. B. C.

He says that 70,000 Italians were thrown against 250,000 Greeks and that five Italian colonels were killed while leading their troops.

Some Spanish critics expect Italy to atone for her initial rout. The Military Correspondent of El Pueblo thinks that Italy's "final success", depends on the fruits which the first stages of the new offensive may yield.

In the meantime the official Spanish news agency reports that Berlin remains under the impression that all the countries of South Eastern Europe are interested in a friendly solution being reached between Athens and Rome, failing which they went almost to keep out of the war absolutely.

Political Murders In Rumania

Evidence of Totalitarian Infection

(By Cable) London

Concerning the Rumanian assassinations the Times Diplomatic Correspondent writes:—What is particularly distressing in the crime is the evidence it affords of the demoralisation of Rumanian public life by totalitarian infection. Of all the states of South Eastern Europe Rumania has had the cleanest record in the matter of political assassination. Between 1870 and 1930 scarcely one political crime of importance figures in the national annals. In 1931-32 the newly-formed Iron Guard began to kill political opponents and after the murder of M. Duca in 1933 there came a long series of assassinations culminating in the massacre of November 26. German Antonescu will be exceptionally fortunate if he can check the tendency among the fierce half-educated lads, led by the entirely unscrupulous adventurers who form the great majority of Rumania's "saviours" the Iron Guard.

(By Cable) London

Figures—the accuracy of which has been verified by neutral observers—tell clearly of the immense losses inflicted on German aircraft in their attacks on Britain. They leave no doubt of the superiority of the Royal Air Force.

Thought For The Day

We cannot but speak the things which we have heard and seen

Daily News

Bangalore City Dec 12, 1940.

Mahatma's Blessings to Mysore Congress

It is a heartening message that Mahatma Gandhi has sent to the Mysore Congress on hearing that it scored Cent-per-Cent success in the Mysore and Bangalore Municipal Elections. The message is as follows: "Delighted over the signal success. You must now build up constructively." This is a lovely message, characteristic of Mahatma Gandhi. He has unbounded affection for Mysore people. He wants them to get on very well. His relations with the authorities also are friendly. He is a friend of our Dewan Sahab. But Mahatma Gandhi's friendship does not stand in his way of telling Mysore Government that they are wrong when they do wrong. On many an occasion he has praised the Mysore administration. But it must be remembered that Gandhi is a man of the people and for the people. He has several times given good advice to Mysore Government. Nor has he spared the Mysore Congress when it went wrong. In these circumstances, the Mahatma's message and advice to Mysore Congress is one which is to be preserved as a priceless treasure. We are sure Mysore Congress is not in a hurry. We are confident that they will "build up constructively".

May we, on this occasion, once again, draw the attention of Mysore Government to the change that has come over the country. The Mysore of to-day is not the Mysore of 1925 or 1926. Things have been moving fast, much faster, than the wisest of us could divine. Mysore people are pulsating with a new life. Palliatives will not do. Great farsighted statesmanship is the need of the hour in Mysore. Sir Mirza Ismail, our Dewan, has done so much to Mysore. Let him not miss this golden opportunity of shaking hands with the Mysore Congress and take them into his confidence. Let him not listen to interested counsels. The country and the people have expressed themselves in clear and certain terms. There is no doubt as to what they mean and what they want. Let bygones be bygones. Let us open a new chapter in Mysore. Officials and Non-officials, as we unite and march with hope, in our heart and sight in our eyes to the

No Fresh Taxation Necessary

Bangalore Municipal Councillor's Views

Bangalore Dec. 12
The Bangalore City Municipal Council at its special meeting, last evening, under the presidency of Dr. M. Royan, passed the Administration report for the year 1939-40. Mr. S. Narayana Rao, Municipal Commissioner, was also present.

The council discussed the report for more than three hours and then adopted it. Extracts from the report have already appeared in these columns.

Mr. I. K. Puroshtham Naidu suggested that three methods might be adopted to improve the income of the Municipality instead of increasing the taxation, namely the executive to be empowered to collect dues, the Council to approach Government with a request for more grant and for reducing the payments to be made towards light and water, and to raise loan, as the money market was cheap, to invest on remunerative lines.

Mr. K. Gubbaiya observed that the financial difficulties would be solved if what was legitimately due to the Municipality was collected. Therefore he felt no need to increase taxation any further. He complimented the Commissioner for the illuminating report.

Mr. M. R. Narasimha Ayyangar said that the report before the house was one of the best administration reports in the history of the Council. He felt that it would have given the public an exact idea of the work carried out by this council if the report had been published in Kannada also. He declared that the levying of profession tax was perfectly correct as the rich also had been taxed by this measure.

After some other councillors expressed their opinion, the report was adopted.

Mr. Bireschandra Mishra, Secretary, Local District Congress Committee was sentenced to eighteen months rigorous imprisonment under Sec. 124 A (Sedition) for publishing an article entitled "Council Assembly Kisan movement."

destined goal under the inspiring and progressive lead of our young noble Maharaja, Sri Jaya Chamarajendra Wadiyar Bahadur. Mahatma Gandhi's message to Mysore Congress is also a message to Mysore Government. We can assure all concerned that Mysore Congress is prepared to bury its hatchets, if there is manifest a will and gesture for friendship and co-operation from the other side. We are optimistic and we also request our readers to be optimistic. Even in the face of gloom and darkness, let us not lose our heart and cheer. Ali is bound to be well.

TO-DAY'S War Digest

The Greek Front

Between the sea coast of Santi Quaranta and Velona there is a neat little town called Chimmara. This town lies 22 miles west of Argyrocastro. The Greeks are advancing very cautiously towards this place in the hope of threatening the flank of the Italians who are already withdrawing northwards from Santi Quaranta. The Italian rear guards are resisting the Greek push. A cavalry screen has been thrown out by the Greeks to counter the Italian plans.

The whole right wing of the Italian army in Albania is retreating to the north and north-west of Argyrocastro. Further north the Italians are retreating in utter confusion.

The 'Resurrection Kiss' usually reserved for Easter Sunday morning is being freely used to celebrate the latest victory at Argyrocastro. In Epirus the people have become so overjoyed that to kiss a neighbouring lady is considered to be within bounds. What a pleasure in the midst of death and fury!

Bad Tidings at Vichy

A bitter wordy warfare is going on at Vichy between M. Petain and the Nazi over-lords. News has filtered through that M. Laval has been losing ground both with the Germans and Petain. Nazis desire a quick consummation of their desire to bring France into line with the Axis. But Vichy resists in the interests of its own freedom. Von Ribbentrop is trying to win over France to complete subservience. Nazis are already forcing M. Flandin to come into the Vichy Cabinet. But the old man of France is unbending. He is successfully resisting the machinations of Nazis.

In the meantime America is threatening Vichy that if in the event of French military collaboration with Germany she will be forced to sacrifice her friendship. Admiral Leahy the new U. S. A. Ambassador at Vichy is strengthening the influence of M. Petain. M. Laval about whom so much is being said is returning to Paris.

Battle for Africa

British Imperial Forces have begun the long cherished Battle for Africa. Operations have already commenced some 15 or 20 miles south of Sidi Barrani. Little can be said at present about the extent to which the operations may develop but it is known that for the past few weeks the whole of the enemy's forward line has been constantly probed by British units. Within an hour the British have captured an Italian camp just south of Sidi Barrani. The G. O. C. of one of the Italian forces has

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I read the following message in a Lucknow contemporary:—
"The Herald is in difficulties save it with all your might," is the slogan of the students of Allahabad when they go for collection of money for The Herald.

The cause of The Herald is being supported here by all classes of people. Vigorous efforts are being made to collect the maximum possible money in minimum time. Professors and students alike are carrying on a regular campaign to collect the fund for The Herald.

I congratulate "Herald" on its good luck. It augurs well for newspapers. I have given publication to this news as a provision to our local papers in times of emergency. What a fine idea it will be if our Central College and Maharaja College students should go round with a begging bowl for collecting deposit amounts if the local furies should wield their bludgeons against local papers. God forbid such a contingency.

I compliment the Bangalore Intermediate College students on their wise decision to go back to their Association. They have shown their feelings enough. Now that the Vice Chancellor has come out with a declaration of something like a policy to guide future occasions, it is statesmanlike, should I say, on the part of students not to have pressed the matter too far. Mr. N. S. Subba Rao, is an academician of fine fellow feeling. He can understand and appreciate what is in the mind of students. I also offer my congratulations to the Vice Chancellor on the happy termination of this rather sorry episode.

A New Delhi message states as follows:—

H. E. the Viceroy has received a contribution of Rs. 5 per mensem, for one year, from a donor who has given up smoking to effect this saving. The donor desires the amount to be credited to the Tobacco Fund. The gift has been gratefully accepted by the Viceroy.

I would commend this to the attention of all smokers. A lot of money could be saved and sent to War Fund for manufacturing Spitfires. This is a fine idea.

I congratulate Dr. C. Ramalinga Reddy on the completion of his sixtieth year. He is well known to Mysore. There are many students of his, here who remember him dearly as a jovial professor and kind-hearted principal. Whatever his politics may be, he is a man of deep culture. He is a fine witty speaker. To hear his speeches is a certain intellectual entertainment. He is never dull and insipid. He is not commonplace. He enlivens his audiences and tickles them to ripples of good humour and laughter. Even as a conversationalist he is unsurpassed. All of us are proud of Dr. Reddy. May God shower on him His choicest blessings.

News comes from Madras that that august body, Indian Eastern Newspaper Society, has and transacted some business. We miss Mr. Mahadev Desai in that company. I hope they will not be a fresh controversy as to whether assurance was given or not. Mr. K. Srinivasan silenced all controversy, when he said no assurance was asked for, and no assurance was given. But it transpires that some members of Indian and Eastern Newspaper Society waited ten days earlier on Government of India and talked something over. That has nothing to do with the Conference. I am glad that all that deserves to be said over the assurance question has been said, and there will not be any further ink slinging in the matter.

been killed and his second in command has been captured.

R. A. F.

The R. A. F. continue to harass the industrial and military targets in Germany. Dusseldorf was bombed once again and this is admitted by the press in Germany. Lorient a submarine base in Germany was also attacked. British bombers have persistently bombed the Rhine-Ruhr districts particularly Dusseldorf and Cologne.

Enemy Agents in Britain

Two enemy agents who were found guilty of having acted on behalf of Germany were executed at a prison in Britain. This is the first time that spies are found in that island. Timely vigilance of the police will prevent such activities. It is revealed that the spies had in their possession considerable sums of money. Their chief work was in transmitting wireless messages to the enemy.

Mysore Notes

Inter-Staff debate

(From our own correspondents)

Mysore Dec. 10

Under the auspices of the Mysore University Union an Inter-Staff Debate took place last evening in the quadrangle of the Maharaja's College with Mr. J. C. Rolo in the chair.

Mr. B. S. Keshavan of the Central College Bangalore moved the proposition that the House desires a return to the good old days. Pointing out the evil effects of the growth of machinery and the expansion of Science in modern times, he pleaded that we are prepared to go back to the good old days when there was ample scope for the development of human personality.

Mr. D. S. Gordon of the Maharaja's College Mysore opposed the proposition saying that a return to past would be a return to ignorance. In good days according to him were not in the past, but they were to come in the future.

Messrs. P. G. Satyagirinathan and T. L. Kasturi Rangachar of the Mysore Intermediate College supported the prime mover while Mr. P. R. Jagapati Naidu of the Bangalore Central College and Dr. L. S. Ramaswamy of the Mysore Intermediate College supported the opposition.

When put to vote the proposition was carried.

Death of a villager

It is reported that on the 8th instant, on the tank bund near Nigaval village one Hutche Gowda was found lying with severe injuries on his body. He was removed for treatment to the hospital at Mysore where he died later. The Mysore Taluk Police held an inquest on the dead body yesterday. Foul play is suspected and further investigation is proceeding.

Marshal Petain on "Collaboration"

(By Cable) London

The Madrid Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph Cables:

In an interview given to the new Paris Weekly La Gerbe, Marshal Petain said that the word "collaboration" was easily provided with many interpretations. Military collaboration with Germany was impossible because France had no army and the country was under overwhelming obligations and burdens.

"Germany", added the Marshal, "could not co-operate in the defence of Northern Africa and other French possessions in the same continent menaced by Britain and de Gaulle without Britain declaring war on us and Paris and other cities being bombed."

Collaboration was "possible and perhaps necessary" if France were still to exist in Western Europe.

Land Record Survey In Mysore

Record Of Rights Work

Bangalore, Dec. 10

"Survey, classification, bandh pahani and other miscellaneous work was carried out in 44 Inam villages involving an area of 11,365 acres against 13,055 acres in 69 villages in 1938-39," says the annual report of the Department of Land Records, Survey and Settlement for 1939-40, which also incidentally shows a general improvement in the volume of work done.

There was noticeable increase in work done under Phod and measurement, the area attended to being 70,797 acres against 58,444 acres in 1938-39. The number of darakast and other records disposed of during the year also marked an improvement, the number disposed of being 10,779 as against 10,127 in 1938-39. Classification work was carried out in 2,323 villages in respect of 7,826 numbers comprising 37,104 acres.

The introduction of Survey and Settlement to Inam villages proceeds but slowly. So far only 610 villages have been surveyed and settled and as many as 1,400 villages remain to be dealt with. The question of accelerating the introduction of survey and Settlement into these villages is under consideration.

The Department attended to the work connected with the decennial revision of potgi of 165 villages in 5 taluks and supplemental potgi of 2 villages.

The preliminary work relating to Record of Rights in the Madhugiri, Srinivasapur and Krishnarajanagar taluks was taken up and completed during the year and the work relating to four more taluks, namely, Krishnarajpet, Koratagere, Hosakote and Kankanahalli and Chinkurli Hobli in French Rocks was in progress.

Hissa Survey field work and checking was done in 9 taluks, the number of Hissas measured being 2,39,707 and the number of Hissas checked in monsoon tapasani being 1,84,914. The Record of Rights staff also attended to the preparation of the Record of Rights and Index of Land Registers in 8 taluks. Nineteen Record of Rights Surveyors worked in 16 taluks in connection with the clearing of arrears of mutation cases and measured 15,898 Hissas in 3,445 villages.

It was also observed that the Hissa Survey work was hampered by reason of the large number of missing stone which had to be refixed and that in 558 villages in 7 taluks as many as 43,663 boundary marks were fixed in respect of 14,684 Survey numbers, the largest number of such missing stones having been noticed in Malavalli,

Men and Matters

Prince Saionji

Prince Saionji, the last of the Genro or elder statesmen of Japan, died on November 23 at the age of 92. He was the last living link between the old order and the new, having lived to see not only the whole westernising process in Japan, but the rise and fall of liberalism in that country.

Belonging to the old court nobility, Saionji helped as a volunteer in 1866 to overthrow the Shogun and to restore the Emperor to the throne.

A follower of Prince Iwakura, he spent many years in study in Europe and came back to represent the Japanese in the Meiji Government.

He was influential in bringing about the Anglo-Japanese alliance in 1902. He was also a member of the Diet.

He was one of the survivors of the revolution of 1868, he belonged to the inner ring of those whose consent was necessary for every important act. For many years he has been the sole survivor of this group, but he was consulted right down to the very end of the war.

His influence was always on the side of moderation.

Germany Faces A Second War Winter

Food Situation And Attitude Of People

(By cable) London

The Helsinki correspondent of the Daily Telegraph writes:

The Berlin correspondent of the Harvadstadblad describes the advent of winter as unwelcome and giving the population much trouble and causing loss of factory productions. The Germans try to make themselves comfortable by the fact that England's situation was created by the war and that the winter is not so severe as in Europe.

For the purpose of keeping up the people's morale the National Press describes the winter as being of outside nature occupied by the Germans and bettering the eyes of the soldiers' backs.

In Denmark better news comes to Berlin and the press correspondents have been suspended so as to make possible an increase for the Germans themselves.

Spain's reluctance to join the Axis is attributed to the necessity of maintaining food imports from South America. Referring to German rationing as Spanish, Berlin hopes that actual rationing will be avoided. The shortage is declared to be most affecting the countries which took no precaution to lay in stocks and are now obliged to deliver to Germany in accordance with trade agreements.

Japan's Desire To End Chinese War

Device To Secure Peace

(by Cable) London
The Manchester Guardian writes: There are many reports that a peace treaty is about to be concluded between Japan and the puppet government at Nanking under Wang Ching-wei. According to some versions the treaty will be signed on the 3rd. The project is clearly a Japanese attempt to end the war with China as soon as possible. It is hoped at Tokio that peace with an "independent" government at Nanking will impress the rest of China and undermine the influence of Chiang Kai-shek.

Competent authorities here do not believe it likely to have the desired effect and, although it is not easy to forecast the reactions of the Chinese, the available evidence tends to support the belief that Japan will be disappointed. Chinese opinion will undoubtedly be reinforced by the firm attitude of Britain and the United States and the support they are giving China. Japan's desire to finish the war as soon as possible is due in part to her military embarrassment and in part to the recognition that her southwards expansion is hampered under the present circumstances. It may be argued at Tokio, too, that there is a time limit to the possibilities for such expansion—a limit set by developments in Europe and to an even greater degree by the speed-up in American rearmament. Another factor in the situation is the attitude of Russia. The conversations as to a non-aggression pact with Japan have so far produced no results and, although they are still proceeding, progress is slow. It would appear that the Russians are pursuing a cautious policy. Soviet support of Chiang Kai-shek continues meanwhile and Japan may fear that Moscow prefers a victory for him to Japanese domination of the Far East. Hence the desire to secure peace.

A. P. Dhanbad Dec. 11.
Mr. Makutdhari, Local Congress and Labour Leader was arrested on Tuesday by Jharia Police in connection with anti-war speech and sentenced to nine months rigorous imprisonment.

Selection of Satyagrahis

Sri Mahadeo Desai Explains

A.P. Wardha Dec. 11

Members of the three classes who are now under arrest are under no compulsion to court imprisonment, says Mr. Mahadeo Desai, the Minister under instructions from Gandhiji for removing misapprehensions about the present movement.

Mr. Desai says, the movement is essentially voluntary in character and not one that requires obedience are exempted, but those who are anxious to do so are permitted to do so. They are not of any caste or creed, but are working with a pure heart, having faith in the constructive work and in the possibility of fit and have no commitments. But, emphasises Mr. Desai, after this selection is made and they go in, they are under the iron discipline of satyagrahis & model prisoners.

Regarding selection of satyagrahis, Mr. Desai says it is a firm thought to harbour the idea that there is any order of merit involved in the present selection. Congress representatives have been so far selected to limit the movement as much as possible. He admits numerous people who belong to the so-called rank and file and who are perhaps better satyagrahis, have been left out. Again those who are giving their whole time to constructive work could not be spared for jail-going.

HIGH COURT

Five Months for House Breaking and Theft

(Before Abdul Gham J)

Bangalore Dec. 12.

Holding that the factors of the case, namely that the accused was more than 21 years of age and that the offence he had committed was punishable with imprisonment for a period of 10 years, did not warrant for the exercise, by the lower court, of power under section 562 Cr. P. C., His Honour on revision, set aside the order of release, on the execution of a bond with a surety for Rs. 100, of one Linga Naika of Kalale and sentenced him to undergo 6 months rigorous imprisonment for an offence of house breaking under section 454 I.P.C. and 2 months rigorous imprisonment for an offence of theft of gold jewels valued at about Rs. 60 under section 380 I.P.C., the sentences to run concurrently.

TO-DAY'S War Digest

Three Cheers to General Sir Wavell

"Three Cheers to General Sir Archibald Wavell"—that is the world's approbation to this sprightly General who is new to the Egyptian desert. With only one eye, General Wavell has come out successful in his recent offensive against the western desert. A man who was a close friend of Lawrence of Arabia, Gen. Wavell knows the inner most strategic advantages of the desert. General Wavell is well known to book lovers of the modern age. His biography of Lord Allenby reveals his mastery of writing and though a soldier he has retained his burning love of letters. Hats off to Gen. Wavell.

The capture of Sidi Barran and the consequent breaking of of two Italian divisions reveal the military preparedness of the British who with their leap of 75 miles have created a static gulf in the desert. Marshal Graziani is dumb founded at the latest British success and reports go to prove that this great Army Chief is already sick of the Fascist dictatorship.
The capture of 4000 Italians and a number of medium Tanks should decide once for all the fate of Italy. We are sure that Mussolini's dream of another Roman Empire has fallen flat.
Egypt is mad with joy over the British success and they feel that the British Command did not sacrifice military strategy to publicity. The British Prime Minister has given a well deserved tribute to the British Command at the Middle East.
The world reciprocates Mr
Churchill's feeling.

The Hitler Boast

Hitler has spoken to a group of hungry workmen in a far off corner of the German capital. A perusal of his hymn of hate does not reveal that spirit of confidence which was the key note of his past shouts against the British. Herr. Hitler feels that the present war is going to be a long drawn one in which men and money have to be sacrificed abundantly. The speech of the Fuhrer puts the war guilt on Mr. Churchill a gross libel for which the Nazi Leader has to repent one of these days. His "blitz" tactics have failed miserably and Britain stands prominently strong in spite of the Luftwaffe devastation. The Berlin speech is noteworthy because of its shameful admissions of Nazi failures to subjugate Britain. The defeat of the Reich is certain and the day will come when mankind will cherish their love and liberty from obvious onslaughts. Herr. Hitler has spoken not as a conqueror but as a man certain of his imminent defeat.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Opening the morning papers I came across several pithy pronouncements by men of note. Hitler is reported to have said, "The time and hour for the final decision will come, I shall fix the time for it, but I am cautious." This is indeed a tall claim. To say that he shall fix the time. Verily he is the "ಕಾಲಪುರುಷ" of this age. But "ಕಾಲಪುರುಷ" is never cautious. Others ought to be cautious of him.

Britain last week spent a record sum of nearly 16 millions sterling a day. A huge amount indeed. Where has all this amount come from? Is it from the savings of smokers who gave up smoking? This is a staggering figure.

Dr. Pattabhi Seetharamaiya, it is said, has brought about a rapprochement between Travancore Government and Travancore State Congress. This is indeed a happy news. I hope Sir C. P. would ere long have a statue of himself and Dr. Pattabhi erected in Trivandrum and have them unveiled by Mr. G. Ramachandran, Travancore Congress Leader.

Here is a bit of news from a Bombay paper in connection with the Nagpur University Convocation. "Shortly before His Excellency Sir Henry Tynman, Governor of the C. P. and Berar and Chancellor of the University had arrived, a group of students came to the Convocation Pandal with placards of "We want an elected Chancellor" and some cries of "Inquilab-Zindabad" were also raised as the Chancellor entered the pandal. My readers would remember that Mr C Rajapalachar had agreed to deliver the Convocation address, but due to well-known reasons he subsequently sought exemption. We can very well imagine the disappointment of students who cried out "we want an elected Chancellor". Nagpur has an elected Vice-Chancellor and the next step is undoubtedly an elected Chancellor. Let none be harsh to Nagpur Students

I read in a newspaper the following item of news.

"An exhortation to Indian students to live down the charge that under the present system of education the universities produce only a top-never win the war. He comes to the final conclusion that Germany has already lost the war. He has given many reasons for his conclusion and one has to agree with all that he says. heavy white-collar class with a false sense of social value was made by Mr. Justice P. Venkataramana Rao Naidu in his convocation address at the Andhra University here today."

I beg Justice Venkataramana Rao's pardon. The top-heavy white collar class is disappearing. Students are going to Gandhi Caps, Kurtas and Dhoties.

Mr. Kodanda Rao writing a series of serious articles about the now famous Editors' conference at Delhi begins thus "Hardly had the peals of joy and victory of the All-India Newspapers' Editors' Conference died down when there arose loud protests of disappointment and dissatisfaction. There have been complaints of breaches of faith and of a gentleman's agreement."

I wish to add my amendment. The aftermath has been over. Satisfaction apart, peals of joy have ended and tears of regret have flown profusely and now the controversy has been relegated to the lumber room of the "Hindustan Times" Office, where the Conference had its being.

This is a note which appeared in a Calcutta Contemporary

As suitable candidates are not available, the authorities of the University of Calcutta have decided to keep the appointment to the post of the Professor of English in abeyance till March. 21. 1944.

This is a tip to our Mysore University. If there are any candidates available here they may be referred to the Calcutta University.

Here is a curious point of privilege.

Mr. Manjeri Ramakrishna Ayyar said that men and women had special functions to perform in human society and that their specific qualities were complementary in their nature. The greatest privilege of women was to become mothers and to discipline the household.

I do not know why the worthy speaker is unjust to men. Is it not "the greatest privilege of men to become fathers"?

Sri. M.A. Gopalaswamyengar pointed out that the representatives of the people on the Municipal Council could do little without the whole-hearted cooperation of the officers of the Municipality and Government and the ratepayers. THE BANGALORE GAYANA SAMAJA

Bangalore

Mr. V.T. Sreenivasan writes:—The Managing Committee have resolved to celebrate the Day of Commemoration of the great South Indian Composers, PURANDARADASA and THYAGARAJA, in a fitting manner on lines similar to those followed during the previous celebration in February 1940. The dates provisionally selected are the 18th and 19th January 1941 (Penultimate Saturday and Sunday). It is proposed to request some of the talented amateur Musicians of Bangalore (both Ladies and Gentlemen) to kindly entertain the audience on the occasion. GROWING VOLUME OF AMERICAN AID

(By Cable) London. The Times New York Correspondent cables:

Since the first heavy bombings on London it has never been questioned in this country that Hitler was out to destroy what he had been unable to conquer. It was clear that no scruples of humanity or decency would hold his hand at any time—if indeed he is capable of any such feelings.

While all these bombings have gone on Americans have not been standing by as mere spectators, doing nothing but expressing horror and indignation against the attackers and pity and sympathy for their victims. On the contrary, they have been going to work with a furious energy to find every means possible of increasing and expediting the aid they can give to Britain. Where there's a will there's a way, and in America there's an endless will to seek out and attack every possible resource of the country's vast mass-production machinery to turn out as quickly as possible airplanes, tanks, munitions and every other kind of war supply that Britain wants. New ways are being found every day

Significant Visit of Mr. Jayakar

Political Hopes in Delhi Will Viceroy Make a Speech?

(By wire) New Delhi, Dec. 12. The Viceroy leaves New Delhi on tour tomorrow and will be away from the headquarters for a month. Speculation is again rife whether during the interval he will be able to say something like the Orient Club speech of last season which may give some chance to efforts of Sir Jagadish Prasad and others for facilitating a political settlement. The visit of Mr. Jayakar, though the latter in the course of a talk prior to his departure tried to laugh away suggestions, has, it is believed, undoubted political significance. General surmise is that he has informally discussed with the Viceroy and the Liberal leaders.

He will before long get into touch with the Liberal leaders. Official circles in New Delhi prefer to remain silent for the present and have nothing even to say on feeler "thrown by London Times". The interpretation put upon the latter by political observers, however is London "Times" wants the Viceroy to make another attempt to win Mr. Jinnah's consent to the expanded council scheme by offering further "explanation." His three Delhi speeches are regarded as an invitation to British Government to come to terms immediately with the Muslim League as Congress has broken away and launched an offensive, invitation is coupled with threat that if British Government yielded to Congress pressure, Muslim League will launch an offensive. This is said to explain the attitude of London "Times" and other papers, that instead of keeping silent Government should come out with an explanation and interpretation to make the old offer acceptable to non-congress bodies and more amenable sections of the Muslim League at least. According to some it is still not clear whether attempts of Sir Jagdishprasad and others are directed towards a general political settlement with Government but are intended to rally noncongress sections for revised forms of expanded council scheme. In the meantime reports current show that unless

Bangalore City Dec 14, 1940.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru's Move

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, the great liberal leader, has issued a long statement in which he offers some suggestions for resolving the Indian Crisis. To put it in a nut shell he suggests that Mahatma Gandhi and Mr. Jinnah should meet immediately to discuss the present political situation in a free, open and large-hearted manner with a fixed determination to come to a settlement, that they should invite one or two leaders of the Hindu Mahasabha, the Sikhs and the Depressed classes, that they should see the Viceroy and press on him the necessity to reconstruct for the period of the war his Government so as to give it in substance the character of a National Government, that the Viceroy should be asked to appoint an Indian Defence member, that the Viceroy should be pressed to start heavy industries in India, particularly those needed for the war, and that constitutional government should immediately be restored in the Provinces.

Sir Sapru has no intention of referring to some of the features of Mr. Amery's speech delivered at the Luncheon at the English speaking Union, as he proposes later on to deal with some parts of it which call for very serious attention. Mr. Amery's speech has caused grave anxiety in the Indian mind. The internal situation in India is undergoing rapid deterioration. There is necessity and urgency of reestablishing an atmosphere of harmony and co-operation. England cannot and ought not to ignore the signs of the times. Sir Sapru says, "The sentence passed on Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru has not only attracted the attention in Parliament but is the subject of general comment nearly everywhere in India. The tragedy of the situation as he puts it, is that so far as Nazism and Fascism are concerned Indian opinion has unequivocally condemned them and has expressed the hope for the victory of England and the defeat of Germany. Sir Sapru has no hesitation in saying that British statesmanship has failed. Like Mr. C. Rajagopalachari, he deems that a National Government should be formed. In the coming few days, Sir Sapru will not emphasize on the idea of a National Government responsible to the electorate, particularly because no responsible government could be formed in the time constitutionally sense of the word upon the existing franchise and with important elements kept out of the legislature. Sir Sapru is for a National Government though technically responsible to the crown during the period of the war and he is certain it would command great influence and weight with the legislature as a precursor of things to come.

India very well knows how the whitehall rejected the very idea of a National Government. We have every hope that Mahatma Gandhi and Mulana Abul Kalam Azad would be prepared to co-operate with Sir Sapru and his friends if a genuine move is made to transfer substantial power to the representatives of the people. Sir Sapru, formula is as follows:—

To reconstruct for the period of the war his government so as to give it in substance the character of a 'national government.' From a practical point of view it is entirely immaterial by what name you call it, whether you call it, a 'national government' or a national executive' or merely an 'executive council', the essence of the whole thing being that the number of non-official Indians, who command the confidence of a large sections of the people, in whose honour and judgement the country can trust, should be preponderantly large.

We hope it would be possible for Sir Sapru and his friends to persuade the Viceroy and the Secretary of State to negotiate once again with Mahatma Gandhi as Lord Irwin did in 1930 and successfully forge a pact with Mahatma Gandhi. It was Lord Willingdon that undid what Lord Irwin had patiently built up. We hope Irvinean mind and not Willingdonean mind would prevail at the White hall and New Delhi. Given a genuine mind and a sincere heart it would not be impossible to establish a National Government in India at the Centre for the period of the War, eventually to expand itself into a free and independent Sovereign Government. We wish all success to Sir Sapru and his friends in their noble efforts.

Late Lord Lothian

In the death of Lord Lothian the British Empire has lost a worthy statesman. India a staunch sympathiser of her political aspirations, and America a capable British Envoy at a critical phase of world's history. We mourn his death deeply because the noble Lord was in our midst as the guest of our Government three years ago. We recollect Lord Lothian's meeting with Mahatma and partaking the humble ashram fare amidst austere surroundings. Such was Lord Lothian's love for India. At a time when delicate negotiations were going on about Britain's financial needs Lord Lothian's death is a sudden and great loss to Britain. May his soul rest in peace.

TO-DAY'S War Digest

Soviets and Bulgaria.

There is an implied threat from the Russians that if Bulgaria were to grant free passage to German troops going to Greece the Soviet Union would certainly occupy the Bulgarian Black sea ports of Burgas and Varna. This is taken as a war signal from Moscow. Instead of a direct "demarche" to Berlin the Soviets have taken a round about channel to reach their objective. In between the lines of this threat one could easily read the relationship that exists between Moscow and Berlin which at all events show in which side the wind is blowing. There is no love lost between these two great countries. One wants a rapid thrust to Balkans, and the other desires to checkmate this cruel desire. But thanks to the unbending attitude of Bulgaria the Nazi designs seems to have received a check and there lies the prestige of Wilhelmstrasse. If Soviets join the tripartite pact Bulgaria too might try to affix her signature to it. But the new order in Europe lies flat unsung and unwept.

Turkey

Turkish preparations in Thrace have unnerved the Bulgarians who fear a threat in the south eastern corner of Europe. Ankara whispers that their present mobilisation is not directed against Bulgaria but nations on war nerves, are not easily satisfied at clarifications of policy. Officially the Turkish Bulgarian relations are good but inwardly the two nations fear an explosion. If Turkey keeps quiet Bulgaria need not fear. The preparations at Thrace, though professed otherwise have certainly unnerved the Bulgarians whose fear knows no bounds. The Balkan chess board is getting excited, and who knows what happens.

W. Desert

"Wavell wedge" has been driven between the Libyan troops at Sidi Barrani and the divisions supporting them to the west. In addition to the inglorious retreat of the Italians they are persistently being harassed by the British Naval Forces. Round about Sollum the enemy are receiving hammer blows. At Maktila the British have launched a severe frontal attack which proved completely successful. The Italian divisions have become disorganized, and they are having a hasty retreat towards the sea coast.

The Moscow Pilgrimage

Moscow has been the meeting place of several diplomats. Representatives of Yugoslavia, Hungary and Germany are negotiating trade agreements there. Yugoslavia wants Russian cotton, Germany desires to show how friendly she is with the Soviet, and Hungary wants food stuffs. The Soviets are past masters in the art of diplomacy. They will make those hungry nations dance round her before she can part with her commodities.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Here is a quotation from a presidential address of Varna shrama Swaraya Sangha Conference. The President with great gusto said,

"I am a staunch believer in our Sritis, Smritis Agamas and Puranas. Standing in this holy place on a holy day and before a devout audience I declare it to be my firm belief that if His Majesty's Government will regret the step they have taken by way of the assent they have given to the Temple-Entry Act and annul it and cause all the polluted temples to be purified and if the most sacred and the All-India shrine of Sri Minakshi, now deserted, will resound with its pristine purity and glory, the voices of millions of believing Hindus who crave for the triumph of justice, righteousness and freedom will be heard by Goddess Sri Minakshi and the very next minute will witness a turning point in the present war."

This is nothing but pompous nonsense. In my recent visit to Madura, I paid my respects to Lord Sundareswaran and mother Meenakshi. I noticed tears of joy trickling down the cheeks of the two Divinities, at the happiness of having at long last, drawn panchamas to their bosom. The sanatansists would do well to stop their rant and nonsense in respect of temple entry.

Mr. E. V. Ramaswamy Naicker, Periar of Dravidistan is reported to have said "when the Congress asked for power to rule the whole country what harm was there in conceding the demands of the League the Dravidians." Clearly Mr. Naicker seems to have thought that Dravidians would live under a Pakistan Government than under Aryan domination.

No fear. All of us are the benign Englishan Government. People like Mr. Naicker need not worry themselves about any other "stan" Government. Anyway, we do want Justicestam Government.

Sir Albion Banerjee, Dewan of Cochin and Minister is reported to have remarked a talk to journalists.

"When compared very rigorous Press restrictions and censorship prevailing in England and other countries in Europe, Indians must consider themselves exceptionally fortunate in having milder laws and regulations regarding Press."

I pass this remark to Mr. Mahadev Desai and the members of the Editors' Conference at Delhi. Verily Sir Albion has not cast off his I.C.S. mentality.

At Ernakulam Sir Albion Banerjee seems to have said "I am much impressed with the practical realisation of my cherished dream as Dewan of Cochin."

I hope he has fixed his programme for Mysore and is eagerly looking forward to his experience with regard to Mysore. Had he any cherished dream here? Or was it a case of being rudely shaken out of his dream?

Mr. M. Ramaswamy, Prosecuting Inspector argued that it was a petty case and that there was no necessity for a regular trial.

Mr. Seetharamiah further prayed that in the interest of justice the case should be tried as a regular one as the case to a certain extent contained some factors connected with a political party.

Messrs T.S. Rajagopala Iyengar, T. Mariappa, K. Seshadri and B. Narayanaswamy counsels for the other accused supported Mr. Seetharamiah's plea.

The Prosecuting Inspector submitted that the prosecution had no motive in launching the case or selecting the prosecution witnesses. Some of the persons present at the time the alleged offence took place had been cited as witnesses.

Congress President's Statement

Mr. K. T. Bhasyam the President of the Mysore Congress on being made aware of this order has issued the following statement:

"The District Magistrate of Tumkur has issued a Prohibitory Order preventing the use of Loudspeaker at meetings. He had already issued orders prohibiting a Congress Procession at Chicknayakana halli. The District Magistrate of Mandya prevented a similar procession at Mandya. The Amildar of Tarikere has written to the Congress Workers suggesting the cancellation of the A.M.C.C. Session to be held at Ajampur tomorrow.

It is obvious that the authorities are getting panicky over the phenomenal success of the Congress at the elections, though in some out of the way places official pressure and interference have prevailed against us.

Such highhanded action on the part of the authorities calls for increasing resoluteness on the part of the people to support the Congress Candidates.

There should, however, be no disobedience to any order."

Ayurvedic And Unani Systems

A Bright Future

Mr. Sadeg-Z-Shah's Speech

(From a correspondent)

Mysore Dec. 8.

"The Ayurvedic and Unani systems can have a bright future only if they come more to the light of modern thought" said Siddiq-ul-Mulk Sadeg-Z-Shah in a speech in Mysore.

The Union Day of the Government Ayurvedic and Unani College Union was celebrated on Sunday the 8th December 1940 at 5 P.M. in College Lecture Hall under the distinguished presidentship of Siddiq-ul-Mulk Sadeg-Z-Shah Saheb, Assistant Secretary on the personal staff of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore.

A distinguished and large gathering was present, the hall being packed to the full. The audience included Messrs. Amble Subrahmanya Iyer, Dr. T. S. Siddappa, Dr. Heilleg, Swami Desikanadaji, Mr. S. G. Sastri, Mr. F. C. Devaraj Urs., Kaviraj T. Krishna Sastry, Mr. S. B. Krishna Murthy, and Mr. Y. Chandrasekhara Sastri.

Messages wishing the function success were also received from Sir Mirza Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, Sir and Lady Todhunter, Mr. M. G. Mehkri of the Electrical Secretariat, Mr. A. V. Ramana, I. G. of Police, Dr. B. K. Narayana Rao, Senior Surgeon, Mr. H. C. Javaraya, Superintendent of Government Gardens, Mr. Viswanath, General Manager, Badravathi Iron and Steel Works etc.

The Secretary presented a brief report of the Union.

Siddiq-ul-Mulk Sadeg Z. Shah, in the course of his address said, The great achievements of modern science have been adding to our knowledge immensely, and I know you are all alive to the need for co-ordinating Western knowledge with ours. But does that mean that the Ayurvedic and Unani systems have nothing to teach the Western Allopathists? Here is a quotation from a great American authority, Dr. Horace T. Poleman. 'All phases of science have had a long and independent position in Indian thinking. Medicine, Astronomy, Mathematics and Law need interpretation to the West. To mention one aspect, I was asked a number of years ago by Medical Research Scientist, there is anything in the history of Indian medicine referring to Caesarian section. As a result of my studies of death rituals in which operation has figured, I was able to give him an interesting anti-quarian material which was subsequently considered important enough to be published for the scientific world. Medical science can profit from a careful study of Indian materials.'

This shows how in all phases of human experience there is not only scope but also necessity for exchange of thoughts. The alone does wisdom grow. Consider it, therefore a happy augury that in your address Principal is found such an admirable combination of Eastern and Western knowledge and I am sure you will all follow in his footsteps.

'The Ayurvedic and Unani systems can have a bright future only if they come more to the light of modern thought, exponents must learn to wrestle with the scientists of our day. You must go to the public arenas of other investigators for this purpose. Friendly discussion with those that differ from us are more profitable than those with persons that agree with us, however, pleasant the latter may be.'

Mr. S. Rafiuddin Rigvie, Mr. A. Bihar and Vice-Chairman, Monghyr District Board, sentenced to eight months rigorous imprisonment for shouting antiwar slogans.

Mr. G. Girimaji Rao's Proposal

Our Kolar Correspondent sends us what is purported to be a copy of a resolution tabled by Mr. G. Girimaji Rao, M.L.C. to the ensuing session of the Legislative Council.

The resolution recommends that the Government His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore to hold at an early date a Round Table Conference of all parties and of all shades of opinion, including the Mysore State Congress, with a view to bringing about a rapprochement between the Mysore Congress and the Mysore Government. We applaud the idea. This is no doubt a useful suggestion to Government. But we have to confess that we are sceptic about the outcome of such Round Table Conferences. Does not Mr. G. Girimaji Rao know what happened at the Round Table Conference held in London? These Conferences are a waste. On the other hand, if Mr. Girimaji Rao is earnest about peace and harmony in the country let him persuade the Government to extend ordinary courtesies to Mysore Congress. For the time being this much is enough. Let Government reply in a courteous manner the letters written to them by Congress President. What is wanted to-day is an atmosphere of give and take, live and let live. Mysore Congress has attained a unique position in the country to-day. This organisation may have some defects incidental to all human organisations. Let us not magnify them. Let us be just and fair to Mysore Congress. We ask Mr. Girimaji Rao, is it not fair and just to remove the electoral disqualifications hanging upon some prominent congressmen? Was it fair we saw of these Assembly members to have opposed the proposition brought forward in the Assembly recommending the withdrawal of disqualifications? We know Mr. G. Girimaji Rao well. He is well intentioned. Our request to him is to let him join us in our request to Government to remove the disqualification and enable free election to take place. We want Mr. G. Girimaji Rao to extend participation in favour of this cause. It is better that mad stirring against Mysore Congress stops. It belongs now to pick all sorts of noises in the garments of Mysore Congressmen. All of us live in glass houses. More so public men and let us not indulge in the sustane or throwing stones at others. As Mr. G. Girimaji Rao pursues, all of us, Congressmen and non-congressmen, Officials and Non-officials should shake hands together with cordiality and friendship to one another and render our loyal services to the Mysore Throne, which is adorned by a young and progressive Maharaja, who has dedicated his life to the service of the people. Let discord and dissunity give place to concord and comity, is our fervent prayer. Only very few days are left for general elections. Sands of time are fast running out. Let us not lose this golden opportunity of adopting and practising the golden rule of being fair even to our opponents.

BAD HEARTS ARE NOT WEAK

Court interludes are pleasant reading when tinged with humour, but newspapers whose duty is to present factual news may turn the scales as instanced by a Madras paper today in its presentation of a wordy description of Mr. Satyamurthi's trial. "My heart is bad", said Mr. Satyamurthi in his answer to the Magistrate's question but the resourceful Mr. Abbas Ali amended it by humorously remarking "Your heart is good but it is weak". A nice interlude indeed! So far so good. But the report in the English daily reads otherwise. "Mr. Satyamurthi gets 9 months. Weak heart. "Simple imprisonment" are the glaring headlines in a prominent page of the paper. We have no quarrel with the Sub Editor who splashed these headings to please his readers but when he distorts a particular meaning, we are constrained to say that he is less than fair as a journalist. We are sure that Mr. Satyamurthi would not have described his ailments before a presiding Magistrate if he was not pressed to do so. Of late, trials under defence regulations, seem to reflect a clinical attitude in their diagnosis of ailments. We thank Mr. Abbas Ali for providing this pleasant interlude which otherwise would have been dull dreary court proceedings. We commiserate with the resourceful journalist who in his haste to splash headlines, has done some bad "subbing".

A PUFF OF SMOKE

This is a proud day in the life of Rao Bahadur Dharmatma Dharmaprakas S. Sajjana Rao. The formal ceremonial of the temple which has been built at Visveswarapuram took place yesterday. Mr. Sajjana Rao was born with a brass spoon in his mouth as most of us are. But by grace of God he has enabled his grand sons and great grand sons to be born with silver spoons in their mouth. Mr. Sajjana Rao, has earned much, but the beauty of it is he has spent much for public charities. I have often wondered how it has been possible for Mr. Sajjana Rao to earn so much. He works hard and is simple in his tastes and habits. He does not drink or does not gamble. He is not a race-goer. Even though he may roll in Rollsroyce cars he prefers to walk on his feet like a humble man in the street. In this modern age of people of small faith, it is something to have a man like Mr. Sajjana Rao amidst us who spends all his earnings in constructing a house of God and decorates it with a tower in all piousness. As we may say in homely Kannada, Mr. Sajjana Rao is really shree. May God shower his choicest blessings on him.

Mr. Satyamurthi's trial before the Presidency Magistrate reads like a romance. The courtesy that prevailed in the court hall between the Magistrate and the accused was mutual and one vied with the other in excelling in that human virtue. I was rather surprised, nay pained, to observe the unseemly and unkind presentation of the above news in a Madras daily.

I am happy to give publicity to the following.

Mr. Mahmood Hassan, a member of the Council of the All India Muslim League, in a statement to the Press, appeals to Indian Muslims to celebrate the sixty fourth birthday anniversary of Mr. M. A. Jinnah, President of the League, which falls on December 25, when he states, meetings should be held and resolutions should be passed for the long life of Mr. Jinnah. Mr. Hasan requests all Muslim Leagues, provincial, district and primary, to arrange for such meetings. He will also request 'Nawabzada Liaquat Ali Khan to call a meeting of the Council of the League at that day at Allahabad to afford an opportunity for the members to felicitate Mr. Jinnah.

I wish to add my humble felicitations to Jinnah Saheb. If I had a Pakistan with him. Even supposing I make an offer, would he accept it? What was his reply to the sporting offer of C. R.?

This is a small bit which I picked from my scrap heap.

Soiled currency notes of different denominations of a total value of about Rs. 67,00,000 were brought to Madras under police escort in a special railway compartment from Trichinopoly to be taken to Fort St. George for destruction at the Currency Office.

What a waste!

Rao Saheb N. Natesa Iyer a Varnashramite, seems to have said in a speech:-

Complete independence for India, he said, was unattainable for the present. It would mean the surrender of India to the Axis wolves and the Russian bear. He thought that Dominion Status should satisfy India.

Mr. Iyer is imaginative. He thinks of European Nations in terms of wolves, bears, and porcupines. What Zoological species would he compare India to? And what would he compare England to? We have heard England compared to a lion, and India to milch cow. I would seek some enlightenment at the hands of Varnashramites.

The Travancore rapprochement seems to be nothing more than a nought. Mr. G. Ramachandran plaintively says "I am sorry to say that the news published is inaccurate. It is not possible for me to say anything more about what has happened." We understand Sir C. P. is sure to issue a statement sometime next year in the course of his annual pilgrimage to New Delhi.

TO-DAY'S War Digest The Greek Front

The 80 mile battle front in Albania proves strong with steady Greek push, where Italian counter-attacks are being rapidly repulsed. The Greeks continue to retain their initiative and we see splendid perseverance on the part of the advancing army Chimmara, the Adriatic beauty spot, which lies 20 miles north of Santi Quaranta is threatened already with steady flowing Greek advance guards. The fall of Chimmara is imminent. Even in the coastal sector the Greeks are on the high road to victory. Reports have emanated that the vanguard of the Greek Army have already entered Kelyre a coastal village. The battle is being slowed down by heavy blizzard and bitter cold which is usual there and the war goes on unabated. All glory to the Greeks.

Birmingham Raid

The Nazis have resumed their "blitz" tactics this time on Birmingham, an industrial centre in England. Six churches, eleven schools and two cinemas were hit and there was damage to houses in a number of areas. Many fires were started. Although the raid was heavy anti-aircraft barrage have prevented great havoc. The casualties are not heavy considering the scale of the attack. The King gave a visit to the raided area and comforted those who had the terrible misfortune to lose their abodes. His Majesty saw the devastated homes and consoled a boy aged seventeen on his splendid rescue work.

Among the famous buildings damaged Etton College is prominent. King Henry VI founded this 500 years ago. The famous Wembley Stadium was also hit. So far four enemy planes have been shot down and no British planes have been lost.

SIDI BARRANI EPISODE

The British have captured twenty thousand Italian prisoners - no small achievement in a desert area. We echo the sentiments of Mr. Churchill who has characterized the success as a "Victory of the First Order". Indeed it is a victory which any army in the world may feel proud of. Three Italian Generals have been taken prisoners and that speaks of the dash and daring of the British in a desert. All glory to Britannia.

Allahabad Busy Peace Move By Liberal Leaders

Allahabad, Dec. 10. Allahabad is again the scene of peace move for ending the present political deadlock.

Kunwar Sir Jadish Prasad came here to consult Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru about the steps to be taken in the direction and to sound his views about participating in this move. Also seeing Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru the Kunwar Sahab will return to N. N. Sirohi.

According to information gathered here there are two peace moves at present in the air. One has been sponsored by Sir Jagdish Prasad Sir N. N. Sirohi and Mr. M. R. Jayakar and the other is that of Mr. Fazlul Haq.

Sir Tej Bahadur is not very enthusiastic about the move of Sir Jagdish Prasad according to well informed circles. He feels that Congress Government rapprochement was not possible unless by a change in the attitude of the Government and withdrawal of satyagraha.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru is issuing a press statement to be published on 14th December in which he sponsors his own Scheme for ending the present impasse.

Congress High Command

But according to information available at the headquarters of the Congress here, the High Command is absolutely uninterested in the moves for all that they are worth. Maulana Azad is here and Mr. Kripalani returned to-day from Fyzabad after attending the trial of his wife there. The position of the Congress as stated by Maulana Azad is that the Congress was willing to reopen the question if the Government so wanted on the basis of the Poona resolution. Indifference of the Congress to Mr. Huq's move is due to the fact that they are unable to understand to what extent has the support of Sir Saikand Hayat and Mr. Jinnah. Unless the Punjab Premier gives his support to the move it is not likely to receive serious consideration at the hands of the Congress.

Meanwhile the Congress President who is here is conferring with Provincial leaders on the extension of satyagraha programme. He will see the office and discuss with Mr. Kripalani about the A. I. C. C. office. The staff has already been reduced and present strength is only effective to carry on the work.

The necessity of arranging the office of the A. I. C. C. is stated to be due to the desire of the Congress President to offer himself for satyagraha after December 15 and Mr. Kripalani is to follow suit.

Political events are again reshaping and in the beginning of the next year something would perhaps crystallise. But to all intents and purposes the moves made are not likely to go a long

Kannan to Retire

It is reliably understood that, the most popular star of the screen, Kannan Devi has decided to retire from her film career. She has been married to a Mr. Moitra, the son of a prominent Brahma Samaj leader. Although she is under the contract of the New Theatres for two months, the N. T. authorities have agreed to release her on the completion of her work in Director Nitin Bose's latest picture 'Lagan'.

Mission of Padosi

Padosi or Neighbour, Director Shantaram's latest picture has been already completed and is expected to be released at Bombay by the end of this month. From the stills appearing in different magazines, it seems that it will have something to do with the Hindu-Muslim problem. If the stills themselves are so striking, one can safely expect in Padosi, from the hands of Shantaram, something nobler to the relations of entire humanity. If the Managers of the Prabhat Talkies mind, they can release it at Bangalore immediately after its release at Bombay. So let us wait and hope. Will our call reach them!

N. T. Stable or Unstable

After a series of failures from the New Theatres one is led to think whether N. T.'s stand is stable or unstable. The future of the company of its uplift depends upon Director Nitin Bose who is taking great pains to make his picture 'Lagan' a real masterpiece. It includes Saigal and Kannan in the lead with R. C. Boral in charge of the Music. Nitin Bose like Shantaram has never failed to give masterpieces, still so, when he has to carry the entire responsibility of his producers.

H.E. the Viceroy Speaks

"To Lead India to Dominion Status"

"Remains Our Objective"

CONGRESS MOVEMENT CRITICISED

"Our objective remains to lead India to the proclaimed goal of Dominion Status and that as early as possible"—said H.E. the Viceroy in his address today at the Associated Chambers of Commerce, Calcutta.

A.P. Calcutta, Dec 16

Addressing the annual meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce this morning, His Excellency the Viceroy made a detailed review of the events of the past year, of India's contribution to the war effort, of industrial development resulting therefrom and of the repeated efforts made by His Majesty's Government and His Excellency to settle the constitutional problem. His Excellency expressed that His Majesty's Government hope that, as time passed, as there was more opportunity for reflection on real power and real authority, that their acceptance of the proposals of August 8 would transfer to Indian hands, there would be greater readiness on the part of the principal political parties in this country to take advantage of them. Appealing for support in the solution of India's constitutional problems His Excellency said: "I repeat that the initiative has throughout come from His Majesty's Government and from myself on their behalf. The fact that we have so far failed to reconcile those conflicting aims and objectives of principal parties and interests in this country which have got to be reconciled before progress is possible does not deter us. Our objective remains to lead India to the proclaimed goal of Dominion Status and that as early as may be. There is nothing more that we can do than we have done. We are entitled to claim we do claim and I claim today that it is for the Indian parties themselves for those communities interests and political leaders concerned, to get together and to see what they can do by way of reaching an accommodation the background which I have just mentioned. It has not been the fault of His Majesty's Government that matters are not further forward today. They have done everything in their power. For the suggestions, that are being made from various quarters and Indian political leaders should at this point come to a meeting and seek to reach agreement among themselves. His Majesty's Government have no ill-will but fullest goodwill and fullest sympathy."

Congress Movement

As I speak to you today we are faced in this country, to my deep regret, with a movement supported by the Congress Party which is open to grave misunderstanding outside. The leaders of Congress Party have publicly stated that they do not desire to embarrass His Majesty's Government in the conduct of war but they have claimed at the same time in the interest of creed of nonviolence, the right to urge the country not to help Britain's war effort with men or with money."

Correspondence With Mahatma Gandhi

After alluding to the correspondence between him and Mahatma Gandhi on the subject, the Viceroy said: "I have every respect for genuine conscientious objection; and none of us in the world today can wish to see violence supreme, or wantonly resort to arms. But to arms taken up armed defence is the only answer deep and sincere as is hatred of all of us for war. And we have a duty to this country to see that India's war effort which I am certain has India behind it, is not in any way impeded, that not a single sepy is deprived of the arms and ammunition that he needs, whether by speeches or by more active forms of opposition. I regret all the more that we should have to deal with a movement of this character at this moment since I do not believe that it corresponds in the very least degree to the true feelings of this country. India, I am convinced, remains as united in its determination against Hitlerism and of all that it stands for as it has been from the very beginning of the war, a detestation to which utterances of political leaders of every party have borne eloquent witness."

Aluminium Industry

Speaking of industrial development, His Excellency touched one industry, namely aluminium which being the key industry, was accepted to be in full production very soon. "Raw material is available in large quantities in this country. Facilities that are now being erected by my Government are calculated to result in every production of commodity which is most necessary and important for purposes of war and which will be of equal value after return of peace. And aluminium industry is the only one of many whereof I trust that it will be possible to say the same.

Replying to criticisms of the supply Department, the Viceroy thought that dissatisfaction was based to a very great extent on the feeling that it had failed to plan forward and to put industry into continuous production. That dissatisfaction, he suggested, arose from the fact that functions and powers of supply organisation in India as in any other country were limited in certain obvious ways. It was not open to the Government of India to dictate terms to overseas authorities who desire to procure supplies from this country. "All that we can do is to urge as vigorously as we can on those authorities the need for forward programme of production and I am very glad indeed to let you know to-day that within the last few weeks our representations have borne fruit and that the Department of Supply will now be able to go ahead on a firm substantial forward programme for general stores; while on the munition side in the same way—incidentally required in a great part not for ourselves but for overseas—indications are that we are shortly making very heavy demands indeed on industry." Despite admitted limitations upon many of the supply departments' activities the Viceroy emphasised its activities stood to scrutiny.

Eastern Group Conference

Summing up the results of the Eastern Group Conference the Viceroy said—"It was generally agreed by visiting delegations that the Ministry of Supply Mission and the Indian Delegation of that Conference accomplished what it set out to do, and laid the foundation of a sound co-ordinated war supply policy. Government of India had no hesitation in accepting its recommendations, and I hope that His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and other participating Governments will find it possible to do the same and that we shall be able to settle down without delay to give effect to its proposals."

Popular Governments and the Police

The Inspector-General of Police, Bombay Government, has some observations to make on the difficulties of the Police under a Popular Government. These observations deserve more than ordinary notice as they bring to the fore front the apparent conflicting tendencies between the Police and the public in this country, as contrasted with the heartiest co-operation subsisting between the Police and the public, in the self-governing countries of the West or for that matter, of the East, say Japan.

Now, to go to the observations of the Bombay Inspector-General of Police. Reviewing the Police administration report of Bombay Province for 1939 when popular Congress Government under the very respected Mr. B. G. Kher and Mr. K.M. Munshi, held sway, the I.G.P. says the total number of undetected cases was 11,420 against 8,459 in 1938. The percentage of undetected cases to true cases disposed of was 36.13 against 32.40 in the previous year.

The above are the facts. Now to the comments of the I.G.P. "There are two main causes for these very unsatisfactory figures. In the first place there is the great increase of crime. Although a good deal of this crime was petty, its disposal took much time and the investigating staff, which is greatly undermanned, was not able to give sufficient attention to serious and organised offences."

We pass the above comment as it is. The second comment which is more serious, is this:

"The second and more important cause of the deterioration in detection is the lack of genuine co-operation on the part of the public with the police. The popular Government, with the best of intentions imposed a curb on the police. One result of this policy was that the public in its anxiety to exercise its newly acquired influence in public affairs, developed a habit of submitting, often directly to the Government itself, a great mass of petitions, recounting their real or fancied grievances against the police. Some of the complaints made were of a trivial nature and others were the result of inexperience and an idea that it was the duty of the public to keep the police well under their control. But in many instances persons concerned directly or indirectly in cases under investigation by the police made complaints in order to further their own interests. The great majority of such complaints were found on enquiry to be false or greatly exaggerated."

As might be expected, the effect of the numerous petitions and enquiries on the efficiency of the police was unfortunate. Investigating officers and others, finding that their most important action was liable to be distorted or misrepresented and that they might at any moment be called upon to answer some false or exaggerated charge, which was difficult to defend, developed a tendency to adopt a cautious and ultra-cautious attitude and a hesitancy to take action which might or should have been taken. The natural result of this state of affairs was deterioration in the results of detection which was also injuriously affected by the great waste of time which the departmental enquiries involved. Another feature disturbing to police work was the interference of local politicians, however well-intentioned it may have been in some cases."

This is a severe indictment of Popular Government and the people under Popular government. We regret to note the Police Chief of Bombay, accustomed as he is, to old and time-worn bureaucratic ways of thinking, opines that people and the police get demoralised under popular governments. This is an unsustainable charge. On the other hand, demoralisation of the police, and inefficiency, if it exists, is more due to the legacy inherited by the present governments from the East India Company. The records of history bear ample proof to the fact that the East India Company was steeped in demoralisation and corruption. Official corruption and demoralisation is foreign to India. Let the Police Chief of Bombay make a diligent study of the conditions of India during the days of Hindu and Mahomedan Rulers. We can supply him unassailable historical proofs to show that under Indian rule there was no phenomenal corruption and demoralisation as in the days of the East India Company.

This being the truth, let not the Chief of Bombay Police defame Indian popular governments and Indian people. We daresay if the Congress Government had continued in Bombay the Inspector-General of Police, in Bombay, could not and would not dare give expression to such comments in his report.

WHAT IS ANNOYANCE ?

Annoyance is defined as injury or disturbance by continued or repeated acts. But magisterial definitions tell a different story. What constitutes annoyance according to several sections of the Police Act have not been made clear. Sweet and rapturous music might offend or annoy others, but the same music might enrapture or enervise some, but magisterial pronouncements need take no such notices. Taking judicial notice of obvious things is a trait of law-courts, but to forget such well known habits does annoy others. Man lives amidst annoyances, amidst peace-disturbing atmospheres. To annoy and be annoyed by somebody is the salt of life. When magistrates by virtue of their statutory powers, entrench on the rights and privileges of annoyance, peace truly crumbles. The feeling of annoyance in a man results from his mental make up and the view he takes in the larger world. When Rome was burning Nero was asking "Where did annoyance fly from him? When the whole city looks festive, we do find many tear-laden eyes opening their mouths for a pace of bread. Here the festive look of the city has annoyed the hungry mouths. Instances are not wanting to show that annoyance to one, need not be annoyance to others. Magistrates who issue prohibitory orders by virtue of statutory powers should always be large hearted and wide minded to groan human traits and human susceptibilities. Annoyance does annoy others, but annoyance mixed with good humour does harm to none.

All Mysore Congress Committee Session

MR. K. T. BASHYAM'S STIRRING ADDRESS

"FUTURE IS HOPEFUL"

Congress Call to Mysore People

(From our Staff Correspondent)

BIRUR, Dec. 14

"The Committee while hoping that wisdom may yet prevail with the authorities, calls upon the people of the State to become increasingly determined in their support to the Congress"—This, in essence, sums up the attitude of Mysore Congress, in regard to the political situation in the State, to-day. The proceedings were conducted with great decency, discipline and decorum.

As the order, issued yesterday, by the District Magistrate, Kadur, under section 42 of the Mysore Police Act, prohibiting assemblage of persons in 'Ajampur or in any place situated within three miles radius thereof' was in force, the All Mysore Congress Committee meeting, which was originally arranged to be held in Ajampur town, was held this afternoon at "Vijaya Maidan", near Chennapur, three miles and one furlong from Ajampur in Ajampur-Birur road. This was the briefest session ever held, lasting for three hours, though originally programmed for two days.

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam Ayyangar, President, Mysore Congress, presided.

Seventy-one out of one hundred and ninety-three members were present. Several Congressmen, though not members of the A.M.C.C., were also present. Visitors' space was mostly occupied by ryots who had come from the neighbouring villages to hear the Congress message.

As the time at the disposal of the Reception Committee was very short, the prohibitory order being served only the previous evening, an imposing pandal, similar to one which had been erected at Ajampur town for the session, could not be erected at the "Vijaya Maidan", but a dias with a roof of mango leaves was put up for the President and members of the Working Committee.

DISTRICT MAGISTRATE'S ORDER

The District Magistrate's order stated, inter alia, that the District Magistrate had received reports from the Amildar of Tarikere taluk, President of the Ajampur Municipal Council and District Medical Officer, Chickmagalur, that there had been an outbreak of plague in which one case had resulted in death in Gowri-pur village within half a mile of Ajampur town and that with a view to prevent further spread of infection in the area it was very necessary to prevent an influx of persons into the Ajampur town or its vicinity within three miles might so that large bodies of people may not gather and spread infection. Therefore, the District Magistrate under section 42 of the Mysore Police Act directed that all people coming to Ajampur town from outside to desert from assembling in the town of Ajampur or any place situated within three miles radius thereof, as such assemblage was likely to result in the spreading of infection of plague. The order would remain in force for a period of three weeks, by which date necessary precautionary measures of cynosaging and inoculation were expected to be completed.

The order was published by beat of tom tom and copies of the order were affixed in principal places of Ajampur. Also the order was served last evening at 6-30, at the A.M.C.C. pandal at Ajampur, on Congress President, B. P. Basappa Setty, Chairman of the Reception Committee, and some other Congress leaders, by Inspector Mariappa and Sub Inspector Chikka Urs.

NO DISOBEDIENCE OF ORDER

Immediately after the order was served on him, Mr. Bhashyam came out to the maidan in front of pandal where a large crowd had gathered, in response to the announcement that a public meeting would be held there at that time, and announced that as the Congress was following the lead of Mahatma Gandhi and his instruction not to disobey any prohibitory order, the public meeting that evening and the session of the A.M.C.C. as programmed would not be held at Ajampur. The crowd with noticeable disappointment slowly dispersed.

VENUE OF SESSION DECIDED

After hurried consultations among the leaders, Mr. B. P. Basappa Setty, Chairman of the Reception Committee, announced last night that the session would be held at "Vijaya Maidan", just outside the prohibited area, near Chennapur in Ajampur-Birur Road but the two-day programme would be curtailed to a day. Lodging and Boarding were provided for all the members and others in Ajampur town itself.

WORKING COMMITTEE MEETING

The Congress Working Committee met this morning at the leaders' camp (Travellers' Bungalow) and drafted three resolutions for the A.M.C.C. session.

The Congress Parliamentary Sub-Committee also met this morning.

A. M. C. C. IN Session

The all Mysore Congress Committee meeting, soon after, commenced with Mr. Bhashyam in the chair.

On the dias were seated, among others, Srimathi Bellary

Siddamma, K. Chengalaraya Reddy, K. Pattabhiraman, T. Siddalingayya, K. Sampangiramaiah, D. S. Mallappa, H. Siddappa, S. Nijalingappa, S. Channayya, S. Rangaramayya, T. Subrahmanyam and K. Hanumanthayya.

After invocation by Mr. S. N. Gupta, Mr. B. P. Basappa Setty, Chairman of the Reception Committee, welcoming the members, said the meeting was being held at a time when Satyagraha movement under the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi was in progress for the attainment of Swaraj and when trusted leaders of people were in gaol or were going to gaol. Mahatma Gandhi and the Indian National Congress had the interest of the people of the Indian States at heart (Hear Hear). At this supreme moment, though the people of Mysore could not plunge in the Satyagraha movement, they could strengthen the hands of Mahatma Gandhi by carrying sincerely the constructive programme. He added that the Congress having won the elections had greater responsibility in carrying out the constructive programme.

Mr. Basappa Setty regretted that the Government had not changed their attitude towards the Congress which had suspended civil disobedience for indefinite period and was carrying on its activities peacefully. The people of the country, he said, rejoiced at the gracious message of the new Ruler on the occasion of his Patabhishekam, and it was the hope of all that during his reign the political aspirations of his people would be fulfilled (Applause).

Mr. Bhashyam's Address

Mr. Bhashyam, the President, who was given, on rising, a great ovation, addressed the meeting for an hour.

Referring to the prohibitory order, Mr. Bhashyam said that owing to the "high-handed action" of the local authorities they had to abandon the pandal so elaborately put up in the town and hold the session in the maidan. The Reception Committee had been put to great loss of time, money and energy by reason of the "unjust" order served on the public at the last moment preventing the holding of the session within three miles of the town. The order said that a plague case ended fatally in a place nearby. Granting that there was infection in the locality, he said, prompt disinfection of the place was the remedy indicated. What surprised him was the suddenness with which at the last moment the excuse was put forward. They had been going on with the arrangements for over a month and everything had been completed at a great expense for the session. Late yesterday evening, they were served with orders preventing the meeting. It was obvious that the order was aimed at causing them annoyance and vexation. It had a history behind it. The arrangements had been complete and the imposing pandal was a delight to see. On the morning of December 12, the Amildar wrote to the Chairman of the Reception Committee suggesting the cancellation of the session on the ground that it would cause disturbance of the peace by reason of provocative speeches also because of the existence of plague in a village nearby. Why suddenly on December 12, at the last moment, it was discovered that the session should

WAR & INDIA'S RESOURCES

Sir M. V. on Industrial Advance in India

Bangalore Dec 17

"There is no Indian who fails to realise that the fruits of the Industrial Revolution in Europe would impinge on constitutional causes in India. The political upheaval which we witness here to-day has not come as a result of the war but is the consequence of the fundamental changes in the Indian constitution, changes glimpsed before our eyes for over 23 years. The present constitution has to be based among the most inadequate and unprogressive that are available and growing wants are unmet. A fundamental change is needed as much in the interests of Great Britain as of India." — said Sir M. Visvesvaraya in his public address delivered last evening in the Hajee Sir Ismail Sait Hall, Chamber of Commerce Buildings. The lecture was arranged under the auspices of the Mysore Chamber of Commerce. Sir Ardesir Dalal, Director, Motors, Tata Sons, Bombay presided. A distinguished audience was present, including Sir M. M. Ismail, Mr. Walchand Hirwani and State officers and Non-official gentlemen. The lecture was held in the open air with loud speaker accompaniment.

Sir M. Visvesvaraya, the cynosure of all eyes, tip-top even in this advanced age, with his spotlessly clean, well-creased evening dress, arrived punctually on the stroke of the hour, and smilingly conversed with his acquaintances.

In his lap, science, the red dress began.

The Late Maharaja and Yuvaraja

In his opening remarks, Sir M. V. paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of the late Maharaja and the late Yuvaraja. He said:—

This being the first occasion, after a long interval, on which I meet friends at a public gathering in Bangalore, my first thought instinctively turns to the grievous loss which we have all suffered in common with the rest of the people of the Mysore State in the premature demise of its illustrious Ruler, Maharaja Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur. It is a matter of poignant regret to the numerous friends and the millions of devoted adherents of the Mysore Royal family, that His Highness and his talented brother His Highness Sri Sri Narasimharaja Wodeyar Bahadur should both have passed away within a few months of each other.

His Highness the late Maharaja was not only an eminent ruler but also a sincere Indian patriot. He was deeply concerned to take his part willingly in a great cause. His rule was remarkable for many notable achievements two of the most recent being the development of modern industries and the modernising and beautification of the cities of Mysore and Bangalore. I recently had the pleasure of going round some of the more important industries of the State and I must say that the impression a visitor to some of these works gets is not different from that experienced in a foreign industrial centre in Europe or Japan. Electrical installations are being constantly added to and electrification of rural areas on the grid system is progressing at a rapid rate. The improvements and beautification of the two cities of Mysore and Bangalore, call for special commendation. City improvements which would ordinarily take half a hundred years to execute have been accomplished in ten in these two great advances. Particularly, His Highness the late Maharaja had the co-operation and devoted labours of the present Dewan Sri Mirza M. Ismail. I need not dwell on the many other important and beneficent measures undertaken during the 35 years of His late Highness's reign, but I have no doubt that posterity will ever keep green the memory of so noble and gracious a Ruler."

In passing, he paid a tribute to the recent industrial progress in Mysore and offered some suggestions to the University in respect of Commercial Education. He said:—

A Commerce degree in the University started at the time when the University was founded has been inadvertently crowded out. It is hoped that it will be re-established without delay. I may give you two instances of the value attached to Commercial education in foreign countries. In one of my visits to Germany I particularly noticed they maintained four commerce universities in that country and during a visit to Japan in 1919 I was informed by the President of the Tokyo University that the faculty then most popular was commerce and that the largest number of students in that year sought admission to the Commerce faculty.

Backwardness and Poverty of India

Dealing with the subject of the evening, the learned lecturer based in broad outline on the main problem in India, namely, "backwardness and poverty of India due mainly to neglect of industries." He said:

Owing to past free trade policy and the present grinding discriminating protection, the occupations of the people in India have received a set-back and have remained mainly primitive. Their principal profession is agriculture; the country has long been treated as a market for foreign manufactures and the authorities in control of Government policies seem to be in no hurry to dislodge it from that position.

Before the Great War India was exporting agricultural products to Europe and other countries, but after that war, many of those countries have been growing their own food products and raw materials; science is also helping them. On this account and also owing to great changes that have taken place in international trade, our income from agriculture is dwindling. Through this disregard of industries India is put to a double loss; firstly, her market for raw products is contracting and in the second place the country has to pay for imported manufactures from her diminishing income from agriculture.

The population is rapidly growing without any visible corresponding increase in production or income. The PER CAPITA earning power is the lowest among nations which have a civilized Government, and this has resulted in malnutrition, economic distress and loss of vitality among vast masses of the population. The average expectation of life in India is very low; that is, an Indian lives in this world only about half the time that some of the Westerners do.

The primary need of a country is good administration. The second is ability to defend herself against foreign aggression; and next to these, if next at all, come industries. Industries are necessary not only for safety and economic strength but also for a civilized mode of living and civilized standards of living.

The backwardness and poverty of India is due mainly to neglect of industries. It is unsafe to be without a plan or organisation in so important a concern of national life as industries. The most regrettable part of the present situation is that there is no plan or organisation to remedy this. Government consider it is not their concern and national leaders feel helpless without the power of the purse, or control over trade, transport and defence.

The lecturer, having by facts and figures shown, how backward India is, in respect of industries, made a fairly exhaustive list of all modern industries and manufactures under some twenty-four distinct heads, which in their turn may be classed under (1) the engineering group, (2) the chemical group and (3) the group of independent individual undertakings like textiles etc.

As a first step to devise any measures for developing industries within a tract, it is necessary, said the speaker, to make a survey of industries and to investigate the resources and economic conditions of the area and build up a standard of production and income to work up to.

The lecturer laid stress on collateral developments in the field of industries and in collateral all India activities.

Sir M. V. chalked out a development plan with a time-limit.

He deplored the attitude of Government of India, who now and then encourage agriculture, but their attitude towards industry has been unhelpful.

Mr. Amery's Address Criticised

Referring to Mr. Amery's recent address, Sir M. V. said:

Mr. Amery in the speech he made a couple of days ago asks Indians to be wide-eyed for reality; well, is not all this reality? I have other instances to give, if the Government of India are prepared to apply remedies. I should be glad to be told if any of my statements are really incorrect or exaggerated. Even if only three-fourths of what I have stated is correct, you will agree, a case for reform has been made out.

I have said that our backwardness and poverty has been brought on mainly by neglect of industries. May I not appeal to our public to give the subject of industries its due importance in our national life? As remarked before, industries are required to give the people higher standards of living, economic strength and military protection. They come next only in importance to good administration and efficient defence. To maintain even these, they are indispensable.

This is a machine age. The use of machinery and machine tools should be encouraged. Parents should even help children to set up small workshops in their own homes. "Industrialise or Perish" should be our motto, if we are to safeguard our interests and to keep in step with the progressive peoples of the world.

With industrialisation and the resulting increased employment in the country, which will keep all classes of the population working, constructive politics is bound to come into its own.

Eleventh Hour Attempts

In concluding, he made a reference to War and the Political Situation, and said:

War is in full force and the political situation is tense. War has come up to the port of Aden which till recently was a part of territorial India. Our thoughts are coloured by a terrible cloud that hangs over Great Britain and the other great nations, shutting out light of happiness and progress to the people of an entire continent. This is a most unfortunate time for Great Britain, she has to fight a ruthless enemy with no more powerful allies than the people of distant Dominions and Colonies.

If India had been prepared to participate in the war to the extent and with the same outlook and prospects as, for instance, the Dominion of Canada, I have no doubt Britain could have derived help of enormous value from this country. India's potential resources in men and materials, wisely handled, are immense but under the system of administration now prevailing, they are used neither for success in war, nor progress in times of peace. Eleven long attempts at improving the economic efficiency of a nation even for war purposes is beset with difficulties.

SIR DALAL

Sir Ardesir Dalal in a witty and humorous speech proposed a vote of thanks to the illustrious lecturer of the evening. He said that he himself was a Kannadiga and it was a pleasure to him to meet his brother Kannadigas in this audience. In thanking Sir M. Visvesvaraya he said that the lecturer, though twenty-five years older than himself, looked twenty-five years younger than himself (Dalal) in energy and enthusiasm. At an age, when most of the people would go in for sargam, vanavas or swargavas, Sir M. Visvesvaraya toiled day and night, trotted over two or three continents and unceasingly worked for industrialization of India which is his life-passion. He also thanked Sri Mirza M. Ismail, the present Dewan of Mysore, for his progressive industrialization policy.

Rao Sahib C. Hayavadana proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer and the president.

Mr. K. Shamaier, Secretary, Chamber of Commerce had made perfect arrangements and everything was alright.

All India Industries Conference

U. P. GOVERNOR'S OPENING
ADDRESS

Commerce Member's Presidential Address

A. P. Lucknow Dec. 16

"We must in field industry and in other fields apply the slogan and adopt the watchword "India first" declared His Excellency Sir Maurice Hallett, Governor of U. P. opening Industries Conference today. About fifty delegates from various provinces and Indian States were present. He added: "We have not yet achieved a federation of British India and Indian states but still it had become an accomplished fact. There must be close partnership between the two Indias in effort to mobilise economic and industrial resources of the country for common benefit of all. A conference such as this Sir Maurice said was a step in this direction.
It emphasises the fact that India was one integral whole and that her industrial and economic life could not be divided into water tight compartments.
In no sphere was need for coordinated effort greater than in regard to Industrial development of the country." Dealing with the need for effective publicity to discourage pessimist and defeatist mentality His Excellency observed: There may be many in enemy and neutral countries impressed by the fact that one political party is against giving help in war; surely it will encourage neutrals and I hope it will distress Germans, if they know that this movement is having little or no effect on recruitment or production of munitions."

The Twelfth All-India Industries Conference met today under the Presidency of Sir Ramaswamy Mahadhir, Commerce Member.

His Excellency Sir Maurice Hallett, Governor of United Provinces, opened the conference.

The Conference was attended by representatives of various Provinces and States and other prominent members.

Addressing the Conference the Commerce Member said it was not a spectacular industry that was being even necessarily going adequately toward the purpose of industrial development. Small industries were seen to be conservative in industrial development

Viceroy's Speech at Calcutta

Parade of Civic Guards

A. P. Calcutta, Dec. 17

Addressing a parade of civic guards A. R. P. organisations and other voluntary civic services in Calcutta this morning
His Excellency the Viceroy said:

It is of particular interest to me to observe the extent of cooperation which exists between the civic guards and the police.
No police force can function properly even in normal times without the wholehearted sympathy and support of the public at large, whose safety and security and whose property it is their main duty to protect.
Increased co-operation which the present emergency has brought about between the police and voluntary civic bodies is a development of immense importance, and the spirit which it engenders will,
I am sure, be of lasting mutual benefit."

of the country and would ultimately be the basic factor which determined the great and big industrial development.
The President reiterated his firm conviction that the motives behind the Indian industrial community whether Indian or European, were fully and completely behind the war effort that India was making and that whatever might be their attitude on other matters, in this war effort they were wholeheartedly with the Government of India and the Provincial Governments. The President expressed his anxiety to have coordinated development both in British India and the Indian States so that the Indian States should come in line with British India in industrial progress.

Concluding Sir Ramaswamy Mahadhir appealed to those who are in authority in Indian States to see to it that divergent conditions did not prevail which militated against the development of industries in one part or other of the States or British India.

After the Commerce Member's speech, the Conference proceeded to discuss the matters on the agenda. The Conference will continue to-morrow.

Viceroy's Speech

Reactions in Delhi

A Loophole Provided

From our own correspondent
(By wire) New Delhi, Dec. 17

The only question which is being discussed at New Delhi as a result of the Viceroy's speech is whether the peace move initiated by Sir Jagdish-prasad and others has now chances left. It undoubtedly became clear after Col. Amery's speech that the Viceroy in his address at Calcutta would only play a role of apologist for Government's policy and repeat the August offer, throwing at the same time complete responsibility on the political parties for the present deadlock. Great surprise has, however, been caused by the Viceroy's statement "There is nothing more that we can do."

Loophole in Viceroy's Speech

According to political talks in New Delhi the only loophole provided by the Viceroy's speech is that for the first time there is reference by him to the demand for "National Government" and that after expressing sympathy with this idea he claims that his proposals represent more closely than any other the demand for National Government for India.

It is expected those promoting the peace move will soon approach His Excellency for further clarification of the claim so that another attempt may be made to bring parties together for reconstruction of Central Government on lines acceptable to Major political parties. The outcome continues to be as dark as before.

"Industrialise Or Perish"

Sir M. Visvesvaraya, the eighty-year-old but very vigorous, energetic and enthusiastic statesman, and retired Dewan of Mysore, made his appearance today before yesterday evening before a crowded Bangalore audience. Six years had elapsed since he last appeared last before the public in Bangalore. At the outset of his speech, he remarked, "You want Sir Datta to introduce me to you, perhaps you have forgotten me." This was a touch of pathos in the Hindu's voice, that to forget Sir M. Visvesvaraya who awakened Mysore from her slumbers and placed her on the rails of modern progress. The old and veteran is dear to all of us and it was with great esteem and affection that the citizens of Bangalore, old and young, greeted our talented friend, adorned to honour him and listen to his precious words of advice. For a lengthy years did gentlemen stand up for one hour and pour out his heart, his stream of performance of which all of us are proud. Sir M. V. is the greatest Mysorean living and one of the greatest Indians of the age. For over half a century, dreaming, and working, his one thought has been, awakening of India in matters Industrial and Economic. Sir M. Visvesvaraya is an engineer of international fame, in lines constructed structures which remain as a monument to his genius. Greater noble than architect of a nation and of a people. He is a great builder. In Mysore, what he has achieved in the field of administration, finance, irrigation, education, industry, agriculture uplift of backward and depressed classes, will stand as an eloquent testimony of what an Indian, a Mysorean, can accomplish, given sufficient power and opportunity. After his retirement from Mysore, his activities extended to All India and was a two today respected done by all parties. He is wanted everywhere, wanted in Orissa, wanted in Karachi, wanted in Bombay and wanted in Panaji. The one appreciation that in the remaining and thinking of Sir M. Visvesvaraya, that he does not think in patchwork compartments. He does think in compartments, whole, as a nation or as a nation, politics, economics and administration are all one, interrelated and inter-connected. He is confident of the country that this could be a satisfactory economic stimulus and progress of India, without her getting a free and independent political status. His political ideas are far in advance of the Indian Liberal School of politics. Though he is not entirely with the Congress and Mahatma Gandhi, it is no secret to reveal that his heart and sympathies are with our countrymen who have been sacrificing their all for the political salvation of India. His political pronouncements are marked with clear cut, emphatic, unambiguous expressions of opinion. He never wavers and vacillates. In his address day before yesterday he gave an indication of his mind as to what he thinks of the present political situation in India. Mark the following words "The political upheaval which we witness here today has not come as a result of the war but is the consequence of long deferred changes in the Indian Constitution, changes dangled before our eyes for over 21 years. The present constitution has to be based upon the most inadequate and unprogressive that an awakened and growing country can endure. A fundamental defect is needed as much in the interest of Great Britain as of India."

In his day before yesterday's address, considerable portions of which we have published in our yesterday's issue, he made an emphatic plea for rapid industrialisation of India. By unimpeachable statistics, he showed that India was at the lowest rung of the ladder, in industrial progress. He declared that the backwardness and poverty of India is due mainly to neglect of industries. While in the United States of America 30 per cent, in the United Kingdom 47 per cent, of the population are engaged in industries, in India the percentage is only 10. In regard to capital invested, while U.S.A. has invested 12,000 crores, United Kingdom 2,007 crores, India has only invested 700 crores of Rupees. Considering the average per capita income from industries, in U.S.A. it is 830 Rupees, in United Kingdom 463, and in India only 12. Along with industrial progress, the percentage of literacy also should be considered. In U.S.A. 75 per cent know how to read, and write in United Kingdom 76 per cent, in India only 8 per cent.

This is a sorry state of affairs, too deep for tears. All this is due to, the learned lecturer has pointed out, to lack of Government co-operation, which is forth coming in an abundant measure in self governing countries. The Government of India harp upon minor matters but when it comes to big questions, they falter and deviate. The last Great War found us, wanting in industries and the present Greater War and us in the same position.

"If India had been prepared to participate in the war to the same extent and with the same resources and prospects as, for instance the Dominion of Canada, there would have been no doubt, Britain would have derived help of enormous value from this country." We repeat what Sir

M. V. said that eleven hour attempts at improving the economic efficiency of a nation even for war purposes is beset with difficulties.

Sir M. V.'s address is replete with facts, figures and arguments. We request our readers to secure a copy of the address, read it and digest it with a view to contributing their due quota to industrial uplift of our land.

VAGARIOUS BUS STANDS

A good city needs quick and efficient transport. Thanks to the newly created company a number of red, green, and grey buses are plying from one corner of Bangalore to another. But the "Delayed Action" tactics of these buses cause great havoc. As "Delayed Action" bombs cause nuisance to peace-loving citizens so also these "Delayed Action" buses cause untold nuisance as is the order of the day in Bangalore. Waiting for a bus on a busy day is as bad as chronic neuritis. We hear dissertations on punctuality. We are made to wear Zenith precision watches, but what is the use of our exertions of vigilance if buses arrive late. Engagements are upset by these unpunctual buses. Marking of late attendance and consequent loss of monthly pay are the "fine" work of our late buses. Drawing room discourtesy result more often from "Delayed Action" buses. People have become chronic late comers by resorting to unpunctual buses. Time is a great factor in civilized cities but thanks to our present day buses time too runs amok. Good manners automatically change to ill-manners by busstand vagaries. Subordinates succumb to the wrath of superiors on account of busstand waiting. We hope and trust that the talented managers of our Transport Company will set matters right, in keeping with Bangalore's good and efficient standards.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I am happy to note that my esteemed friend Rao Sahab M. Ramaswamy had the honour of being the first non-official to preside over a Taluk Conference. I congratulate him on his honour. He is a sincere "chela" of the late Tataiah. There is in him a spirit of service. He is not a graduate or double graduate. He is not a lawyer, nor he is a moneylender. Ramaswamy is a humble public worker. He is a typical swasath, good to all men and hurting none. He chose not to get into hot waters of extreme politics, and thus he remains where he is to day. Extreme politics and jail going have their prizes in public life. The public shower their garlands on heroes. Rao Sahab Ramaswamy may not be a hero in that sense, but he is a public worker of genuine earnestness.

Though I congratulate Ramaswamy on his distinction of presiding over a Taluk Conference, I consider it as a swasath honour. My ambition is that a non-official should be the Dewan of Mysore and that too an elected Dewan selected by His Highness the Maharaja.

Sir C.P. Ramaswamy Iyer in a jovial speech somewhere said that he had to perform the duties of Editor of a daily paper "The New India"—from 1914 and onwards, when Mrs. Besant was in jail. The paper had at that time a circulation of about 15 to 20 thousand. He collaborated with the Editorship of the paper the practice of legal profession. So, from his personal experience he knew what it meant to be an Editor. The Editor had to give the impression of being omniscient. It was beset with all sorts of enquiries all times, in the day and unless he could give the impression he would become unbearable for him. For an Editor accuracy after all was secondary and subsidiary matter (laughter). After all what was needed for an Editorial was that it must be topical, arresting, sensational, full of musing, full of reproaches, and castigations. It might be that the reproaches were slightly misplaced but what was most needed was the maintenance of the tradition of brightness.

Thank God, wisdom has dawned on Sir C.P. He thinks, perhaps rightly, with his own experience, that the qualifications needed for a Dewanship are far smaller and lower than those required for an Editor!

Cotton Cultivation In Irwin Canal Area

Bangalore, Dec 12

On the recommendations of the Director of Agriculture, the Government of Mysore have sanctioned a scheme for the extension of cotton cultivation in Irwin Canal Area, Mandya.

Recommending the scheme the Director of Agriculture says that as there is no further market for sugarcane and the existing area is far in excess of the requirements of the Sugar Factory, the crops that may be grown with advantage in the new areas that would come under cultivation namely, about 32,000 acres are 'irrigated cotton' and 'cigarette tobacco', and that the special Sub Committee for cotton development in the Mandya Area were of opinion that "M A II cotton" which is the best medium staple cotton and which is better than the imported cotton may be produced on a large scale in the Mandya area to meet the requirements of the Spinning Mills at Bangalore.

The expenses in connection with the scheme will be met by re-appropriation from the Krishnaraja Sagar Budget for the current year and from Agricultural Department Budget for 1941-42.

The scheme as sanctioned will be in force for one year in the first instance. For purposes of the Scheme Madhur and Mahavalli Taluks will be added to the Bangalore Circle and the Assistant Director will be an additional charge of these Taluks.

A lumpsum allotment of Rs. 2,000 will be sanctioned and placed at the disposal of the Assistant Director of Agriculture for engaging local field men from important and progressive ryots on an allowance of Rs. 25 per month temporarily popularise cotton cultivation and secure the expected acreage in the respective villages.

A subvention of 8 annas per acre will also be sanctioned for supply of seed free to the new cotton area and for incidental expenses of storage etc.

The scheme comes into force from the 15th of December 1940.

Political Talks in New Delhi

Our New Delhi Letter

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, Dec. 12

A distinct feeling of pessimism noticeable in political talks in New Delhi. There was a flicker of hopeful interest when Mr. M. R. Jayakar arrived in New Delhi and stayed for two days at the Viceroy's House, but when this has passed away. Only a few days ago Mr. M. R. Jayakar was associated with Sir T. B. Sapru in the famous peace mission to Mahatma Gandhi at Poona. With this recollection in the public mind it was only natural to ask whether Mr. M. R. Jayakar was again on a similar mission. Though by reason of his present official position in England, he cannot actively intervene in political matters, his influence must count a great deal indeed both in high government circles and among old political colleagues like Sir T. B. Sapru in this country. Having been in England during these critical months he is probably in a distinctly advantageous position to understand the mind of the British Government. As his visit to New Delhi developed in complete mystery there is little to be said at this stage about the object of his visit or the results of his talks with the Viceroy. The fact however that his visit to New Delhi to meet the Viceroy—on the eve of his departure for Calcutta to address the Associated Chambers of Commerce—has coincided with the peace efforts of Sir Jagadish Prasad and others adds one inevitably to the conclusion that it must have a political meaning. But the question which is being anxiously discussed in political circles is the old one—what is it that Mr. M. R. Jayakar and others can do at this stage to bring about some political agreement not merely between the various political parties but also between the Government and political India taken as a whole?

Dark Outlook

It is recognised that Sir Jagadish Prasad and others who have come out of their retirement to initiate these efforts have been actuated by the best intentions. There are however two or three mitigating factors which have to be considered in this connection. The first is that their public influence in the country is not so great as to inspire much confidence or enthusiasm. The second is that the present political atmosphere in the country caused by various turn which events have taken it is by no means one to start or carry on negotiations—unless there is something to change this atmosphere. A careful study of the situation both in this country and in England shows that there is no general agreement on one point. And that is that it will no more do for the Government to persist in its old nonpossumus attitude that unless the Congress, the Muslim League and other parties are able to agree among themselves there is nothing that the Government can be expected to do. On the contrary some active proposals must be made by the British Government itself which will serve as a basis for political agreement, for so long as nothing is definitely known about the Government's intentions there is no basis upon which the talks between the parties could proceed. It seems to be equally well recognised both in England and in India that the August offer of an expanded Council at the Centre stands no chance of acceptance in any quarter. The problem is therefore one for the Government to declare unequivocally how far it is prepared to go to meet the general demand in the country for transfer of power at the Centre. It may be possible for the Viceroy to indicate in general terms in his forthcoming speech at Calcutta the "new approach" as the London "Times" has put it—something which will make the country forget the August offer and take up instead some new proposal conceived on bigger and bolder lines. At the moment however the outlook is so dark that few indeed are so optimistic as to expect any sensational declaration from the Viceroy next week.

Three Courses

So far as one can see there are three courses open for meeting the present situation. The first is to lay aside all plans for reconstructing the Central Government, take up the challenge of the Congress and concentrate all energies for the purpose of meeting it successfully. It may be the view of the Government authorities that the Congress campaign will either so end itself away in course of time or can be successfully countered by firm handling, but how far it is the path of political wisdom has also to be considered. Secondly there is the possibility that by defining in greater detail the scheme for an expanded Council and improving it in essential particulars an attempt may be made to revive it in such a form as may win the support of the Muslim League and other non-Congress parties—even if the Congress chooses to stand aside. This probably what the London "Times" has in mind when it asks the Government to give further "explanation" and "interpretation" of the August offer. This suggestion may look appealing, but the task is far from easy. Neither the Muslim League nor the Hindu Mahasabha are likely to view favourably any offer which does not place substantial power in the hands of political representatives at the Centre. A substantial majority of seats for political representatives in the Viceroy's Cabinet, major portfolios like Defence and Finance in Indian hands, the Government's policy in essential matters to be determined by Cabinet discussions and decision—all these are likely to be insisted on. And if the Government is prepared to concede these demands, it can very well accept the Congress proposal for a National Government at the Centre. The last course is to review the whole situation afresh and try to end the political deadlock by fresh negotiations on a completely new basis. For some kind of interim settlement for the war period without prejudice to this respective claims of the future

MORE CONFERENCES

A fair measure of success attended the Jute Conference which met during the week and resolved on a buying programme for ensuring an economic price for the cultivator. It has been agreed to by the Government that if the Jute Mills Association is unable to fulfil its programme, the Government will make good the deficiency by making purchases itself. Nothing is yet known regarding the financial arrangements between the Government of India and the Bengal Government for making these purchases should the occasion arise, but it is generally believed that the Bengal Ministers who made more than one trip to New Delhi for conferring with the Government of India have come to a satisfactory financial arrangement. It is indeed a pity that the Handloom Weaving Conference has nothing more to its credit than the establishment of a fact finding committee. Only time will show whether this means practically the shelving of the issues raised or something will be done to assist the handloom weaving industry—even if it means some sacrifice on the part of the mills. One of the subjects coming up for discussion at the coming Industries at Lucknow is how to utilise the Government of India's stores purchase policy so as to afford the maximum scope for the development of cottage and small scale industries. It is within the power of the Government of India to do a good deal for the development of handloom weaving not only by securing suitable economic adjustment between it and the mill industry but also by making large scale purchases from handloom weavers.

WAR SUPPLY STAFF

One more scheme of reorganisation within less than six months has been effected within the Supply Department. The two Directors General now become autonomous and independent with full powers to take decisions on all matters like any Secretary of the Government of India under the present rules and practices. The Central Secretariat which was estab-

Security Proceedings Against Mr. Subbanna

Mr. T. S. Subbanna, against whom Security proceedings were instituted on Saturday evening under Section 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code, was arrested last night at Krishnarajanagar and was brought down to Mysore this morning.

To-day he was produced before Mr. Abdul Azeem, Revenue Sub Division Officer and Ex-office Special First Class Magistrate.

There were nobody in the Court to watch the proceedings except three press reporters.

The Magistrate read out the charge sheet to the accused in which it was stated that his acts at Krishnarajanagar in connection with the ensuing Municipal Elections were such as likely to lead to a breach of the peace in the area and hence he should show cause why he should not be bound over to keep peace for one year and furnish a security of Rs. 250 and two sureties of like sum.

Mr. Subbanna pleaded inability to furnish the security immediately and said that he had to consult his lawyer. Also he denied the allegation made against him.

The Magistrate posted the case to 25th instant for examination of witnesses and passed orders remanding Mr. Subbanna to custody pending the furnishing of security.

ished a few months back with Mr. Jenkins as Secretary will be freed from a good deal of its present volume of work and responsibility as the directors General have been vested with the status of Additional Secretaries and pass final orders themselves as such. It is sad to contemplate on the fate which has overtaken the fate of the Indian Stores Department. This great Department to which the country owes a good deal for the development of Indian industries and encouragement to Indian concerns will hereafter be only a subsidiary section to one of the Directors General. Even the Inspectorate which was formerly under it will hereafter be under the control of a military officer. The reason for these drastic changes is said to be military necessity the need for having a compact body which will take quick decisions and act with speed. It appears that after the war it will revert to its old position.

R. A. F. Busy

The R. A. F. know no rest. They have bombed the Kiel shipyards, Bremen harbour and secured direct hits on a German ship. Important targets in the Berlin area have been attacked and with conspicuous success. Apart from these heavy raids smaller forces of the R. A. F. have bombed the inland port of Frankfurt-on-Maine. Germany has been shattered by these three attacks. Compared with the raids on England the R. A. F. are scoring successes which at all events Hitler has begun to hate. At this rate Nazis have to lose air warfare and we wish them this failure. So the R. A. F. are busy.

SUCCESS AT W. DESERT

The capture of Sollum (Egypt) and Fort Capuzzo (Libya) have thrilled the world. The British advance guards have entered these two places capturing a number of enemy aircraft. Besides these noteworthy successes the British swept across the Libyan frontier encircling Marshal Graziani's troops who were till a few days back were entrenched at Sollum. On the Sudan frontier too the British Patrols had another successful day. The "Hell fire" Pass was finally captured when the British stormed it on the summit. These successes are due in no small measure to the dash of our Indian troops for whom Capt. Hurly has paid a well merited tribute.

GREEK FRONT

In the northern front of Albania snow storms continue to hamper hostilities but skirmishes between advance posts continued all day. Tepeleni is not yet in Greek hands. Six feet deep snow lies in the Shkumbhi and Devoli valleys and advance is held up in this sector. The people of Albania though ready for revolt are remaining passive because of the paucity of arms and ammunition. All Italian winter attacks have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Sprayers & Chemicals To Coffee Planters

Consolidation of Loans

Bangalore, Dec. 17. Recently, the Government of Mysore called for a report from the Revenue Commissioner, in consultation with the Director of Agriculture, on the feasibility of consolidating the takavi loan and the advance for sprayers and chemicals issued to a coffee planter by the Revenue and Agricultural Departments, respectively, into a single loan for purposes of recovery.

The Director of Agriculture considered that the proposal was not only feasible but would also minimise a good deal of correspondence in recovering advances. He therefore suggested that the following procedure in issuing advances may be adopted: "When a takavi loan is sanctioned to a planter, the amount upto which spraying materials may be issued may also be fixed by the Revenue Department and intimated to the Assistant Director of Agriculture concerned. On production of such authorisation from the Revenue Officers spraying materials will be issued by the Agricultural Department after obtaining mutchalikas. At the end of each month, a list of the issues made will be sent, in duplicate, together with the mutchalikas to the Amildar concerned, who may return one list to the Assistant Director of Agriculture duly passed for payment. This voucher may on presentation at the Treasury be passed through the Register of transfer transactions, by debit to takavi loan and credit to 'Advances for sprayers and chemicals'."

The Revenue Commissioner agreed with the Director of Agriculture and recommended that the procedure may be adopted. Government, accepting the above proposals, have directed that the takavi loan and the advance for sprayers and chemicals issued to a planter by the Revenue and Agricultural Departments, respectively, may be combined into a single loan the aggregate amount to be advanced being limited to Rs. 45 per acre.

Viceroy's Apologia

(By wire) New Delhi Dec. 17

General reaction to the Viceroy's apologia is well expressed by Sir. Tej. Bahadur Sapru's rejoinder to Mr. Amery today in which he says "While sentiments embodied in it are excellent and like him I believe in 'India first' I should have expected Mr. Amery follow up this sentiment by some practical suggestion to end the present deadlock. I cannot understand why Mr. Amery or His Majesty's Government or Government of India should feel themselves paralysed so far as their action is concerned merely because two political parties are at war with each other."

Non Official European Views.

One prominent public man now in Delhi characterised the Viceroy's plea for August 1941 as flogging a dead horse. Though no clue as to the government's future intentions is so far available comment of the 'Statesman' appears and let the cat out of the bag. After declaring that essential thing is to find a government capable of developing India's war potential to the highest degree it says about congress, "No war cabinet would gain in efficiency from its participation". Evidently the objection of non-official European community to National Government as popularly understood is that such Government would not keep up the present tempo of war effort and by insisting on reduction of salaries Indianisation etc., would create friction in administration. These fears of non-official European community are probably responsible to some extent for whitehall's hesitancy.

German Orders For French Aircraft Industry

Offer Declined by Petain

(By cable) [London.

A News Chronicle Correspondent writes:—

In order to "improve" economic conditions in non-occupied France where a great majority of the factories are idle because of lack of raw materials, the Nazis recently suggested that several aircraft work should be reopened to make planes for Germany.

They were ready to give orders for building 2000 planes which would provide work for many thousands of unemployed workers. Marshal Petain declined the offer.

All India Industries Conference

Our readers will have perused the proceedings of the All India Industries Conference held at Lucknow. This Conference is a yearly annual, involving a good deal of expenditure to the taxpayer. Its achievement is nil. Some pompous pronouncements are made in commonplace things. The vital industries of the country are not dealt with. Handloom-weaving has occupied the biggest attention of the recent conference. Even in that direction, precious little has been done. The Commerce Members with a laudatorial gusto, agreed that it was not "spectacular" industry that was alone or even necessarily going unpunished. To fulfil the purpose of industrial development. The small industries were going to be the conserving force in the industrial development of the country and it was they that were ultimately to be the basic factor which determined great and big industrial development.

We think this is only an excuse for neglect of the industries. Sir M. Visvesvaraya has rightly condemned the attitude of the Government of India in regard to the basic industries of India. This is what Sir M. V. says at the Industrial Conferences held year by year under the auspices of the Government of India. "These annual sessions are attended by Ministers or Members of Provincial Governments from all parts of India and since last year also by a few non-official businessmen. This must be costing a considerable sum of money by way of travelling expenses of officials but at these meetings there is no policy or plan defined for industrial advance. It seems almost a tragedy that when the country is hungering for a lead, the Conference deals from year to year only with questions of a minor character, such as handloom weaving, small scale industries and handicrafts. No question connected with new large scale industries, in which so many an demand, seem to engage its attention."

As to the utility and waste of holding such conferences, no Government is necessary. Her Excellency Sir Maurice Hulett, Governor of the United Provinces, opening the Industries Conference said, "We must realise that the country can obtain its development only by the development of the water and land industries. The Governor said that this Conference emphasised the fact that India was one integral whole and her industrial and economic life could not be divided into water tight compartments. This is a truism well worth repeating several times over, in all matters connected with industrial and economic but also political and constitutional. We also say "India first", but are His Majesty's Government and the Government of India pursuing that policy in all sincerity and truthfulness. If one slogan is hurled against another slogan, it creates spark and sound and nothing else.

SWIMMING MADE EASY

Swimming has been made easy by our erstwhile City Fathers. The pool that has been provided in a healthy part of our metropolis should instil "swimmingness" in our city children. Swimmingness is defined as fearfulness or a melting look by the custodians of King's English. But we define it as the state of swimming. Two annas enables anybody to float on water of course with the ready help of an instructor. But the same two annas enables any one to buy a ticket to the heavens if found to be careless with water. It is improper to play with deep waters but swimming contests that extraordinary capacity to find one's own depth and there we recommend a good swimming pool with a competent instructor. The swimming pool which has been built at a cost of Rs. 40,000 was a long felt want and we are sure it will create swimming mindedness in our city. We do not know whether there is a rule for costumes, but it should be enforced in the interests of good and well defined manners. Costumes lend enchantment to swimmers but pools which throw open their gates readily to members of "fair sex" should be all the more cautious about strict enforcement of "costumes". Swimming is a sure tonic of body-building and we recommend our Municipal pool to our ratepayers. We congratulate those who took keen interest in providing this latest amenity to us.

A PUFF OF SOMKE

I am delighted to learn that at long last the portrait of Rao Bahadur Lokasevasakta B. K. Garudachar was unveiled on Tuesday evening in the Municipal Offices by Dr. M. Royan its present President. This was a function overdue. I do not know why two and a half years had to elapse before the portrait was unveiled as I understand the portrait was ready even in 1938. Let me not probe into the by-gones.

By honouring Mr. B. K. Garudachar, the Municipal Council has honoured itself. Dr. Royan paid a deserving tribute to Mr. Garudachar, whose activities cover many fields of public life. As a municipal councillor he served his ratepayers for over thirty years. So to say, the present Bangalore has grown to its present size under his very toes. As Municipal president he was very respected and he conducted the proceedings with effort. The Municipal Council under his presidency was forced to be businesslike and punctilious. He brought to bear on the Municipal Council his skill and experience as a deft business man. He conducted the proceedings of the Municipal Council as he would conduct the proceedings of a meeting of the Directors of the Mysore Bank. Hard commonsense with no nonsense and side tracking prevailed in the Municipal Council when he adorned the Chair. He gave no scope to fireworks and mock heroics. When anybody outstepped decent constitutional limits, he snubbed him unsparingly with a healthy effect on the boisterous member.

Respected alike by officials and non-officials he vacated his chair adding dignity to it. It was well known that when Mr. Garudachar was President the business of the days from 24th December 1940 to 1st January 1941.

Dr. R. Balakrishna, Assistant Professor of Economics, Maharani's College, Bangalore, is temporarily placed in charge of the duties of the Principal, Maharani's College for women, from 15th November 1940.

Miss M. G. Hanumattakar Lady Medical Officer, Maternity Hospital, Davangere, is transferred to Vani Vilas Hospital Bangalore, Mrs. Padmasundaram District Hospital, Chickamagalur is transferred to Maternity Hospital, Davangere, Miss Sumathi Mahadevan, Chaluvaamba Hospital, Mysore is transferred to District Hospital, Chickamagalur.

Bangalore, Dec. 18. Miss L. Cotlingam is confirmed as Assistant Professor of Sociology in the Maharani's College for Women, Bangalore, with effect from 25th June 1940.

meeting would be over before lunch. Himself sparing in words he did not allow wind bags to play in the Council Hall.

Mr. Garudachar, a scion of a respected family, has shed lustre on the various positions he occupied. For a long number of years he was an M.L.C. and President of the Chamber of Commerce. Today he is the Chairman of the Mysore Bank Ltd., and some other industrial concerns. Above all, he is a kind hearted charitably disposed gentleman. It can truly be said of him he has adopted the motto "Do good by stealth and not blush to find it fame". I offer my sincere shubhachin to Lokasevasakta and pray that God may shower on him long life and many more years of useful service to his fellowmen.

I have seen several Presidents of the Bangalore City Municipal Council. I have seen Khan Bahadur Abbas Khan, Rao Bahadur B. K. Garudachar, Mr. P. Subbarama Chetty, Mr. N. Balakrishnaiah and last but not least, Dr. M. Royan. Khan Bahadur managed his presidency with great ability, adroitness and heroism. If the events of 1928 had not intervened, I venture to suggest that he would have been by the side of Sir Mirza M. Ismail, in the State Executive Council.

Dr. M. Royan as we all know, did not seek the Presidency. It was thrust on him, through the kind offices of some of his friends. But it must be said with frankness, that he behaved as a typical gentleman in his office as President. When he vacates his office, he leaves no thorns behind. His record of service, though brief, is commendable. I am all praise to him.

About others, I reserve my comments to a future date.

Prohibitive Orders

"Needless and Provocative"

Mr. L. S. RAJU, President Civil Liberties Union writes:—
Recently, in several parts of Mysore, prohibitory orders have been issued by the Local Authorities purporting to take action under certain provisions of the Mysore Police Act. These provisions, it need hardly be stated, were intended for quite a different set of circumstances and not to curtail the liberties of the people of Mysore in carrying on their legitimate propaganda in connection with the elections to the Local Boards, Municipal Councils, the Representative Assembly and Legislative Council. I am glad to note that the Secretary of the Rashtreeya Sabha has also raised a protest against these orders. This is as it should be, because the safeguarding of the liberties of the people, which have been infringed by the recent orders, is not merely the concern of those connected with the Mysore State Congress, but it is one concerning the entire population of Mysore, and the Mysore State Congress is voicing for the entire population in this respect.

One peculiar feature of these orders is that they are emanating simultaneously in different parts of Mysore and it is therefore feared that these may be the result of some policy dictated in higher quarters. If this is so, it is a matter of considerable regret, and will do more harm than good. I appeal to the authorities concerned to put a stop to such needless and provocative prohibitory orders and allow the utmost freedom consistent with law for propaganda in elections. At the same time, it is also absolutely necessary on the part of the people to show the utmost restraint in the face of such orders and do nothing calculated to cause any trouble. Not to do so, in my opinion, would only be walking into the parlor of the opponents of freedom and may mar the conduct of the elections and the progress thereof.

Allahabad, Dec. 13.
While election of the provincial Hindu Sabha was held in Agra and Oudh Provinces a suit for injunction has been filed in the court of the munsif asking that Mr. Deshapande and Mr. Indra Prakash who had been deputed by Dr. Moonje to hold elections be restrained and questioning the validity of the move and also of the resolution of the working committee of the Mahasabha disaffiliating the existing Agra Provincial Hindu Sabha of which the plaintiffs were members, alleging that the move of reorganisation was actuated by ulterior motives.

The plaintiffs in this case are Rajavaidya Kaviraj Ayurvedacharya K. A. Y. Kalpacharya Ramanuja Saraswathi, Thakur Ram Rup Singh of Jaunpur, Mr. Beni Prasad Sandilya and others.

The plaintiffs further stated that they had come to know that a meeting was going to be held at the instance of some of the defendants in the Kayasthapathshala, on December 9 to form a new Agra Province Hindu Sabha out of those members and declare that they or any other member had no right to elect members to the All India Committee in place of those elected by the Agra Provincial Hindu Sabha.

The Munsif had issued notice to the defendants to show cause against the application of the plaintiffs for a temporary injunction, and issued meanwhile a temporary injunction restraining the defendants from holding the meeting on December 9 of those who were alleged to have been elected by certain district Hindu Sabhas under the move of reorganisation.

The meeting was held and the Agra Provincial Hindu Sabha was formed. Sir J. P. Srivastava was elected President, Raja Maheswar Dayal Seth (Working President), Ranj Saheba of Sherkot, Raja of

Col. Amery's speech and After

No Solution of Indian Political Difficulties

Our New Delhi Letter

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi Dec. 16. The week saw the Viceroy's departure from New Delhi without breaking his silence. Few indeed are the optimists who think that even his forthcoming speech at Calcutta will throw any light on the British Government's future intentions. To relieve the tedium, as it were, Mr. Amery came forward with a long "luncheon" speech on the same day as the Viceroy's departure for the Eastern capital, but instead of offering a solution for India's political difficulties and that the Secretary of State had to give this country was a slogan—rather a weak imitation of a bad tradesman who is not sure of his wares. This has come as a sad anti-climax to the hopes which recent comments in the British Press had raised in the public mind. Instead there is now a growing feeling of pessimism that for the present nothing need be expected—nothing yet of that new approach on bigger and more hopeful lines" which friendly exponents of the government's policy had been envisaging. One thing which Mr. Amery's speech—read in the light of the fuller summary of his comments of the London Times which subsequently reached India—has made abundantly clear is that the initiative for any new approach has to come from London—not from the Viceroy or those in New Delhi who may be credited with having more intimate knowledge of the realities of the Indian situation and the ways to deal with them. How far the Secretary of State and his colleagues in the British Cabinet are in a position to understand the real backwardness of the Indian problem or have the time amidst their war preoccupations to apply their mind to it, seems only too clear from Mr. Amery's speech. It probably explains New Delhi's present silence and inability to go forward with a new scheme or restart negotiations except to reiterate that what use is it to keep an open eye if it stands no chance of acceptance?

Expansion Or Addition

Another interesting line of speculation which Mr. Jayakar has provided is that he might be invited to join the Viceroy's Executive Council as a Member. At one time inference drawn from the words of the Viceroy's declaration in August last was that whatever might be the result of the negotiations with the leaders of parties the expansion scheme would be carried out. This like many previous declarations was due to wrong political calculations, for by the beginning of October it was clear that if the intention was to leave out this dissenting party or that and proceed to expand the Viceroy's Council with the help of other political parties and communal groups, this scheme could not possibly work. The only other alternative is to proceed with the expansion scheme by appointing non-party men who in the Government's view are "representative Indians"—and many have been the names mentioned in this connection including those of Sir Sultan Ahmed, Sir Mirza Ismail, Sir S. Radhakrishnan, Mr. M. R. Jayakar and others. Wisely, as one should think, the Viceroy decided to drop the expansion scheme for the present and await further developments. Still the rumour has persisted that owing to the large volume of additional work thrown on the Government of India owing to the war, it might be necessary for purely administrative reasons to add one or two members to the Council. It is said that, particularly in the case of Sir M. Zafrullah, it may be considered desirable to free him from the duties of the Law portfolio and allow him to devote his full time to the Supply Department—particularly in view of the virulent criticism which the latter has had to face for some time. From one point of view it may be true that there is now less work for the Supply Member, for the autonomy granted under the reorganization scheme to the two Directors-General—one of them already removed to Calcutta—relieves the Central Secretariat of a good deal of its old work. On the other hand, there is also the consideration that if the Supply Member has to carry out the assurances he has given in the Central Legislature in reply to criticism from all sides of the House, he should be in a position to control the working of the Department in greater detail, hold frequent meetings of the Standing Committee, and go about the country to keep himself in touch with the business community and industrial interests. It is therefore, possible that the Viceroy may be anxious to have a separate member for the Law portfolio, but then in the long run do not think that Mr. Jayakar will feel tempted to join the Central Government in the present circumstances. So even if there is now instead of "the expansion scheme" what has been called "addition" scheme, it seems hardly likely that Mr. Jayakar will allow himself to be drawn into it.

The Problem

Whatever may be the feeling of equanimity in Mr. Amery's own mind, the reactions in India to recent events have been very different. In its latest comments The Statesman says: "Let us recognize that we have not got the adequate Governments. The existing Central Government does not impress the business community—the general public. It is convicted of lack of vision in the past and not credited with adequate new energy and ruthlessness for the future..... The essential thing is a resolute compact war Government which can mobilize the country's energies, and this is not the time to insist over much on written safeguards for British interests." This may be taken as representing the view of the non-official European community, but what does the young British officer in the Indian Army himself feel over the present situation in India? In a strikingly brilliant article contributed to the Journal of the United Service Institution of India, Lt. J. L. A. Bell says: "There is a spirit over India today which has been gathering force for many years. As a result there are demands for equality of opportunity and even independence..... It will be unfair to him and disastrous to us if we thus blindly traded on his loyalty. Nor is it any use trying to persuade him as is so often attempted that the various political parties of India are evil things which must be distrusted and avoided at all costs. If we expected success that way we should be very presumptuous. There is nothing in the desire for Independence or for Indianization that is fundamentally wrong." His plea is that the facts of the situation should be put in the right way, in the right spirit, so that we may know and understand them correctly. He goes on to say: "Faith is needed in a long war, faith and a conviction that the cause is just and an inner strength to understand the many inevitable calamities. The material classes of India can no longer be segregated from the rest of India and kept as a people apart. Not only is it undesirable but it will eventually prove impossible. They constitute the national army of India and must learn to love their India." The problem as he puts it is to see that we are not "unprepared spiritually to fight a war which may well turn out to be more fierce, more prolonged, more exhausting and more terrible, than anything of which he has ever dreamed."

Turkey's Resolve to Stand by Her Friends

Attitude to the New Order

(By Cable) The Istanbul correspondent of the Evening Standard Cables: "If we are attacked, we shall fight until victory", says M. Atay, Editor of the Ankara news paper Ulus which is considered in Turkey to be the Government organ. "If we are forced to choose between fighting like lions and being driven like sheep," continues M. Atay, we shall not hesitate to give an example of virile courage that will astonish the world. "Weakness or surrender has helped nobody. We shall stand as friends to our friends and enemies to our enemies." Hussein Said Yalcin, writing in the newspaper Yeni Sabah, indicates that Von Palen, the German Ambassador, has proposed that Turkey should join the 'new order' and that Turkey has refused. Calcin asks "What are the advantages of this new order which destroyed Rumania the moment she entered it? The boasted equality within the new order means nothing but equality in slavery."

Chances Of Early Invasion Attempt

Reasons For Present Watchfulness

(By Cable) London The Diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph writes: Careful inquiries show that no special development has been noted on the Continent which could provide bases for the reports current in the last few days that a new threat of invasion must shortly be expected. Earlier in the year there was every reason to anticipate such an attempt, but enemy concentrations were broken up by the R. A. F. and Royal Navy. Constant watchfulness has since been maintained in Britain and is continuing.

From time to time information through neutral sources of some new German move might be interpreted as an indication that a new invasion attempt was in view and such sources have reported that a large scale move may be tried before Christmas. There is however no reliable indication of any imminent attempt.

The special watchfulness at present can be attributed mainly to the fact that Hitler's plans in South-East Europe have been set awry by Mussolini's unsuccessful campaign against Greece.

Mysore's Mineral Wealth

Meeting The Needs Of Mysore Industries

"The total value of minerals mined for the use of Government concerns and other industries in the State and for export was approximately Rs. 3,77,000 and Rs. 3,35,000 respectively. The Mysore Iron and Steel works mined 53,052 tons of iron ore, 892 tons of manganese ore, 3,000 tons of limestone, 1,413 tons of dolomite and 542 tons of Bageshpur kaolin", says the report of the working of the Department of Geology for 1939-40. About 325 square miles of land in the State were geologically surveyed during the year and investigations regarding the possibility of manufacturing sodium bichromate, aluminium sulphate and potassium permanganate from the locally available raw materials were conducted.

Mysore is always ahead in prospecting operations for discovering new sources of hidden wealth in the bowels of the earth. For example, the total number of mining leases, licences and certificates of approval for gold, chromite, manganese, kaolin, copper, mica, slate, soap-stone, etc., current during the year was 151, covering an area of about 59,280 acres. The existence of about 20,000 tons of low grade chromite was discovered 3 1/2 miles from the Byrapur Mine by core-drill prospecting operations. Two mica-bearing pegmatites in the Channarayana taluk were examined and one of them was found to contain some good muscovite sheet mica.

There are about 100,000 tons of high grade kaolin in the Narasimharajapur and Thirthahalli taluks, sufficient to supply the needs of the Mysore Paper Mills for 20 to 25 years; if its quality is found suitable for the manufacture of paper. About 200,000 tons of kankary limestone have been located near Vajra village in the Tumkur District. An area of 100 square miles in the Narasimharajapur and Thirthahalli taluks was surveyed for locating deposits of high grade kaolin, and considerable amount of further development work by mining and prospecting was done. An area of about 900 square miles in Shimoga and Chikmagalur districts was preliminarily examined to ascertain if there is any earth salt occurring there of a suitable quality and of sufficient extent to replace the supplies of common salt used in the several industrial concerns of the State. The survey showed that about 450 tons of salt would be available annually for a few years. Samples have been sent to the Chairman, Mysore Iron and Steel Works, Bhadravati, for chemical analysis.

Again, an area of about 6 square miles in the Hole Narasipur schist belt was examined to study the occurrence and extent of kyanite, staurolite, garnet and other minerals suitable for the manufacture of refractory and abrasive materials and, as stated above, prospecting work was carried out on the more promising of these occurrences. Intensive prospecting work on the kyanite deposits found near Hole Narasipur was conducted and some large patches of kyanite of good quality were located. Its suitability for the manufacture of refractory bricks and electrical porcelain is being tested. Another mineral, staurolite, was also found to occur in large quantities in this area and its use for abrasive purposes is under investigation.

Gandhiji On Sampuran Singh's Conduct

Belief In Non-Volence

A.P. Wardha, Dec. 20.

In the course of a statement Mahatma Gandhi declared that though Sardar Sampuran Singh was fully justified in offering satyagraha, so far permission was granted. Concerning his conduct at trial it was wholly unjustified. Gandhiji adds, Sardar now understands, none can legitimately say that he believes in nonviolence, by way of discipline he realizes the simple truth whatever contents of one's nonviolence either one believes or one does not. Gandhiji says—'I have shown him how obvious the blunder whereinto he betrayed could be repaired. He is considering my suggestion I would therefore ask the public to suspend final judgment about Sardar Sampuran Singh's conduct. Sardarji tells me in the Punjab so far as he knows none believes in nonviolence except as a matter of discipline. If this is true it is a most serious matter. I would advise every such person to withdraw from the field. I could not possibly lead congressmen to success if they don't believe even in the congress fundamental policy or creed except as a measure of discipline.

Thought For The Day

An ounce of mirth is worth a tub of sorrow. —BAXTER.

Daily News

Bangalore City—Dec. 21, 1940.

Ophthalmological Conference

We would invite the attention of our readers to the packed report of the Seventh All India Ophthalmological Conference held yesterday in Bangalore. The Message of His Highness 'the Maharaja to the Conference is full of grace and sympathy to those afflicted with eye diseases. His Highness might have stressed measures for the conservation of sight in the rest of the population.

Dr B K Narayana Rao, the Doyen of medical science and surgery in Mysore, in his well-known speech made a plea for a separate Public Health Ministry. This is a suggestion deserving urgent and sympathetic consideration. We hope, in the wake of the New Reforms in Mysore, a separate Public Health Ministry will be ushered into existence, preferably a non-official, to be in charge of the portfolio. Ample funds should be made over to the ministry. There is no officer creating a new Sir's funds.

His Excellency Lord Dewart made a humorous speech in which he narrated in an interesting manner the eye diseases that flesh is heir to from the cradle to the grave. The President of the conference, a deserving tribute to Sir Mirza Ismail.

Dr. R.P. Ratnakar, President, in his learned address laid right emphasis on research work and medical relief in villages. Throughout his speech he made repeated references to the unity of our country and the duty of our commonman to a proper treatment when he is attacked by diseases. Instead of the patient going to the door of the doctor, he suggests that the doctor should go to the door of the patient.

We fully concur with him in urging that there should be legislation for preventing quacks. Here are his remarks: "These quacks have a special method of their own for enticing people. They have a suave tongue and a convincing tone." Dr. Ratnakar gave an instance of a Hakim, practising in Prince's Street, Bombay. We see such performances almost everyday on the pavements of Bangalore streets, in front of City Market, Chickpet and Indipet. Though it is an amusing sight it is very costly in terms of the ruin of several innocent eyes. Further the quacks, the better it would be to have them and their followers.

Moreover, any time we are glad to see an All India Conference on eye diseases in our State. It is a tribute to the efficiency, power and leadership of the Government of our State.

CASUISTIC DILEMMA

We have heard people devotedly paying conscientious money and some people paying hush money. Conscience money leans more towards honesty whereas hush money is a payment made to silence scandalous instances not wanting of people going the whole way to pay the largest bribe has been in cases of conduct of the superintendents. At the same time we hear stories of getting twelve annas for a half rupee or pocketing more cash where you know that you are not entitled for it. These human incidents are examples for a Casuist's search. Conscience sits as a watch dog but many throw chilly powder on its face to escape the search of conscience. People know that fouling a public convenience, is a matter repugnant to conscience but knowing well they indulge in such "authorised promiscuity". Public conveniences in India are little hells when the same have been kept too little neat things in the West. People permit their kids to foul house fronts. Madras Marina has become the longest stink in the world, because people have lost their conscience. Storm drains become temporary sinks for all and sundry because discretion has lost its value and impudence rules Man's ways. The Casuist has yet to unravel these mysteries of human mind. Spitting on a clean road frequented by pedestrians is a thing repugnant to conscience but has it become a custom?—no Unguarded spitting though intended for the clean street splashes on a building few requiring their presence near a street tap or in a friend's bath room. Spitting with betel juice on a packed road is a familiar sight in our city. People who indulge in this horrible practice forget the misery caused thereby to others. They forget the red marks on his brother's clean shirt. These are things for a Casuist to answer. We hope and trust that a better order of society will emerge out of the past.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The Rt. Hon. V. S. Srinivasa Sastry, in an illuminating article, published in the latest issue of the 'Indian Review' gives a nice autobiography of himself. Speaking of his mother he says "I remember my father often saying to me 'go in and ask that shrew, she knows more than I'."

Speaking about both his parents Mr. Sastry says "My parents pinched themselves hard to keep me at school and college. My father was of the priestly class; but having no regular clientele had to forage far and near for bare subsistence. My mother, born in a secular family, was proud by nature and, as soon as I could understand, used to confide to me her humiliation at the privations which he endured and the insults which he submitted to from the well to do."

This is a nice revelation about the Rt. Hon. Sastry's parents. Does he take after his mother or after his father? Or is he a happy amalgam of "the proud and the humiliated?"

Mr. Sastry looks to me a tragic figure in Indian Politics. He is the very Hamlet of our Indian drama. He is always between the shores of "To be or not to be." He writes "So I shift like a drifting log, between resolution and a paralysis of will." Hamlet was no more and no less than that, but he nursed and nurtured grudge in his bosom which gnawed into his soul. But our Rt. Hon. Sastry has none of that gnawing hatred in his bosom "Charity, the greatest of the great things of life informs his thought and deed. Moderation is still to him, the silken string that runs through all virtues."

"Culture is character" is the latest definition of culture from Dr. Zakir Hussain. What is character? Obviously it is culture. These are indefinables!

How a young man succumbed to the smiles of a woman, how she and her accomplices, furnished with the young man's luggage were recalled in the court of the Railway Magistrate, Lucknow. This is the further detail. Bewitched by her smiles which she gave him, Banwari thought she was in love, with him. When the traveller reached Lucknow the woman desired some sweet and Banwari as obliging as ever went to Chowk to purchase the same. When he returned he found that the 'hourie' and Arjun Singh had vanished together with his luggage.

The poor fellow was "Strut blind and shot with her smile." A nice plot for any short story writers.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL MEETING

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Dec. 18.
Mr. M. Navaneetham Naidu presiding an ordinary meeting of the Mysore City Municipal Council was held this evening.

As the outset Rev. G. W. Sawday said that today's meeting was the last ordinary meeting of the present council and the council would be reconstituted from next month. On former occasions when elections took place generally a large number of sitting councillors used to be returned. But this time the entire council was going out and it was being fully replaced by a new council. The present members, he felt sure, would take the same interest in the city even after they retire from the council. He thanked the President, Vice President and other officers of the council for their kind co-operation.

Messrs T. Krishna Rao, V. Lingappaiah and others also expressed the same sentiments. The President and the vice president thanked the members for their kind references.

A number of government orders were recorded and there was some discussion on the letter from the Law Secretary to Government stating that Government regret that the resolution of the council to the effect that the Municipal Council be allowed to elect its own non-official president cannot be accepted.

Mr. V. Lingappaiah said that the government should be requested to reconsider their decision.

Mr. T. S. Aikhan expressed said that the letter should be merely recorded.

When put to vote 11 members voted in favour of Mr. V. Lingappaiah and only 5 voted in favour of Mr. Aikhan.

The council resolved to name the road leading from the Jubilee Clock Tower Square towards east after late Mr. M. Vardhamaniah.

There was some discussion on the letter from the Law Secretary to Government, stating that Mr. S. Abdul Gani may be continued as the Revenue Officer of the Municipality for a further period of two years.

Many members insisted on the right of council to appoint its own Revenue Officer and suggested that government be requested to reconsider the decision.

Mr. V. Lingappaiah moved that the matter should be sent to government for reconsideration in view of the change of circumstances and that the council reiterate their former resolution in the matter of appointing the Revenue Officer.

It was passed by a majority. The Council considered some other ordinary subjects.

H. H. The Maharaja's Message
Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore opening the Conference, just at the outset read the gracious message of His Highness the Maharaja which runs as follows:-

"I have very great pleasure in welcoming to Bangalore today the considerable body of distinguished scientists who have for their aim and object the relief of the peoples of India from sufferings due to blindness. The extent of blindness in India to-day is a national catastrophe. The means of curing this dire affliction in cases in which it is curable at all have been and are still being developed with great rapidity, and much benefit must result from an annual stock-taking of the progress made in different parts of this great country. More important even than the measures for relieving the afflicted are measures for the conservation of sight in the rest of the population, and my Government welcomes the advice and assistance of the Conference in this important matter. I wish your deliberations Godspeed, and trust that you will also find time to enjoy something of what the State of Mysore and the City of Bangalore have to show you during your visit here."

The Dewan made an interesting speech in which he welcomed the delegates and paid a compliment to them for their spirit of enquiry, research and service. Addressing the delegates the Dewan said:

"The science which you represent is a comparative youngster among the sciences. I am not forgetting the new branch of medicine that has appeared with surprising suddenness—geriatrics—to help oldsters grow older towards maximum longevity. You have great developments to be reported from year to year. I suppose I am right in saying that in India there is an overwhelming mass of clinical material, but, on the other hand, a deficiency in hospitals that are specially equipped for the practice of your science and a deficiency in the number of specialized practitioners. It is all the more necessary that a Society such as yours should exist to encourage research, to spread the knowledge of its findings, and to urge on those responsible for finding the money a continual increase in the facilities given.

Finally the Dewan Shah invited the delegates to find some time to enjoy something of the fruits and security of Mysore.

President's Address
Dr. B. N. Datta, Jari of Calcutta Proposed and Dr. E. R. Srinivasan of Madras seconded, that Dr. R. P. K. R. should preside over the conference.

The President in his valuable address tendered grateful thanks to His Highness the Maharaja, the Government and Sir Mirza Ismail for their kind interest, evinced in the conference. Making a brief review of the progress of the Ophthalmology he laid special stress on development and training of the senses. He said research work is the sheet anchor of any science and for this kind of work men, money and material are required.
Continuing he said—

Research Work
Research work is the sheet anchor of any science and for this kind of work, men, money and material are required. The research worker should have the necessary qualifications and whole hearted devotion and zeal for the work; he should be free from the cares of earning his daily bread; he should have sufficient funds at his disposal to carry on the investigation and lastly he should have the material to work on. There is no dearth of men in India as Sir Jagadish and Sir Raman have abundantly proved. There is plenty of material in our country. The only thing remaining then is funds; and it is here that the State can help in finding out and developing local talent for the advancement of science; every hospital in principal towns should have a well-equipped laboratory, a museum, and a library attached to it.

Besides this, grants and scholarships should be given to promising young men for gaining knowledge and experience in foreign countries.

Medical Relief in Villages
Our country is extremely poor, the vast majority of people are uneducated, superstitious.
They have neither the means nor the time to undertake long journeys to distant towns for treatment, and hence the number of blind and semi-blind which is variously estimated (I put it down to half a crore) goes on increasing daily, which is a great cause of misery to the poor people and economic drain on the country.

To remedy this state of affairs itinerant ophthalmic surgeons should be employed by the state. These doctors should go from place to place in each district, making small towns as their head-quarters to which patients from surrounding villages can go for treatment.
Pamphlets printed in various languages prevalent in that particular part of the country, giving instructions to the people for the prevention of disease and cure of common ailments should be widely distributed.

He made a plea for teaching of Ophthalmology and legislation for preventing quacks from practising Ophthalmology.

With a vote of thanks by Dr.
P. Krishna Rao and National Anthem, the morning's function concluded.

To-day's War Digest

Tangiers
The Spanish Government have since January disregarded the trust imposed on them to respect the International administration at Tangiers. They have assumed all services hitherto dependent on the International colony.
This high handed action on the part of Spain has provoked British Foreign Office experts.
Our readers will recall that following the promulgation of a law on December 1st Britain was assured that the collective and individual rights of British subjects in Tangiers would be safeguarded. But the latest twist in Spain's policy has naturally provoked the British who take a very grave view of the happenings in Tangiers. Mr. Noel Baker demanded in the House that as a reprisal to the shame-faced Spanish act at Tangiers the oil that is still being allowed to reach that country might be stopped. Mr. Butler in answer to this question replied that everything will be borne in mind. So the Tangier drama continues much to the indignation of Britain.

Abyssinia
News from Abyssinia is scarce but we hear the heartening news that the revolt against Italians is spreading everywhere. The British Govt. have promised freedom to Abyssinia and are ready to extend all possible military assistance to fight the invading enemy. The reverses in the Western Desert have instilled hopes in the Abyssinians to fight the desperate enemy who has snatched their freedom. The Abyssinians are a war-like race and to fight them in that rugged country is no mean task. We wish all success to Abyssinians.

The R. A. F.
The R. A. F. are penetrating into the far corners of Nazi Germany to belie the boasts of the Nazi chiefs that no enemy bomber would ever dare fly over their "sacred" territory. The British raids have created untold havoc in Germany and the fact that 850,000 children have been evacuated from the Berlin capital is a sure sign of Nazi panic. The nitric acid factories at Mannheim have been the target of direct hits and large fires were started everywhere which could be seen still burning. Milan in Italy was again bombed.

Nazi Troop Movements
There is a significant American press report that German Troops are pouring through the Brenner Pass into Italy and are embarking in transports at Trieste. These troop movements open up important military problems. If these reports are true it is certainly a serious blow to Mussolini's personal position as well as to the prestige of the Fascist party.
There is every prospect of Nazis seizing control over Italy. It would be a hard task indeed to get rid of these unwelcome
Nazi visitors. If Naples is occu-

Br. Owned and Indian Owned Shipping

"NO DISCRIMINATION"

PRESS COMMUNIQUE

New Delhi, Dec. 19

Detailed refutation of charge of discrimination of Government control of British owned and Indian owned shipping companies is contained in a press communique issued today. The communique says Government of India noticed in the press statements of policy which are being issued for them regarding control of Indian registered shipping is discriminatory against ships registered in India and direct contrast with treatment accorded by His Majesty's Government to shipping registered in United Kingdom. These statements show complete misunderstanding of the position and Government's recent.

In the notifications issued by the Government of India in September controlling freight movements of Indian national ships did not restrict ships of certain line which are registered in India but controlled by British interests. This statement is not correct as notifications applied equally to all ships registered in India.

Extent of Control

In view of these statements Government of India consider it advisable to explain the position regarding the extent of control whereunder British and Indian shipping operate. All ships registered in United Kingdom which are operating in the coast and between India and other countries have been requisitioned by His Majesty's Government. The terms of the requisition provide that such ships though they are managed by owners shall be under the complete control of H. M. Government. Many ships requisitioned have been employed continuously in defence and other priority requirements. Such control does not necessitate the taking of advantage of their ordinary trades, but even when necessary, their voyages and destinations are under the Government's control and a profit of such voyages go to the Government.

Ship Owners Conference

It would have been possible for the Government of India to have requisitioned in a similar manner all ships over a certain tonnage registered in British India. But after consultation with ship-owners conference held in Simla in June 1940 Government of India have decided it was unnecessary to impose on ship-owners so extensive a measure of control. It is recognised however that Indian registered ships must take their share of meeting urgent defence requirements. The Government, therefore, have decided that the policy of requisitioning such ships as necessary for defence purposes or urgent priority requirements would meet the needs of the situation and it is not necessary to resort to more stringent control in the form of general requisitioning.

A necessary corollary to adoption of this policy of less stringent control was adequate steps must be taken to ensure owners of Indian registered ships should not take advantage of any possible shortage of shipping to raise freights unreasonably on their normal routes to serious detriment of trade by those routes. Nor could a system of requisitioning ships on the Indian Register as and when necessary be worked if ships would be removed from their normal routes and chartered for special voyages outside these routes without the knowledge and consent of the Government of India. It was therefore explained by the Government of India at the Conference held last June that such control of freights and voyages was necessary.

Notifications in September

Notifications were issued in September by the Government of India merely for the purpose of giving statutory effect to that control. It was however found that the notification restricting freights to those charged on June first resulted in hardship as there have been increases in expenses since those rates were fixed and that notification therefore withdrawn before it became operative. The only control now in force is that for requisitioning Indian Registered

Bangalore City—Dec. 22, 1940.

First English Conference

Professor Amarnatha Jha, Vice-Chancellor, Allahabad University, presiding over the First English Conference held in Lucknow on Dec. 19 delivered a masterly address, unsurpassed in its kind. Prof. Amarnatha Jha is not a stranger to the intelligentsia of Mysore. Only a couple of months ago he delivered the Commemorative Address of the Mysore University, and produced a controversy in the Indian Press, by his unhappy reference to Non-violence as a weapon. Subsequently he made himself clear.

Many of our readers, I am sure, are not aware that he is the son of the great Dr.
 Ganganatha Jha, the most outstanding Sanskrit Scholar. Dr.
 Ganganath was Editor of a great journal, Indian Thought, in the course of which appeared accurate translations of the great Sanskrit works. Prof.
 Anand is himself a great
 He is a Sanskrit scholar.
 He is the most distinguished of the most distinguished products of Allahabad
 University and Muir College, Allahabad. A quarter of a century ago, Ganganath was a stripling in college having topped the University in B.A., and marks in English language and literature. He was a pet of English Professors who fondled him and caressed him with paternal affection.

The beauty of Prof. Amarnath in his fine scholarship coupled with sweet lovable personality. He is an arresting personality not only in bulk of body but in depth of human kindness which suffuses his character like a halo. Nationalistic to the core, patriotic to the brim, he is an idol of Allahabad students.

So much, by way of introducing Professor Amarnath, to our readers. Amarnath is a dear word to the sporting world, for it recalls to our mind the Prince of the Cricket world, century maker Amarnath. Likewise, Professor Amarnath is a dear personality to the young intelligentsia of India.

Professor Amarnath's address runs to nineteen printed pages. We suppose we could publish the whole thing in the 'Daily News'. There is space for books as usual, we remark. At the same, we would like to read, specially, the younger generation to get a copy of the address, and study it thoroughly. It contains pearls. We have read it and enjoyed it. It deserves to be read a many times as possible.

In these days of deshabitation, such an address is a profound contribution to the thought of the day. "At the time when the bomb and the aeroplane are busy destroying, one may not pipe lullabies out of the top windows of the ivory tower." But Prof. Amarnath has done so with success. "The true man of letters, is neither noble nor plebeian, neither infidel nor devotee but one who possesses his soul and is convinced that the more the world changes the more it remains the same thing."

As Professor says, there is growing up at present some prejudice against English. It is no doubt true that English has been of very great value to us. But, it has its limitations. It cannot and ought not to dominate and occupy the position of National Language of India, nor should it stifle the growth of Indian languages to their natural stature. It is true that in pre-Gandhian era, English was the thundering language of politicians and propagandists. Times have changed and English is taking its restricted place in the body politic of India. We are grateful to English and English literature. Shakespeare and Milton will continue to adorn our bookshelves even after the British Raj passes out of India. And so, we need not shed tears at the warning domination of English in India.

Prof. Jha has rightly refuted the contention that Indians are deficient in English. The general run of English educated man in India may not be as proficient as a don of Cambridge or Oxford. But, this is due to the method of teaching. It is not the fault of the Indian brain. Have we not produced masterly speakers and writers in English? Professor Jha makes prominent mention of several illustrious Indians and freely quotes from their works, to show that they are not a whit behind their contemporaries born and bred up in England. To mention only a few names from a host, Toru Dutt, Sarojini Naidu, Harindranath Chattopadhyaya, Urbando Ghose, Manomahala Ghose, Rabindranath Tagore, Dr. Seal, Sir Chandavarkar, Maulana Md. Ali, Lord Sinha, M. A. Jinnah, Pandit Malaviya, C. Y. Chintamani, Romesh Dutt, Venkataramani and Sir Radhakrishnan. It is impossible to publish all the names. Who can afford to forget the contribution to English language by Mahatma Gandhi and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru? Speaking of Gandhi's style, Prof. Amarnath says "I think very highly of the style of Mr. Gandhi, when he writes on vexed themes; there is then a simplicity, directness a nobility reminiscent of the English Bible."

On Pandit Jawharlal, Mr. Jh 1928, he writes a firm, nervous and vigorous style with a distinc literary flavour.

el. We pause. In our enthusiasm we have transgressed the limit of space imposed upon us at. There are in the study of English, difficulties of spelling as pronunciation, grammar, and idiom. There is a suggestio of doubtful value "that at every University centre there should be at least one Englishman on the English Staff; he will set before the students a model of pronunciation and intonation; he will be useful for conversation classes with the more advanced students and for the correction and criticism of advanced composition." Coupled with this suggestion, there is a need for the use, retention and encouragement of Indian English. English should be presented in the classes by teachers who approach them from the Indian point of view.

Mr. Jha, "There need be no antagonism between English and our languages."

THE VISION THAT IS DISCREET

Ophthalmologists who have thronged here for their annual carnival are the heaven-born. They deal with human vision, making the blind see or digging out cataracts to enable the unfortunate to look at a beautiful thing. As Sir Mirza Ismail puts it these vision givers "carry men into a sort of heaven on earth." We agree, but ophthalmologists are turned to control visions which turn indiscreet. Vision maladies are many far beyond the reach of these "Docs". Like mental afflictions vision afflictions make Ophthalmic Doctors rub their eyes.

fractious has a cure. Ophthalmia Neonatorum has a remedy, but staring at others has no cure. Looking at somebody rather indiscreetly is a malady, and infection that is growing. Indiscreet staring has not been grouped as a disease in an oculist's clinic. Much can be done in this direction to make visions discreet. We have blue eyes in wealthy, red eyes among sleepless under-dogs, raging eyes in short tempered folk, rapturous eyes in damsels, clogged eyes among sleepy, merciful eyes in the nobility and so on. The variations in these sights are not the work of ophthalmologists, but are Providential. "To love at first sight" is a familiar experience among soft, sunny, young romanticists. Need we say that these are the result of lucky visions. The eye is struck by some beautiful thing and we pine for having it. Failure leads to misery, and success to misadventures. The vision fulfilled is a thing of joy whereas vision unfulfilled is a malady beyond the purview of an ophthalmologist. We recommend these problems for an ophthalmic enthusiast. God has bestowed human eyes in variations as to outwit even an eye expert. Discreet and indiscreet visions, cruel and merciful looks, love lorns as a result of first sights are some of the maladies that await the ophthalmologist's speculum.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The news that is featured in papers to-day is that, relating to Dr. M. R. Jayakar. It is said the Portuguese Government have imposed a ban on his entry into Goa. Alas! So much of ignorance beyond the frontier. Why not Dr. Jayakar shout a slogan and make an entry? It will be not only a fun but a first class copy for newspapers.

Mr. Jayakar is big today. He is Ex-Federal judge Ex the and ex-that. To boot, he is a peace-maker. Unfortunately his peace-making "always goes to pieces. Rarely can a peace-maker succeed.

In the morning of Non-Co-operation movement in 1920-21 Mr. Jayakar was a camp follower of Gandhiji, he soon got disgusted and turned a Swarajist. From a Swarajist he slipped in to the ranks of Indian Liberals. And Sir Sapru hugged and claimed him as a brother of faith.

Somebody spread a rumour that Mr. Jayakar's going to New Delhi was not for peace-movement but for Law Membership. I do not know what it is. Mysterious are the movements of men housed in the Viceregal lodge. But was it not Mr. Jayakar who said only a few days ago, that all would be well soon. Was it an inspiration? Or a dream?

The retiring Councillors of the Bangalore City Municipal Council, have been busily and feverishly busy, of late. They want to see so many things done and accomplished in their time. They have a market-show this morning. They are going to have the bus stand at Kalasipalyam opened in a day or two. From the First of January, they will slow down and show down after all a good lot. Better luck next time!

I make a present of the following from Dr. Ratnaker's presidential address. This is what he says about a quack.

"I have personally witnessed the Modus Operandi of one such Hakim practising in Princess Street, Bombay.

Election Expenses

Maximum Scale Proposed

Under the provisions of Rule 148 of the Legislative Council Rules and Rule 169 of the Representative Assembly Rules, it is proposed to fix the maximum scale of expenditure (including the personal expenses of candidates) which a candidate may incur for his election to the Legislative Council or Representative Assembly at a uniform rate of one anna per registered elector in the constituency subject to the following maxima:—

For constituencies which do not extend beyond one taluk
Rs. 500

For constituencies comprising two or more taluks in the same district Rs. 750

For constituencies comprising two or more districts Rs. 1,000

As a preliminary step he used to collect a large crowd before his shop, on the verandah of which he stood, demonstrating his successful cases to the passers by with gesticulations of the hand. When a crowd had collected which he deemed sufficiently large for the demonstration of his principal operation (couching), he would make the victim of his operation stand on the verandah in full view of the crowd, take a pinch of some white sticky powder and apply it to the cornea of the patient with his unwashed finger. An opaque film immediately forms over the cornea, when knowing fully well that whatever vision the patient had is entirely abrogated, asks him whether he can see his hand moving. When the patient says no, he addresses the crowd and says "You see he is absolutely blind. Now watch me". So saying he pulls out a small knife from the pocket of his waistcoat and quietly opens it unseen by others whom he keeps engaged by his glib talk. While he is talking he puts a speculum in the patient's eye and pluckingly thrusts the point of the concealed knife at the limbus of the cornea and he depresses the lens; the deed is done and he is not slow to show the result of this marvellous operation to the waiting crowd. He gingerly picks up the opaque film from the cornea with a pair of forceps and the patient immediately begins to see. He shows the film to the crowd. He even showed it to me as I was standing close by to watch his technique. 'Here is the wicked cataract which was obstructing the vision of this poor man for so many years.' Then to demonstrate his success he jumps about from half a meter to one meter distance from the patient, puts his hand first on his head, then on his shoulder and lastly on his knee and if the patient cannot tell that, all is well. He is glad, the patient is glad and the crowd is glad."

Provided that in constituencies where the number of voters is less than 1,600 an expenditure up to Rs. 100 shall be permitted.

The above scale is published for the information of all those whom it may concern and objections or comments, if any, on the above may be sent to the Secretary to Government, L. Department, so as to reach him on or before the 27th of December 1940.

BANGALORE CITY MARKET SHOW

MR. N. MADHAVA RAO'S OPENING ADDRESS

Advantages of such Exhibitions

Bangalore, Dec. 21.

Under the auspices of the Bangalore City Municipality the City Market Show was held this morning. Rajamantraprasada N. Madhava Rao, First member of Council opened the show.

Dr. M. Royan, the President of the Bangalore City Municipality Council made a welcome speech.

Afterwards Mr. M. R. Narayana Iyengar, Municipal councillor and one of the secretaries of the Market Show presented a report.

Mr. Madhava Rao's Speech

Mr. N. Madhava Rao in opening the City Market Show made a nice speech which runs as follows:-

"It gives me very great pleasure to be present here to perform the opening ceremony of the City Market Show.

"This City Municipal Market which contains 1200 stalls is perhaps one of the biggest Municipal Markets in the whole of India. The City Municipality must be congratulated on having arranged this useful Exhibition as an annual function, during the last 3 years. This show serves to remind both producers and consumers of the variety and superior quality of agricultural and horticultural products that Bangalore and its surrounding areas can produce and are producing to meet the needs not only of this city but those of City of Madras and other towns in neighbouring Districts of British India."

Then Mr. Madhava Rao gave a quotation from what a British Officer had reported to Madras Government in 1856 about the climate of Bangalore.

Fruit Cultivation

Mr. Madhava Rao continuing said:-

"There are about 55,700 acres under fruit cultivation in the Mysore State and it is estimated that about another 50,000 acres are under vegetable cultivation, including potatoes and onions. Bangalore accounts for about 50% of total external trade of State in fruits which valued at about Rs. 25 lakhs (including exports and imports.)

"Regarding fresh vegetables, Bangalore accounts for 2/3 of external trade of State. On the other hand, Bananas and Oranges are imported, value of foreign being nearly Rs. 10 lakhs. The State exports yearly about 5,000 railway maunds of vegetables, including Potato and Onion, valued at Rs. 62,000 out of 23 of this is exported to Bangalore. But the acreage under Apples for cultivation has not advanced beyond 100 acres.

Marketing Of Fruits

The Government have under consideration the question of taking active steps to improve the marketing of fruits and vegetables, among other agricultural produce. I am told that more than Rs. 5 lakhs worth of fruit and vegetables are sold by retailers in this market, and by other hawkers elsewhere.

Duties Of Local Bodies

"Some of our local bodies have not yet risen above the idea of regarding markets and fairs exclusively as sources of easy income. Properly conducted Municipal Market show should yield some revenue. But responsibilities in connection with their management do not cease with collection of fees and rents, a business which is sometimes badly neglected. I have even known of cases in which stallholders have been made pawns in the game of Municipal party politics with the result that vested interests grew, arrears accumulated and discipline weakened. The utility of a public market has to be judged by the nature of arrangements made for ensuring the vending of food stuffs under hygienic conditions, by the conveniences provided for shopping public, by the degree of tidiness and orderliness that is enforced, by impartiality in allotment of stalls and strictness in maintaining the discipline by the progressive adoption of regulations calculated to secure fair prices to the primary producer and consumer. The high standard reached in some of these respects should make this market an example to local bodies of some of our mofussil places and as an encouragement to City Municipal Council itself to carry out the various improvements which it has had under consideration.

"Now with great pleasure I declare this exhibition open."

Mr. B. S. Sankarappa Setty, Vice-president of Bangalore City Municipal Council proposed a vote of thanks.

To-day's War Digest

W. Desert

The Italians are in a tight corner in Bardia—that is the news which has emanated from the W. Desert. Though the disappointed Italians are putting up a very strong resistance employing cunningly-laid tank traps, gun emplacements and so on the British are in no way outwitted by these tricks. The fight is raging hard and so far 31,000 Italian prisoners including 1627 officers have been pushed into prison camps. The position of the Italian Army is indeed precarious around Bardia. A defeat is any day imminent. On the Sudan frontier also the British patrols were again active in Kassala and Gallabat areas.

The Italian aerodrome of Benina near Benghazi was the subject of one of the heaviest raids of the war. It is reported that part of an Italian division is retreating from Bardia towards Tobruk.

The Greek Front

News has come that British Battleships passed through the Straits of Otranto and bombarded Valona. It is revealed that nearly one hundred tons of high explosive shells were fired. To bombard Valona is no easy task because it is indeed a daring dash to enter the Adriatic to bombard Valona where Italians are concentrating for their ignominious retreat to Italy. Its significance that not a single Italian naval unit was seen in the Adriatic, an example of Italian defeatist mentality before the might of the Union Jack. It is a matter of sincere congratulation that the British were able to bombard Valona amidst great risks.

Sweden

Sweden has in unmistakable terms condemned the "New Order" in Europe. Prof. Unden the ex-Foreign Minister in a scathing attack on the totalitarian principles has condemned the Hitlerian ventures of a fresh political order in Europe. It is believed that Prof. Unden used the same phraseology as that used in the political manifestations by the Marxist politics. The assertions that Sweden and Norway are bound together by indissoluble ties must provoke Hitler to whose face Prof. Unden's lecture has been a hard slap. Berlin is in a rage so says a report. Why not when it gets a kick for its shamefaced doctrines of a new order.

Italy Fights On Seven Fronts

Fascists' Difficulties At Home

War Effort in C & M Station

The Hon'ble the Resident's Appeal

Mr. J. H. Gaudin, the Hon'ble the British Resident at Madras has made the following appeal:-

"I would like to take this opportunity today, when a statement giving a brief picture of what has been achieved by the people of the Civil and Military Station and the immediate aims of the Association is being published, to convey to all those who have so generously contributed to the War Effort, an expression of my deep gratitude for their support.

The response of the public has been magnificent and the fact that we have been able to provide one fighter aeroplane as well as to give considerable sums for the relief of suffering and distress is a matter for satisfaction.

The needs arising from the war are however, continually increasing and becoming ever more pressing and we who have been spared the horrors and suffering of war must not be satisfied with what has been achieved but redouble our efforts to help to provide the necessities and comforts for those to whom we owe our security.

Among the urgent needs at the present time the provision of funds for the relief of distress caused by air-raids in Great Britain and we are now opening a special fund for this purpose which I am sure will evoke generous and sympathetic support from everybody. We learn also that the Indian Forces are short of Ambulances and so we are also opening a special fund to help to make good the deficiencies. This fund, too, will I am sure make a special appeal to the public. At the same time, as the need for aircraft remains as urgent as ever we have decided to keep the Aeroplane Fund open and perhaps in due course, it will be possible to present another fighter plane.

A constant and regular flow of money into the main account is also required for the provision of hospital comforts for the sick and wounded and amenities for troops in the Field. At present we are spending about Rs. 3,000 per mensem on these purposes alone. Regular monthly subscriptions amount to a little more than Rs. 2,500 and I look confidently to an increase in the number of our regular monthly subscribers.

With these few words I appeal to the Public for ever increasing support of the War Fund Association and in particular the objects for which it is appealing.

Opposition against the Mediterranean war is growing.

An inspired message from Rome gives this excuse for the reverses in Albania. "Italy has to fight on seven fronts."

One is the home front. The six others are Albania, Egypt, the Sudan, the Dodecanese, the Channel and at sea.

As to the internal front, I understand from a reliable source that on the 8th at Turin 1,400 people were arrested for carrying posters "Abbasio I Tedeschi (Down with the Germans)." Underground opposition is increasing in other industrial centres.

Over 200 delegates from various provinces participated in the deliberations were in camera. The object of the conference is to make a plan for ending the political deadlock in India. After reviewing the political situation in the country, the Conference passed a resolution endorsing the decision by the All-India League Radical Congressmen at Meerut. The Meerut decision was "building up a national democratic bloc on the basis of common agreement for the ratification of war efforts effectively conducting a Fascist war." It was further decided that a new party, namely Radical Democrats, Peoples Party, should function as an independent political party in India.

Mr. M. N. Roy who addressed the Conference is reported to have said that a large majority of Congressmen did not believe in the policy followed by Congress at present. But he had no confidence in their ability to place before the country an alternative plan before the Radical Democratic People's Party.

Present Political Situation

Congress President Speaks

Calcutta: Dec. 22. A.P. Significance and implications of Charkha were explained to the Congress by Mahatma Abul Kalam Azad, Congress President, addressing a meeting at Salt Lake Park in the Burrabazar area this afternoon. The meeting was organised by the Burrabazar Charkha Prachar Samiti, who held a spanning demonstration in the park wherein about 150 persons including women participated. Plying of Charkha came within the constructive programme of the Congress, observed the Congress President. He said Charkha was a link between the Constructive and Political programmes of the Congress. Plying of Charkha was the first step towards discipline.

Speaking on the present political situation in the country Mahatma Azad referred to imprisonment of Congress leaders in the various Provinces. He observed that the present movement had commenced from the top because the top had most representative values. Slowly but steadily it would spread to the different Congress organisations and then the four-anna members of the Congress would be asked to participate in it. It would then gain in volume and strength.

Satyagraha in States

Gandhi Advises State Workers

Wardha: Dec. 22. A.P. "Anti-war satyagraha is not to be resorted to in States but people of states if they are strong enough can offer satyagraha on their own responsibility to have local grievances redressed," said Mahatma Gandhi when questioned by a deputation of workers from Mewar and Rajputana and Himachal Pradesh whether satyagraha in States has also been suspended. Asked whether satyagraha will be offered in British Colonies, Gandhi said: "It can be, but I do not advise."

Questioned whether satyagraha could be offered in railway trains, Gandhi replied: "No. This will be of a violent nature. My scheme for offering satyagraha in villages is walking on foot. To the further question whether he could call meetings of municipalities and not say now but after consulting Mahatma Abul Kalam, I may be able to say something."

Fresh Coinage Of Silver Rupees

Safeguard Against Counterfeiting

A.P. New Delhi: Dec. 22.

A Press Communique states: In view of increasing demand for rupee coin consequent on increased trade activities and their absorption in hoards and the fact that rupee notes recently introduced are not entirely convenient or suitable for some rural areas, it has been found necessary to undertake fresh coinage of silver rupees on a large scale. As however it is extremely wasteful to turn out large quantities of rupees of present fineness of 11 12th shahi and 1 12th shahi, it has been decided that the fineness of one half shahi and one half of alloy already adopted for half rupees and quarter rupees should be adopted for new rupees as well. An ordinance has accordingly been promulgated to amend the Indian Coinage Act for the purpose. Incorporated in new design rupees is security edge device which is considered to be virtually an absolute safeguard against counterfeiting and is designed for that purpose. New security edge rupees which will be issued from the mints very shortly will bear date 1940.

Sind Muslim League

Considers Programme in Province

A.P. Karachi: Dec. 22.

The Council of Sind Provincial Muslim League considered and surveyed the entire situation with regard to the organisation of Muslim League in the province both inside and outside the legislature. It was resolved that immediate steps be taken by the Muslim League ministers Premier Bundoo Khan K.B. Khuro, and Sheikh Abdul Majid to form a League party within the Legislative Assembly by the end of January 1941. In the meantime the council appealed to the Muslim League member of the Assembly to join the Muslim League party and establish complete solidarity and unity among Muslims. In order to place the Muslim League on a sound permanent footing all over Sind the Council thought it necessary to provide effective overhead control and command a powerful effective press organ and selection of batches of selfless workers. The Council appointed a committee of seven with Mr. G.M. Syed as Chairman to organise widespread the campaign for formation of League Committees all over Sind to educate the masses with aims and objects of the policy of League.

Appeal to People of India

From Friends in House of Commons

A.P. Bombay: Dec. 24.

The following is the text of a letter to the people of India from friends in the British House of Commons. The letter is signed by the Hon. Sir Herbert Cadogan, Sir Stanley Leese, the Right Hon. Sir Frederick Sykes and Sir John Wardlaw Milne (conservatives); the Right Hon. H. B. Lees-Smith and Sir F. W. Pethwick Lawrence (labour); Sir George Schuster (liberal national), Mr. H. Graham White (liberal) and Mr. Vernon Bartlett (independent).

The letter begins: 'December 23rd. We the undersigned, members from all parties of the British House of Commons desire to send a message to the people of India. We have followed with grave concern reports from India of recent months leading to a deadlock. We are sincerely convinced that this situation is largely the result of a misunderstanding. We feel that such a misunderstanding between Great Britain and India is especially deplorable because we believe the broad aims of our two countries are identical and that the points on which we differ are by no means fundamental, and in these circumstances it would be a tragedy indeed at this critical stage in world history when the way of life of two peoples threatened with destruction that should be anything less than fullest cooperation between the Indian and British peoples at the cause of freedom. Full common-sense on the people on both sides must see that this tragedy is prevented that misunderstandings on superficial matters are brushed aside and the agreement on fundamentals made clear. We feel impelled to make such contribution as we can to create a truer understanding. Therefore, we state in plain language what appear to us to be fundamentals in the British attitude.

1. The British people are irrevocably resolved to give India full political freedom. We feel that the Indian leaders who have not recently ceased to have and do not perhaps sufficiently appreciate how deep is the desire in this country to see India achieve a status equal to that of the other dominions

NEW BROADCASTING STATION

College Students Arrested

A.P. Bhopalpur. Dec. 22.

Mr. Bhadur Singh, Secretary of the District Students Federation, Shivaji College, Jha, Shivacharya, Polkhari, all students of the college, have been arrested following a strike called by the students. Later a meeting was held at the college and the students decided to continue the strike.

A.P. Barpeta.

Mr. Kameshwar Das, Secretary of the Barpeta District Congress, has been arrested following a strike called by the students. Later a meeting was held at the college and the students decided to continue the strike.

The British Government has certain obligations to the Indian people. It is to see that the Indian people are not misled by the propaganda of the Great Britain. It is to see that the Indian people are not misled by the propaganda of the Great Britain.

2. The British people desire that the advance towards Indian political freedom should be made as rapidly as possible. Realities must, however, be faced. Finally, perhaps we may be allowed to state once more what many of us have been urging ever since the war began. The Indian problem cannot today be isolated from what is happening in the rest of the world. The present titanic struggle is decisive in its nature, and it is impossible for Great Britain to remain aloof from the British nation to the end of the war. It is with us that the British nation is at the moment, and it is with us that the British nation is at the moment, and it is with us that the British nation is at the moment.

Mahatma's Christmas Present

Mahatma Gandhi, the Great-est living apostle of Truth and Non-violence has made a Christmas Present to the war-weary world. He has ordered suspension of Satyagraha from the 23rd December to January 5, which happens to be a Sunday. The Great Indian Leader has remained true to his word, and has not embarrassed British Government and Government of India, even to the slightest extent, by his Satyagrahic campaign. Over a thousand patriots have marched to Indian jails with the least amount of noise and buzz. The Government of India have really to admire the silent campaign of anti-war Mahatmas. The Police and the Magistrate all over India have been struck with wonder at the extraordinary observance of Non-violence by Satyagrahis and the all-behaved Magistrates have granted courtesy to the prisoners in the dock. Seth Jammala the dock. Seth Jammala, a true disciple of Mahatma, has written a wonderful statement in the sentencing Magistrate's court. He has said: "I am a non-violent person. I have never handled a gun, rifle or sword. My faith always taught me the way of peace and way of sacrifice". This in essence puts in a nutshell the aim of Gandhiji's movement. India has nothing but goodwill to all nations and peoples of the earth. India is no enemy of Britain, Gandhiji is the greatest friend of Britain living in India to-day. We learn that His Holiness the Pope has sent a cable to Gandhiji thanking him for his noble gesture by suspending civil disobedience for a fortnight during the Christmas season.

Will Col. Amery and Lord Linlithgow appreciate this noble gesture of Gandhiji? Will they, in this intervening period, invite Gandhiji and arrive at a settlement with him on the Indian problem? Or, will they let days slip by, and commence afresh, clapping Satyagrahis into jail from January 5th, 1941? We shall wait and watch.

MARKET SHOW THOUGHTS

Vegetables were exposed at our market place for the benefit of the City's elite. Exposure at a market place is a thing of disdain, though it carries with it the advertisement medium. Merely exposed for quarter of an hour on common saying and the contemptuous glances when the performance is accomplished.

near a market place. Market is both a necessity and an object of disdain. But when City Fathers interest themselves in Market Shows, the elite of the City are attracted towards it. The Bangalore Market Show was purely vegetarian devoid of those mixed grill variety or minced meat with pies sort. The English kitchen-garden products were side by side exposed with Indian vegetables—perfect internationalism at a time when nationalism is running riot. Onions, cabbages, carrots, beet-roots, brussels-sprouts, celery were all in full view, but these were not segregated from those orthodox Indian variety, classed under sweet potatoes, beans, etc. Orthodoxy embraced unorthodoxy and people were heartened as they gazed at the prize varieties of these uncooked edibles. Untouchability in vegetables is a thing of past. The brahmins who were prohibited—in theory—to eat onions have begun to like it under the stress of modern conditions. Though onions are not munched raw, it is relished with a variety of edible forms. Cabbage and cauliflower have crept into orthodox homes, a feat achieved without any legal disability and they are beginning to like it immensely. The Market Show should have done another help for those vegetarians who go without efficient chefs. Various recipes drawn with the help of expert cooks and published both in Kannada and English would have enhanced the selling value of these exhibits. Cabbage gives birth to hundred and odd palatable dishes and a knowledge through detailed recipes was warmly welcome. We trust our City Fathers will bear this in mind. We congratulate those who were responsible for this year's market carnival.

Call it a Skit If You Please

The City Fathers' Picnic (By Journalist)

Our City Fathers after their four years of hard and strenuous work gave a "finale" at Tippagondanahally with a programme that would attract anyone. Milk and honey freely flowed and fortunate few who formed the group of "City Sons" partook the delicious fare. Pressmen were not omitted either by oversight or neglect. Papers were fully represented without political creed or colour and the free and care-free mingling provided the nicest "pep" hitherto experienced. Cross currents of Municipal politics didn't find a place there. Each City Father moved about with hearty cheer. Thorny thoughts of polling-booth propaganda or the nerve-racking slogans of those Gandhi Cap Kids never worried them. Municipal rivalry was absent and it was buried thousand feet deep. Points of order, deferred subjects, unauthorised structure problems, subtle legalities of Municipal Acts never passed through their minds. They were indeed a happy lot.

It was an unexpected happy coincidence that "Vision givers" who are here for their annual carnival were also seen moving near the reservoir musing over indiscreet visions. The mingling of these "strange" beings provided the finest thrill yet experienced. The City's Mayor with his "ultra violet" touch about him found familiar company though ophthalmology is as distant from ultra violet ray as earth to sun. There are two or three "Dols" among our City Fathers including one who deals in Ayurveda.

Our worshipful Mayor was full of "squibs". He compared our city to a "sweet seventeen" damsel and crowned her with Queenship giving a regal touch to our famous city. He created peals of laughter when he made the ophthalmologists love sick by calling our city a fair damsel. Dr. Ratnakar was indeed a match to our Mayor. His repartee was as mirthful as that of A. P. Herbert's. He presumed to be love-lorn and grouped the two eyes to the list of lustful and wittily retorted "Yes, Bangalore by its charms has made us love sick."

Dr. B. K. N. wasn't found wanting. He charged our City Fathers with partiality to the fair-sex by their ever increasing activities of maternity benefit. I fervently hope that the new Mayor would square it up by opening birth control clinics in several divisions of our city.

So the "week end" ended. With the customary cheering they have washed their recent disappointments with a gay picnic. They have given a nice setting to an otherwise dull

A PUFF OF SMOKE

An A. P. message from Calcutta says:—

That All India Muslim Students League would soon give an ultimatum to All India Muslim League to launch a movement by 28th February 1941 for realisation of the object of Pakistan Scheme was announced by Mr. Mahomed Nauman, Founder-Secretary, All India Muslim Students League presiding at the first session of Calcutta Muslim Students Conference. Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin opened the conference.

I am sure Mr. Jinnah will not take this ultimatum lying down. Pakistan has become a handy slogan. Whether it would be shouted or placarded will have to be decided by the conference.

The Principal of Christ Church College, Cawnpore, wrote to the Secretary of the Muslim Students Federation advising them to exercise their free and unrestricted rights as minorities. This was an advice to Muslim Students who struck work, protesting against Pandit Nehru's arrest. Gandhiji has taken up the cudgels against the above Principal saying that his attitude is much worse than the exuberance of students. I do not know what the All India Muslim Students League thinks of the above Principal. I am sure they would vote a statue for him on his advocacy of the rights of the minorities.

News comes from Tiruvannamalai, that the authorities of the Sri Arunachaleswara Devasthanam have prohibited Brahmans from entering the Ardha Mantapam of the temple, next to the Moolasthanam, and thus abolished a hoary privilege enjoyed by Brahmans.

I am glad at this. The Brahmans have been served right. Why do they ban entry of Pan-chamas into temples? I congratulate Lord Arunachaleswara on his awakening a sense of right and wrong in the mind of the temple authorities.

News comes from Lucknow that students of the Science Faculty of the Lucknow University went on strike to protest against the cancellation of leave to Dr. Hussain Zaheer, Reader in Chemistry, who courted arrest by offering Satyagraha.

I congratulate that professor on the sympathy which he has evoked from his students. Other professors, in other colleges might take a leaf from the example of Dr. Zaheer.

Here is a freezing item of news. It is reported from Dholpur that four travellers sheltering in a dilapidated caravanserai were frozen to death in Lakheri. It is said that Eastern Rajaputana is in the grip of a cold wave. Death has its methods, burning and freezing. The Dholpur incident is an illustration of the icy hands of death. My condolence to the family of the deceased.

Dr. N. B. Khare of Nagpur, has joined the ranks of Royists. I congratulate him. I hope he will soon get into the position of Premiership of C. P. No Sirdar will torment him now. Dr. Khare seems to have said in his speech that the British Government should seek the co-operation of those elements who were ready to help in the prosecution of the war. Why not Dr. Khare enrol himself as a recruit to the army raised in India to help the British?

Hydrogen to be Manufactured in India

Production of more Chemicals

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, Dec. 18. Plans have been completed by a private company for the erection of a new plant in India to produce caustic soda, liquid chlorine, bleaching powder and hydrogen in six months' time.

Chief orders and enquiries received by the Department of Supply during the previous fortnight are khaki drill for Australia and East Africa, timber for India and Mid East, ground-sheets for India, seed potatoes for Mid East, sandbags for United Kingdom, and textiles for Mid East, New Zealand, Australia, Iraq and East Africa.

MR. JINNAH'S BIRTHDAY Celebration by Mysore Muslim League

Bangalore, Dec. 22

At an Executive Committee meeting of the Mysore State Muslim League held last night a resolution was passed that December 25th shall be observed as Mr. Jinnah's 64th Birthday, directing that all district and primary leagues should hold meeting on that day and pass resolutions expressing confidence in the 'Great Leader' and praying for his health and long life.

Buddhist Monastic College

H. The Maharaja's Message

Sir Jayatilaka's Devotional Address

Bangalore, Dec. 23. The chanting of mantras and the blowing of Ceylon, the Sir D. B. Jayatilaka, Home Minister, Ceylon laid the foundation stone of the Buddhist Monastic College and Vihar Ashrama last evening, in the presence of the Government.

There was a large gathering of guests, including Sir Muzza Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, Sir M. S. Subbarao, and distinguished ladies and gentlemen of the city.

Justice Chari, welcomed all and presented Sir Jayatilaka to lay the foundation stone of the Ashrama. Amidst mantras he laid the foundation stone. Then Justice Chari welcoming the Buddhist Mission of Ceylon, Bhikkhus said that this organisation had come into being to revive the ancient Buddhist Ashrama, to create cultural contact between men, and to pay reverential homage to the Buddha. Early in 1939, Rev. Dharmaratna, Leader of this Mission, travelled throughout India with a view to starting a Buddhist Centre and found Bangalore suitable for the purpose. Justice Chari thanked the Government of His Highness the Maharaja and Sir M. S. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, for granting the valuable site for the construction of the Buddhist Ashrama.

Then he read the congratulatory messages sent by the Governor of Madras, Lt. Col. Gordon, Sir C. V. Raman, Dewan Bahadur P. Raghavendra Rao, Rajamantpravintra N. Adhava Rao, Sir M. N. Krishna Rao, Mr. Senanaike of Ceylon, and Swamy Thyagishanandaji and many others.

The following gracious message of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore was read by Mr. S. R. Chari:—

"It gives me great pleasure to welcome the Buddhist Mission to Bangalore and I trust that the Vihar and Ashrama that are being founded here may serve as peaceful homes for the votaries of that great religion. Time brings great changes. Two thousand years ago Emperor Asoka sent Mahinda on a Buddhist Mission to Ceylon. Now Ceylon is sending this mission to my State in which, in the words of my late revered uncle 'Some of India's best and noblest have breathed out their lives in intense aspiration, in profound meditation, in the earnest desire for absorption in God.' We live in times, when under a great part of Europe, in the words of Dhammapada, 'the victor breeds enmity; the conquered sleeps in sorrow.' The whole world is suffering from the want of an ethical ideal. We need as the world needed in Buddha's day, new physicians of the soul, who will call men from superstition on the one hand and from materialism on the other, who will unite the old world of thought and the new world of action in a new synthesis, who will lift the veil from darkened hearts of men and imbue us all with a new eagerness, to work for the common good of all humanity. I pray that the Buddha Ashram and those who live in it may play their full part in bringing these ends to pass."

DHARMANANDA'S MESSAGE

Nayaka There (High Priest) has sent the following message:—

"We send our good wishes for the early realisation of the project for which the foundation stone is being laid by the Hon. Sir D. B. Jayatilaka, the President of the Dharmapracaraka Sabha of Ceylon, and also for the complete success of the function. May His Highness the Maharaja and his Ministers and the people of Mysore be happy by the grace of the Triple Gem, the Buddha, the Dhamma, and the Sangha; Planted by the great Teacher, Gautama the Buddha, Himself an Indian, and nurtured by the Indians themselves, the Majestic Tree of Buddhism still flourishes in Ceylon. May you, our brethren in India, too, benefit by its refreshing shade realising that it is your own."

And the same was read by Bhikku N. Dhammaratna.

Sir Jayatilaka's Speech

Sir D. B. Jayatilaka, who presided addressing the gathering said that it was an auspicious occasion and expressed the gratitude of Buddhists to the Mysore Government for the donation of the free site for constructing the Monastic College and Vihar Ashrama and said "This gift is in keeping with the tradition of the Royal family and Ruler who have maintained friendship and sympathy to all. Some years ago, when we went in search of a place for starting an Ashrama, we turned to South India and with the generous help of the Mysore Government, we have taken adequate steps to construct an Ashrama here in Bangalore, which will be of use to all. Our visit to Mysore has been a long cherished dream and that realisation of dream has come true today."

Continuing the Ceylon Minister said "The teachings of the great Master (Buddha) are well known. The modern civilisation destroys itself, and it is time for us to search for some teaching, which may perhaps put a stop to destruction of warfare. It is the teaching of the great master, Buddha 'hatred dies not by hatred but by love' (applause). Proceeding, he once again thanked the Government and Sir Muzza Ismail for the generous help they gave.

EXTENSION OF THE DURATION OF THE L. M. P. COURSE
Academic Council Meeting
(From our correspondent,
Mysore, Dec. 22)

The Extension of the duration of the L.M.P. Course from four years to five years, with a view to giving adequate initial equipment to students admitted to the course, was approved at a meeting of the Academic Council of the Mysore University held yesterday.

The meeting took place in the hall of the University Union and was presided over by Rajakaryavina N. S. Subbarao, Vice-Chancellor.

Dr. C. Krishna Swamy Rao was assigned the faculty of Medicine; and Messrs B. R. Subbarao and H. R. Abdul Majed were assigned the faculty of Arts.

The Council approved the Ordinance respecting the institution of the Masters Degree in Engineering and also the Ordinance relating to the institution of Doctor of Letters, Doctor of Science and Doctor of Engineering.

The Council accepted the text books recommended by the Boards of Studies in English, Kannada, Tamil, Telugu, Pali and Prakrit, Urdu, Persian and Arabic and Hindi.

The conditions of grant for the award of Dwarakabai Vedantam Scholarships to one lady student in the Medical College and one lady student in the Medical School, as also the conditions of grant for the institution of His Highness Sri Mummadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar Gold Medal, were approved by the Council.

There was some discussion on the resolutions passed by the Board of Studies in Medicine and also by the faculty of Medicine.

The Board of Studies in Medicine at its meeting held on the 15th July 1940 resolved that in view of the difficulty felt in imparting instructions to Students of the L. M. P. Classes on account of inadequate Mental equipment, the initial qualification for admission to the L.M.P. Class be raised to pass in the Intermediate Examination in Science.

The faculty of Medicine at its meeting held on the 27th July 1940 resolved that with a view to giving adequate initial equipment to students admitted to the L. M. P. Diploma Course, the duration of the Course be extended to five years, a pass (Eligible for College) in S. S. L. C continuing to be the minimum qualification for admission to the course, and that the Board of Studies in Medicine be requested to draft the curricula of studies for the five years' Course.

Rev. Bhikkhu all spoke on the ideals of Buddhism and the relationship that existed between India and Ceylon from time immemorial.

Mr. Goonevardhana, Member, Ceylon State Council, proposed vote of thanks and the pleasant function terminated.

(According to the present rule candidates who have passed the Mysore Secondary School Leaving Certificate Examination and been declared eligible for College Course of study are eligible for admission. The course of study extends over four years.)

Dr. J. F. Robinson, speaking on the subject and that he would prefer both the resolutions.

It was pointed out by some members that if the minimum qualification was raised to pass in the Intermediate Examination in Science and the Course extended to five years, it would be equal to the M.B.B.S. Course and most of the students then might prefer to go to the Medical College instead of the Medical School.

Mr. M. Sultan Mohiuddin pointed out that the minimum qualification needed for admission to the other diploma courses was a pass in the S.S.L.C., and it would be better to continue the same uniformity for the L. M. P. Diploma Course also.

Information was elicited that the minimum qualification for admission to the L. M. P. Courses conducted by governments in other parts of India was a pass in the S.S.L.C.

The two resolutions were put to vote separately.

14 members voted in favour of raising the minimum qualification for admission to the L.M.P. course from a pass in the S.S.L.C., to a pass in the Intermediate Examination in Science.

19 members supported the extension of the duration of the L.M.P. Course to five years.

The Council considered some other ordinary subjects.

To-day's War Digest

The Bardia Attack

Through the British are harassing the Italian positions in Bardia that has been building up. The British are demanding the defence without the usual separation of the Italian positions. The British are very cold with an icy wind blowing. The British have secured 144 machines in the first 12 days' battle. The British are also busy raiding Castel.

Turkey

Turkey's decision to prolong the State of Siege in Thrace is a misgiving. The author feels that espionage is rampant in some parts of European Turkey and prompt measures to check the spread of it ought to form part of their defence tactics. Ankara reports reveal that there is still a probability of Hitler's Balkan push and all possible precaution should be forthcoming to prevent any menace to the Republic. The population in Thrace is keeping up their spirits and they are least affected by these measures.

U.S.A. and Britain

Berlin is shivering over U.S.A.'s decision to give more time help to Britain. Nazi Foreign office have issued a communique of their view regarding U.S.A.'s gift to England. They say that President Roosevelt's decision to offer help is a matter of portable and no longer tolerable to them. The official view of Nazis coincide with this view in between this dramatic but unique episode of the German charges of openly giving aid to Britain were made against the Embassy Officials in Paris. Mr. Cordell Hull out of diplomatic decency has heeded to the Nazi complaints and they have decided to sack the offending members forthwith. Further disclosures are awaited with keen interest. Herr Hitler feels that U.S.A.'s growing generosity towards Britain must at all costs be stopped before he could think of any 'blitz'. Berlin and Washington are in a state of clash and Japan at the far eastern end cries hurrah for its partner's mighty decision.

The Raids

The R.A.F. deserve to be warmly congratulated on their 37th attack on Berlin. It is reported that the British bombers achieved a great air victory and surpassed in fighting history. British planes circled about house-tops that Nazis could see them. The whole city was covered with snow and German ground defences were as silent as a grave yard. The main Berlin Railway Station was hit and the British Airman were able to see the Jubels. Since the British have secured 3000 attacks on enemy targets—a glorious record worthy of the British.

"THEY ARE ARTIFICIAL Says Prof. H. Kabir

Rajakaryapravina N. S. Subba Rao, Vice-Chancellor was present. Professor W. G. Eagleton, presided.
Referring to the thorny question of Students and Politics, Professor Humayun Kabir said: "We live amidst politics. We live in it. What is wanted today is a slight adjustment between the teachers and the taught. That is absolutely essential in the interests both of Students and the general public at large. Students should be actuated with a spirit of enquiry and give their mind to the current problems of the day with a view to studying them dispassionately."

Thought For The Day

Every evil to which we do not succumb is a benefactor. We gain the strength of the Temptation we resist.

EMERSON

Daily News

Bangalore City—Dec. 25, 1940.

The Appeal of M. P's.

We are glad to invite the attention of our readers to an appeal issued by some members of the House of Commons in India to end political deadlock in this country. We appreciate the motive that has actuated these gentlemen to issue the appeal. We are sure that it would receive the earnest attention of Indian Leaders. But we are constrained to observe that such pious appeals do not go a long way and end only in good wishes. Unless the above distinguished members of the House of Commons, forge a sanction to carry out their ideas into fruition, no progress is possible in this direction.

There is nothing new in the appeal that we have not seen in the utterances of prominent Indian leaders. The appeal concedes the fact that the British Government has certain obligations to the Indian people. But, the appeal also recognises that the British Government has certain obligations to the Indian people. Concern over these obligations is an honorable concern. It is not an Indian demand for maintaining our own power on the principle of "divine right." Does this mean that we should support the Government in making up an agreement of unreasonable demands? But there must be reason in our ideas.

Here comes the rub. It is in other words denying the majority in India their due right of self-determination. Congress has times without number assured the minorities that their rights would be protected, in a far better manner than in a long distant present under the foreign rule. But the British Government has encouraged the minorities to put forth impossible demands and Col. Amery has not used his little finger to curb the Indian idea of Mr. Jinnah. It seems as if the British Government are playing with time with a view to advancing the things to drift further in India.

Regarding Indian Princes, the policy of British Government is to keep them in a state of semi-independence. The British Government has not used its little finger to curb the Indian idea of Mr. Jinnah. It seems as if the British Government are playing with time with a view to advancing the things to drift further in India.

Government in Indian States should be democratised and Government should be responsible to the popularly elected representatives. We do not see how management of treaty obligations gets in.

What is wanted today is a large heart towards India. India is a large country and her own people are not united. She does not want any more to be attached to the coat-tails of Whitehall. India wants freedom, freedom to herself and freedom to others. She has lavishly wished success to Britain in this war. India hates Nazism and hates Imperialism no less. Let the good friends of the House of Commons remember that Mahatma Gandhi is the greatest Saviour of the world today. He wants to rid the world of Nazism, Fascism, Jingoism, Imperialism and other "isms" that infect humanity like plague. Gandhi has pledged himself and has likewise pledged India to install Truth, Non-violence, Peace and Good Will on the throne of Humanity. Our British friends would do well to do all in their power to assist Mahatma Gandhi in the great mission which he has undertaken to discharge.

ENGLISH GETTING CRAZY

The Yankees yonder the Atlantic call heavy and ponderous English as "Blah". Mr. A.P. Herbert the famous comedian satirist calls it "Jungle English", but the more modern English lovers style it as "Bunk". American English-unlike Indian English is short, crisp and inviting. It has a race horse dash vigour in it, cocktail like taste in it. To be more precise, American English is juicy, sweet and tasty. No mid-victorian touch about it. It is said that Indians lack the requisite taste to write jumpy style. We do not want to be accused of inability. Take Karaka, take Mulkraj Anand, take Vijaya Tunga—all have come up to the modern standard of English writing and reading. Short crisp sentences and snappy style is the only style that present day youths require. They have no time to listen to close printed addresses, or 300 minute speeches. Leader writing in newspapers has been reduced to paragraphs. Four word sentence writing is the order of the day. It is said that the London "Daily Express" is a favorite paper of Public School boys. How is that? Because simplicity of contents of the paper are well understood even to Grammar School boys. Verbiage has no value now. Display of vocabulary is a matter of disdain. It is enough if expressions of opinions are couched in simple short words. The Americans have developed a remarkable style of platform speaking. President Roosevelt won his election contests by literary squibs. He should have learned to write simple English in plain matter of fact conversational style, and avoid both Bank and Jungle English.

Our Financial and Trade News

(From Our Financial and Trade Correspondent)

The thoughtful address of Sir M. Visvesvaraya, the other day in the Mysore Chamber of Commerce and the rumour that our Government have entered into agreement with the famous businessman of the commercial metropolis of the Western India Mr. Walchand Hirachand in the starting of an Air Factory in our City have induced us to devote for the benefit of our readers one or two columns a week for discussion of financial and economic matters of topical interest.

In India, there are a few well established journals dealing with current economic subjects. But as a Mysore Publication, it will be our duty first to talk of Mysore Agriculture, Mysore Industries and Mysore Finance and then to include "All India" in our sphere of interest.

Our policy will be dictated by twofold duty: First, a duty to our readers. For them, we have a number of experts willing to help, to interest and instruct. What is to be presented, will be presented in an attractive manner to the general reader who may read of strange industries without the fear of losing his way amidst a mass of technicalities.

Our second duty is the duty we feel we owe to the Industries which will be discussed in our columns. In presenting them, we will do so in a manner which will stimulate and encourage general interest, in the fervent hope that our efforts will find reward by increasing the business of the Industries commented upon. Their problems will also be discussed; again with the hope of reward—the reward being our satisfaction should we see that our efforts have contributed to action by the "Powers that Be" in adjusting difficulties, smoothing raw edges and creating Trade and Industrial Harmony.

In this our Preliminary Preface, we would like to conclude upon a note of optimism and to those who would criticise we turn to support.

We are still the "baby". We want help, instruction and guidance and interested readers, Advertisers and Reviewers will give us their views and tell us their wants, we will take liberally of their best thoughts and grow up to them.

It will be our constant endeavour to serve Trade, Mercantile and Industrial Interests in Mysore and India to the best of our power and ability. We shall not grudge any amount of Labour, however excessive, in stimulating business throughout the Great Area we encompass and we conclude definitely optimistic, that our efforts will find ample reward rich and permanent.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

An esteemed friend of mine in a humorous vein pointed out some printing mistakes in "Daily News." I thanked him. But he least knows how anxious I am to chase out those 'devils'. In spite of my vigilance, they escape my eyes and comfortably get lodged in the columns of the paper.

We newspapermen have suffered much at the hands of these clever "devils". The other day I wrote "I congratulate Mr. Se and So on the completion of his sixtieth year." But alas, when the final form was struck I beheld to my consternation that it is printed as "Sixteenth year". I immediately ordered the machine to be stopped and put in the correction.

At the same time speaking of the mistakes, that we journalists sometimes commit, I am reminded of a friend who was a Sub-Editor in a prominent newspaper office in Madras. He was a leader writer. He would produce his copy with utmost care but he would not be satisfied. He would score out this, score out that and make his copy a despair of compositors. After the proof comes, he would add and subtract. The compositor would grumble, but my friend would soften him and coax him to make the required correction. Once, twice, thrice, four times, the proof would be corrected. The fifth time when the clean proof comes, another addition would be made. The process would not stop at that. After the final form is struck, copies rolled, and handed over to distributors, my friend, after regaling himself with a hot cup of coffee, would see his article again in the paper and proceed homeward, having satisfied himself, that he has done his best. He would sit in the tramcar, unmindful of others nearby, he would continue poring over his article. But alas, there again falls to his eyes a glaring printing error, he would suddenly alight the tramcar, run back to office and proceed to make the correction. But the stern Manager who had to see that the parcels reached the Parcel Office in time would not allow him to meddle with the form on the machine. The poor Sub-Editor would have to go back dissatisfied with his day's performance.

Nazi Plans For Occupation of Italy How Hitler May Reach The Mediterranean

(By cable) London The Times writes in an editorial: For two years past, and more than ever since the war began, Italy has been honeycombed with Nazi agents of every description, known and unknown. The Nazi pre-invasion methods of infiltration and permeation utilised so successfully in the north in Holland have certainly been practised in Italy so that in place of the much canvassed drives against Gibraltar or Constantinople, Hitler may seek to reach the Mediterranean by a

I have not exaggerated. This is the lot of all offices, newspapers, newspaper offices. Our readers would be very kind to us if they do not indulge in harsh criticisms, of the printing mistakes that crop up in our paper in spite of our vigilance.

There are other types of mistakes that appear in newspapers. Sir C. P. Ramaswamy Iyer said that he knew a story of a certain person whose death was reported rushed to the office and complained that he did not mind that they had reported his death but what he objected to was the comment which said "we are glad to be the first to announce that the death of and so had taken place etc." The Editor apologised equivocally and agreed to make correction. The next day the paper came out "we regret to announce that the reported death of so and so is incorrect."

Sir N. N. Sircar, Ex-Law member, Government of India, gave an instance, in which he was himself a victim of a mistake committed by a newspaper. In the year 1902, he was a Member at Bagerhat, when a newspaper published the news of death, expressing regret at the untimely loss of a young promising judicial officer. This was followed by lots of telegrams and letters, from his friends and relations enquiring "Are you dead." Since Sir N. N. Sircar has a lot of humour in him, he enjoyed the news even though his own discomfiture. But he is not Sircars. A few years ago in a Bangalore newspaper was published the news of the suicide of a teacher. The next morning came to that newspaper office an enraged teacher who in all fury threatened the Editor with a suit for damages. The Editor coolly replied "You may go ahead. We are sure of the correctness of our news. The cor nor has given the diet of suicide. If it is not that committed suicide was better, get away." The fact was it was another teacher with the same name and the same initials that committed suicide. It was a strange coincidence. The poor fellow was tormented because he considered it an omen that such an item of news should be attached to his name.

less devious route. If the Italians do not move quickly against the menace within, it is difficult to see from what quarter the initiative can come. They may wake up one morning to find that Italy has become occupied territory and that Mussolini holds the rank and status of a Quisling. In the past few months Hitler has appeared to hesitate between several different gambles. He may yet have made his choice. This is a contingency which chances neither the Italians nor ourselves can afford to neglect. Rarely has the power of one man contributed so much to the humiliation of his country as Mussolini's policy in the humiliation of Italy.

Viceroy's Speech and After

A POLITICAL SURVEY

Our New Delhi Letter

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, Dec. 19.

Confusion worse confounded is in this sad state of political affairs is coming to a close. Even the long looked for address of the Viceroy at Calcutta has not helped to improve matters. In any way it has had the contrary effect, for it has damped the spirits of those who were exerting themselves to make a peace move. Their intention was to obtain from Mahatma Gandhi, Mr. Jinnah and others their irremovable demands and after arriving at an agreed interim scheme for the period of the war, approach the Viceroy for his consent. Now however the whole case has been prejudged by the definite declaration of the Viceroy that it is not possible for His Majesty's Government to go any further than the August proposals and that if the major political parties and communities in the country are able to come to some agreement among themselves he is prepared to give effect to these proposals. As no party in the country is prepared to accept these proposals as adequate or satisfactory, it has naturally raised the question whether there is any scope for any peace efforts under the circumstances. Unless there is recognition from the Government's side that the situation urgently demands something conceived on a bolder and more generous scale than has been hitherto attempted there is indeed little that even such distinguished individuals as Sir T. B. Sapru can do—however anxious they may be to end the deadlock in the country. As they are themselves profoundly dissatisfied with the handling of affairs in the country and cannot honestly look upon the August offer as sufficient to meet the needs of the situation they can hardly consider it worth their while to go to Mahatma Gandhi or Mr. Jinnah and ask them to accept it, for they are bound to meet with the retort, that they should first go to the Viceroy and try to convert him.

Only Loop-hole

It is undoubtedly a depressing state of affairs. As one looks back upon the events of the last twelve months the picture presented is one of a long series of wasted opportunities. And the future as the new year approaches has little to offer. It seems clear that the real difficulty arises from the incorrect appreciation of Indian conditions at White Hall for unless the word comes from the British Cabinet to go forward, the Viceroy is not in a position to do anything. It is not without significance that even the European owned Press in the country has started the cry "Home rule for the tors in war time or that Departments of State cannot be handed over to those who have had no experience of them." The very experience of Mr. Churchill's National Government has been cited to prove that in India also radical reconstruction of the Central Government is necessary to enable it to cope with the new situation created by the war.

Unreasoning Fears

Interest to a marked degree has been taken in the recent statement of Moulana Abul Kalam Azad that if the British Government makes an offer on the lines of the Poona resolution the Congress would give it very serious consideration. This disposes of the objection that even if the British Government is prepared to form a National Government, the Congress would not now consider it. It cannot also be pleaded that unless the Congress and the Muslim League come to an agreement, nothing can be done, for it is clear that unless an offer is made, there will be nothing for the parties to discuss beyond hypothetical positions. What then is the reason for White Hall's hesitancy? One atleast appears to be the unfortunate attitude of a certain section of the European community which instead of considering the larger interests of the country and more particularly the needs of the war situation, has been entertaining all kinds of fears about possible dangers to its own interests. Frightening accounts of what a National Government might do—reduction in salaries, retrenchment, Indianisation, a revolutionary industrial policy to make the country selfsufficient, the raising of a national army and many others frequently urged in the Central Legislature—are reported to have coloured the vision of this section of the European community. It is evident that they do not want to give up their present privileged position in the country and so do not want to see a new Government at the Centre which will be under popular control. One important spokesman of the European community writes in recent issue: "..... and in the middle of a war we would be handing over vital departments of State to persons who not only have had no previous experience but who would be bound by such policies as nonviolence, independence etc." It would not be surprising if men of this way of thinking who cling to their own interests and cannot take a national view of a national problem are partly responsible for White Hall's present policy of inaction. Fortunately there are not also Europeans wanting in this country who refuse to accept "a bureaucratic Government as the most efficient possible war government."

industries. Something is to be done after all for starting an aircraft factory, and a contract has been entered into for the purchase of military aircraft from this company by the Government. The success of this venture however depends upon the speed with which the necessary machinery and technical personnel an obtained from America. A qualified assurance has also been given that the Government of India would use its good offices to assist the promoters of the shipbuilding yard at Vizagapatam, but as this is a matter which is largely within the discretion of the authorities in the United Kingdom, it is too early to state with any confidence how far these efforts will succeed. Lastly as regards the automobile industry the attitude of the Government of India appears to be far from helpful. Instead of helping the promoters to get over the difficulties and start this vital industry as quickly as possible the Government of India point to these very difficulties as a reason for their refusal to treat it as a part of the war effort entitled to all the assistance which it can give.

BANGALORE CITY—WEDNESDAY DECEMBER 25, 1940

"Accused Treated Unfairly"

Says Chief Justice

Bangalore, Dec. 24

"The accused has been treated most unfairly. He was kept in jail as an under-trial prisoner for a scandalously long period. Having had every opportunity to put in evidence, they wished before the committing Magistrate the prosecution attempted to introduce an immense amount of new evidence in the Sessions Court and in the end improperly introduced a considerable amount of surveillance. No consideration appears to have been given to the accused in either of these matters. He was treated as if it mattered nothing how long he was kept in jail as an under-trial prisoner and as if it did not matter whether the case was prosecuted fairly or unfairly. That sort of things we cannot tolerate in the courts of this State."

With these remarks the Chief Justice of the Mysore High Court, sitting in revision, reduced the sentences passed on the accused Mr. K. S. Bhardwaj, to the period of imprisonment already undergone.

It was alleged that Mr. K. S. Bhardwaj while he was manager of a Co-operative Bank in Bangalore, on November 4, 1933 committed criminal breach of trust in respect of Rs. 4,000 of the Bank's money punishable under section 408 I. P.C. and also falsified the Bank's account in respect of that sum punishable under section 477(A) I.P.C. The complaint against him was given after five years, on March 2, 1939 and the police charge sheeted against him before the City Magistrate on March 24, 1939. After a period of trial extending to nine months, during which period 29 adjournments were given and 7 witnesses for the prosecution were examined, the City Magistrate committed the accused to take his trial before the Sessions Judge.

In the Sessions Court, the Public Prosecutor wanted to put 19 additional witnesses out of whom, in the end, 4 gave evidence. The learned Chief Justice in his order observed that, though the law allowed, only in special circumstances could additional witness and fresh documents be introduced in the Sessions stage of trial, and that too without prejudicing the case for the accused.

Ahrar Leader

3 years R. I.

A. P. Lahore, Dec. 23. Ghazi Mohammad Hussain, first Dictator of Majlis Ahrar, who offered satyagraha by addressing a meeting in Badshahi Mosque, Lahore, on Friday last, was sentenced today to three years rigorous imprisonment.

The Assistant Sessions Judge convicted the accused on both the counts and sentenced him to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years for the offence of Criminal breach of trust and for a period of one year for the offence of falsification of accounts; the sentences to run consecutively.

On appeal, the Principal Sessions Judge confirmed the conviction of the accused but ordered that the two sentences to run concurrently.

By the time the trial was over, the accused was an under-trial prisoner for a period of 15 months. Commenting on this, the learned Chief Justice observed "It is indeed a scandalous thing that a prisoner in this State should be kept in jail awaiting his trial for a period of 15 months".

In the end, learned Chief Justice ordered as stated above and the accused was set free.

The Government Advocate appeared for the Government. The accused was unrepresented.

LEGAL

Bangalore, Dec. 24

In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Venkataranga Ayyangar, yesterday, dismissed an appeal preferred by Abdul Sattar (19) against the conviction and sentence of three years rigorous imprisonment on him for an offence of kidnapping under section 366 I.P.C. by the Sessions Judge.

The case for the prosecution was that on the night of April 11, 1940, the accused enticed one Putamma (15) a married girl residing at Tumkur and took her on the bicycle to Gubbi, 12 miles from Tumkur, the same night. He left her at Gubbi and returned to Tumkur by the next morning. On information Police arrested the accused, investigated the case, and charge sheeted against him before the 1st Magistrate Tumkur. The Magistrate after preliminary trial, committed the case to Sessions. The Sessions Judge relying on the evidence adduced (the accused neither offered defence nor cross-examined any prosecution witness) convicted the accused and sentenced him, under section 366, to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of three years.

On appeal against this judgment preferred by the accused, Their Honours found no reason to interfere with the lower court's judgment.

Mr. B. R. Keshavaiyengar appeared for the appellant and the Government Advocate for the Government.

Chengalaraya Reddy inaugurated the Election campaign at Kolar on the 18th instant. The meeting was arranged to be held in a midday opposite the Junction Hall. On the receipt of this order the venue of the meeting was changed. One another obstacle placed in the way of election propaganda was a drastic prohibitory order passed by the District Magistrate, Kolar, under Rule 56 of the Defence of India Rules prohibiting all kinds of meeting assemblies, processions etc., for a period of three months in the entire taluk of Bowringpet. It may be remembered that there are seven elective seats at the legislatures to be filled in that Taluk. The leaders toured in all the taluks and addressed about 30 public meetings and with the help of the loud-speakers, they were able to carry the message of the Congress to thousands of people.

U. P. Muslim League President's Address

A P. Allahabad, Dec. 25
The U. P. Provincial Muslim League Conference opened here this afternoon under the presidency of Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan. A large number of delegates from all over the province attended the Conference. The working committee of the Provincial Muslim League met before the open session and the subjects committee of the conference will meet tonight. The second session will be held tomorrow morning.

The President in his address disapproved the present form of administration through advisers in the seven former Congress Provinces and said that the Congress was responsible for this. Nawab Ismail suggested that there should be fresh election or the Government of India Act should be amended to provide for more representative responsible executive. The Muslim League Legislative parties were excluded from forming coalition ministries, continued Nawab Ismail if they were assured of a working majority in the legislature. Criticising the present satyagraha movement the President said it would be more profitable to try and find synthesis between opposing views of Hindus and Muslims about the future constitution of India. For Pakistan Scheme he said the scheme contemplated a group of Provinces wherein Muslims admittedly were in majority in zones which would be sovereign and units comprising these zones would be autonomous.

Congress President To Punjab

To Study Situation Personally Some Panjab Congressmen's Non-belief in Non-violence

A. P. Calcutta Dec 25
Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, Congress President, is leaving for Lahore, to night in order to study the Congress situation in the Punjab personally. In a press statement, Maulana says, Gandhiji has been informed by post that Punjab Congressmen do not believe in non-violence as the only method of attaining India's independence as is the decree of the Congress. Gandhiji is therefore not allowing offering of satyagraha there except for select persons. He is therefore going there to study the situation personally.

The Indian Problem. Professor A. Berriedale Keith's view.

Dr. A. Berriedale Keith writes to the Editor, "Federal India & Indian States" from Edinburgh under date 12th October 1940 as follows:—

"The essential point at the present day is that, if the Hindus and Muslims could agree on a new constitutional system, they could no doubt secure its acceptance in principle by the British people. But in the way of such a result is the fact that the preponderance in numbers of the Hindus renders the acceptance of democratic responsible government by Muslim leaders suspect. They feel that matters would under responsible government be decided on racial lines, and that Muslims in the majority of the provinces would be unfairly treated, as they assert that actually they have been treated under Congress rule.

"I frankly do not see what the British Government can do to secure acceptance of responsible government by Muslims, if they remain united on this head. As all over the world democracy has been attacked and in most cases with success, it cannot be argued that the principle of majority rule commands such weight that it must be enforced upon India against a very powerful minority which threatens armed resistance. To an outsider it seems as if a due system of safeguards could be devised to protect in all matters connected with their faith, but the Muslims reply that civil matters cannot be separated from religious, and that only a society in which they dominate can be accepted by them for purposes of self government. I fear that it is for Indians to solve the impasse, not for Britain.

"The claim of the States while remaining autocratic in rule to share in a federation of responsible government provinces is a different question. The British insistence on this aspect in the Act of 1935 is difficult to defend, and personally I remain of opinion that a state which retains autocracy should have no right to enter federation. But the whole issue is at present dependent on the much more vital question of finding a Modus vivendi between Hindu and Muslim, and at present the feeling here is that both parties to that dispute are simply intransigent. This conclusion leads naturally to the view that responsible government is unsuited for India, as its basis is compromise and respect for minority rights, which seems to be lacking in Indian political thought.

"The outlook is thus rather depressing, but the onus of finding a solution is in my view Indian, not British. Nothing but disaster could result from British action to enforce the views either of Congress or of the Muslim League. The failure of both to recognise their obligation for the war period to drop internal strife and to aid in the protection of the Empire is to be regretted. It is certain that India would not be left any liberty by Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini.

"With best wishes for the growth of a wiser spirit in India

Thought For The Day

Let not a man trust his victory over his nature too far; for nature will be bared a great time, and yet revive upon the Temptation.

BACON.

Daily News

Bangalore City—Dec. 26, 1940.

Automobile Industry

Sir M. Visvesvaraya has, in a statement issued to the Press, criticised the attitude of Government in India, with regard to Automobile Industry. In the Official Communiqué issued from New Delhi on December 10 to the Government of India make mention of certain difficulties of a special nature in connection with the Automobile Industry. Sir M.V. has convincingly shown that the Government of India have removed the last lingering hope that any support could be expected from them for a project which has been urged upon their attention for the past four years.

In an earlier statement issued by him, Sir M. V. had answered enquiries which were frequently received about the project and explained what progress had been made so far, and what further action or facilities would be needed for an early start. He had clearly stated that the projected Indian factory would from the very commencement be a manufacturing concern and not a merely assembly plant. He also said "if the factory is started now, it will not only be providing trucks for war purposes and for the Indian army within some eight months, but it will also be profiting itself and materially benefiting the country as a war time industry".

In the face of this statement, it is regrettable that Government of India should think it fit to throw cold water upon this project. The soundness of the scheme put forward cannot be challenged. The Government have mentioned so many obstacles with a view to side tracking the National issue of establishing a local industry of the first rank, an industry of great potential value to the country.

Sir M. Visvesvaraya is undaunted. He says—

"The promoters must now depend on help from other sources in persevering with the project they now have two objects in view. One is to be of use in the war, if it should be unfortunately prolonged, and the other is to use the opportunity of starting the industry in war time. A factory started at present will have unusual chances of success. The Government and other the next three or four years replenishing supplies depleted by the war. In that interval the prices in India will be high and foreign competition negligible."

We are all admiration to this indomitable spirit and undying faith of Sir M. Visvesvaraya. We hope and pray that his ambition of setting on foot automobile industry in India would be realised with the aid and co-operation of Indian States Governments, particularly Mysore, and patriotic financiers like Mr. Winkand Hirachand

INDISPOSITIONS AMONG THE GREAT

Indispositions among blue-blooded aristocracy are front-page news. If Roosevelt sneezes on a wet morning, rest cure is at once ordered. If Churchill feels dizzy he is immediately relieved of his duties, to take a well-earned rest. If a Duke or a Duchess catches "flu" Doctors fly about like moths and order confinement to bed. Politicians and Statesmen run the same race. If Gandhi's blood pressure goes up, Wardha-Bombay trunk telephone line finds no leisure. If a Governor's leg is sprained his Private Secretary is harassed by ever-increasing letters, never-ending phone calls and the ubiquitous newspaper reporters.

Mr. H.R. Ekins the talented Rome representative of the American United Press was expelled by Sgr. Mussolini, for being indiscreet. Having got a scent that the Fascist Lord was suffering from heart trouble, he rang his London Office and dictated in baseball slang, "Mr. Big is icksay. His ticker is diving. But don't use No-body is. Every-body has the orystay but we are all laying off because we'd all otgag osseday out of the country cray. And don't query me on it". Mr. Roy Howard the United Press Chief happened to be in the British capital and not knowing that the baseball slang had a meaning, called Mr. Ekins on the phone and asked "How true is that about Muss's heart attack". The Italian officials listened to this and at once Ekins was expelled from Italy. Such things never happen in India.

Greatness has a value especially to news purveyors. It must be the duty of Personal Secretaries to furnish as much information as is possible in such circumstances. "The Hon'ble so and so is indisposed" runs a cryptic report but "How is he indisposed" ask the curious. Pain in a leg is classed under indispositions but a high temperature might also get into that category. One is light and the other serious and newspapers have a right to probe into this privacy.

Correct and authentic information given at the proper time saves untold misery and annoyance especially to the great ones who happen to be in the line of sight. Newspaper publicity is a modern commodity and one who runs the risk of misrepresentation and misquotation

'Be Sportsmen' Justice Singaravelu's Advice

City Middle Schools' Sports Competition

Bangalore Dec. 24.

"Every religion wants its followers to render service to their country and to their fellowmen. To be able to do this you must have a healthy mind and a healthy body. Attain this and serve mankind. You will have peace and happiness." So said Justice T. Singaravelu Mudaliar, B.A., B.L., High Court Judge, Mysore in giving away the prizes to the successful candidates in the literary, sports and athletic competitions held recently. The function came off at 6 P. M. on Monday the 23rd instant at the Tippu Sultan Palace. A large number of students, teachers and parents had assembled.

Mr. Kasturi Raj Chetty's Speech

After invocation the President of the Association Mr. R. Kasturi Raj Chetty B.A., B.L., District Educational Officer, Bangalore introduced the learned president of the day. In doing so he paid a tribute to the sportsman-like qualities of Justice Singaravelu Mudaliar. Even as a student he was the doyen of the cricket team. He has been rendering a great service as the President of the Mysore Cricket Association. It was in the fitness of things that such a lover of sports should "preside on an occasion like this.

Then an interesting programme commencing with orchestral music by the pupils of the girls' Middle School, Malleswaram, and recitations in English, Kannada, Urdu, Sanskrit was gone through.

Secretary's Report

Mr. V. N. Raja Rao B.A., Secretary of the Association then read the report. He said that these competitions had become an annual feature and under the able guidance of its presidents they were becoming more and more popular. As many as 30 Middle Schools and about 1700 pupils participated in the competitions. He deplored the lack of a suitable playground common for all the Middle Schools in the City where they could conduct such competitions. He thanked all those who had rendered help in the successful conducting of these competitions.

It is interesting to learn some details about journalists from themselves. Mr. Pothan Joseph, the celebrated writer of "Over a cup of tea" spoke to a Bezwada audience, that as far as his connection with the "Indian Express" was concerned, it was only about three years, previous to which he had held nearly twenty-five jobs. In a way he was therefore not a "Stable Commodity" for them to expect much more from him.

It is news to me that he had held nearly twenty-five jobs. I know that he was connected with "Bombay Chronicle," and "Hindustan Times." It is in connection with "Hindustan Times" that he established an undisputed reputation as a humour writer. It is difficult to write good humour. Much of that which passes as humour is vulgarity. But Mr. Pothan Joseph's humour is classic and high class.

Mr. Joseph mentioned that he held twenty-five jobs. I have known journalists who have been Secretaries to Government and Private Secretaries to Devans. I am sure Mr. Joseph had not held those jobs. Who knows, Dewanship of some State may be in store for him or Private Secretaryship, failing even that, atleast Publicity Officer-ship.

The life of a journalist in India is a precarious one. The thought of the morrow constantly troubles him. We are hearing a lot now of journalists' Conferences and Associations. Veterans like Mr. Pothan Joseph would be very helpful to such Associations if they should contribute some practical ideas to make journalists "Stable Commodity."

I have read lives of some great journalists. I am inclined to think that to a large extent a journalist is born and to some extent he is made. All cannot be journalists. Some may be very good literary writers, but journalism cannot claim them as its own unless and until they also possess qualities which go to make a journalist. What those qualities are, it is not for me to write now. They should have plenty of commonsense. They should have nose for news. They should be good mixers in society. They should attract and be attractive in their approach to men.

I am inclined to think that a journalist is his own teacher.

If he waits for others to teach him he waits for ever. Great masters of journalism have left their foot prints on the sands of time. Young aspirants would do well to study their lives with devotion and reverence with a view to imbibing something, which suits their own nature and temperament.

From my experience, I can mark who is cut out for journalism and who is not. The late Mr. M. Venkataratnam was a journalist at all his would put young men to test who went to him to learn journalism.

More than anything else, he only can be a journalist who has interest in life and zest in life. Every blood corpuscle would be bubbling in response to the happenings of the world. He would never close his eyes to any event that is passing by Himself not mixed up in the fray, he would be a silent watchful, sympathetic observer. Power of observation is quite essential in a journalist. More than from books he has to gather from life. A journalist is something like a Columbus who would discover a new world of his own and make it subsequently habitable to fellowmen. The highest qualities needed in the highest of life are needed for a journalist. He who has grit and originality is as much needed to the craft of journalism as any other learned and profession in life.

Here is a nice skit from "News Paper World" scene in a newspaper office—
"Once upon a time" was a crisis in a news office. Space and temper time were short. How the vital news to be into the taut and straining paper? "Kill the funny, rang the glad cry, as young and eager and net editor sprang to obey, very shortly from the ed room came a bowl of ang and out rushed that man, habbling wildly, do you think you need he roared at the time. "Didn't I tell you the funny drive?" "Yes, that's what I've done, vered the youth, howled the editor, gone and killed the column!"

given away. The president then congratulated the prize winners. He also congratulated the organisers of these competitions and said that the idea of holding them annually was a happy one. He then stressed the need of having a healthy mind in a healthy body. "The British Nation was a nation of sportsmen. Their success in all walks of life was due to their sportsman-like qualities. At the close of the last Great War the Kaiser confessed that their defeat was due to the fact that the German Nation was not a nation of sportsmen. We must all develop this character to be sportsmen. The most appropriate time to commence this was when you are still boys and girls must have a good outlook. A sportsman appreciates and admires the good qualities of others. He does not know the dark side of things. It is enough if we merely earn. We may be placed very in life, may become successful businessmen. But that is enough. Is that the aim of life? We must service to humanity. We must cultivate a healthy body. do these we are sure peace and happiness." The Secretary then a hearty vote of thank function terminated singing of the National The Scouts maintained discipline throughout

Women in Conference

A Tip in Time

(By-Journalist)

Here is a tip to the good women of India who have decided to gather shortly for their annual Conference. It is impertinent to offer suggestions to the weaker sex, when they are at war with men. The word "equality" has been their slogan. Very well. We grant it and ask in turn their sincere co-operation to evolve a better order of society at least now with out waiting for the raging war to end.

A time has come to stem the tide of juvenile crime in Mysore. I ask my sisters to find time in the midst of their spree to visit the local prison and see for themselves the pitiable sight of young and cherry fellows who are locked up behind the bars for the trait of our slippery society.

Juvenile crimes result more often from disappointments. In a society where man enjoys polygamy children born to first or second wife are made to walk out from their homes to lead a life of misery. The Elizabeth Fry League members who have done pioneering work have recorded cases of step-motherly ill-treatment "Father drunk and lives with step-mother" is the answer of a boy who had no other go except to drift into bad company.

As you walk up and down the prison you meet urchins who have been thrown there for offences committed as a result of their step-motherly treatment. I hear a case where the step-mother refused to pay 2 annas to his step-son for a picture whereas she has paid 4 annas to her own son. The disappointed step-son steals money and has been convicted of theft.

Whose fault is this? If the step-mother is made to enjoy the "comforts" of a jail for a few days she will come to her senses.

The good gathering who transact social business should in all seriousness tackle this problem of polygamy in men. They

Felicitations to Sri Kameswaramma

The members of the Matru Mandali, Vontikoppal, Mysore, held a meeting under the presidency of Mrs. Yashodharamma Dasappa and offered their congratulations to Mrs. Kameswaramma who was recently elected to the Mysore City Municipal Council.

Should original sort of "Sanyasraha" where girls must and should say no when parents attempt to give them away to lustful second marriage man.

It polygamy is rooted out from this society juvenile crime automatically vanishes.

The Conference should use its good offices to move the Government of Mysore to enact a legislation to prevent second and third wedlocks. Mysore should be the torch-bearer of social reforms. If the Conference of women achieve this my sincere thanks to them.

Eire

Eire has taken many precautions to guard its independence. Many highways have been barricaded at important centres and armed guards placed at all strategic points. Anyone who disobeys any military order to halt will be instantly fired at. Motorists have been warned to negotiate the highways with care lest they should meet with nasty accidents. No reasons have been given and all that one can say is that these precautions have become necessary to keep out Fifth Columnists.

Rhineland Raids

The R.A.F. are incessantly dropping bombs over Ludwigshafen and Mannheim. Large fires were started at target areas and heavy explosions were heard everywhere. On Sunday night Mannheim was bombed for the seventh time and reports pouring in from London indicate that very heavy damage has been done to industrial areas around Mannheim which is an important junction on the rail road to France.

New from Badia

The eyes and ears of the world are directed towards Badia which is still in Italian hands. A London report says that there is no reason to believe that its fall is imminent. The British forces in Libya are playing a waiting game. Apart from intermittent swelling there is no news from Bardia. So far 35,000 Italian prisoners including 1,704 officers have been evacuated from the main Sidi Barrani area. The British artillery is continuing to harass the enemy inside the defences of Bardia. West of Gallabat the British are active.

Bangalore, Dec. 25. The Secondary School Leaving Certificate Supplement examination which was held on November 1940 resulted in a heavy "slaughter" making ninety per cent college aspirants to turn back with dismay. Of 704 students actually entered the sacred precincts of the college and the rest were declared as wanting. 323 boys have undergone this hurdle thrice. Still the college gates remain closed to them. One boy attempted to secure the college entry eleven times and he was turned back in the tragedy of our present day education.

This enormous list of "plucked" reflects a sorry state of affairs in the mode of conducting written examinations. To declare only ten per cent results in a public examination, does it speak well of a system? Out of the 323 boys who appeared thrice not one of them have passed and their lot is pitiable.

The old system lies buried and there is no chance for these boys to try again. Thrice plucked is as good as ever plucked; that is the verdict of the authorities. This historic episode should be thoroughly investigated.

ving his best to confine his talks to commercial matters Herr Hitler is forcing the old man to yield to his wishes. The unbending attitude that has been displayed by Marshal Petain far tend to show that he is averse to involve France in open hostilities with Nazi enemies. If worse comes to worst Petain will resign his post and will align himself with former allies. The Vichy men are incapable of permitting anything contrary to French honour. Even if Petain's refusal reacts against the interests of the 20 lakhs of French war prisoners in Germany. The situation in Vichy so far is confusing. Marshal Petain has refused to yield his hold on Syria.

MYSORE STATE WOMEN'S CONFERENCE

INDUSTRIAL AND ART EXHIBITIONS

Mr. N. MADHAVA RAO OPENS

Bangalore, Dec. 26
The Industrial and Arts Exhibition organised by the Mysore State Women's Conference was declared open this evening by Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao, First Member of Council.

There was a large gathering of distinguished women from all India, including Mrs. Rameswari Nehru, Rajakumari Amritkaur, Lady Rama Rao, Begum Hamid Ali, Mrs. Janakibai, Dr. & Mrs. Cousins, Mrs. Jarabai, Mrs. Rustomji Farnandi, Mrs. Tayabji, Miss Renu Roy, Mrs. Ellia Tarubo, Mrs. Rajen Nehru, Mrs. Lakshmi Menon, Mrs. Josna Mehta, Mrs. Urmila Mehta, Mrs. Vinayadhar, Mrs. Aishyababai, Mrs. N. Madhava Rao, Mrs. Mandyam, and other ladies. Mr. Humayun Mirza, Mr. Eric D'Costa, and other distinguished gentlemen were present.

Mrs. Deva Rao Shivaram's Address
Mrs. Deva Rao Shivaram in requesting Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao, to open the exhibition, thanked him for having found time to comply with their request. She paid a tribute to the noble work that was carried on year by year by All India Women's Conference. In passing, she made a reference to the late Maharaja Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur who, in his thirty-eight years of glorious reign had elevated Mysore to its present high position and status. Advertising to the exhibits in the exhibition, she appreciated the good work done by the women folk especially of the younger generation.

Dr. Cousins
Then Dr. Cousins speaking on exhibitions said that Mysore is a home of exhibition. In 1919 the first exhibition was held in Mysore when Sir Rabindranath Tagore attended it. In 1924 another great exhibition was organised in Mysore. Even now there is a permanent exhibition in Jagannatha Palace in Mysore. He laid stress on the necessity of encouraging indigenous products.

Mr. N. Madhava Rao's Speech
Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao in declaring open the exhibition said: Last week I was privileged to open the Bangalore City Market Show. Today I have been called upon to inaugurate the Industrial and Arts Exhibition organised by the Mysore State Women's Conference. In both cases it strikes me that my participation in these functions is something in the eternal unfitness of things.

The Market Show was an occasion for displaying, among other things, the best that Bangalore and its surrounding areas can produce in the way of fruits, vegetables and flowers. These, if I may say so, without offence, are peculiarly within the Women's sphere and I feel that in the future the Market Shows in Bangalore should be organised by women. They know, more than any man can, the quality of vegetables and flowers. Some of them are walking price lists and encyclopaedias of shopping information and knowing the technique of higgling and can successfully strive to eliminate it from our public markets.

It is again in the unfitness of things that the Dewan, Sir Mirza M. Ismail, who was to have opened this exhibition should be unable to come here. Had he been present, he would have spoken to you words of encouragement and advice which might have been of tangible help to you in carving out for yourselves a sphere of usefulness in the industrial development of the State which he is tirelessly and in so many different directions, trying to promote.

Cottage and Home Industries

I must confess that I had some doubts, which have not yet been fully cleared, as to the exact nature of this exhibition. Side by side with the usual stock in trade of display and a museum material, I expected to find (and I am sure I shall not be disappointed) samples of products of Cottage and home industries. I was hoping also that demonstrations would be arranged in respect of the graceful occupations of leisure life, such as table decorations and hand knitting, along with the more prosaic activities of the home, such as cooking and washing. It is understood, however, that for want of time and other reasons, adequate arrangements could not be made to feature distinctively feminine interests and capabilities at this exhibition. All I can say is better luck next time.

Women's Part in Industrial

Regeneration

Mrs. Deva Rao Shivaram has in her speech dealt generally with the question of industrial progress and she spoke with a wealth of detail and breadth of outlook that cannot adequately be done in a short article. At this rate, I am afraid not only will men be deprived, though most willingly, of the honour of inaugurating Market Shows and Exhibitions but even the coveted presidencies of trade associations and chambers may be lost to them.

No one can deny that there is a great deal of scope for constructive work for both men and women, in the industrial and even more so in the economic development of the country. With the mechanisation of agriculture and growth of heavy industries the home, cottage and minor industries such as agriculture, market gardening, bee-keeping, pottery, tailoring, etc., will become, more and more the exclusive field of women workers.

Home Industries Classes

"A sum of Rs. 8,500 is being allotted every year by the Mysore Government for home industries classes. But it is doubtful if the present system of distributing the amount to various associations working independently does not lead to wastefulness and duplication of effort. The question of establishing a Central Institute where women could be given competent instruction in several industries suited to their aptitudes and where arrangements could be made for marketing the products is receiving the consideration of Government."

"Another interesting experiment that is being made is to encourage women to make porcelain ware in their own homes. The necessary body material and moulds are supplied to them by the Porcelain Factory, which pays for the moulded articles, the finishing and marketing being the concern of the factory. If people take to this system kindly the possibilities of its extension to other light industries so as to add to family incomes without dislocating normal domestic arrangements are indeed great."

Co-operative Societies for Women

"The Committee on co-operation, 1936 observed that 'Societies consisting entirely of women are not many and their number is dwindling while concluding that credit societies exclusively for women are attended with special difficulties, and dangers connected with management, the custody of funds and taking of security etc., the committee thought that separate societies may advantageously be organised for the systematic collection and investment of savings, the carrying on of simple home industries and the purchase and sale of articles produced by women. This is a small but fruitful field of work which I hope will not long remain unexplored.'

A Committee of Women

"We recently read in the news papers that the Government of India were appointing a Committee of women to scrutinise and approve designs for houses to be constructed for Government employees. This was undoubtedly a very wise move. Women spend more time in their homes than men and should have a predominant voice in the designing of houses. But even a greater responsibility devolves on them for creating in their homes an atmosphere in which the younger generation could grow to be hard working, disciplined and industrious.

The Scout Spirit

His Highness the Maharaja made a grand, thought-provoking speech on the occasion of the opening of the Mysore State Scout Rally held yesterday morning at Bangalore. This is the ninth Scout Rally and it is being held at a time when the world is at the grip of a terrible war, consuming Human Civilization and thus of value in it. His Highness the Maharaja's speech, has thus, taken stock of the world situation today. His Highness rightly condemns Fascism and Nazism and desires that we should evolve our own and prepare ourselves adequately to prevent the growth in our country of any such spirit as has reduced Europe to despair. The terrible wars are sure to leave in this world vast numbers of people who are sick and wounded and on persons who have lost all their possessions and their vitality, all their hope. The Scout Spirit can indeed render great help to the distressed world at such a time. As His Highness the Maharaja puts it, the Scout Spirit substitutes for the glorification of war, the glorification of peace and much more than peace, of brotherhood.

We appreciate very much the forward spirit and the progressive outlook of our young Ruler. He has a vision of the future which augurs well for the State. Speaking of the New Order that is to come after the war, he rightly says, "You can only make a New Order when you know something about the people for whom you are making it". This is the right method of approach. Applying this method even to administration, much more can be achieved by human touch than by a cold study of official files. What is wanted is human touch and human sympathy. To quote His Highness the Maharaja again, "We have to put new heart into our people. We should find a new way of life in which they can recover their health, their way of living and their self respect. Above all, we should restore the innate feeling of good which has hitherto preserved the world".

Our young Maharaja has placed a worthy and noble ideal before Scouts in the time that is to come. "Youth must serve".

We are very happy to note that in the last twenty years the Scout Movement in the State has made rapid strides. The membership ship has grown from 577 in 1919 to 13,734 in 1940. During this period nearly 5,000 boys have received the benefit of Scout training. This great progress of the Scout movement, in the past, in the State is a great measure, due to the keen interest evinced in the movement by Their Late Highnesses the Maharaja and the Yuvaraja. His Highness the Late Yuvaraja was the life and soul of the Scout movement in Mysore. His Highness the present Maharaja, thanks to his revered father, has passed through all the stages of an ideal Scout as Chief Cub and later on as Chief Scout. The Bangalore City Scout Council have not exaggerated the qualities of head and heart of the present Maharaja. They say, "Your charming personality. Your kindness, Your simplicity and Your high sense of duty and Your spirit of selfless service will always serve as a shining example to the members of this great organisation".

The happy function that was held yesterday morning, we hope, will serve as a beacon light to the Scout movements in other parts of India.

RABBLE ROUSERS IN POLITICS

Loud speaker gets on the nerves, so too Rabble Rousers in politics. They are a cursed and hated lot. Demagogues make good company and present day politics turn out to be excellent compost for the growth of Rabble Rousers. Simplicity in dress and unimpressiveness in manners are the two fine ingredients of character to make a worthy demagogue. Unpressed trousers and slouchy hats in men are sure roads to leadership in U.S.A. In India third class travelling on the part of a monied man brings him leadership. "Gene" Talmadge of U.S.A. used his suspenders for something besides holding up his pants. He got votes. In the troubled days of French revolution a Frenchman dashed to his window when he heard a mob yelling and then he exclaimed "There go my followers. I must follow them. I am their leader". Rabble rousers are that lot. To denounce an opponent in bitter language is a sure road to success in rabble rousing. Rabble rousers never allow their convictions to stand in their way. They watch which way the crowd is going and then they take the leadership. Demagogues do not require oxonian education. They shun books. "Abuse the opponent in bitter words you get leadership". To say the yankies Publicity campaigns with loud speakers, horns, slogans, placards are all signs of modern political propaganda. Rabble rousing in itself is a delicate art and in democratic surroundings the rousers grow. Modern public opinion requires rabble rousers. President Roosevelt and Wendell Wilkie were not silent. They shouted to win votes. All modern appliances like Radio, loud speakers were used to win votes. If a house winter by his unadulterated methods of rabble rousing can be all highest why not our Bora Bora campaign to the top. Let us see Rabble rousing helps to to a new order. If democracy is to be a reality, publicity campaigns and other rousing should play its course un-hindered.

My Days As a Scout

The Second Bangalore Troop

(By—Journalist)

Scouting reminds me of my good old days when costumes were given free for diligent youths. It was two decades ago and the Malleswaram heights were resplendent with glory by the selfless services of the 2nd Bangalore troop. Mr. N. V. Kalyanapur who is no more was our Scout Master. Banashankari a delightful retreat away from the din and bustle of Bangalore was our favourite rally ground together with Hesarhatta. We were a happy lot with the Khaki uniform on our youthful bodies. The white whistle dangled from our bright leather belts and it was an amusement to compete with our night beat "Cops" by whistling it more often than necessary. The free uniform was our only attraction and many of my compatriots came running to join the troop merely for the shirt knicker and the turban.

We had a club house where, "Be Prepared" was our signal motto. We were made to salute with three fingers. I did it with pleasure. Each month the postman used to bring the scout magazine to our doors. That was the only journal that caught our eyes. It was so popular that to subscribe and get it was considered an honour in the interests of scouting. The yearly diary prized at 6 annas was another attraction.

I continued as a scout for a decade and left it to face the grim realities of life. But my service as a scout has taught me to bear the brunt of a cheerless and suffering life. Fellow-feeling ready service, self respect have been my treasures and these I owe to my scout troop days.

As a scout I have learnt the sense of values. As one who wore the scout badge for a number of years, I am impelled to come to the aid of the needy. Even to-day on occasions of greeting my three right hand fingers remind me of my happy days in that brotherhood.

I still remember the day when a grand rally took place in front of the present Fort High School when suddenly I was taken ill. Those were the days when jutkas were the only available conveyances. Cars were few. I was brought home in a stretcher by two sturdy youths. How awful that sight was? My people thought I was dead and they were ignorant that dead bodies are not carried in stretchers. Think of their dismay. That day was the last of my scouting days. I was prohibited to join lest I should be carried again on those "dirty" stretchers.

Address to H. H. the Maharaja

By the Bangalore City Scout Council

The following is the full text of the address presented by the Bangalore City Scout Council to His Highness Sri Jayachama Raja Wadiyar Bahadur, Maharaja of Mysore.

May it please Your Highness, We, the President and Members of the Bangalore City Scout Council, and the Rally Committee and Scouts of all ranks in Mysore, most respectfully crave leave to offer Your Highness our cordial welcome on the occasion of the Ninth Mysore State Scout Rally. It is a matter of great rejoicing to us that at this Rally of Scouts and Scouters from all parts of the State held in this historic and beautiful City, we have the unique privilege of offering our loyal homage to Your Highness on your first visit to an important function of this kind, and we beg to express our heartfelt gratitude to you for having graciously responded to our humble invitation and honoured us by your august presence. We need hardly say that this will go down as a Red Letter Day in the history of the Scout Movement in Mysore.

Late Maharaja and Yuvaraja

In the passing away of His Highness Sri Krishnaraja Wadiyar Bahadur, our late Patron, and His Highness Sri Kantirava Narasimharaja Wadiyar Bahadur, our late Chief Scout, our Movement has suffered a grievous loss. Their Highnesses had been closely associated with the Boy Scouts of Mysore ever since its inception about twenty-two years ago, and we recall with inexpressible sadness the paternal solicitude, sympathy and patronage graciously vouchsafed to us by them.

It is with feeling of gratification and pride that we beg to bring to Your Highness's notice that the Boy Scout Movement in the State has made steady progress during all these years, a fact which is reflected not only in the growth in its membership from 877 in 1919 to 13,734 in 1940, but also in the many-sided development of its activities. During this period nearly 80,000 boys have had the benefit of Scout Training and have thus been provided with opportunities of developing into better boys and better citizens. The Movement has always kept in view the high ideals of Service enshrined in the words of your illustrious father "We have to fulfil the noble cause of serving boyhood and helping boyhood to serve".

We are deeply grateful to the benign Government of Your Highness for their increased financial assistance, but for which the reorganisation of the Movement and the extension of its useful activities would not have been possible. We are exceedingly thankful to Sir Mirza M. Ismail, who as the Deputy Chief Scout, has rendered invaluable help, not the least of which is the securing for us the elegant building which is now the Home of the Boy Scouts of Mysore, and of the Bangalore Scouts' Councils.

Message Of Scouting

With the object of carrying the message of Scouting into the remotest parts of the State, the work of training Village Officers and other officers, especially of the Revenue and Educational Departments, was undertaken about four years ago. Many Training Camps have been held for this purpose and several hundred of the trained men have been sent into our ranks. A Training Camp has been inaugurated at Doddaballapur, thanks to the grant by Your Highness's Government of a very convenient and extensive site with several buildings thereon, and this is enabling a large number of Scouters to have before to become qualified in advanced Cub and Scout Craft.

To assist District Commissioners, whose work has increased considerably of late, Technical Assistants have been appointed in seven Districts. These officers have been doing Scout Training, both intensive and extensive, in their respective areas.

The success which has attended our efforts is a small measure due to the close co-operation and loyalty which prevail among the official and non-official gentlemen and the voluntary and loyal services of the Scouters. The important role played by Scoutmaster in the training of the boys need not be stressed. In the many words of His Highness the Maharaja, "No praise is high for the Scoutmaster usually hard working, but little leisure, which he has cheerfully devoted to his own training and then to the training of the boys in the way they have formed".

"Born Scout"

It was in October 1927 that Your Highness was initiated into your Chief Cub by your late father, and the members of the Great Brotherhood have cherished towards Your Highness's person, feelings of affection and regard for many years ago at a rally held in his honour. His late Highness the Chief Scout received Your Highness as a "born Scout" and all those who have the privilege of coming into contact with Your Highness realise the appropriateness of this description. Your charming personality, your kindness, your simplicity and your high sense of duty and your spirit of selfless service will always serve as a shining example to the members of the great organisation in the pursuit of the ideals of Brotherhood and Service for which the Movement stands. And the Boy Scouts of Mysore rejoice that one who has been their beloved Chief Cub since his boyhood and later their ideal Chief Scout, is now guiding the destiny not only of this Movement, but also of their many million fellow-citizens, as their gracious Sovereign.

We beg to assure Your Highness of our deep feelings of loyalty and devotion and to thank Your Highness again for your presence here to-day. We request Your Highness to be graciously pleased to declare the Ninth Mysore State Scout Rally open. We fervently pray that the Almighty may shower His choicest blessings on Your Highness and the members of the Royal House.

We beg to remain, Your Highness's most obedient Servants,
The President and Members of the Bangalore City Scout Council, and of the Rally Committee.
Bangalore City,
26th December 1940.

MYSORE STATE SCOUT RALLY

Commissioner, Members of the Rally Committee, Scouts and Scouts, I have the very great pleasure to welcome you all on this important occasion, and especially to include in that welcome all contingents, not only from all parts of the State, but

While there is this period in the life-time of a man when he is specially liable to take and retain impressions, there are similar periods in the life-time of nations when impressions can be created that can never be removed. When conditions are such as to make the poor des-

Fascist Spirit
You will thus see that the fascist spirit and the Scout spirit are at two opposite poles. The fascist spirit in Mussolini's words, "penetrates the will as well as the intelligence. Its principle, a central inspiration of the living human personality in the civil community, descends into the depths and settles in the heart of the man of action as well as the thinker, of the artist as well as of the scientist, of the soul of our soul." And again: "Fascism does not believe either in the possibility of a utility of universal peace or in the possibility of a universal good which brings all human principal tenets of our faith—of God and love and freedom in other countries of the world. The various youth movements are showing a great tendency to associate themselves together in a worldwide like. I hope that we also will be able to do this, so that we can have more contact with the other youth movements in the State. It is the duty and responsibility of the youth movement to point out the important and the dispiriting in matters which we have in our hands. Look upon this as a duty, and let us move on bravely.

H. M. the King Emperor

Sends His People Christmas Message

"I wish all Happy Christmas and Happier New Year"

H. M. the King who is spending Christmas quietly with his family, tonight sent his Christmas message to the Empire and the World on the Second Christmas Day of the War. His Majesty's message was broadcasted from the Palace, London. The King said: "The future of our world depends on the path of victory and with the help of God we shall make our way to justice and peace". The King also spoke of the national unity, born of sacrifice and heroism, and of the way in which battered towns and cities of England and the British people were facing the ordeal of war.

The King stated: In days of peace the feast of Christmas is the time when we all gather together to share joy, comfort and good will. On Christmas Eve, the children's cry and the mother's prayer, and the father's blessing, make it a happy time. But in these days of war, the children's cry is for the father who is away, and the mother's prayer is for the father who is away.

CHILDREN FROM ENGLISH HOMES

There have been many children from English homes who have today been sent to the front. They should be there, for they are the children of the future. They are the children of the future, and they are the children of the future.

Let us be brave. Children of English homes are today in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa. Not only has the motherland of this world been thrown open to the mother country in her hour of need, but peoples of the Empire have eagerly thrown open the doors of their homes to our children that they may be spared from train and danger of modern war. And in the United States, too, where we find so many generous and loyal friends and relations to give us unstinted help, warm-hearted people are keeping and caring for many of our children till the war is over. But how many more children are there who have been moved from their homes to safer quarters? To all of them and about who are separated from their fathers and mothers, to their kind friends and hosts to all who love them and to parents who will be lonely without them, I wish every happiness that Christmas can bring.

THE NEW YEAR

May the New Year carry us towards victory and to happier Christmas when everyone will be at home together in peace to come. This time we are all in the front line and the danger is together, and I know that the older among us are proud that it should be so. Remember this, if war brings its separation it brings new unity; it brings new unity which comes from common perils and common sufferings willingly shared. To our loved ones and to our loved ones, I wish every happiness that Christmas can bring.

TATTERED TOWNS AND CITIES

His Majesty continued: "These are the tattered towns and cities of England and of the British Empire facing their ordeal. I can only say to them all that they may justly be proud of their race and nation. On every side I have seen splendid spirit of good fellowship springing up in adversity, a real desire to share burdens and resources alike. Out of these sufferings there is growing a harmony which we must carry forward into days to come when we have entered to the end and victory is ours."

Then when Christmas days are happy again and good will has come back to the world we must hold fast to the spirit which binds us all together now. We shall need this spirit in each of our own lives, as men and women and shall need it even more among the nations of the world. We must go on thinking less about ourselves and more of one another, for so and so only can we hope to make the world a better place and life a worthier thing. And now we wish you all happy Christmas and happier New Year. We may look forward to the New Year with sober confidence. We have surmounted a grave crisis. We do not underestimate dangers and difficulties which confront us still, but we take courage and comfort from successes which our fighting men and their Allies have won at heavy odds by land, air and sea. Future will be hard but our feet are planted on the path of victory and with the help of God we shall make our way to justice and peace."

Mr. Jinnah's Birthday Felicitations from all over the Country

A P. Allahabad, Dec. 25. At the resumed sitting, of the Provincial Muslim League Conference to night a resolution congratulating Mr. M. A. Jinnah, President of the All-India Muslim League on his 64th birthday today, was passed.

Another resolution adopted at the conference exhorts Muslim League to adopt constructive programme for the economic uplift of the masses and inculcate in them spirit of Islam and political consciousness.

Mr. Jinnah on Sind.

A P. Karachi, Dec. 25. Mr. Jinnah in a statement says during his stay in Karachi he had many opportunities of meeting various people belonging to all communities in Sind to also prominent Muslim and Hindu leaders and he gathered that the Congress, with the support of a small clique behind is determined at any cost and irrespective of consequences to Sind to prevent the Muslim League organising itself as a party within the Legislature and functioning in harmony and co-operation with the Hindus both inside and outside the legislature.

He adds the one aim of the Congress in this province seems particularly to create disruption and disunity among Muslims although a large body of Hindus disapprove of it and in fact are opposed to such manoeuvres. This is unfortunate and what is more it is futile and will not succeed. He is confident that nothing can prevent Muslim League from being organised.

Pentangular Cricket

Bangalore City—Dec. 28, 1940.

All India Women's Conference

Srimati Rameswari Nehru's Presidential Address at the 15th Session of the All India Women's Conference held last evening at Bangalore, is a clarion call to women of this land. Srimati Nehru is a devoted worker in the cause of National and International Unity. As a prominent worker at All India Harijan Sevaka Sangha, she has toured round the country and has seen much of it. To her, Harijan Service is the worship of God, which attains more to a religious nature. By the side of Mahatma Gandhi, day in and day out, Srimati Nehru has been toiling for the uplift of the submerged millions.

The All India Women's Conference has honoured itself by electing Srimati Nehru as its President. This Conference, to-day, completes fourteen years of its useful life. It has done much during these fourteen years. But much more remains yet to be done. The President, in her illuminating address, has made an exhaustive survey of the various fields of activities of the All India Women's Conference and its branches in different parts of India. It is a matter of sincere congratulation that Indian women have been coming to the fore in all walks of life. Their contribution to India's modern progress is great. In the fields of education, social reform, promotion of Home and Cottage Industry, Indian Women have taken prominent parts. In the Political Field, their contribution has been very honourable and significant. Who can forget the services of Srimati Sarojini, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Mrs. Munshi, Mrs. Lakshmi, Mrs. M. S. Subbamma and Mrs. K. S. Mahadevi and others too numerous to mention? Srimati Nehru, in her Presidential Address, rightly touched on the ideal and practice of Non-violence as propounded by Mahatma Gandhi in various spheres of life. As the mouthpiece of the Conference, she declared her unflinching faith in Non-violence. She said: "In the practice of Non-violence in life, Mahatma Gandhi expects more from women than from men. Let us by our conduct and our action make ourselves worthy of it."

The concluding portion of the Presidential Address, however, made a passing reference: "To those of my brothers who do not agree with the policy of the Women's Conference, who are danger in an demand for freedom and sex equality, I say cast off those fears and have trust in us. We shall not fail out, nor lose our balance."

We can assure Srimati Nehru and through her the All India Women's Conference, that none have any fears about the Conference. On the other hand, we deem it the duty of every one to give every support that is in one's power to render, to the Women's Conference. As Srimati Nehru herself says: "There can be no war between the mother and the son, between the father and daughter, Brother and Sister, Husband and Wife, to put it shortly, between man and woman."

We are very happy that the members of All India Women's Conference chose Bangalore as the venue this year, to conduct their annual proceedings. We assure that the members of the All India Women's Conference will carry with them happy recollections of their stay in Bangalore. Lady Mirza (mail, Mrs. Devanar Swamini, Srimati Mandyam and other members of the All Mysore Women's Conference deserve every word of praise for their labour of love, in connection with the All India Women's Conference.

SIPPING FROM THE SAUCERS

The Half-English mentality which pervade our daily actions breathe a spirit of distress. Beiled shirt and stiff collars with a tail coat on adds to the sanctity of English dinner tables. Dhooties and cylinder like panchas are strictly prohibited where society damsels make their appearance. Caste marks are unwanted in a colourful club party. Eating at tables connote civilization, fine manners and well ordered society. Handling the fork with the right hand is cannibal civilization. Using a spoon to cut cutlets is indecent as to invite society's wrath. More so to sip from the saucers. With the "Calorie" tightly preserved it is a distasteful task to sip from the cup wasting valuable time over hot liquids. Sometimes the handle will be absent from the cup's exterior and God forbid the plight to which one is driven. Naturally or unguardedly fine manners run riot and people are forced to sip from the saucers. Sipping from the saucers before and after good society is an offence against taste and Indian Code is silent about possible punishments. It is a familiar sight in many local hotels to sip from the saucers and no warning is given against this customary usage. To spill a liquid all over the table with consequent annoyance to the table-sharer is a daily occurrence in many hotels and errors of taste and good never worry them. In a few spoons and forks are needed to cut the favourite meat but a lesson or a direction is that it is that one needs to be attempting to stem his appetite. Cutlery equipment, the various directions that a good society must follow as we are looking these good instructions. We hope Half-English mentality in our daily lives will be a thing of the morning mist.

PRINCIPLE AND PRACTICE OF NON-VIOLENCE

Bangalore Dec 27
"Non-violence is inbred in an Indian Woman. She carries its impress on soul. In the practice of Non-Violence in life Mahatma Gandhi expects more from women than from men"—said Srimathi Rameswari Nehru as the president of the Fifteenth Session of the All India Women's Conference, held last evening in Bangalore.

Srimati Nehru commencing her address said:—"I wish I could address you in Hindustani to-day. We have been advocating a common language for the country and our organisation has recognised the claims of Hindustani as the lingua franca for India. In a women's assembly of an all India character, Hindustani is the only and the most suitable medium of expression. But, unfortunately, the time for its usage on an occasion like the present has not yet come. I still have to labour through a foreign language to make myself understood."

World Situation.

Referring to the world situation to-day, she said:—"We are meeting at a particularly critical time when gloom envelops the world and our hearts are heavy. Vice has taken hold of men's minds and the demon of violence has assumed a form which is threatening to engulf the whole human race. But the work of the world must go on and we have to be at our post of duty as ordained by Almighty Providence which knows best."

At this time, my thoughts go to sisters in the West as well as in the East who are facing the greatest misfortunes ever known in history. Had it not been for this terrible calamity which has overtaken the world, some of them would have been here with us to-day. I cannot help missing them and regret the circumstances which have caused their absence. I can assure them on behalf of myself and of the Conference that we share their sorrow. The picture of the little children, of the men and women, old and young, who are constantly living under the threat of bombs, whose hearths and homes are broken, whose limbs are mutilated, whose lands are devastated is ever present before our minds and fills us with grief. We cannot forget that those kindred peoples are living with death constantly hovering over their heads. Under the continuous rain of bombs, they know no sleep, no rest, no peace. I can tell them as long as these conditions last, there is no peace and rest for us either. We cannot sit quiet at homes when this terrible fire is raging around us."

Monstrous Sentence on Jawaharlal

Conditions at home are not less gloomy. They affect us as much if not more. We are pledged not to take part in party politics, but as Indians and women, we can not remain indifferent to matters of vital importance to our country. We may or may not agree with civil disobedience, but we cannot be indifferent to the principle of the freedom of pen and speech, for which brave sons and daughters of the nation are being sent behind the prison bars. Our hearts are sore at the imprisonment of these brave men and women of whom any country would be proud. The monstrous sentence of four years' rigorous imprisonment passed on Jawaharlal cannot but bring our hearts with pain. We as women struggling for our own freedom can not help raising our voices against suppression or oppression in all spheres. I pray that wiser counsels may prevail and the impasse may soon be ended.

Our sympathies also go to those small nations of the world who are losing their independence one after another and are being trodden under the iron heel of despotism. Some of them put up brave fights against the onslaught of aggression. They counted no cost too great for the protection of their integrity and independence. They sacrificed freely their lives and money, but nothing availed them and they had to bow down before the superior force of violence. This fact fills us with horror and pain. More than horror and pain, it makes us think and cogitate. It is evident from these happenings that the methods of violence have become obsolete in defence of righteousness. They have lost their potency. They can not protect small nations against the bigger ones possessing superior physical force. Some other means, therefore, must be found to save the smaller peoples from the tyranny of the bigger ones. But to this subject, I shall refer later on.

Proceeding further, she offered felicitations to sisters from Ceylon and referred to Madam Chiang Kai Shek who would have been present here if circumstances permitted.

Fourteen Years' Work

Speaking of the work done by the Conference, Mrs. Nehru said:—"The All-India Women's Conference to-day completes fourteen years of its life. Much cannot be expected during fourteen years as, after all, it is a very short time in the life of a people. But in these abnormal times, when scientific inventions have so accelerated speed that it defies all human calculations, living organisms are keeping pace with the machine. And so the progress of Indian women during this period, even measured according to the present standards, is not disappointing. I remember those days late twenties. We had started agitation on social problems concerning women. Till then, the women's educational and advancement was mainly on either by men or under direction. Women were unfamiliar with these problems and then came the All India basis was a Women's participation in work was rare and there existed hundred women's societies in different parts of the country, there was no co-ordination or co-operation between them. The picture today is different. Amongst well-to-do classes, the use of highly educated women grown enormously. Pardah fast disappearing, the marriage has been emancipated, there is more freedom of movement and larger contacts all round. The eyes of women interested in national affairs is much larger. Women's movement is directed and guided solely by themselves. They are found working in all spheres of life. In the boards, municipalities, education committees, legislatures, in Government cabinets, in national movements, though in small numbers, they are making their contributions creditably. I am not vain enough to attribute all this progress to the Women's Conference. Various forces have been at work. Religious and social reform agencies, political and constructive work of the Congress, contact with the outside world, the spread of education and last but not least the spirit of the times have contributed towards this emancipation. And now we see a new life pulsating through women who are thinking and planning and agitating for the removal of their wrongs. The desire for change, which was far more or less confined to the educated sections of society has gone beyond them and is affecting the comparatively backward classes of women also. The success of the Marwari Women's anti-Pardah Conference, held in Calcutta the other day, initiated and organised by themselves, is an instance in point. The spirit of defiance shown by the zamindari women who came out to organise their procession leading on horse-back, was something to be marvelled at. It is a sign of the times and shows how perceptibly the women's movement is penetrating into and transforming the various strata of society.

Special Contribution

The special contribution of our Conference to the women's movement is the definite shape and colour that it has given to it. It has focussed public attention on women's problems. It has created a machinery for the formulation of authentic views on such question. It has dated and presented women's demands to the public and various authorities. It has steadily succeeded in forcing under its banner a larger number of women.

Sri Chandrasekhara Sastry in his learned presidential address traversed a wide field and offered helpful suggestions for the promotion of Kannada language studies. He said that Kannada literature should be imbued with a national spirit, should be educational in outlook and should be a compendium of all the knowledge.

ber of women than any other all India women's organisation. Its annual sessions bring into contact women workers from all parts of India. It has certainly established a spiritual family relationship between them which in itself is an invaluable gain. It has inculcated in women the habit of toleration of differences of opinion, of appreciating each other's good points of working together. It has given them their first lessons in democracy which, from the success achieved, seems to me more suited to the feminine temperament than to the masculine. The annual conferences held in different branches and sub-branches, particularly in small towns, create a stir amongst women, draw them together, make them think and form opinions on different subjects. This has created a great awakening amongst women.

The expansion of the scope of the conference from merely women's problems to wider questions of human relationships has given it a new life. It is not possible for any organisation, even though it be of women, to live only on making demands for feminine rights. A living organization needs growth and no narrow limits for its self-expression are possible. It was, therefore, a natural evolution of the growing life of our organization. And the wisdom of the decision taken at Delhi is proved by the dignity, self-restraint and the breadth of view of the various war and other topical resolutions passed by our branches and half-yearly and yearly sessions. The war resolutions show how deeply the war has touched the innermost recesses of our hearts. How grieved we are at the ravages perpetrated on humanity in which our people, though not on the front line of suffering, are none the less very much included. Indeed, it would have been tragic if at this juncture we were not allowed to give expression to the agony of our hearts. And something very good and glorious has come out of it. We have unanimously, with one voice, proclaimed our faith in non-violence and declared to the world that we consider it to be the only way to overcome the world evils. Mrs. Gandhi, that these resolutions backed by the strength of true determination, become a living force for the reformation of ourselves and the world.

Untouchability And Communal Unity
Srimati Nehru laying great stress on the problems of Removal of Untouchability and of communal unity said:—

A little contribution made towards the removal of untouchability, a little effort made to bring light and cheer into the dismal life of these victims of our oppression will lift us as individuals and as a nation to a higher level. I invite all sister delegates present here and through them the women of the whole country to make the experiment and test the truth of my assertion.

To Women's Conference has done a considerable amount to bring the women of all communities on a common platform. I am much for the fact that amongst us there are no distinctions of caste or creed. We do not even remember which religion or community we belong to. On the platform of the Conference we are just women serving the cause of women and the motherland.

Cottage Industries

The President then dwelt on the importance of Khadi and cottage industries. She appealed to the members of the Conference to take to daily sacrificial spinning.

Non-Violence

She proceeded to say:

I must now say a few words about non-violence in which we have repeatedly declared our unshaken faith. An Indian women's organisation could do nothing less. Non-violence is inbred in an Indian woman. She carries its impress on her soul. The tradition in which she is brought up, the deprivations she has to go through in life, the sanskars with which she is born or her inherited genius all make her a suitable medium for the expression of non-violence. But that which has been so far latent, has to be made patent. At present an Indian woman's non-violence savours of the nonviolence of the weak and the help less. As such it is worthless. It requires a conscious training to turn it into the nonviolence of the strong, without which it can not acquire the power to resist vice and violence. In the practice of nonviolence in life Mahatma Gandhi, expects more from women than from men. Let us by constant effort at self-purification make ourselves worthy of this trust. The best training centres for nonviolence are our own homes. But a search light has to be turned ever inwards and a constant watch kept on ourselves to make sure that from day to day the boundaries of our family are extending and the mother's heart is constantly getting bigger to bring within its compass the whole of humanity.

Our responsibility is great. We should never forget that lip service to a cause is worse than no service at all. It weakens us as well as the cause. Truth and honesty demand that we practice what we preach. I, therefore, commend it to our members to give serious thought to the way and means of realizing non-violence in their individual lives. I would suggest a serious study of Gandhian literature. The extension of non-violence from the individual to the group, its application to national and international matters is a new experiment with a technique evolved by Gandhiji in the laboratory of his life in which all through he has experimented with truth. It is a glory and a privilege to be born in his time and be his contemporary. We must do all in our power to deserve that privilege.

State of Mysore

In the end I must say how happy I am to be here with you this afternoon. South India and particularly the State of Mysore is like a second home to me, where I spent several happy months a few years ago. I am grateful for the hospitality offered to the Conference by the women of Mysore amongst whom I have several old and beloved friends and whom I am so happy to meet again. I feel grieved that His late Highness the Maharaja Sahib whom I had the privilege of knowing, is no more in this world. But I know that he still lives in the hearts of his subjects where he has made an abiding place for himself.

One Last Word

One last word and I have done. To those of my brothers who do not agree with the policy of the Women's Conference, who see danger in our demand for freedom and sex equality, I say cast off these fears and have trust in us. We shall not fail you nor lose our balance. And even if we do momentarily, I say, to err in freedom is better than to keep straight in slavery. The spectres of disintegration, of disorder, of sex war that haunt some of you occasionally are phantoms of the imagination. There can be no war between the mother and son, between the father and daughter, brother

WOMEN'S CONFERENCE

Lady Mirza Ismail's

Welcome Address

Bangalore Dec. 27.

The following is the full text of the Speech made by Lady Mirza Ismail, President, Mysore State Women's Conference, at the Fifteenth Session of the All-India Women's Conference held in Bangalore.

Sister Delegates, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

It is my most pleasant duty as Chairman of the Reception Committee of the Mysore State Women's Conference which is a constituent of the All-India Women's Conference, to offer hearty welcome to you, the office-bearers of the All-India Women's Conference and the delegates from its constituencies to this its Fifteenth annual session.

We have long hoped that the time would come when it would be possible to have the inspiration of such a Conference in our midst. We know from delegates of our State to previous sessions of other parts of India that such gatherings of earnest and capable women are fruitful in the interchange of experience and in stimulus to extended activity for the betterment of the lives of the women and children of the country. Yet, while we would have desired an earlier session of the Conference in Mysore State, we accept as compensation the fact that the enthusiasm of the Conference for its ideals remains fresh; also that the scope of its interests has widened from education only to the inclusion of everything that concerns women's affairs and the experience of the members has and sister, husband and wife. And if there can be no war between them, there can be none between man and woman. We have no bitterness in our movement. None is likely to come in. All that we want is to establish equity and fairplay between the relation of man and woman as well as man and man. That is the only foundation on which a stable structure of civilized society can be built.

To my co-workers and sister delegates, I want to say this last word that more service is demanded of us, more dedication is called for. Work from where you stand, where destiny has placed you. Do your best to finish with the old world of tyranny and exploitation and lend your helping hand to bring in the new era of peace and goodwill.

deepened not only in passing necessary resolutions but in organizing their application in life according to the needs and traditions of the different groups that make up the vast humanity of India.

Women's Progress in Mysore

Here in Mysore we have done what we could to put into practice the ideals of the All-India women's conference for the welfare of women and children of all grades of society and all shades of belief. Branches of the Mysore State Women's Conference in various parts of the country work for the modification of circumstances that stand in the way of such service. They work for the education of girls, schemes that will help them to become both useful and happy human beings. The success of our work in this respect is evident from the free intelligence of the women of Mysore, whom the delegates will come into contact. I am happy to find that our work for the general advancement of women has the sympathy and help of the authority, and that substantial grants have been made by the Government for the education of girls.

CLEAR VISION

We look forward to an accession of interest in our work and assistance in carrying it as a result of your session in Mysore State. We trust that your presence in this land, with its venerable traditions of high culture and responsibility to the growing needs of human expression and creation, will afford enrichment to the knowledge of the Conference as a whole. From such change between the Conference and its constituencies there will arise a clear vision and a stable and continuous purpose clearing the way for the banishing of the influence of war more fully into the general life of the country. In this way our work will become associated with the work of women all over the world for the attainment of human prosperity, happiness and peace. Today the world is threatened with ruin by circumstances that have been outside the influence of war. Our deepest hope is that the deliberations and activities of this Conference may be directed towards the attainment of both in India and the world at large.

Again I offer you our cordial welcome to our fifteenth annual conference, and that you will away with you happy memories of your visit.

ALL INDIA POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC CONFERENCES

JOINT SESSION IN MYSORE

H. H. THE MAHARAJA'S OPENING ADDRESS

(From our own correspondent)

Mysore, Dec 28

"The task of those who would build a New Order (from which War and Poverty shall be abolished) is two fold. . . They have to enlist the feelings of men and women on their side, to make them willing and eager to adopt their proposals" said H.H. the Maharaja in his opening address at the joint session of the All India Economic and Political Conference.

In the nicely decorated hall of the Jagannathan Palace Mysore, His Highness the Maharaja Sri Jaya Chamaraja Wodeyar declared open this evening the joint session of the 24th annual Conference of the Indian Economic Association and the 3rd annual Conference of the Indian Political Science Association. A very large and distinguished gathering including hundreds of delegates from various parts of India and some of the local prominent ladies and gentlemen was present.

On arrival, at about 4 p.m. His Highness the Maharaja was cordially received by Rajakarya pravina N. S. Subba Rao, Chairman of the Reception Committee and Prof. V. L. D'Souza Local Secretary.

Mr. D. R. Gadgil, President of the Economic Conference and Dr. Beni Prasad, President of the Political Science Conference were introduced to His Highness the Maharaja.

When H. H. the Maharaja entered the hall he was lustily cheered.

H. H. Sri Jaya Chamaraja Wodeyar made an interesting speech declaring open the Conferences.

Dr. B. V. Narayanaswamy Naidu Secretary of the Economic Conference and Mr. Gurmukh Nihal Singh, Secretary of the Political Science Conference proposed votes of thanks.

Mr. D. R. Gadgil and Dr. Beni Prasad then delivered their presidential addresses.

Earlier in the day the delegates held two meetings, one presided over by Mr. D. R. Gadgil and the other by Dr. Beni Prasad.

At the former, discussion took place on "Price Level in India with special reference to Agriculture" and the latter discussion centred on "political theory with special reference to Greek and oriental political thought." Interesting papers were read.

Price level of Tobacco in the Guntur area, the trend of agricultural prices in Mysore during the decennium 1928-1937, price movements of some important agricultural products and the prices of food grains in Madras in the 19th century were the papers discussed at the meeting presided over by Mr. Gadgil.

Critique of Political Science; Was the Hindu State Pluralistic?; Kautilya's conception of Sovereignty; King is the Cause of Time (Raja Kalasya Karanam in interpretation); The Hindu Theory of International Relations as expounded in Kamandaka's Niti Sara; Greek religion and Political thought; the Politics of Plato; Is politics a Science or an Art; Aristotle's natural theory of the origin of the state; Ibn Ibn Rebi a Moslem political thinker of the 9th century A. C.; the social and political ideas of Ibn Khaldun; absence of dissolution in the parliamentary system of the third republic in France; Gandhiji's political philosophy; Is Nazism plutonic? The origin of State according to Bhisma (Mahabharata) and the role of Revolution in social Dynamics were the papers presented at the other meeting presided over by Dr. Beni Prasad.

H.H. the Maharaja's Address

The following is the full text of the speech delivered by His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore on the occasion of the opening of the joint session of the All-India Economic and Political Science Conference held in Mysore:

Welcome to Delegates

I am very glad to be with you today to open this Session of the two important bodies, which are meeting in my Capital. It is a great pleasure to me to welcome to my State and Capital so many distinguished teachers of Economics and Political Science, the twin sciences a correct application of whose principles is so essential to human welfare, and I hope that the few days you will be spending in our midst will be a time of enjoyment as well as of work. I trust that you will utilise the arrangements made for you to visit, not only centres of what I may call professional interest, but also some of our beauty spots, and that you will return to your homes with pleasant recollections of your short stay with us.

The two Associations are holding their annual Sessions at the same place this year, and have decided also to have a joint Session. I need not commend to this body of experts the soundness of the decision, knowing as well as I do how closely related are Economics and Political Science, and how intimate and far-reaching is the influence of economic factors upon the political life of a community and how profoundly political objectives affect, on the other hand, its economic life. Indeed we may even doubt whether, in these days of interpenetration of political and economic objectives, any useful purpose is served by segregation of Economics from Political Science. However that may be, I trust the present Session will fully justify the expectations with which the decision to meet together has been made, and that the innovation will become a permanent feature in the coming years. I am confident that your deliberations, separate and joint, will be friendly, constructive, and helpful in solving the economic and political problems which confront our own country and the world at large.

Terrific Struggle

The affairs of men are sadly and tragically in need of unimpeachable knowledge and wise guidance. A terrific struggle, resembling a zoological war for the survival of the species, is going on, and its outcome will decide whether mankind will resume its slow march up the path of progress, or lapse into an age of science-fed barbarism from which the values of life and the graces of European civilisation will be banished. Those whom the Gods wish to destroy, it is said, they drive mad first. As one hears day after day of endless and senseless destruction of houses, churches, factories, ships, railway yards, harbours and precious human lives, one has much sympathy with Bishop Butler's startling query whether communities might not go mad like individuals.

Present Century

Yet the present century began on a note of hope. The era of European wars seemed to have come to a close with the Franco-Prussian war; differences there might be between the great nations of Europe, particularly on the frontiers of their far-flung empires, but those differences never overflowed the channels of diplomacy. Viscount Haldane could suggest so late as September 1913 that "the barbarism which once looked to conquest and the waging of successful wars as the main object of statesmanship seems as though it were passing away," and that there was "little effective challenge of the broad principle that a nation has, as regards its neighbours, duties as well as rights." Internal political progress kept pace with this improvement in international relationships. There was no serious erosion of the fundamental rights of citizenship, which were embodied in the constitutions of several European countries. Social justice was following closely in the wake of efficiency in production, as was indicated by increased freedom of labour, more schemes of social insurance, and security, and a more equitable distribution of Labour Exchange, Civil Pensions, and Unemployment Insurance.

The Great War

The Great War was indeed a catastrophe, but the League of Nations, which was its outcome, at least gave a form and a local habitation to the dreams and yearnings of centuries, while the sister institution, the International Labour Office, was born of the belief that universal peace could be established only if it was based upon social justice. Even the Great Depression of the early thirties served to emphasise the need for international co-operation if mankind was to realise the promise of science and achieve plenty for all. As a notable tract of the time put it, "Man can then, freed alike from enfeebling impoverishment and harassing anxieties and insecurities, use the resources he now has to give himself both a basis of secure material comfort and adequate leisure." And then the real work of civilisation can at last begin."

Why did the years that followed belie these hopes, and after unhappy and futile efforts to appease those whose appetites increased with every appeasement, fling Western Europe into the witches' cauldron, which seems to be drawing into it slowly but relentlessly the rest of the world?

Hitler and Mussolini

Some may find an answer ready to hand in the powerful play of personality, and consider themselves fortified by Acton's famous dictum that the course of 19th century history had been diverted twenty-five times by actual or attempted crime. Nor can it be denied that the course of events in the last two decades had been markedly affected by the sinister personalities of Hitler and Mussolini. But one must seek for a deeper cause and a fuller explanation of the tragic turn events took in the thirties. The sovereign national state stands forth as the one all-embracing cause of the descent of mankind from the top of golden hours to the tragic depths in which its destiny is being now fought out. The rise of nationalism and its objective embodiment in nation states and national economies no doubt marked a necessary stage in the development of human society, but even at the height of the popularity of nationalism as a cult, which was glorified almost into a religion by Mazzini, Acton sounded a note of warning against the danger of identifying a nation with the State, and prophesied that its course would be marked by material as well as moral ruin. The spirit of nationalism was wholesome as a bond, but became sinister when it placed a barrier between one human group and another. Reinforced by material theories of the absolutism of the nation state, and tainted by race prejudice, the sovereign nation state became a danger to the peace and the prosperity of the world. New nation states came into being, and old ones became developed among peoples under a common race, but at the same time, progress in the technique of production, and changes in the methods and weapons of war, all combined to make national frontiers irrelevant, obstructive, and an anachronism. When the environment demand a removal of national barriers, political and economic, in the interest of national states themselves, the spirit of national exclusiveness became deeper and more widespread. Instead of seeking security in common understanding and common organisation, the national states sought to strengthen themselves by armaments and restrictionism.

Economic Nationalism

In its economic manifestations, nationalism went against the logic of science, and the efforts to establish a common basis of security. The war and the fears of war on the political plane had their counterpart in tariff wars and in numerous devices and measures to get the better of the competing countries, but the common man and women received neither abundance nor security of employment. It has been said that they stood to see their lives in jeopardy, their liberties in jeopardy, and their lives in jeopardy. All the mechanical inventions of the 19th century seem to have hastened the fulfilment of their lives. It was claimed recently that the problem of production had at last been solved for the first time in the history of man, and that in the immediate future, it should be possible "for every present need of man to be satisfied with something between one and three hours' work per day, and beyond that the possibilities for extending the capacity for enjoyment and activity indefinitely." These possibilities could have been realised only if mankind by an act of will organised itself as a unit, and exploited the unlimited resources of the earth as a whole. Such common action was not to be thought of so long as economic nationalism raised barriers between countries and prevented the free movement of goods and labour between one country and another, such limitations being considered necessary for strategic reasons.

National Egoism

National egoism has been responsible for the sharp divisions between states which have led inevitably to conflict and war. The marvellous discoveries of recent years which gave man increased command over nature and opportunities for increased welfare have been hampered to the service of the sovereign nation state, which meant in the main large and more elaborate preparation for war. This misuse of the gifts of nature and science gave rise

Daily News

Bangalore City—Dec. 29, 1946.

Addresses of Today

We have before us on our table, six important addresses delivered, four at Mysore one at Madura and the remaining one at Calcutta. It is impossible for us to do bare justice even to one of them. With very great difficulty we have found space to publish extracts of them in the columns of our paper. We know and we confess that these extracts hardly reflect even an infinitesimal portion of the intellectual splendour of those learned addresses.

We draw particular attention of our readers to the remarkable address of His Highness the Maharaja. We characterise it as remarkable for reasons more than one. The young Maharaja is himself a keen and ardent student of Politics and Economics. He has taken his degree at the Mysore University with distinction in those subjects. In his address he has shown vast learning and practical wisdom. There is, in his address evidence of a keen desire of a scientist to investigate into things dispassionately with an eye only to pursuit of Truth. His study of the present day problems throws a flood of light on them which is sure to enlighten and add lustre to, his administration of the State as its Ruler. Like every modern progressive thinker, he has kept his eyes steadfast on the future, and the shape of things to come. He has bestowed and has been bestowing constant thought on the new world order which has to emanate from the ashes of this war. His Highness the Maharaja has approvingly quoted Acton, the great scientific historian who had sounded a note of warning against the danger of identifying a nation with the state and had prophesied that its course would be marked by material as well as moral ruin. History has run its course and Lord Acton has been vindicated. Whatever the new world order may be, its success depends on the appeal the new scheme makes to the reason and the feelings of men and women, on the intellectual apprehension and the emotional responsiveness with which they meet. Our task is to enlist the feelings of men and women on our side and make them willing and eager to accept our proposals.

This shows the burning truth of His Highness the Maharaja's Democracy. He is not a votary at the shrine of coercive rule. Whatever your scheme may be, he wants to enlist the feeling of men and women on his side. We are immensely proud of Mr. Member who, in his own blood has nourished such potent germs of democratic progress.

There are the other addresses of Professors Gadgil and Beni Prasad. We content ourselves with merely saying that they are very learned addresses and our readers should make a diligent study of them.

We cannot omit referring to the address of our Vice-Chancellor. He is one of the most outstanding "Chelas" of Professor Marshall, and as expected of him, he has contributed something new to the thought of the day.

Regarding Sri V.D. Savarkar's address as the President of the Hindu Mahasabha, we would not comment much. Mr. Savarkar is a hero who does not follow others blindly. The present status and position of the All India Hindu Mahasabha is mostly due to the dynamic personality of Mr. Savarkar. He has time and again expressed his differences strongly with the Indian National Congress. He does not agree with Mahatma Gandhi that Non-violence will lead us to Swaraj. The Hindu Mahasabha has its sphere of work, but we think the Hindu Mahasabha would gain much more by aligning itself with the Indian National Congress. We know that some of our readers who are ardent Hindu Mahasabhaites do not subscribe to our view. But we express our view for what it is worth.

One final word about the Liberal Federation meeting at Calcutta. The address of Mr. V. N. Chandavarkar, President, makes a good reading but the views expressed therein, we regret to say, do not find an echo in India of today. This is enough for the day.

THE MENACE OF HIGGLING

Our talented First Member had something to say about higgling at a Ladies gathering. Higgling is defined as chaffering or price or close bargaining. Higgling is a familiar performance at all market places and to eliminate it requires courage. It is no doubt a product of crippled finances. When money runs short one has to hiddle to possess the thing for what is styled an upset price. Aristocrats do not hiddle, because they have plenty to lose. Indian markets have become places of higgling as to annoy the snobish. We invite the First Member to introduce legislation to control chaffering of prices at market places. Marketing officers are no doubt doing this work but what to do about poverty? When food prices have gone up, when rice is selling at Rs 18 for paila, when the Government are callous towards dearness allowances, higgling remains to stay. We welcome it in our midst.

We have known instances of higgling even in England. Walk through the Hampstead Road morning markets we hear "Tupence please" or "Price too heavy please". They too hiddle but there it is annoying. Free

Role of An Expert

The Vice-Chancellor's Welcome Address

In welcoming the delegates Rajakarya Pravina N. S. Subba Rao, said—

It is my privilege to follow the address of His Highness the Maharaja with a few words on behalf of the Reception Committee. On behalf of my colleagues and myself, I desire to say how pleased we are to have you in our midst, and to assure you that no efforts will be spared on our part to make your stay comfortable and pleasant.

It is not very long ago that I was taking classes in Economics, you will kindly observe I do not say I was teaching the subject; and I am afraid I must add I was taking at one time classes not merely in Economics, but also in Politics and History. In those days Economics and Politics were the poor relations of History, and the teaching staff in History was responsible for the teaching of Economics and Politics, even as the same Board of Studies and of Examiners did duty for all the three subjects. Things have changed greatly since, and Economics and Politics have set up house for themselves, though each has a receiving guest, Mathematics in the case of Economics and Psychology in the case of the latter, though Psychology claims the right to lodge in the Economics household also. Economics has now a Chair in every Indian University, but though Politics is yet to receive similar recognition, independent departments of Politics are coming to be a marked feature of University organisation.

LABORATORY FACILITIES

This change in status and organisation has gone with a great change in environment, in an increase in what may be called laboratory facilities. It has been a handicap of social sciences like Economics and Politics that their theorems were not based like those of the physical sciences on regulated experiments in laboratories under proper control, and the contributions of economists and political philosophers were often merely analysis and explanation of episodes in the past, or daring incursions into what might be. But no science can thrive on post-mortems or utopias. In

In India poverty has driven many to hiddle violently. Tigalars (ඳුරු) who dominate the Bangalore Market are excellent experts in repartee. They know how to tackle chronic higglers. To get a thing for an upset price is almost an impossibility with these Tigalars. We recommend these Tigalars to assist our City Fathers to eliminate higgling. If Karl Marx were alive he would have shed tears at the plight of some of our unfortunate members of society at their higgling much against the will. We do hope our authorities will commiserate with our poverty-stricken and see that even higgling is made easy recent years, however, the economic and political environment of man has been transformed into a huge laboratory, in which daring experiments are being performed, sometimes on so colossal a scale that there is every danger of the laboratory itself being blown up, should the experiments be a disaster. The economic and political experiments of the totalitarian states, the war and post-war measures in the fields of currency, foreign trade, and public finance, the New Deal, are illustrations in point. The accepted theories of State and Government are not merely under revision, but are facing a serious challenge in discussion and operation.

Ample Fresh Material

There is thus ample fresh material for the testing of our theories and for the sharpening of our tools of investigation and analysis. But it has been our ambition as students of Economics to grapple with social suffering, and help in Marshall's words "to open up to all the material means of a refined and noble life," to contribute in some degree, directly or indirectly towards social betterment. So also students of political science aspire to make a contribution towards the construction of a stable and satisfying political order, national and international. But the opportunities for us seem to be few. It may be that when Adam Smith entered a room in which statesmen and men of affairs were assembled, these all got up, one of them remarking that they were all his pupils. If a Professor of Economics or Political Science enters, literally or figuratively, an assembly of men of affairs, there is only a raising of eyebrows in disdain and amusement. When challenged before the Gold & Silver Commission with regard to some statement of his in regard to bills in the wheat market, Marshall could put in his place his adversary, "a gentleman of experience, who was speaking, not only from watching the market, but as being directly engaged in it to a large extent for very many years past" by saying that it did not follow he had watched the right things, and unless he had done so, his evidence did not bear on the point. We have now instead his successor, Professor Pigou, admitting despondently that "the hope that an advance in economic knowledge will appreciably affect actual happenings is a slender one. It is not likely that there will be a market for our produce."

Expert's Role

A similar view has been expressed by Professor Viner in his Presidential address to the American Economic Association last December, but he attributes this result to numerous handicaps under which the academic Economist labours as an active participant in the policy-making process. His role in the ordinary course of events is to help legislators and the executive by his expert advice. But "The expert should be on tap, not on top" Prof. Viner gives, however, the academic Economist a

All India Hindu Mahasabha

Sri Savarkar's Address

A.P. Madura? The ideal that the Hindu should get themselves animated and re-born in martial race was placed in the 42nd annual session of the All India Hindu Mahasabha. Mr V.D. Savarkar, the President, in his address to the session.

He condemned the absolute non-violence 'eccentric doctrine' harmful to the interests of the Hindu. "We must whip up enthusiasm amongst the Hindu he declared "and that most crying need of today must form the chief plank of the Hindu Sanghathanism form."

Participation in the War

Urging participation by Hindus in the war effort, said that the Hindu's attitude to war must be guided by need for the militarisation of the community and industrialisation of the country. "If you Hindus refuse to join army, navy, air force or factories producing war materials, the only immediate will be that the Muslims get on the saddle and of weakening the Government here, you will that you have strengthened who is no less bent uponjecting you to helotage in own land."

After reviewing the done by the Mahasabha of the last one year and the it had played in the discussions, Mr. Savarkar, tioned that "any League of res pact can no longer mortgage or barter away rights until the Hindu Sabha is a willing party."

He expressed his appreciation for the stand taken by Amery and His Excellency Viceroy in regard to the League. He claimed that Amery's speech on "India" was due to the pressure by the Hindu Mahasabha.

Mr. Savarkar in the address made a special appeal to the Hindus to give support in all elections candidates set up by the Sabha in preference to Congress candidates.

more important role, that is the custodian for the long view in economic matters" a view which is even in troubled periods full hearing, though undisputed dominance that we must remain constant to the academic students of Economics and Political Science. It is by no means an unimportant role in society to be a student of the long view. The words of J.M. Keynes, ideas of economists and philosophers, both when they are right and when they are wrong, are more powerful than commonly understood. The world is ruled by little. Practical men, who themselves to be quite usually the slaves of an inflexible intellectuality, usually the slaves of a defunct Economist's late, it is ideas which are dangerous for good or evil.

Liberals Give Two Years Time

Deliberations in Calcutta

Dr. Paranjpye Deplores Civil Disobedience

Calcutta, Dec. 30

A resolution urging that it should immediately be announced that India would be accorded the status and functions of a Dominion within the meaning of the Statute of Westminster within a period not exceeding two years after the conclusion of the War was moved by Mr. P. N. Saprú at the National Liberal Federation Conference today. The resolution which was adopted by the Subjects Committee yesterday stated that the National Liberal Federation while desirous to satisfy the reasonable claims of the minorities is of the opinion that the Viceroy's declaration of August 1939 virtually gives them a veto on the constitutional progress and protested strongly against the distinction drawn by Mr. Amery between the States and the functions of the Dominion which created a grave apprehension in the minds of the people that what he called British obligations in India may permanently stand in the way of India achieving the same freedom as the other dominions enjoyed.

The resolution added that the Government is further of the view that in the meanwhile the Central Government should be reconstructed as to have by it a fully national character. The Viceroy should sit at its head and the British Government should not ordinarily interfere with any policy which has the support of such Executive and Central legislative Portfolios of defence and finance should be entrusted to the official Indians representing the interests of the country.

Mr. Saprú moving the resolution referred to the mention of the obligations of the British Government, made by the Viceroy and Mr. Amery in their statements and said that the statements could be interpreted as to give real power or a shadow of responsibility. He said that the question of these obligations should be settled by direct negotiation between the representatives of India and the British Government.

Referring to Mr. Amery's distinction between the Statute and the function of Dominion Mr. Saprú said: "I do not care for the Statute. I care for power, I care for freedom and I care for, if you give me the right to use the word, independence. If we have in reality political power, status will follow."

Mr. P. N. Saprú's resolution was adopted by the Liberal Federation without any change.

Another resolution moved by Dr. R. P. Paranjpye was adopted in which the communal award and communal electorates were condemned. A suggestion was made in the resolution for introduction of joint electorates with reservation of seats for indefinite periods. The Pakistan scheme was also condemned. Federal type of unity with a single unit of Government for purposes of administration and defence was recommended.

Calcutta, Dec. 30.

The Liberal Federation passed the resolution moved by Sir Setalwad reaffirming sympathy for Britain and the victims of totalitarian aggression and expressing the hope and confidence that the fallen nations would soon regain their lost independence.

In another resolution which was also passed, Dr. R. P. Paranjpye condemned the civil disobedience movement that is being conducted by the Congress.

TWENTY ONE issues of "DAILY NEWS" are already out and are in the readers' hands. We are very thankful for the encouragement we have so far received. We pray for more encouragement.

The special feature of DAILY NEWS is, it contains overnight Indian Telegrams and quite a number of items that cannot, in the nature of things, appear in the previous evening's papers, either local or moussul.

The "DAILY NEWS" also satisfies the hunger of those who would like to read the statements and speeches of prominent men in the English language itself.

On the whole, "DAILY NEWS" supplements and does not supplant "Tainadu".

We have not been able to appoint agents for 'Daily News' in all the places where "Tainadu" is in circulation. In places where agents are appointed the copies are distributed immediately after the delivery of the parcels.

In Bangalore City and Cantt. arrangements have been made to promptly distribute the paper very early in the morning itself.

In the City of Mysore arrangements are made by our agent to distribute the Daily News immediately after the arrival of the Bangalore Mail.

All India Hindu Maha Sabha

Conference At Madura

Direct Action after March 31, 1941

Ultimatum to British Government

A.P. Madura, Dec. 29.

The open session of the All India Hindu Mahasabha passed a resolution demanding immediate and unconditional release of the Hindu political prisoners and realising national independence. Another resolution which was adopted setting opposition reiterated the condemnation of the communal award as it is opposed to all principles of democracy. Mr. N. C. Chatterjee from Dacca moved the main resolution on the political situation which the Mahasabha appreciated the recognition by the Viceroy and the Secretary of State that the political situation in the country could not be satisfactorily solved without the co-operation of the Hindu Mahasabha. The resolution added that while retaining its faith in the goal of complete independence the Mahasabha is prepared to accept Dominion Status of the West Minister variety as an immediate step. However, it considered that these declarations made from time to time by the Viceroy and the Secretary of State on the constitutional question were vague, inadequate and unsatisfactory and the Mahasabha therefore urged Government to make it immediately clear that the declaration of Dominion Status as contained in Statute of Westminster shall be conferred on India within one year of the termination of the war and that the constitution shall be so framed that it would provide adequate safeguards for the protection of rights and interests of all communities in the country. Mr. Chatterjee further condemned the attitude of the British Government in not making a clear announcement of its opposition to the scheme in Dacca and urged the British Government to immediately declare that the Pakistan scheme will not be favoured and entertained by the Government. The resolution concludes: In case the Government fails to make a satisfactory response to the demands embodied in the resolution, the Mahasabha will start a movement for direct action.

"India Must Remain a Hindu Land"

The All India Hindu Mahasabha, in its resolution, declared that India must remain a Hindu Land. It stated that the Hindu Mahasabha is prepared to accept Dominion Status of the West Minister variety as an immediate step. However, it considered that these declarations made from time to time by the Viceroy and the Secretary of State on the constitutional question were vague, inadequate and unsatisfactory and the Mahasabha therefore urged Government to make it immediately clear that the declaration of Dominion Status as contained in Statute of Westminster shall be conferred on India within one year of the termination of the war and that the constitution shall be so framed that it would provide adequate safeguards for the protection of rights and interests of all communities in the country. The All India Hindu Mahasabha, in its resolution, declared that India must remain a Hindu Land. It stated that the Hindu Mahasabha is prepared to accept Dominion Status of the West Minister variety as an immediate step. However, it considered that these declarations made from time to time by the Viceroy and the Secretary of State on the constitutional question were vague, inadequate and unsatisfactory and the Mahasabha therefore urged Government to make it immediately clear that the declaration of Dominion Status as contained in Statute of Westminster shall be conferred on India within one year of the termination of the war and that the constitution shall be so framed that it would provide adequate safeguards for the protection of rights and interests of all communities in the country. Mr. Chatterjee further condemned the attitude of the British Government in not making a clear announcement of its opposition to the scheme in Dacca and urged the British Government to immediately declare that the Pakistan scheme will not be favoured and entertained by the Government. The resolution to the misgiving that man was not morally fitted to handle the new weapons that science had placed in his hands. "Each new machine being for man a new organ, his body became suddenly and prodigiously increased in size, without his soul being able at the same time to dilate to the dimensions of his new body." It should have been the task of the intellectual to preserve a cool and unbiased outlook in such a conjuncture and instruct the rest of the community, but unhappily they failed in their duty and were guilty of treason to their charge. Instead of instructing the mind and elevating the hearts of these fellow citizens, they could rise above national narrowness, they not only themselves shared the sentiment, but also exalted the sovereign nation state and are responsible for the intellectual organisation of political hatred.

The sovereign nation state, exalted by metaphysical theories of the state, often exploiting racial prejudice, resting on economic self-sufficiency organised for strategic purposes, using the powerful weapons of modern science for destructive rather than for constructive ends, based on mass ignorance and inertia, and supported by the intellectuals—that is the primary cause of the European tragedy.

A New World Order

Therefore a New World Order in which peace and security shall prevail will not follow automatically the defeat of the Axis Powers. The enemy within the gate must be defeated, and the source of the present difficulties of Europe, a political structure which has outlived its utility, must be removed. The sovereignty of the nation state must go. The masses, like the dwarf in the story, who accompanied the giant on his adventures and fell in limb after limb for each success of his partner, are suffering and paying heavily for the strife and folly of their rulers. It is certain they will not be the better after the war a regime that will again expose them to the evils of political conflict and economic insecurity. It is our responsibility that the new order which must be established, mankind must turn to harmony with their hopes and needs by peaceful and constitutional means, the millions who are bearing in patient hope the uncertainties and the horrors of the present war, will turn to those who make insidious promises of a short cut to Utopia through revolution.

Enlist Feelings of Men And Women

A great responsibility lies on the architects and builders of the New Order after the war. Success in their labours will depend on the appeal the new schemes make to the reason and the feeling of men and women, on the intellectual apprehension and the emotional receptiveness with which they meet. The task of those who would build a New World from which war and poverty shall be banished is two-fold. They have to prepare plans for the New Order of things, political and economic, which can be demonstrated to be possible as well as urgent and desirable. The other part of the task is to enlist the feelings of men and women on their side, to make them willing and eager to adopt their proposals. Not only must the minds be instructed, the hearts must also be enlarged. The first is the task of economists and political philosophers. The performance of the second, mankind must turn to the psychologists and the educationists, perhaps to the prophet and the seer, who alone can make the blind see and the deaf hear. Students of Economics and Political Science, who have to bear a large share in the task of world reconstruction, will supply instruction and enlightenment, hoping that God in His wisdom will send inspired leaders who will lead mankind from the valley of tribulation to the kingdom of peace and happiness.

Political Science Conference

Presidential Address

Professor Beni Prasad, Professor of Politics, University of Allahabad, presiding over the 3rd Session of The Indian Political Association concluding his address said:

Government

It is obvious that highly technical administration does not lend itself to popular control. But this does not imply a wooden, red-tape bureaucracy. Administration would pre-suppose a dispassionate survey of social conditions and formulation of economic policies by boards of social scientists and their execution by scientifically trained officers. Already, progressive administration has demonstrated that the genuine role of the civil service is that of a learned profession. It must think out policies and reforms as a systematic whole and be able to plan on the large scale inherent in modern economics and transport. It is patent, however, that such an administration can function only when the mass of the people are enlightened enough to appreciate the value of reason and science, in place of prejudice and drift, in the management of their multitudinous services.

Conditions of Progress

Civilisation has reached a stage which requires a fresh infusion of reason into its machinery of regulation. Progress was defined by Sir Henry Maine as the movement from status to contract. But contract admits of qualitative refinement of which we can scarcely foresee the limit. Progress continues in the transfusion of the conditions of contract with the principle of the rational good and may be held to be marked by the trend 'towards the emancipation of the psyche' and the increasing dominance of the mental aspect of life.

The world, then, stands in need of a great moral effort but it requires above all the light of reason to steady and guide that effort, lead the way to economic and political transformation and to make that way generally acceptable. There is no short cut to the goal but there rests an obligation on all who have grasped the nature of modern society and caught a vision of the world as it might be—the obligation to steer clear of irrational prejudice and re-inforce the influences that make for a correct understanding. To them

Reception Accorded

A. P. Poona, Dec. 27. The Hon. Mr. A. K. F. Huq, President-elect of the India Muslim Educational Conference and party of delegates arrived in Poona this morning. Mr. Fazlul Huq was met at the station by officials of the Reception Committee of the Conference and the local Muslim League. Earlier Mr. Huq was met by Mr. Chaudhary, President of the Bombay Provincial Muslim League who accompanied him to Poona.

ROGER MISSION MEMBERS BURMA

A. P. Rangoon, Dec. 27. Two members of the Roger Mission are visiting Rangoon. The Burma Governments request to explore the possibility of exploiting the resources of Burma to the full.

The logic of history assigns a function of joining the vision and the large purpose, the massive knowledge and sources now at the disposal of humanity. It is for them to work with enlightenment and humanitarian enthusiasm the incentives to mutual aid and service which though widespread, largely conceal itself in the cause of sects, parties and nationalities. Applied science has brought to a point when the subject progress is mankind as a whole community, rather than small groups. By necessity of mutual accommodation and adaptation things always move in circles. It may be given to us, as through cultivation of the social sciences as inter-related disciplines, the wide international platform to break the vicious circles at few points, help mankind turning the corner and inaugurate the reign of the good and the rational.

New Municipal Bus Station

SPEECHES AT THE OPENING CEREMONY

DEWAN'S TRIBUTE TO RETIRING PRESIDENT AND COUNCIL

Bangalore Dec. 30

"I do not know if any other City in India can boast of a Bus Station of this magnitude and utility but I think I can safely claim it to be one of the best in this country. The station has cost Rs. 1,27,000" said Dr. M. Royan, President, Bangalore City Municipal Council, on the occasion of the opening of the Bus Station this morning.

The newly constructed magnificent Municipal Bus Station near Kalsiapalyam, was declared open this morning by Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao.

There was a large and distinguished gathering present including Lt. Col. J. H. Gordon, the Hon. the British Resident, Mr. J. B. Stubbs, Private Secretary to the Hon. the Resident, Dr. Royan, Mr. S. Narayana Rao, Municipal Councillors, and ladies and gentlemen.

Ashtanavidwan Sri R. A. Krishnamacharya, gave a welcome song.

Dr. Royan, President of the Bangalore City Municipal Council in welcoming Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao, made the following speech.

Dr. Royan's Speech

"It is with very great pleasure I welcome you all, on behalf of the Bangalore City Municipality to this function which, I dare say, you are aware, is the last of its kind the present Council will be privileged to be associated with. To you, Sir, we are specially grateful for having consented to open this Bus Station at a very short notice and considerable personal inconvenience, for we know that you had intended to avail yourself of the Christmas and New Year Holidays and leave the Station. I need hardly say that, as the Member in charge of Traffic, it is particularly appropriate that you should be associated with the opening ceremony of this Bus Station and this makes us doubly glad.

Health of the Dewan

"Before proceeding further, I may be permitted to refer to a topic, which I have no doubt, is uppermost in our thoughts, viz., the health of our esteemed and beloved Dewan, Sir Mirza Mahamed Ismail, who would have been with us this morning, had it not been for the slight accident he had while riding, a few days back. I am sure you will join with me in wishing him a speedy return to his arduous work and in sending forth a mutual prayer to the Almighty for his providential escape from what might have been a serious accident. I am happy to be in a position to say that he is all right and would be going about as usual work but for the moment his doctors upon a few days rest as a measure of abundant caution.

Bus Station

"The Bus Station has come up a day too soon and those of us that have seen what this spot was like a year back may not find any difficulty in agreeing with me. I may recall to your mind that where we now see this magnificent collection of buildings, we had only a mangalore tiled shed to serve as a shelter to the bus passengers and there were not only no roads but the whole area was so cut up and uneven that during the rainy season it was a mass of slush and ruts. In fact, the place had become an eye-sore and the absence of public conveniences had rendered the entire neighbourhood very insanitary. It was, in those circumstances the construction of a Bus Station was taken up in 1938 and plans prepared. The then Chairman of the Traffic Board and the Government Architect were consulted and an estimate for Rs. 59,100 sanctioned by the Government. This work was commenced in December 1939 and in view of the fact that considerable quantities of earth had to be carted from various distances for filling up the low lying areas, and that fresh items, such as retiring rooms for travellers, and corridors connecting the restaurant with the retiring rooms and waiting stalls, increase in the height of the tower to secure a better aesthetic effect and stronger foundations found necessary in some places on account of portions of old moat having been met with, had to be taken up, not only did the cost go up, but great pains had to be taken to expedite the work.

Cost of Rs. 1,27,000

In a work of this magnitude and utility, it is no wonder that the original estimate should have been exceeded. Together with the cost of roads and certain amenities which were not provided for at the outset, the total cost has come up to Rs. 1,27,000 but there is no reason to be disconcerted over this, as the investment is calculated to bring in a proper return. The central feature of this Bus Station is the restaurant & together with the eight retiring rooms it has been leased out to Rs. 3,600 per year. It is proposed to levy a small fee on buses using the Station and to build more shops and lease them out. The petrol-stands put up to the East of the Bus Station are already fetching Rs. 2,400 per year. The total net revenue from the Bus Station is likely to exceed Rs. 7,300 per year and the return not less than 5 per cent. It is our intention to build and lease out cottages for the use of buses and provide platforms and facilities to wash buses, in which case there would be a further increase in the revenue.

Our object has been to provide a really convenient centre for bus traffic, both to the City and the outlying places and make it as comfortable and as possible. The provision of the ramps, fountains, drinking water fountains, flush ad-conveniences, petrol and water supply to the City, has been an endeavour to make it a very useful institution in a central place of the City. I do not know if any other City in India can boast of a bus station of this magnitude and utility but I think I can safely claim it to be one of the best in this country.

Swadeshi Electric Clock

It may be of interest to you to know in this connection that the clock put upon the tower is one installed by the Swadeshi Electric Clock Manufacturing Company of Bombay and that its mechanism is so simple that it won't go wrong easily.

Dewan's Interest

Before concluding, I think I would be failing in my duty if I did not refer to the keen and continuous interest taken by our Dewan Sahib in this work and I may state without hesitation that but for his repeated visits and drive the work would not have been completed so soon. We are therefore extremely grateful to him for his valuable instructions and help. Dr. Koenigsbecker, the Government Architect has been in daily touch with the work and we take this opportunity to thank him for the ideas he has given throughout the course of construction and the supervision he has exercised over the work. Last but not least, come the Contractors who have, in spite of difficulties, expedited the work.

I think you, once again, Sir, for having so kindly responded to our invitation and request you to kindly declare the Bus Station open. (applause)

Then Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao, in declaring open the newly constructed bus station read the following speech of Sir Mirza, M. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore.

Our readers would remember that Sir Mirza was requested to open the Bus Station. Due to indisposition, he was unable to fulfil his engagement.

DEWAN'S SPEECH

This is certainly a great day for the Municipal Council of Bangalore City. I share to the full their pride and pleasure at the accomplishment of an enterprise which, unless I am very much mistaken, is unique in our country, if we forget for the moment a similar Bus Station which was constructed in Mysore City not long ago, though on a much smaller scale.

I know that the original estimate has been greatly exceeded. The Station has cost you Rs. 1,27,000 instead of Rs. 60,000. You expect to realise an income of Rs. 7,300 per annum from it, which will mean a return of 5 per cent on the outlay. Even from the purely commercial standpoint, the scheme can be regarded as a great success, but a municipality cannot always view its activities in terms of rupees, annas and pies. It has to provide amenities even if they do not pay a direct return in cash. Its real reward lies in the health and happiness of its city.

Congratulations to Municipal Councillors

We are meeting on the eve of the dissolution of the present Municipal Council and the formation of a new one. It gives me, therefore, special pleasure to offer my sincere congratulations to Dr. Royan and his colleagues on their many services to the Municipality. I am particularly glad to have seen the opportunity of being associated with the opening of this Bus Station. It is a beautiful scheme, well conceived and well executed. I am confident that the members of the Council and the Executive, Your successors will, I trust, acquit themselves no less zealously for the improvement of their City. Let us hope that, in the service of that City, which is growing so rapidly in size as in beauty and prosperity, no thought except that of service to the City and its people, will influence the discussions or decisions of the Municipal Council. The growing importance of Bangalore demands a high standard of energy and responsibility, which, I am confident, they will maintain.

Training Ground

There can be no better school for training the political sense than that of municipal administration. In it, among other things, you learn that it is easy to make promises, but that it is not always so easy to carry them out, and above all you can learn the spirit of co-operation in work which is indispensable if the community is to prosper. Unless the atmosphere in the Municipal Council is healthy, the City's atmosphere, too, will be rendered unhealthy.

Further Improvement

As you know, our City has to be further improved in many directions. The drainage system has to be extended to the entire City as soon as possible, the housing of the poor and middle classes has to be taken up more systematically, amenities such as reading rooms and welfare centres should be provided on a more liberal scale, so also public lavatories, baths and open spaces in congested areas. All these and other improvements will have to be carried out if Bangalore is to rank among the great cities of the world. I am confident that the Government and the Municipality, working hand in hand, will be able to achieve that position for her.

Satisfaction of Service

So far as you, the present members of the Municipality, are concerned, I know how mindful you have been of the great possibilities and needs of the future; you can feel happy and satisfied that in your term of office you have been able to accomplish so much for your City. A great philosophy has pointed out to us that in this life the chief, the highest reward that we can obtain is the purchase of satisfaction, one of the greatest that man can earn. You have been privileged to render signal service to your fellow-citizens.

It is the intention of Government to make bus stations a feature of all towns and cities in the State. They will make bus-travelling more comfortable and attractive.

I am particularly glad to have seen this opportunity of being associated with the opening of this Bus Station. It is a beautiful scheme, well conceived and well executed. I am confident that the members of the Council and the Executive, Your successors will, I trust, acquit themselves no less zealously for the improvement of their City. Let us hope that, in the service of that City, which is growing so rapidly in size as in beauty and prosperity, no thought except that of service to the City and its people, will influence the discussions or decisions of the Municipal Council. The growing importance of Bangalore demands a high standard of energy and responsibility, which, I am confident, they will maintain.

Daily News

Bangalore City—Dec. 31, 1940.

The New Municipal Bus Station

The citizens of Bangalore witnessed a very pleasing function last morning. The New Municipal Bus Station, at Kalasipalyam was opened by Rajamantrapravina Mr. N. Madhava Rao, our worthy First Member of Council. In the much regretted absence of the Dewan due to indisposition, it has fallen to the good-luck of Mr. N. Madhava Rao, to officiate at the functions, which would in other circumstances, have been discharged by our tireless Dewan. In the improvement of the city of Bangalore, Sir Mirza Ismail, has been indefatigable and day in and day out like a religious observance, he would, on the horse back, visit every morning, this place or that and offer his useful suggestions for the improvement of the locality in utility and beauty. Therefore, it was but apt that Dr. M. Royan the President of the City Municipal Council referred in moving terms, to the absence of Sir Mirza Ismail at the function. His absence was not only conspicuous but also much felt for, by everyone at the meeting. We are glad to learn that he is alright now, and would be going out to his usual work but for the insistence of his doctors, upon a few days' rest as a measure of "abundant caution". All would join with the Dewan in wishing the Dewan a speedy return to his arduous duties.

Now to the Bus Station. It was estimated to cost Rs. 60,000, when it was projected at first. But the actual cost has exceeded the estimate and it has reached the high figure of Rs. 1,27,000. It is expected that an income of Rs. 7,500 per annum would be realised which would mean a return of 5 percent on the outlay. We agree with the Dewan that we should not always view such activities in terms of Rupees, annas and paise. We have to provide amenities even if they do not pay a direct return in cash. Its real reward lies in the health and happiness of the City.

The Dewan is justly proud of his work, and says that no one in India can boast of a better station of the magnitude of his work. It is very good that he should urge on the attention of the Municipality, and that they should not only be concerned with the improvement of the Municipality, but also with the improvement of the City. We, the Mayor and Council, will, therefore, be anxious to see that the Dewan's suggestions are carried out.

and we have in fact provided many. But the onus of keeping them neat, clean and healthy, rests on the people who use them and also on the Municipal staff. We lay special stress on this aspect of the question, because we find that something more is to be done in the matter of keeping neat and clean, our parks, garden seats in thoroughfares and circles and last but not least our public urinals and lavatories. In the same connection we would like the Municipality to provide spittoons in important places of recreation such as Parks and Circles.

The Dewan has in his speech paid a deserving tribute to the retiring Municipal Councillors. If the ratepayers have not returned some of them, it should serve as a lesson to them that there is something lacking in them. A little introspection is necessary, and we would not certainly approve of the conduct of some Municipal Councillors who, in the hour of their defeat slung abuses right and left. That is not certainly the way of getting at the truth of the matter. A slight adjustment and a slight adaptation to the spirit of the times was necessary on the part of some Councillors. Let them not harbour any malice or unkindness in the inner chambers of their hearts. Surely better luck would follow them next time.

The Dewan in his speech referred to the newly elected Councillors, as follows: "your successors will, I trust, acquit themselves no less creditably, and strain no less zealously for the improvement of their city. Let us hope that in the service of that city, which is growing so rapidly in size as in beauty and prosperity, no thought except that of service pure and unselfish, to the city and its people, will influence the discussions or decisions of the Municipal Council. The growing importance of Bangalore demands a high standard of energy and responsibility, which I am confident they will maintain."

We are sure these words of the Dewan, will not fall on deaf ears. We can assure the Dewan Sahab that the Bangalore ratepayers have exercised due care and caution in the choice of their representatives to the Municipal Council. We request the Dewan Sahab to trust the Bangalore City electorate and repose full confidence in them. If we add one word more, it is that the Dewan Sahab like a careful reader of the times, would do well and we would say would do the right thing by sunning his policies and methods, to the feelings, and aspirations of the ratepayers of Bangalore, who have, in an unmistakable and unerring manner, crowned the Mysore Congress with their confidence.

Our Ladies On The Platform

Oratory Second to None

(By Observer)

Some of the leading figures in the Indian Women's movement spoke on their aims and aspirations before a large and distinguished Bangalore audience last night. Sir Pattanna Chetty Town Hall resounded with multitudinous sweet speeches of our dear sisters. The oratorical skill displayed was of no mean order and it would rank as one of the best in the world.

Begam Hamid Ali, Miss Radha Mehta, Mrs. Mafie Ratnam, Mrs. Ammu Swaminathan, Lady Rama Rao, Mrs. Rustomji, Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, Mrs. Cousins and others spoke about women's work in India and Ceylon.

Rajkumari Amrit Kaur paid a very high tribute to our young Ruler for his masterly address at the Political Science Conference. Her reference to our noble Maharaja evoked hearty cheers from all sides of the house. She hoped that better days would dawn with the coming of the New Year.

Lady Rama Rao spoke about Indians in South Africa and she made our hearts creep by the sorrowful tales of colour prejudices there. Mrs. Ammu Swaminathan evoked peals of laughter by her humorous references to America's curiosity about Indian social manners.

Yesterday's oratorical treat made men rub their eyes. Given opportunities, our sisters would stand before any audience—of course, avoiding missiles, rotten eggs or vociferous heckling. They are not made for such monstrous meetings. Our hats off to them.

sticks under the tongue care and pity are evoked in plenty. The vagaries of a clinical thermometer provides mirthful reading. If it is kept under the arm-pit mercury refuses to go up after a certain distance and if kept under the tongue the mercury moves a bit forward registering a higher degree of a person's bodily temperature. Cheap clinical thermometers sold at fancy prices offer a good via-media for people to cling to their beds irrespective of bodily ailments. If the thermometer gets a slight twist under the tongue or gets itself misplaced by carelessness, mercury doesn't move. In such cases a slight pressure on the bulb makes fever's sudden appearance.

In these days of bitter cold the human body needs confinement to a snug and cosy bed. How to get the order of confinement? The problem is easily solved by recourse to vagarious clinical thermometers. An incorrect statement about a person's temperature makes him feverish and consequently strict confinement to bed is ordered. A little confidence in a Doctor enables any one to get a fake fever at bidding. Cheap clinical thermometers offer ready help to those who want confinement without a fever.

To suggest recourse to deception is bad taste indeed but palliatives are few for persons who desire to remain in bed without fevers. Getting under a blanket requires somebody's pity but to go to bed without bodily ailments requires sturdy patience. Clinical thermometers, with vagarious instincts could offer ready help to those desirous of going to bed with fake fevers.

ALL INDIA WOMEN'S CONFERENCE

CLOSE OF THE SESSION

Important Resolutions Passed

Bangalore, Dec. 30.

The fifteenth Session of the All-India Women's Conference, after four days' deliberations, concluded this evening. Several resolutions of great importance to Indian women in particular and India in general were passed.

Mrs. Rameswari Nehru presided.

The open session was held at the Sir Pattanna Chetty Town Hall; however, the group meetings were held at the National High School and the Maharani's College.

Adult Education and Literacy

The resolution on adult education and literacy based on the report of a Group meeting runs thus:

"Whilst congratulating the many Branches who have achieved great success in the sphere of adult education and removal of illiteracy during the year, the Conference was of opinion that effort should be redoubled so that by the next electoral roll a very much increased franchise will be exercised by women. It was also asserted that all Branches should approach the Government to take the literacy census according to language groups in addition to religious groups.

"The Conference circulated the report and questionnaire of the Member-in-charge of Adult Education and advised all members to gather as many statistics of their province as possible and to submit it to the Member-in-charge. The recommendations made by the Group were as follows:—

"Mohallas and working class areas should be visited and sympathetic, understanding, discussions held as a preliminary to establishing literacy centres. The first essential must be to establish contact with the people and to win their confidence. Only then literacy centres can come into existence and prove successful.

"The Conference was of opinion that the teachers engaged should, if possible, be trained in the methods of teaching adults. Where this is not possible, Branches should follow the Laubach Method and adapt it to the special conditions of the Province. The students should not only be taught to read and write, but also be encouraged to enact dramas and organise debates and lectures on subjects such as Health, Hygiene, Mother-craft, debt alleviation and other subjects of every day interest to them.

"The Conference was very strongly of opinion that adequate text books for adult literacy and post literacy should be prepared. It suggests that a Committee be formed from the A.I.W.C. to procure all available literature already existing in the vernaculars and to prepare new literature where necessary. Small bulletins and wall newspapers should be encouraged to aid the spread of literacy."

"The Conference considered the large percentage of women that fall back into illiteracy and recommended that post-literacy classes and circulating libraries be established to make literacy permanent.

"The Conference strongly urges the Government and Municipalities to immediately introduce free and compulsory primary education for all boys and girls as the surest and most complete way of eradicating illiteracy. Further, it urges all employers, especially Government and Municipal Bodies to insist and give every facility to make the employees literate.

"The Conference calls upon all A.I.W.C. Branches to establish 'Literacy Leagues' of members and non-members of the Conference, who will start and finance literacy centres as well as train teachers for the work. In this effort should be made to co-ordinate work of all organisations doing similar type of work.

"The Conference further urged the Government and Municipalities should co-operate and give material help to the Literacy Leagues."

Lady Dhanavanti, Mrs. Rao, who presided over the Group meeting, explained the resolution, and said that adult literacy campaign runs primarily the public patronage but it had also to depend on the sympathy of Government and local bodies.

The resolution after discussion was unanimously passed.

Miss Naidu, on behalf of the Standing Committee, moved amendments to the Constitution, which were adopted. According to them, the Standing Committee will after consist of not more than ten ex-Presidents of the Conference including the President and not more than five ordinary and 10 extra co-opted members; the ordinary members will have power of vote.

Communal Unity

Miss Asha moved the resolution on communal unity which was adopted by the Conference.

"The Conference cannot help but with utmost distress the lack of harmony which is eating into our national life. This cancer has to be removed and the Conference urges women to make the contribution by their nature and bring about where now discord prevails."

It recommends:—
(a) Personal contacts and of each other's literature and
(b) The desirability of making a story for teachers of Primary school education to know both Hindi and Urdu scripts (c) The use of language in text books eliminating possible Persian and Sanskrit.
The stressing of points of contact and elimination from all text books history books of all that may disharmony. (e) The text books of all communities to contain and teachings of great religious leaders. The elimination of Separatism in Public Institutions such as Schools, College hostels and hospital wards. (g) No Government and Municipalities in future to be given to communal activities; (h) Societies of social workers as Seva Samajis, etc., should be communal for nothing binds together so much as common work. The encouragement by way of essays on the culture, religion, etc., of the different communities. The abolition of communalism in all spheres. This conference makes a special appeal to its own Branches to go into the cities and allay rumours about caste and uplift and restore communal relations are strained. The importance of newspapers doing best not to indulge in communal gauds.
This Conference calls upon all speakers to take every opportunity to stress the common fundamental qualities.

The New Year and the Old

At Twelve last night the Church bells rang the Old Year out and rang the New Year in. All over the world the Church bells pealed the departure of the Old and the arrival of the New. It is nature on this sacred occasion to take stock of the events of the Past Year and hope for better things during the next. The soul in man yearns for peace and love. While the peacemonger cries for blood, the tooth and nail Humanists have been witnessing and experiencing a tragedy unknown to the minds of man, unsurpassed in cruelty, in cruelty, and death like torments. The old wars pale into insignificance before the present war which appears to make an end of the modern civilization, despite of the pious efforts of His Holiness the Pope, and President Roosevelt of the United States of America. Hitler plunged the world into the present war. Mussolini followed in his footsteps in a camp all over. The old historic nations of Europe have been laid low and humiliated. Even France, which History has proclaimed to be the Home of Liberties has been obliged to capitulate before the conqueror. England has been resisting the onslaughts of the enemy in a marvellous manner. Mr. Churchill and his band of Ministers have been instilling courage and faith in the hearts of their men and women. It is heartening to hear President Roosevelt saying: "I believe the Axis powers are not going to win this war." This belief will go a long way in steeling England against Hitler.

We, in India, have been watching with tears in our eyes, the death dance of war in Europe hurling destruction all around. What can India do? The Whitehall and the New Delhi perse to listen to the good advice tendered by Mahatma Gandhi. We see a sad spectacle of Satyagrahis marching to jail for indicating what is after all an elementary human right. Even in this small matter the Government of India refuse to respond to the popular will. The Christmas week saw a crop of contradictions in different parts of India. The Labour met at Calcutta, the Hindu Mahasabha met at Madras. Statutory varied resolutions are passed and they will surely go to the contrary of the purpose of the Government. been intransigent. However. This is the state of affairs in All India.

Coming nearer home, the year Nineteen-forty has been one of tears to Mysore. We lost our beloved Maharaja and Yuvaraja. But God has in His abundant mercy given us a young Maharaja of great promise. He has already shown signs of progress. His addresses breathe a new spirit of faith and hope. On the occasion of the New Year, we send him our heartfelt and most respectful good wishes.

In the political field, in our State, the stalemate continues. The Mysore State Congress which has returned to the path of constitutionalism has been yet kept at a respectable distance by the Government. There yet prevails an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust. But the people of Mysore, as represented by the electorate have showered their confidence and good will on the Mysore State Congress, as evidenced in the recent District Board Elections and Municipal Elections. We are confident that in the ensuing General Elections to the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council the Mysore Congress will lead the polls. May we, on the happy occasion of the New Year, request our Government to ring out the old unpleasant memories and welcome the new spirit that has dawned in Mysore, a manifestation of which is the rise and progress of the new advanced political thought as propounded by the Mysore State Congress, which in a correct and unerring manner reflects the surging of the popular mind.

We wish all our readers a Happy New Year. God be with all.

SKIT ON DAMSEL'S PERFORATED NOSE

How does a dazzling diamond stand on a damsel's nose?—was the curious query of a yankee cop. Mrs. Ammu Swaminathan cleverly answered this question not by showing the punched hole on her nose but by leaving the mystery to unfold itself. The yankee cop stood staring at the clever stone so adroitly standing on the smooth skin. This nose ornament is a fascination that has stood the test of history. It adds grace, beauty to a charming girl in her teens. For the Hindus the ornament has a sacred purpose. It is a sign of matrimony or to be more precise an insurance against widowhood. The punching of the nose is a painful experience among our girls, but the torture so experienced will, at a later date, add to the gaiety of a sweet maiden by enhancing her social value. This curious ornament has a quarter of an inch rod which is pushed through the punched hole where a small nut fastens it there. If the American captives take a trip to India he will be the better for it. The Americans have curious notions about Indians. They believe that men and women in India dress alike. When Mrs. Ammu was narrating her experi-

Au-Revoir Sisters

Resume of the Bangalore Conference

(By: JOURNALIST)

"What is all this about our gallant clan?" asked my lady-friend looking at a passing bus, full of blushing ladies. "They have declared war on men" was my answer and warned her that the fusillade had already commenced. Mingling with society ladies remind me of my days in England, the pleasant time spent with them over the tea table where our talks drifted from hindu child marriages to that of current politics. Some of the leading lights who are here for the conference are familiar faces in English society. Lady Rama Rao, Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, Mrs. Ammu Swaminathan are well known in London's once gay gatherings and as a student-visitor I still remember Lady Rama Rao's piercing attacks on purdah and the distressing child marriages.

Dr Maude Royden, Miss. Agatha Harrison and others have great admiration for the finesse of these cultural figures among Indian Womanhood. Lady Rama Rao, though she has shifted her home from London to Durban still retains her love for the English spirit and all that it gives. Rajkumari Amrit Kaur that sprightly lady of Sevagram spent her best days in England and now she is the torch bearer of selfless service to the needy and oppressed in India. I have known these ladies both in England and India and I say that they alone can save our sisters from the plight to which they are driven.

Freedom, Democracy, Equality, Fraternity are among the many slogans in current politics. But how many are prepared to extend these to their women at home. Men rule homes but with out women sweet homes become bitter. The structure of a well-ordered society depends on the way we treat our women and it is the American curiosity the thoughts of many wandered in unknown regions. How about men in colourful saris, was the constant introspective question. If men and women dress in saris alike segregations will vanish and indiscreet staring on the part of men will be a nullity. Theatres, meeting places, lecture halls, harikathas and Gayana Sabhas are saved the worry of dividing the hall into two enclosures. But will it be healthy to clothe men in saris? Women Conferences should answer. Men might dress themselves in saris or fine georgettes. But think of the quandary to which society shall be driven. The American imagination though it whets the appetite of men becoming women is not of good taste. Travelling skirts are many and varied, but Mrs. Ammu's rank among the best. She did well to share those skirts with the Bangalore audience. Congrats on her witty speech.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

A holiday was forced on me due to pressure on space in the columns of the paper. I helplessly went into extinction. I am up again on the New Year Day. I offer my sincere good wishes to my Editor and my readers.

The cities of Bangalore and Mysore have been busy with All-India Conferences. Bangalore had a grand Scout Rally. We had a number of speeches on Politics, Economics and the New world order. Enough food for thought.

I cannot omit referring to the All-India Women's Conference. It was a colourful gathering. Excepting a few ladies all were dressed in colours. Mysore beats the rest of India in colours. The grandeur of the Mysore Silk sarees is hard to beat. There was a display of jewelry Mrs. Ammu Swaminathan said that somebody in New York asked her how that stone stayed on her nose. I wish more ladies would go from India specially from Mysore to amaze the Americans.

I am told there was heated discussion in the Conference over certain burning questions. But all was quiet in the end. And I read in the papers long worded resolutions on a par with the resolutions of the Liberal Federation. But I find one very important omission. The Hindu Mahasabha has given an ultimatum. The Liberal Federation has given one. I do not know why our good women of India did not give an ultimatum.

I had occasion to read several speeches that were made in the All India Women's Conference, but there is none to beat Mr. K. V. Anantaraman's humour. He paid the good women of India in their own coin. It appears the President of the last year's Conference dubbed is a sad commentary and a distressing feature to reveal that 80 per cent of our Indian women know no light, guidance, and are lead.

The kitchen oven with its blinding smoke is the only inspiration that our women derive from their wretched lives and here men have erred deliberately. Decency forbids us to have some plain speaking or rather it is unchivalrous on our part to probe into the many sided miseries of a rotten home. We shall rest content with the cryptic statement that all is not well with us.

Bribes in the form of dowry are demanded for the hand of the girl and the money-mad youths have the least consideration to the financial troubles of the bride's father. He becomes a judgment debtor, son-in-law does not help. He is driven to the wall, son-in-law turns back with scorn. He becomes a destitute, son-in-law disowns him.

men as Hitler's of the Mr. K. V. Anantaraman "may I point out that propaganda is more effective than that of Hitler's. God! Wish your fifth column every home your success as complete as it is speedy."

Mr. N. Madhava Rao was in another place expressing fear that men's occupation would go. He said "I am not only will men be deprived though most willingly of honour of inaugurating Man shows and Exhibitions but the coveted Presidential trade associations and chambers may be lost to them." He said "women know more than any man can, the quality of the tables and flowers. Some of them are walking price lists and encyclopedias of shopping information and knowing the technique of higgling and successfully strike to eliminate it from our public market."

This is a high compliment paid to women. It would indeed be a fine day for Bangalore if some lady should open the market show next year.

Writing of speech-making and propaganda women are adept in it. On Sunday evening S. Puttanna Chetty Town Hall resounded with the music of their speeches. Rajkumari Amrit Kaur poured out her heart like a majestic stream. Lady Rama Rao sparkled with brilliance. Mrs. Ammu Swaminathan gave a 'Hollywood' finish to her pleasant conversational speech. About other speakers I refrain. Mrs. Mehta, a young barrister of Colombo was student and militant.

Bangalore enjoyed their stay. I am sure the All-India women will have also enjoyed their stay here. Thanks to all to whom thanks are due.

He commits suicide, son-in-law never cares. The girl and her father are nowhere before the jingling coins that pour into the pockets of the bride-groom, a dowry amount.

The problem of deserted wives is another distressing feature in our society. Wives are discarded for frivolous reasons. The plight of these ladies will make anyone shudder. Devoid of the protecting care of a husband or a father these are forced to the necessity of a life of misery. In many homes the husband marries a second time. Woe be to the first wife who has to wash her miseries with her tears.

The whole problem of women has to be tackled not in the resolution way but with a revolutionary vigour. I am confident that the Bangalore session at least attempted to touch work to eradicate these ailments. Au Revoir to my sisters.

A.P. The Conference of the Indian Leaders convened by Mr. M. N. Roy re-assembled at 1 P.M. today.
After some general discussions it was decided to issue a statement setting forth the views expressed in the course of deliberations and recommending the formation of a National Democratic Union. The draft statement prepared by Mr. M. N. Roy was discussed at great length.
The general meeting of the Conference concluded at 7-30 P.M. whereafter the Standing Committee met. Mr. Roy was unanimously elected to act as Secretary.
It was further decided to have an All India Convention at Delhi by the end of February.

Impunity of Gandhist Technique
"Twenty years of barren experience has exposed the impotency of Gandhist technique of non-co-operation. Already several years ago the technique was discarded by Gandhists themselves," says Mr. M. N. Roy in the course of a statement. Mr.
Roy says "If it is admitted that Fascism is to be fought, why fight shy of co-operating with others who are also engaged in the same fight?"

A statement issued by the Conference convened by Mr. M.
N. Roy recommends the formation of a National Democratic Union composed of all independent publicmen and of such groups and parties as may agree to join them who see great prospects of present situation.
Members are expected to act jointly only for the immediate common objects which inter alia include the defeat of Fascism and Nazism, secondly sharing of responsibility for the defence of India, thirdly eventual re-election to legislatures, fourthly the establishment of emergency ministries in provinces without any ministries, fifthly the inclusion of independent popular representatives in the Viceroy's Executive Council and sixthly democratisation of war efforts in order to make India's contribution more effective. To implement these discussions a Standing Committee will be set up.

iron and steel including ingots, plates, sheets, tubes, hoops, wheels, castings and bolts. The

ITALIAN PRISONERS ARRIVE IN BOMBAY

DESPATCHED BY SPECIAL TRAINS

TO BE DETAINED AT RAMGARH

A.P. Bombay: Jan. 2.

The first visible proof of the great victory won by the Imperial forces in the Western Desert reached Bombay last night in the shape of the first batch of Italian prisoners out of the 20,000 captured. The batch consists of 4 generals including the second in command of the Italian forces in Libya. 300 officers and 627 other ranks.
They arrived in Bombay yesterday and were immediately despatched by special trains to Ramgarh where they are to be detained. Four generals however were sent by another train to a separate destination.
Vessels carrying the prisoners are berthed and the officers were escorted in batches of 50 each to the shed where arrangements have been made for food and rest. The rank and file similarly were taken out to a separate shed reserved for them.
Four generals were specially accommodated according to their status. The prisoners were escorted all the way from Egypt by Indian troops who looked most fit after their journey in the desert and sea journey.

While they stood attention at the gangway from the ship, the British troops with fixed bayonets were stationed on both sides of the jetty. After meals which the Italians appeared to relish well and a short period of rest the officers and men were marched to Victoria Terminus en route to Ramgarh.

Military and Police made elaborate arrangements for the march through streets. The prisoners consisted of men from different units of Italian forces in Libya. According to the Italian Colonel they included men from infantry, artillery, engineering and supply services while there were also airmen and members of black shirt militia. The Col. stated that they had been very well treated. They were captured around Sidi Barrani and near Buq Buq and their journey to Bombay occupied 12 days. The Generals are General Gallina, Second in Command of Italian Forces in Libya, General Armando Pes-catori, Divisional Commanders and General Mazzari. Some prisoners are mere boys and a few of them carried knickknacks rescued from their Libyan debacle. The prisoners were marched to the railway station and entrained in the troops trains. In another part of Victoria Terminus the Generals entrained an upcountry mail train where the officers' car was attached. The generals were medals and decorations and some of them had won Military Cross of British Empire in the last war.

ALL INDIA INDIAN XIANS CONFERENCE

Appeal To Leaders

A.P. Lucknow, Dec. 31.
Five resolutions were passed by the All-India Christian Conference which is being held here.

The first resolution expressed grief over the imprisonment of several men and women in the country, specially the heavy sentence passed on Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

The second resolution stressed the need on the part of the British Government for fixing a definite date after the conclusion of the war for the establishment of full responsible government to India. As a preliminary to the establishment of that, a national government responsible to the legislature should be formed at the Centre without delay.

The next resolution appealed to the leaders of different political parties, particularly Mahatma Gandhi and Mr. Jinnah to agree, and the convening of a conference of various important parties and interests in the country for the purpose of framing a constitution on a national basis.

Indian Science Congress

Sir Radhakrishnan's Welcome Address

A.P. Benares, Jan. 2.
Government's policy with regard to heavy industries such as motor, engines, aircraft, and ships was criticised by Sir Radhakrishnan, Chairman of the Reception Committee of the Session of the Indian Science
Congress which opened today.

"We are sorry that our resources, natural and human, are not adequately developed," he said. He added if Governments of States employed science for profit and destruction, it was elevated human slaughter into a cardinal virtue. Science was a means and would have to be harnessed to the proper end.

Presidential Address At Science Congress

A.P. Benares, Jan. 2.
The 28th session of Indian Science Congress was opened today by the Governor of the United Provinces in the presence of a large gathering of scientists from all over India.

Sir S. Radhakrishnan, Chairman of the Reception Committee welcomed the Delegates and Sir Ardeshir Dalal, President of the Science Congress, delivered the address.

Today's proceedings closed with a vote of thanks by the Governor.

Sir Dalal's Address

Sir Dalal stressed the value of research in industry and pointed out that science could help utilisation within the country of some of the raw materials which could not now be exported owing to war. Science could also be of assistance to make India self-sufficient of such materials as were vital to her economic and industrial life now that acute situation had arisen owing to stoppage of import of many essential commodities.

Industrial Potential

Sir Dalal said experience had proved that no nation however peacefully inclined could expect to live an independent existence unless highly industrialised. It was industrial potential that was convertible into war potential and the country which had the highest industrial potential convertible at the shortest time into war potential that stood the best chance in modern warfare. It was necessary for India's very existence that she should be highly industrialised.
He welcomed the constitution of a Central Research Board and suggested besides meeting of immediate war needs the board must have scope to draw long term industrial schemes which could be worked after war.

Referring to the position in raw materials Sir Dalal said with the position regarding non ferrous

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

POLICY OF WAIT AND SEE

(From our correspondent)
New Delhi, Dec. 30

In spite of the old policy of "wait and see" which is in evidence in New Delhi, it is going to happen to the Government. Mr. M. N. Roy and his associates are trying to rally non-Congress leaders together. What will be the line of action? Sir T. B. Sapru and Sir C. B. Bhabha are having a long talk with the Congress leaders. What will the Congress do after the first stage of its campaign is over? And what will be the line of action after the other big parties like the Muslim League and the Hindu Mahasabha? All these questions appear to be in the air. The week saw a message to India which certain sections of Parliament published on the 28th. At the time of its arrival, it was a number of prominent members of the Central Assembly in connection with the Railway meetings, but it was not clear whether it was a practical proposition or the reason that it was virtually nothing at this juncture is virtually nothing. In the meantime a new city has been built by certain sections of the European community in this country. One European newspaper demands that we should get a Government in India which would have a greater representative Indian character and which shall command the confidence not only of those who want to see this country from any European or Indian leaders but of those who wish to see national industries which will be a guarantee for future freedom. In other words to leave aside for the present the purely political approach and get down to the economic approach.

Silence and Suspense

There is on the one side and suspense on the other is in this unhappy atmosphere. It is only after the return to New Delhi towards the end of January that some further elucidation of the Government's intentions may be forthcoming. After the new Commander-in-Chief also have assumed office, it is a man capable of wide sympathy and imagination in initiating a new National Defence policy in this country may be possible to know then whether this change in personnel will bring about a policy so far as the demand of this country for the association of the elements in the control of Defence is concerned. In the meantime all these new men in this country and in the world as regards the general constitutional position is one of deep dissatisfaction. It is not clear how far it is in stronger terms. Mr. Vernon Bartlett, an Independent member of the nine signatories to the League of Nations, has said in his appeal to India. He says that the failure to win Indian support would be the greatest disaster imaginable not only to the Commonwealth but also to the cause of free men everywhere. He calls upon the British Government to give a "definite and definite" promise for the introduction of "Dominion Status." Equally characteristic is the comment of "the Associated Press" which also reached New Delhi this week. It says that the new officials in India who feel that the divisions are a useful excuse for inaction, but there is no wisdom in prolonging the Viceroys should renew his efforts to long India together through their own efforts should go out from this country to attempt it. As a people we are not ready to admit that we have no indication of the way in which the official section of the British Government is revealed in the Viceroys' speech. The comments have been welcomed in official circles in New Delhi.

Viceroy's Meaning

It is exactly that the Viceroy mean by reference to the August proposals to a National Government? No one can say it is yet available, but from such statements as are available from the Viceroy, one can surmise that it is based on the claim that even under the existing

Prof. K. T. Shah's Lecture

ON MUNICIPAL ADMINISTRATION

From our correspondent

Mysore, Dec. 30

The Municipal Councilors who were elected from an organised party should devote their attention to the establishment of Municipal banks, Municipalisation of electricity, water supply, milk supply and other needs. To enforce these far-reaching changes, the presence of an organised party in the Municipalities was necessary.

This was the view expressed by Prof. K. T. Shah, Secretary Indian National Planning Committee and the delegate of the Bombay University last evening in the course of a talk to the local journalists in the residence of Mr. M. C. Mallappa.

Mr. Mallappa entertained Mr. Shah at tea. Replying to several questions of the journalists, Mr. Shah was of the opinion that there should be a party system in the Municipal administration and in fact that he has considered view two years ago and as the time passed on he was firmly adhering to that view.

He added that the Calcutta Corporation was considering the establishment of a Municipal bank. He was glad to learn that the Bangalore City Municipality had adopted a resolution favouring the establishment of a Municipal bank in the city.

In general Mr. Shah referred to the various economic problems of the country and asserted that India could be completely industrialised within five years beyond recognition provided the people were at the back of the economic reconstruction. He said that the Rangoon Mission, Mr. Shah was of the opinion they were the inevitable outcome of the war and the industries as envisaged by the Mission were for the successful prosecution of the war and had nothing to do with the general economic condition of the people.

provisions of the Government of India Act the Governor General's Council has great potentialities for power and initiative. It is pointed out that matter coming within the Governor General's "discretion" are strictly limited and that even in these matters it is open to the Governor General to consult his Council. In other matters which relate to the ordinary administration of the Government of India the Governor General's Council is the final deciding authority except that in certain cases and under certain circumstances the Governor General can overrule his Council. So the contention is that if there is an Indian majority in the Viceroy's Council composed of people who can claim to be representative they will be in a position to determine the Government's policy. And further it is stated that the official element may be reduced to the minimum and there is no reason why the most important portfolios should not be entrusted to the new political members who join the Viceroy's Council. The general assumption upon which this contention is based is that ordinarily it will be very difficult for the Viceroy to go against the advice of his Council and that if the latter has as is proposed a substantial Indian majority, it will be in a position to carry out and initiate a national policy. According to the point of view of the only serious objection is on the subject of responsibility to the Central Legislature. Official circles apparently feel that if the Viceroy's Council is to be dependent for its existence and policy on the vote of the Central Legislature it may be too risky an experiment for the war period which above all things requires speed, efficiency and freedom from undesirable political influences. Unfortunately even the August offer of the Viceroy is so vague that unless and until it is fully amplified and explained, the claim which has been put forward on the subject is hardly likely to receive serious political attention.

Marriage and Divorce in India

Resolution in All India Women's Conference

Bangalore, Dec. 30

This Group mainly discussed Dr. Deshmukh's two Bills on Separation and Divorce and the necessity of a comprehensive enquiry into Hindu Law with a view to making it just and equitable to women. Only thus we feel, will a divorce law be really practicable and effective.

Regarding the two bills of Dr. Deshmukh dealing with Divorce and Separation, it was felt that these bills were defective and will give rise to a lot of confusion.

It was therefore considered advisable that the questions of legal separation and that of Divorce be dealt with in two separate bills. The following suggestions for amendments to some of the clauses of Dr. Deshmukh's Bill has been made:—

(1) The custody of children should be left to the discretion of the Court—the mother being given the preference ordinarily.

(2) Maintenance should be given by the husband to the wife and for each child separately. The Group feel that the Divorce Bill that was drafted at the Half-yearly meeting held at Baroda in 1938 covers all our demands and therefore it should be given full consideration.

It was brought to the notice of this Group that the Government of India have appointed an enquiry committee to look into the bills of divorce and inheritance for Hindu women which are already before the Central Legislative Assembly. This Conference suggests that a resolution be sent to the Government to urge that no piecemeal legislation be undertaken and that the Enquiry Committee should be asked not merely to look into the Bills before the Assembly, but to make a comprehensive enquiry into the questions of marriage, divorce and property rights of Hindu women as a whole and to take evidence from the A. I. W. C. and other representative women's organisations.

We understand that the Women's Sub-Committee of the National Planning Committee have also submitted similar views on this question earlier. It was proposed that the Conference draw up a memorandum containing its demands and suggestions and present it to the Committee appointed by the Government.

We further suggest that Mr. V. V. Joshi of Baroda and at least two women nominated by the A. I. W. C. should be on the personnel of that Committee. The following names have been suggested:—

- (1) Rani Lakshmbai Rajwade
- (2) Mrs. Asat Ali
- (3) Mrs. Lakshmi N. Menon
- (4) Mrs. Sharadaben Mehta

A Sub-Committee should be appointed by the Conference to draw up the Memorandum mentioned above with the co-operation of all the Branches. Lastly, we suggest that the Branches of the A. I. W. C. should endeavour to secure the support of those members of the Central Legislative Assembly who happened to reside in their respective provinces so as to ensure the passing into law of the Bills referring to the rights of women.

Congress and Elections

(M. A. G.)

As the Mysore Congress has decided to contest seats in the coming elections for the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council, it is well to note the various measures adopted by the Indian National Congress with regard to the organisation of election to the legislatures in British India and the continuation of the activities of the Congress Members therein.

At the Lucknow Congress (April, 1936), it was resolved that candidates should be put forward on its behalf to contest seats in the elections for the legislatures in accordance with the mandate of the Congress and in pursuance of its declared policy.

(ii) That the All India Congress Committee should place before the country prior to the election, a manifesto explaining the political, economic, social and educational programme of the Congress in conformity with the resolution passed by it from time to time.

(iii) That the Working Committee should be authorised to appoint such Boards or Committees, as might be necessary to organise election to the legislature as well as to guide, co-ordinate and control the activities of Congress members in the legislatures.

At the meeting of the Working Committee held at Wardha on 27th, 28th and 29th April 1936, a Parliamentary Committee consisting of 8 members by name and the presidents of all Provincial Congress Committees was constituted in order to take such steps as might be necessary in connection with the organisation of elections to the legislatures.

The Congress Parliamentary Committee met at Wardha on 1st and 2nd July 1936 and appointed the Provincial Congress Committees to form Parliamentary Committees in their respective provinces.

At the meeting of the All India Congress Committee held at Bombay on 22nd and 23rd August, 1936, the Election Manifesto was passed.

The Panchayat Session of the Congress was held on 27th and 28th December 1936, and approved the Election Manifesto as passed by the A. I. C. C. and directed the holding of a convention of the elected members and the members of the A. I. C. C. after the elections.

In 1937 the Working Committee appointed a Parliamentary Sub-Committee consisting of Messrs. Abani Kishan Azad, Vardaman Patel and Rajendra Prasad to keep in close and constant touch with the work of the Congress parties in all the legislatures in the provinces.

SIR ALBION BANERJEE

Bangalore Jan. 3

Sir Albion Banerjee, ex-Dewan of Mysore arrived last evening from Mysore, and is staying at Kumara Park.

He will advise them in all their activities and to take necessary action in any case of emergency. It was also authorised to deal with bye-elections in co-operation with the Provincial Congress Committees.

Mr. K. F. Nariman appealed to the Working Committee against the decision of the Bombay Legislative Congress Party electing Mr. B. G. Kher as Leader of the Party. Mr. Nilakanta Das also made a similar appeal against the election of Mr. Biswanath Das as Leader of the Orissa Legislature Congress Party. In both these cases the Working Committee refused to interfere with the decision of the Party, so long as the election was properly conducted and was not vitiated by fraud or undue influence. In the case of Dr. Kher also the decision rested with the Party. Dr. Kher's letter of resignation was placed before the C. P. Legislative Congress Party for acceptance and the members of the party were invited to elect their own Leader.

At the meeting of the A. I. C. C. held at Bombay on 24th to 27th June 1939, the following resolution was adopted. The Working Committee has laid stress on the desirability of co-operation between the Ministry, the Congress Party and the Provincial Congress Committee. In administrative matters the P. C. C. should not interfere with the discretion of the Ministry. In matters of policy if there is difference between them, reference should be made to the Parliamentary Sub-Committee. Public discussion should be avoided.

A SYMPOSIUM

(From our Correspondent)

Mysore, Jan. 1.

Under the auspices of the Mysore University (Union) a symposium took place last evening in the hall of the Maharaja's College under the presidency of Dr. Gyanchand of Patna.

"Individual Freedom and authority in the Modern State" was the subject for discussion.

Dr. A. Appadorai of the Loyola College, Madras, speaking first, stated that while the 19th century was the age of the individual the present century has been the age of the State. Freedom he said was not the absence of restraint and it was of reasonable restraint and it was meant for providing opportunities for all. Considering it from that point of view there was at present greater freedom for the individuals as social justice was better secured to the poor by the State through various laws. The various legislations were meant for the happiness of all. At the same time, looked from another point of view individual freedom was absent in the Modern State.

Imperialism, war, propaganda and similar other causes had taken away the freedom of the individual. Freedom was inconsistent with imperialism and war at all times denied individual freedom. The control of public opinion by the State was another recent factor in the suppression of the freedom of the individual. The speaker quoted examples from modern Germany and Italy. He felt that non violence and collective security were not fitted to secure world peace and that some sort of federation was needed to put down National Sovereignty. He finally said that the freedom of the individual depended upon the intelligence and alertness of the individual.

Prof. S. V. Puntambaker of the Benares Hindu University next spoke. He referred to the connection between the Mysore and Benares Universities and paid his tribute to the memory of the late Maharaja Sri Krishna Raja Wodeyar, who was the first Chancellor of the Hindu University. He stated that Mysore which was the capital of Karnataka was the modern Vijayanagar.

Referring to the subject under discussion he felt that in the modern state, and even in democracies some sort of tyranny exists by way of the majority rule over the minority. The curtailment of the freedom of individual was due to the enormous activities of the modern State. In the welfare of the people the State had to suppress the freedom of the individual.

to a certain extent and it was better to be ruled by good laws than by good men.

Dr. B. M. Sharma of the Lucknow University felt that though good laws existed good men were needed to execute them. He supported a strong central hand in the state that could control the individuals in the interests of all. The individual should possess freedom to make only healthy criticism.

Dr. K. B. Krishna of Andhra said that political ideas must correspond to realities in life and that political ideas should be studied with historical specification. He referred to the freedom of the individual through the different periods of history and stated that political and historical heritages have to be considered.

Dr. Gyan Chand, the president summing up the discussion said that the individuals and their quality were essential for building up society. The technical advancement in the modern age had curtailed the liberty of the individual. He pleaded that thought should not be standardised as economic life was being standardised.

Mr. T. Krishnamurthy, Secretary of the Union proposed a vote of thanks.

TO THE EDITOR "DAILY NEWS"

Congress and Municipal Election

The Mysore Congress has achieved a phenomenal success at the recent Municipal elections both in Bangalore and in Mysore Cities. Everybody—both Members of Mysore Congress and Members of both Congressmen and Congressmen should be proud of this success. This is the first time that the Congress has contested the municipal elections. The success that it has achieved is an incentive to all Doubting Thomases. The Congress has reached the public mind. The people have recognised the services being rendered by the Mysore Congress. Even leaders of public, who have been rendering public service since several years, like Messrs Pamidi Subbaiah Chetty and N. Balakrishnaiah, were unable to retain their seats. By returning Congressmen to all the 23 seats, both in Bangalore and Mysore Cities the voters have expressed their definite view approving the policies of the Mysore Congress.

Now, what is it that we expect from the Congressmen in the Municipal Council? It is but natural that the masses expect Himalayan achievements from them. But calmly thinking, it appears to me, we cannot expect from them anything more than what we expected from all the preceding Municipal Councils. Any resolution, such as enhancing the free supply of water or reduction of taxes or anything of that sort stands the chance of being turned down by Government and without Government's approval no action can be taken on the resolutions passed by the Council.

But there are still many things in which the Government may co-operate with the Municipality such as slum clearance, the measures taken to solve the problem of housing for the poor and middle classes, the encouragement of indigenous industries of medicine within the Municipality, opening more dispensaries, hospitals and maternity and child welfare centres, establishment of places of recreation for the poor, the under-ground drainage works etc. In each of these spheres of activity much is still to be done.

The problem of housing has not been tackled sympathetically. It is true that every year and then new extensions are put out and sites formed. But the benefit is it to the poor middle class people who cannot afford to buy sites paying hundreds and thousands in a year. Some method should be found which can help the poor and the middle class man to have a house without having the necessity of paying a lump sum for the house on the site upon which it is built. This is entirely within the sphere of the Municipality. The Congressmen will be in the Council for three years. Let them have a three years' programme of house construction and construct within this period at least one or two hundred houses and give them to deserving poor and middle class persons on hire-purchase system, by doing this they will be rendering more service to the people than when they merely lay out extensions and sites and auction them to the highest bidder, who will generally be a 'money-bag' eager to invest his money on buildings and earn rents.

The indigenous system of medicine needs more encouragement. The encouragement given to it so far by the Municipal Council is very meagre. When more dispensaries are opened they should be put in charge of qualified and efficient Ayurvedic or Unani doctors. I hope the Congress Municipal Councilors, with their spirit of swadeshim, will give this matter its due attention.

The drainage scheme will be speeded up and concluded quickly, on it depends mostly the health of the citizen.

The house taxes were recently enhanced and naturally the house-owners shifted the extra burden on to the heads of the tenants. This happens every time the Municipality enhances the taxes. There is absolutely no law to control the charging of house rents or to protect the interests of the tenants. If the tenant is unable to pay the rents promptly there is the civil court whose help the house-owner may seek to collect the rent and to eject the tenant. But when the house-owner will levy more rent than what the financial resources of the tenant can warrant or when he fails to effect the repairs necessary to the building or when he does not keep the lavatories, drains etc., in sanitary condition, or when he divides the house to small tenements allowing congestion, there is no law to help the tenant in the matter. We expect the Congress Councilors to have a Rent Act or some legislation of that sort passed.

With regard to conflicts that may arise with the Government regarding water supply, street lighting, sanitation and health etc., we have no doubt that the Congress Councilors will consider every issue not merely from the view-point of the self-respect of the individual councillor or the political institution to which they belong but also of the larger interests of the people.

The Congress Municipal Councilors will not be able to render that service which they want to, if the people at large forget them after the excitement of elections subsides. It is upto us, the common rate-payers and residents, to let them know of our requirements and also to render to them that much of co-operation which they desire, so that our expectations of them may be fulfilled. In all advanced countries there is a practice of the elected representatives meeting their constituents periodically so that the councilors may report to the people the work done by them and so that the people may acquaint the Councilors as to what their requirements are. But here no such practice prevails. The Councilors meet the rate-payers only when they go out for canvassing votes for them during the succeeding election period. I hope that the Congress Municipal Councilors will follow the procedure of meeting the rate-payers very frequently, at least once a month and knowing their requirements. For this purpose ratepayers' associations may be organised in every division. The associations will provide the platform for the Councilors to speak before their constituents.

These are some of my ideas. Such items of public utility may be multiplied. But for the present I close and I wish the Congress Municipal Councilors all success.

C. Subbasastry.

Some Needs of Traffic of Balepet Sir,

Along with the proposed linking of Gandhi Nagar and A. Srinivasachari's street by means of a new road, the following services seem very necessary:—

(1) The confluence of several busy streets in front of the Majestic Theatre, is getting dangerous. The Bus and Jukka stands and the three "cinemas" in that locality attract crowds during all hours. Close by stands the temple of Sri Narasimha Swamy. Its carshed (ಶಿವ ಮಠ) and the protruding frontage obstruct our view both ways, giving room to accidents. The Upperpet Police Station, hidden as it is by the side of the temple, cannot extend its usefulness even to so near a place as the mouth of the Kilari Road. To avert danger and to beautify the temple the following improvements are triable:—

(a) The shifting of the carshed to the opposite open space in the south of the sacred fig tree (ಶಿವ ಮಠ).

(b) The substituting of an ornamental fence of stout-iron for the frontage of the temple. The present wall is over 6 feet in thickness and there is no need now-a-days for such fort walls. In case a wall is desirable, a cement one of 9 inches thickness will answer all purposes. If the present rather uncouth Gopuram has to stand, two huge windows are to be put up at the east ends of both the northern and southern walls. They should be protected with stout bars but have no doors at all, so that the people may see what all moves towards them from the opposite direction.

(2) Streams of Passengers of half a dozen lanes of Balepet flow beside the Majestic Theatre to go to Railway Station. A part of the traffic may be diverted if the road in front of Purnali's Chattram is continued across the Municipal garden straight to Cottonpet. In that case a plot of land in the S.W. end of the garden will get separated into a beautiful building site, which if sold in bits, will fetch a rich income. What may remain of the garden will form a compact rectangular strip instead of the now-irregular flag-like lay out.

Scenes from Mysore School Life

PRINTING AND BOOK BINDING CLASSES

For the convenience of High School students of Kolar, Gold Field and the neighbouring areas, Robert College has started a new centre for the S.S.L.C. examination from 1941 onwards.

The annual report furnished by the Chief Medical Inspector of Schools is a mine of useful information. With a view to making copies of these reports available to all the full time and part time medical officers and the Chief Medical Officer of the Department, Government have permitted the printing of two hundred copies of the report.

Though printing and book binding were included as an additional subject for the revised S.S.L.C. course, provision has not been made in any of the aided High Schools even in the cities of Bangalore and Mysore for the teaching of the subject for want of teachers. With a view to helping aided High Schools in the Cities of Bangalore and Mysore, students of these schools have been permitted to attend classes in Printing and Book binding conducted in the Government Presses at Bangalore and Mysore, subject to the proviso that the total number of pupils in each class including those coming from Government High Schools does not exceed 12 per year.

With a view to minimising dislocation of Scout Work in schools Inspecting Officers have been instructed to see that as far as possible vacancies caused by the transfer of teachers who are Scout or Cub-masters are filled up by teachers who are also Scout and Cub-masters.

Bangalore City—January 4, 1941.

The 'Kesari' and the 'Mahratta'

It is with very great pleasure and pride that we join in offering our hearty felicitations to the 'Kesari' and the 'Maharatta' on the completion of sixty years of useful, meritorious, patriotic service in the cause of the country and its freedom. The above two organs of public opinion are house hold words in Maharashtra. In All India they are indissolubly associated with the name of Lokamanya Balagangadhar Tilak. It is he that founded these papers six decades ago and used them as instruments of his service to his people. In the History of India's Freedom Movement, Tilak's name stands in golden colours on its pages. Tilak is a synonym in India for Swaraj movement of more than sixty years, from 1860 to 1920. There was no movement in India connected with India's freedom which did not include Tilak's name. Tilak was a born Kshatriya in spirit though he took his birth in an orthodox Brahmin family. His life is a Maha Itihasa. It reads like an epic. On his atlantean shoulders Tilak carried the burden of India's movement. He braved all storms and made the enemy quail in his shoes. This is not the occasion to detail Tilak's life. But it is necessary to bring back to our mind the gigantic personality of Tilak Maharaj, when considering the life history of the 'Kesari' and the 'Maharatta'.

Sixty long years have run their course. The above two papers which started in humble circumstances are mighty institutions today spreading their effulgence, splendour and beneficence to all the corners of India, nay of the world. The life history of those two papers unravels the history of journalism in India. Its trials, travails and tribulations are reflected in the history of these two papers. The struggles they had to undergo one could see written in letters of tears. Loknaitya "Tales" himself was for some time a companion to his paper; he himself set the types and he himself paid the machine. Almost every night he sat up to 1 A.M., while a stream of papers in addition to a small library, were that he turned out. The massive strain heaped on him, sometimes the agony he underwent, sometimes the need of a hospital to ward off some water-borne fever, Comrade Vengal Sarathi in his story of a student, started, continued, and the faded story, Loknaitya, he entered moments of sleep.

intervals of conversations. We cannot be Tolaks. We should remain a distance, do Pranam to him. Today, the "Kesari" and the "Maharatta" are the proud possessions of the nation, they are legacies left to us by the great Lokamanya.

His devoted disciple and successor, Sri Narasimha Chintamani Kulkarni, in the last twenty years, piloted the affairs of the 'Kesari' and 'Maharata' Trust and brought them to their present position of power and prosperity. The public charities to which the earnings of the above two papers are too numerous to mention. Gaikwad Wada, where the offices of these two papers are situated is a place of pilgrimage to all patriots of India. It is the home, nerve centre, and soul centre of Poona's public activities.

In conclusion, we wish continued prosperity to the 'Kesari' and the 'Mahratta' and the worthy gentlemen, who are at the helm of the affairs of these two national institutions. Long live the 'Kesari' and the 'Mahratta' the beloved offspring of Great Lokamanya!

OUT OF BOUNDS FOR LADIES'

Places known as prohibited areas spring like mushrooms in times of tension and during war. utilitarian concerns are well guarded by armed military to prevent possible intruders. Sabotage, incendiarism and the like are feared if allowances of entry go unchecked. The Government of the land proceed by virtue of the powers conferred on them by the Defence - Acts in force to name certain places as strictly prohibited areas. We find in our own; City certain places shut for strangers. Trespass is punished with hard labour which might run to a couple of years or more.

But when Municipalities are posed for the 'Fair Sex' by virtue of the powers of whims and fancies conferred on the powers that be, a mild sensation is created. 'Out of bounds' are the words that prevent our sisters from enlisting themselves for civic work. We hear platitudes on sex equality. We clap our hands when women assail men for their shortcomings. We applaud our sisters for their humanitarian bent of mind but when it is the question of sharing any civic work with them we turn back. Why should our Municipality be 'out of bounds' for them? We had a cultured lady as our worthy Vice-President. But alas! all these have vanished like thin mist.

Our Municipality should evince more interest so that ladies are given the fair deal. They are a desirable lot. Aren't they? Government erred on the wrong side to have kept these ladies out from the sacred precincts of our Municipality. When the Capital City of Mysore has among its members, Bangalore cannot but have aged behind. Our civility is untarnished. We have crossed the 'out of bounds' line and admit our sisters as members. Let none of our civil body. Let not ladies rebel a

Mechanization of Mysore Army

Vicker Machine Guns for Mysore Infantry

Owing to the mechanization of some of the cavalry units of the Indian Army, the Government of India have presented to Mysore State 150 surplus horses for the use of the Mysore Lancers. Seventy-seven remounts were added during the year 1940. Further improvements in this process of mechanization are that the Mysore Lancers and the 1st Battalion Mysore Infantry have been armed and equipped with 4 Vickers machine guns each. In addition, the 1st Battalion Mysore Infantry was equipped with 12 Lewis guns against 14 authorised. The question of arming the unit to the prescribed standard is receiving attention.

Several officers and men of the Cavalry and Infantry Units attended, as usual, courses of instruction both in and outside the State. Individual and collective training of the units was carried out according to block programmes based on the trainings manuals, training memorandum, etc., received from the Army Headquarters from time to time. It is gratifying to note that the signallers of the Mysore Land Force have maintained a high standard of efficiency. The discipline of the Army was well maintained. There was no court-martial during the year.

The total expenditure under the head 'Army' was Rs.1619720 during the year against Rs 1566788 in the previous year.

The Mysore Serum Institute manufactured sera and vaccines on a larger scale during 1939 for the control of contagious diseases of live-stock and poultry in the State. The products of the Institute were supplied to many places outside the State and to the Mysore Civil Veterinary Department, the total quantity supplied being 2,54,540 doses and 3,64,932 doses, respectively.

Government have also sanctioned the addition of a block of buildings for the Research laboratory and the Museum of the Institute and the construction of these is under progress.

this wanton omission. If it is an oversight—we do say let it be rectified. If it is deliberate we are very sorry to say that it is wholly unchivalrous. "Women are the books, the arts, the academies, that show contain and nourish all the world"—So said Shakespeare and our benighted Government should go the whole hog to declare that women are not so conscious as to become the torch-bearers of city's civic interests. No 'out of bounds' for our damsels. Let us be at least chivalrous.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I offer my hearty congratulations to Messrs. G. Venkatakrishna Rao, and M. S. Shankara Rao on their securing the first rank and the second, in the recent Mysore Civil Service Examinations. I understand about 42 young men competed for these places. I would like to add a word of consolation to those, who have not secured the first two places. As in all examinations, there is an element of chance which determines the result. It is human to try and leave it to Providence to dispose.

The two young men whose names were announced day before yesterday have entered the so-called "Heaven Born Service". Lloyd George coined the word "the steel frame" to the order of the Civil Service. I have known many civilians, Indian and Mysorean. I have to confess that my experience of some is not happy. They consider themselves to be very superior beings, high above the common run of mankind. This superiority complex does a lot of harm to the people whom they are expected to serve, and also to themselves. Perhaps our Indian civilians have borrowed this trait from their English and Anglo-Indian brothers of the fraternity. Whatever may have been their behaviour in the past, the times have changed and they have to adjust themselves to the new order of things.

In Mysore, the "Boregowda" is awakened. He knows his rights and responsibilities. He is aware that the Government is running at the expense of the tax that he is paying regularly. Consciousness has dawned on him that Government is a machinery set up to serve him, and all the officers and officials are only his paid servants. This attitude of the ryot is the right attitude. And so the two young men who have entered the Mysore Civil Service are entering into a plane of activity which has lost much of its old charms and is beset with new thorns. Kindness, affability, smiling welcome to all and sundry, willing and patient ears to petitioners and last but not least, spirit of humility and service are needed in the civil service men of the present day. That air of vaunting superiority and smothering superciliousness has no place in the order of civil service today.

I am not indulging in such or a homily. I know civilians too well to attempt such thing. But I may say one word. Ability, competence, efficiency, sense of justice and fair play are as much necessary in a civil servant as tact, quick decision, diplomacy (in its right sense of the word), and human understanding. A civil servant more than anything else should impress on the people around him with his dignity, character and high sense of duty.

Mysore civilians have earned a high reputation among the civilians of the world. They have shown a quick adaptability to the changing circumstances of the day. There are many civilians wanting in Mysore who are in hearty sympathy with the surging popular movements around them. I have nothing but praise to the Mysore Civil Service.

It has been my good fortune to know a good number of civilians from their boyhood. Some of them have been my class mates, my school mates and college mates. In their school days and college days they were known to be very good students. Mr. M. Venkatesh krishnaiya, the born teacher, that he was used to pick from the mass of students some bright boys about whom he predicted that they would occupy big positions in later life. His predictions have come true in the cases of a few of his friends. It is not appropriate to mention the names of these students. It is enough to say that some of these civilians used to show great promise even in their school days. There are very few "dark horses" among civilians. I do not say there none. Life is a gamble, and so are competitive examinations.

I would add one word in Government is a machine. I thought to work like a machine. Civilians in it are so many wheels. They are apt to be mechanical and mechanical parts of the big machine. They must not lose their soul and become mere automations. They must keep living touch with life and literature. After all, life is the saving grace of a man engaged in a routine work. I can point to a shining example. I have among Mysore civilians Mr. Masti Venkatesaiah who is as great a man of letters as he is a civilian.

The Congress President's Arrest

REACTIONS IN NEW DELHI

Increased Pessimism Noticeable

(From our Correspondent)
New Delhi: Jan. 4
Increased pessimism is noticeable in New Delhi regarding prospects of political settlement as a result of the arrest of the Congress President Maulana Abul Kalam Azad at this stage. Political observers—even those who had counted on possibilities of peace moves—take a depressing view of the situation and feel that for some time at any rate no approach is likely to be made for reopening negotiations with the Congress.

Official Attitude

The official attitude continues to be that so long as a challenge to Law and Order in the form of satyagraha movement continues no room exists for political negotiations. In the meantime a significant appeal has been made by Mr. Arthur Moore, in the columns of "Statesman" in which he says "I remain of the opinion that before this stage of war was reached India should have had Dominion Status." He wants the transfer of responsibility from the soil of England to the soil of India—in other words freedom from the control of Secretary of State of India—wants Viceroy "To invite persons to join his Government as would lead to his popularising and intensifying war efforts and ensuring fullest economic development of the country." He says if the Viceroy is freed from his responsibility to the Secretary of State for India "I would inevitably create in the Viceroy a moral responsibility to Indian people in a degree which is to-day entirely lacking" and that the Viceroy would then have Government which would be approved of to a far greater extent than the Executive Council of the last quarter of a century.

The comment still heard in official quarters on the political situation is that the August 1930 of the Viceroy if understood in proper spirit could be made use for the National Government provided the political situation was concerned were ready to meet that.

Protecting Mysore's Livestock

NEW DISCOVERIES PERFECTED

The most outstanding work of the Research Section of the Mysore Serum Institute, during 1939-40, is the development and perfection of vaccines against rabies in dogs and anthrax in sheep, goats and cattle. Apart from the perfecting of these useful vaccines, Mysore's scientists are constantly at work to find new remedies to tickle the ravages of diseases amongst livestock.

Investigations on John's disease among cattle in Mysore subsidised by the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, has been extended for a further period of one year from 1st August 1940 at a cost of Rs. 300, half of which will be met by this Government and the other half by the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research. An epizootological survey was undertaken amongst Dairy Cattle and sheep of the imports as well as indigenous breeds and valuable data has been collected.

The scheme of investigation of diseases of fecting poultry on prophylactic methods has been extended for one more year during 1940-41, pending the starting of the general scheme subsidised by the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research. The Veterinary Research Officer engaged himself in the preparation and standardisation of new biological products such as anthrax saporin vaccine, anti-rabic vaccine, coryza or roup vaccine, Fowl-pox vaccine, poultry worm capsule, Ranikhet vaccine, and ranikhet immune serum.

INDIA GOVERNMENT'S POLICY TO NEW INDUSTRIES

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi.

Undoubtedly there is considerable dissatisfaction still that despite the energy shown in the matter of giving technical training to workers the policy of the Government of India in the matter of the development of Indian industries leaves a good deal to be desired. So far as immediate war requirements go there is both energy and initiative, but what about preparation and organisation for postwar industrial development for which ample scope and opportunity are now available. The attitude taken up by the Government of India towards the starting of heavy industries like automobile manufacture is particularly regretted as lacking vision and imagination.

HOW AMERICAN OPINION HAS CHANGED IN 1940.

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph New York Correspondent cables:

As 1940 draws to a close and one examines the position of the United States as a non-belligerent ally of Great Britain, it is impossible not to be impressed by the great changes which have taken place in American public opinion.

Twelve months ago, asserts the magazine "Fortune" in a survey appearing in its January issue, the attitude of the people of the United States to the rest of the world was one of detached awareness which found expression in such remarks as "Well they're in the same old jam again over there - may be this time they can get along without us".

"At the year ended," says "Fortune" "the shift in their mood had proceeded so far that it appeared to have become an irreversible reaction." Today the American people stand foursquare behind Great Britain. They are determined to do everything that lies within their power to help the British people to defeat Hitler. They still hope this will not involve fighting, but they are prepared to fight if necessary.

So solidly is the nation committed to the axiom that Nazism must be defeated that it is difficult to see how the groups who are opposing the policy of aiding Britain can do more than employ delaying tactics. In his fireside chat on the 29th, President Roosevelt will undoubtedly put them to rout.

Indian Soldiers' Bravery

Sir Sikandar Hayat Khan's Appreciation

New Delhi, Jan. 3
Sir Sikandar Hayat Khan's appreciation of Indian soldiers part in the battle of Western Desert given in a message, has been received here. He said: "After the magnificent part in which they played so important a part, their prestige as friend and foe alike is at its highest. Italian prisoners whom I talked said the Indians are so quick with bayonet that the enemy have no alternative but surrender. Alike, Muslims, Hindus, Sikhs in regiments and in auxiliary services, vied with each other in the devoted service and the efforts of regiments are complemented by the unceasing work of medical and transport services. Dr. Genl. Sir Malet Wilson told me that the Indian troops are well trained with high morale and they have been successful not only in steady positions, but also in repelling counter-attacks and in constant advance. Although subjected to heavy land and air opposition the Indian soldiers continue to advance unshaken."

IS FRANCE DEAD?

A RECENT BROADCAST

BY JOSSLEYN HENNESSY

Why did the French not hand over their fleet and air force to Britain before signing the armistice?

Josselyn Hennessy discusses this and other current questions about France in a talk recently broadcast from Delhi on All India Radio. Mr. Hennessy worked as a special correspondent in France between 1936 and 1937 during which period he became acquainted with many French statesmen and politicians.

IS FRANCE DEAD?

This was a question which I asked a few weeks ago, and I was exceptionally well-informed. Free Frenchmen who recently passed through India.

He replied in an indignant and emphatic "No".

"Why then," I asked him, "did the French Government in dispatch the French fleet and air force to British territories before signing the armistice?" He replied (I said) make no mistake, the French Government signed the armistice; the French armies were defeated in battle; their defeat was due to mistaken strategy and tactics but any one who makes a mistake, we do not blame you for mistakes but we find it difficult to understand why you did not hand over the fleet and the air force?"

His explanation was one that I have not seen published before. He said the French High Command was convinced that with all the Channel ports and all the French air bases in German hands, bringing the enemy to within an hour by sea and a few minutes by air from our commerce centres, Britain would be defeated within the shortest possible period. No one in France imagined that Britain could survive. No one, I said, was this view solely confined to France; there were many sympathetic observers in America who last June—how long ago that seems now—thought that Britain's chances of winning the war were poor. A neutral British observer who visited the Government circles in Washington at that time reported that the U.S. Government "had recon- sidered" its attitude towards Britain's defeat was not a question of 'if' but 'when' France's collapse was a tremendous shock and American isolationists, envisaging British defeat, were even urging the abandonment of shipment of supplies as they thought all shipment would be needed to meet the Nazi menace to America.

In America, four thousand miles away from Europe felt like the French armistice. The French leaders on the spot, in the midst of the running of the defeat, may have given if they felt no confidence in France's future. The French High Command considered that they would only gravely worsen the armistice terms which they might expect from the Nazis if they sent to Britain their fleet and their air force, which then argument ran—would in any case fall to Germany in the near future.

That the French leaders had made a profound mistake was now clearly realised by them, my French friend told me. More than that, he pointed out that a large proportion of the people of France themselves had become convinced that Britain would win. He reminded me that when the negotiations for a final peace between France and Germany broke down, one of the reasons for this failure was that authoritative German sources was that so many French people were convinced that Britain would win. It was useless to negotiate further with people in such a foolish state of mind which as long as it persisted would prevent them from entering into the spirit of Germany's new order for Europe. He also told me that M. Laval had bitterly denounced the B.B.C. broadcasts in French as being responsible for putting absurd illusions into the heads of the French.

Letters smuggled out from France report that B. B. C. broadcasts are widely heard even though attempts are made to jam them. Listening is not for hidden into the non-occupied zone, though it is by no means encouraged.

The "Gringoire," a notorious anti-British sheet published in Vichy-France, reports bitterly that "it is impossible to walk along the streets without hearing B.B.C. poison pouring out from every door and window."

DAKAR

"What about Dakar?" I asked my friend, "why did de Gaulle's expedition there fail?" He replied that General de Gaulle acted on cast iron information that an overwhelming majority of the French in that area were ready to receive him. There are, however, he pointed out, a certain number of French soldiers in England who have not joined the Free French movement and whose repatriation has been postponed following the German sinking of the Melnes, the ship in which a large number of them were being repatriated from England. Unfriendly individuals amongst these, he said, had got wind of de Gaulle's impending expedition and had found means to communicate to the Vichy Government through neutral channels, these channels communicated not only to Vichy but to the Germans, who immediately ordered the French to send picked men to certain French battlefields to Dakar and also instructed Vichy to order those French leaders in Dakar who might be expected of being favourable to de Gaulle to be dispersed in places in the interior of the Colony.

My French friend admitted that this was set back, but he insisted that it was only temporary and that the Free French movement was growing by leaps and bounds every day throughout the French Empire.

VICHY'S MODIFIED ATTITUDE
Britain's continued successful resistance to Germany and her notable victories over the Italians in Africa have had the most profound repercussions on the Vichy Government.

They have awakened the Vichy Government to the reality that Britain far from being about to collapse before Germany like a pack of cards shows every sign of vigorous life.

While it would perhaps be too much to say that Britain's successes have changed Vichy's policy from one of abject appeasement to one of resistance, it can definitely be said that they have revived the hitherto stunted force of public opinion in France and have undermined the position of the abject appeasers. Already some weeks ago M. Baudouin, as well as the Permanent Under-Secretary of the Foreign Office, resigned in protest against M. Laval's abject policy. The next development has been the infusion of sufficient fresh hope in Marshal Petain's breast to decide him to get rid of M. Laval. This does not mean that we can expect some dramatic renewal of the war against Germany by Metropolitan France; this would be a physical impossibility; but it does mean that the Vichy Government realises that it possesses a considerable amount of nuisance value to Germany which it can exploit against Germany. The Vichy Government can always say: "If you press us too far, we shall not be able to retain our control of the French Colonial Empire which aided by British arms will go to war against you." A glance at the map of the Mediterranean sea shows how dangerous this would be for the Axis powers.

M. Flandin now replaced M. Laval as Foreign Minister. When I used to know M. Flandin in France some years ago, he had the reputation of being very pro-British and he liked to visit his distinguished English friends clad in a Norfolk shooting jacket with a jaunty looking feather in his soft hat. Whether he is pro-German today or not, I do not know, but my information is that whatever his views, there is no question of Marshal Petain and General Weygand agreeing to the voluntary delivery of the French fleet into Hitler's hands or allowing German troops to move through non-occupied France.

MARSHAL PETAIN

Marshal Petain and General Weygand are willing to try the experiment of cooperation with Germany, but obstinately refuse to make certain concessions which Britain, Germany and the blackmailed Vichy French Empire could then use to strong enough to reject.

Marshal Petain still the French looks with the approval an extreme and British order and himself recently instructed the French radio to stop their violent attacks upon Britain. I have heard hard words said of Marshal Petain but from personal acquaintance with him, I feel able to say with confidence that whatever one may think of his judgment and policy, he is no traitor but a sincere and honest man who will do his best for his country according to his lights.

Meanwhile the French home public, though passive and not anxious to take any more fighting men, is distracted by the Franco-German cooperation, and still places its hope in British victory. Further, the French colonies are beginning to be made the subject of a revolution which, if it is strong, will be used by Vichy to conclude one, would probably lead to their rejection of Vichy's leadership.

I expect that an early settlement between France and the Axis will be the result.

Though M. Laval has apparently willing to go to the extreme limit of concessions to Germany and his newspaper Le Monde supported an extreme anti-British tendency, other voices have been raised. The great French paper Le Temps recently wrote: "It would be an insult to the French people if certain material advantages weighed down the scales in order to facilitate acceptance of the concessions."

A GERMAN VIEW

And now here is remarkable opinion of a high German staff officer attached to General Von Stuepnagel, Military Governor of France, given in an interview with the Indian newspaper "Regime Fascista":—

"A French revolution is impossible now because France has been disarmed and is impotent, but many Frenchmen still hope in their hearts for a British victory."

Collaboration with the invaders was not as simple as the Germans only had contact with the peasants, but, says the German officer, "since the return of the middle classes, passionate propaganda against us has developed. A revolution might come 'the moment' we leave and release the two million French prisoners who constitute the youngest and the most vital part of the French people." The "Regime Fascista" charges Nazi propaganda among French prisoners.

The existence of widespread opposition in France, especially in the occupied territory to the policy of collaboration with Germany is also recorded by the Vichy correspondent of the Swiss newspaper "Neue Zuercher Zeitung".

Pro-British sentiment is rising rapidly in France and many young Frenchmen are attempting to escape to join the British forces or General de Gaulle's, French citizens

Bangalore City—January 5, 1941.

The Ensuing Elections

We have been publishing the names of candidates who have stood for the ensuing elections to the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council. We confess it is impossible to publish all the names in our paper. In this connection, we have to observe that it would do well for candidates to place their programmes and policies before the electorate in an unmistakable manner. Personal or communal canvassing is undesirable, as it is the interest of the candidates but also to the interests of the country. No candidate should be anxious to show himself out from any voter. The voter should be left unmolested to what the candidate stands and should be made to think about the respective merits of candidates and their policies and programmes.

This in effect, leads us to enunciate a proposition which is worthy of consideration at the hands of our authorities. Vigorous canvassing and propaganda is necessary and no obstruction to any candidate or candidates should be placed in exercising free right and prerogative of publicly convincing the electorate and canvassing its sympathy to himself. To put it succinctly, there should be no ban of meetings or speeches. There should be no ban on free use of loudspeakers. What is wanted is no undue influence is brought to bear upon any voter. No man in his sense, in this twentieth century would class under undue influence, public meetings, public speeches, and loudspeakers. They are the creations of this age. And they are necessities of this age. To deprive any candidate or candidates of the free use of the above means of propaganda is an undue interference on the part of the authorities in the rights and privileges of the candidates and the electorates. We are emphatically of the opinion that the Government officers should keep their hands off these elections. They have no right of voting or whatsoever they like. They have no right as Government servants to do propaganda for any candidate or candidates or to do propaganda against any candidate or candidates. We hope and trust that the Government would use strict discretion to their officers to keep their hands off the ensuing elections. We trust in the Government about this.

On this occasion let us forget the bitter memories of the past. Let an atmosphere of hope, cheer and trust prevail in the ensuing elections. In conclusion, we would append here a small note which appeared under the editorial columns of the "Statesman", in the issue of December 30.

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam has told the All Mysore Congress Committee that Congress candidates at the Municipal elections in the cities of Mysore and Bangalore have encountered no manner of official interference. He maintained, however, that there had been serious official interference in the elections which had taken place in Mysore's municipal. Mr. Bhashyam has made it clear that Congress in that State is bent on using its opportunities in a constructive spirit. This assurance deserves to receive attention from high authority in the State, as does the allegation that there is one policy in its political and administrative capitals and another in the interior districts.

We would earnestly invite the attention of our Government to the above lines. We have every confidence that they have already received the attention of the highest authorities.

THE SNORING HABIT

The community sleeping necessitated by the raging war in England has created innumerable problems and heavy snoring is one such which is worrying the powers that be. The Ministry of Home Security have ordered four million earplugs to be distributed to those who suffer from their proximity to a snorer. The hoarse rattling noise which emanates from the nose at intervals or in some cases almost continuously make community sleeping a nuisance. The grunting noise in multitudinous tones is awful especially if the other person who sleeps by his side suffers from insomnia. The snorer has a peculiar characteristic of forgetting the other's inconvenience and goes on snoring unmolested. In India thanks to our poor standard of life, various noises emanate from different parts of the body.

If snoring through the nose is an offence against decency, continued coughing through the mouth is equally disturbing. The man or the woman who is fond of talking while asleep provides another problem. Various theories are put forward by those who converse under the spell of soporiferousness. Apart from all these, snoring bristles with difficulties. No doubt earplugs go a long way but this forced device creates another problem for persons who occupy the same room not community sleeping, as is the case in England, but elsewhere. The talented researcher will certainly find an answer to this question.

LEGAL

Alleged forgery

Bangalore Jan. 4. The application filed by Mr. S. K. Venkatarangam for transfer of the case of alleged forgery, against him, of the will of the late Muninanjappa, from the file of the Asst. Sessions Court to the Sessions Court, is posted for hearing by the High Court on Jan. 8. Mr. Justice Subrahmanya Iyer also passed an interim order staying further proceedings before the Assistant Sessions Judge, pending this application. THE LATE MR. MUNINANJAPPA'S WILL

Bangalore C. & M. Station
Dt. Judge's Observations

Bangalore Jan. 4. Mr. P. Medappa, District Judge C. & M. Station, Bangalore, dismissed for default the suit filed by Mr. K. M. Narayana Reddy against his mother Mrs. Laxamma and others to prove the genuineness of the will alleged to have been executed by his father, the late Mr. Muninanjappa.

His Honour had given 12 adjournments and in spite of that no evidence was produced. It was stated that the will was in the Courts in Bangalore City. His Honour observed in the course of the judgment, that there was no difficulty in producing it now, but the counsel for the plaintiff had retired. His Honour continued:—"The manner in which this case has been conducted and the surrounding circumstances indicate that it was never the intention of the plaintiff to go on with the evidence in the case. Very serious allegations had been made about the genuineness of the will and the part played by some persons in the writing of the will. The failure to prosecute the suit only goes to emphasise the allegations in the objections of the counter petitions and the submission made by the learned counsel for the defence who was found to have been murdered."

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The Christmas week has come and gone. So also the New Year Day. We are at the end of the first week of the New Year. From to-morrow Mahatma Gandhi will renew the Satyagraha movement. As if catching the time by the forelock the bureaucracy have arrested Maulana Abul Kalam Azad at Allahabad. Maulana Saheb returned the courtesy saying "I thank you very much. You have saved me from further trouble of offering Satyagraha."

This arrest has already produced its reactions in the country. It is said that the alleged offensive speech was made on Dec. 13 and the warrant was issued on Dec. 29. Thank God, the Allahabad police waited for Maulana Saheb to arrive in Allahabad. They allowed the Old Year to pass and the New Year run the course of a few days.

It is futile to exercise our thought on this arrest and its repercussions. What is going to happen in future none can divine. This much is certain, that Gandhiji will do all in his power to keep the movement within the limits of non-violence.

It is strange that while Maulana Azad is clapped and Pandit Jawaharlal is rotting behind the prison bars, Mr. M. N. Roy should be puping in Calcutta, and rallying anti Congressites. The very fact that Dr. N. B. Khare, R. P. Paranjpye are there, is enough guarantee that Mr. Roy is bound to fail in his mission. I am perplexed about Mr. Roy's moves. His name has no doubt appeared in the London 'Times' with a patting patronage. But the 'Times' backing carries no success in India. Mr. Roy would do well to check himself and create no diversions to anti-Indian journals.

Sir Puttanna Chetty Town said that some Americans took her to a gypsy and asked her to read their palms. This shows that the "Land of Miss Mary" has belief in palmistry. In India, palmistry is an old science. It has the halo of Rishis around it. In the hands of impostors, science and practice of palmistry has fallen on evil days. I think it requires earnest efforts of the science to resuscitate this ancient and most interesting science. I wish some enterprising palmist would convene an all India Conference of Palmists. I am making this suggestion open with a view to canvassing sympathy of earnest people to a dying science.

While I am writing about palmists and palmistry here, a story of a palmist who was robbed by two visitors. This is a story from Lucknow. Two people named Mahala and Bahadul went to Mr. Ramnayan, a palmist, to consult about their future prospects and threatened to throttle to death if he did not pay Rs. 20. The palmist gave them as much money as he had, as soon as they had gone, raised a hue and cry which resulted that those two were arrested and brought to the magistrate. The magistrate found these two and observed as follows: "Having money from a helpless man of seventy with dire threat is a serious offence and can be too lightly treated." They were sentenced to eighteen months rigorous imprisonment.

I have narrated this story, cause a palmist is involved. I wonder if the above story read the palm of those correctly. If he had done, he might not have had them the correct things to happen.

3rd Match:— Played against Devacotah Cricket Club. C. C. 152 runs. (S. S. Prabhakar 64 K. Thimappa 28. Chandru 5 wks for 28. Vasogopal 3 wks for 57. K. S. Prabhakar 124 for 9 wks. and 29. Venkatarangam 20. Gopal 25 (not out) K. Thimappa 4 wks for 20.)

Unrest in Italy

The Fascist Party is having more and more trouble in trying to make the Italian people understand Italy's participation in the war on Germany's side.

Opposition against the Mediterranean war is growing. An inspired message from Rome gives this excuse for the reverses in Albania: "Italy has to fight on seven fronts." One is the home front. The six others are Albania, Egypt, the Sudan, the Dodecanese, the Channel and at sea.

As for the internal front, it is reliably understood that at Turin on December 31, 400 people were arrested for carrying posters, "Abbasso i Tedeschi" ("Down with the Germans").

Underground opposition is increasing in other industrial centres.

OUR CINE REVIEW

PIONEERS OF INDIAN CINEMA

(By Bee)

The Indian Film Industry to-day is 26 years old. I must give a brief history of the two pioneers of the Film Industry in India. They were Mr. D. G. Phalke of Bombay Presidency, and Mr. J. F. Madan of Calcutta. It is said that Mr. Phalke, while strolling one day along Bombay Chowpatty, saw on the beach a group of people watching a cinema. He bought a ticket and went in, and there he saw a vision take shape on the screen that he could never forget. The picture that was shown was about the life of Jesus Christ. The thought struck him, if the image of Lord Krishna could be shown in place of Jesus Christ, what great attraction that would be for Indian masses!

Pioneer's Task

Phalke attended several shows of the same picture and the idea of producing an Indian picture took deep root in his mind. He pledged his life's savings and sailed for Europe on February 2, 1919. Phalke's only assistant in the early experiments was his devoted wife, who shared with her husband the heart-breaks and triumphs of those early years.

Phalke faced financial difficulties from the very start. Although he had selected mythological story about King Harischandra for his first picture, no financier could be persuaded to supply the capital for such an experimental venture. This made Phalke adopt an ingenious plan. He pledged his wife's ornaments, and with the money he got, he produced some topical shorts just to prove that Motion pictures could be made in India.

Phalke got thereafter ready financial backing and India's first full length picture 'HARISCHANDRA' was made. Its total length was 5,706 feet and the picture was released at the Coronation Cinema, Bombay in April 1913. After producing most pictures, Phalke again went to England in 1914 and returned with new machinery and equipment. Between 1913 and 1915 he produced 21 Indian films the last of which 'LANKADAHAN' proved a roaring success. It is said that when the film was shown in Madras, the money from the Theatre had to be taken in a small tin box and carried to the place.

Mr. Madan

Mr. J. F. Madan started his life very humbly, working up his way from the position of a dealer in wines and provisions in Calcutta. In the early years of the current century he was attracted by the possibilities of the Cinema and started with touring cinemas as an experimenter. With the experience thus gained, he built Calcutta's first Cinema theatre, Elphinstone Picture Palace, which today houses the Minerva Cinema. Within a few years he constructed show houses in every important centre of India and number of Cinemas operated by him rose to nearly 100.

It was J. F. Madan, who truly laid the foundation of the cinema industry in Bengal. He was the first Exhibitor, the first Distributor and the first producer in Bengal and up to the time of his death Madan maintained his position of leadership in that industry.

Madan started production activities in 1919 and his maiden venture 'BISWA-MANGAL' was released in Calcutta on November 8, 1919. He built Bengal's first motion picture studio at Tollygunge, which is now known as the Tollywood Studios.

Short film depicts his life and work

"Very few people seem to know anything about the RIN" declared Rear Admiral Herbert Fitzherbert, C.B., C.E., Flag Officer Commanding Royal Indian Navy, shortly after he took over command at the end of 1937. To-day the average man can obtain a very good picture of life in the Royal Indian Navy from a film made recently entitled "He's in the Navy".

This Wadia Movietone short has been made in English, and all the more common Indian languages. The photographer was Dr. P. V. Pathy, British Paramount News Representative in India, and it was directed by G. R. K. Genge, of D. J. Keymer & Co. Ltd., who wrote the scenario and spoke the English commentary.

"India's coast line stretches for more than five thousand miles, and guards her shores from the South and North being sturdy boys." The film begins with a brief shot of the coast taken from the air, changing to a view of the coast from the shore of a branch of recruits and from there it follows the recruits to the RIN barracks. The hero of the film is a good looking seaman called Zahir, whose engaging smile enlivens the sequences throughout.

In rapid succession he is passed as medically fit, enrolled and sworn in, given his uniform and equipment, and learns to distinguish the different badges of rank. There follow a very smart March Past staged by recruits with only 3½ months training, shots of the Gunners School and Mechanical Training Establishment, and finally Zahir and his companions after boat drill go out to sea. There they take part in manoeuvres which include the practice bombing of their vessel and the lowering of depth charges into the sea a foretaste of what might happen to vessels of the RIN patrolling the seas round India. "He's in the Navy" ends as Zahir's ship steams away under cover of a thick smoke screen.

An officer of the Royal Navy to whom the film was shown expressed his surprise at the comprehensiveness of so short a picture, and the enormous number of activities it enabled the public to see.

Investigations for manufacture of margarine for British troops have been taken by two big Indian firms on suggestion of the Board of scientific industrial research. The Board set up an exploratory committee for surveying the existing position of essential oils required particularly for soap industry and the investigators have been asked to submit programme of investigations which may lead to development of oil industry in India. An extensive programme of research has been drawn up for utilising vegetable oils mixed with mineral oils as lubricant.

Italian Attitude To Badoglio

Growing Unpopularity Of War

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph Lisbon Correspondent cables

Increasing numbers of Italians are looking to Marshal Badoglio, late Chief of the Italian General Staff, as the man of the future. He is regarded as the one outstanding leader who is not compromised, either politically or in a military sense by the reverses in Libya and Albania.

It is commonly believed in Italy that he warned Mussolini beforehand of the magnitude of the Greek undertaking. Badoglio replied that the Greeks would offer only token resistance and the campaign would be a walk-over. Therefore he sent only about a quarter of the troops. Badoglio declared to be necessary.

Whether this was the reason for Badoglio's resignation is less important than the fact that many Italians believe it to be. His prestige increases rather than declines as a result of successive military reverses.

By many he is regarded as the only man capable of saving Italy from the threatening disaster. It is believed he would be ready if events called him.

In the eyes of the public, Ciano, the Foreign Minister, shares with his father-in-law Mussolini blame for the Greek fiasco. Indeed he is believed in many quarters to be the instigator of the disastrous adventure.

While Badoglio is their chief hope the Italians are aware that the Nazis may have quite a different idea of Italy's future. Large number of German officers are now in Rome, ostensibly as technical advisers of the Italian army. German aircraft are also much in evidence and are daily flying low over Rome.

Travellers who left Milan, a few days ago report, however, that there was then no sign of German military activity in Northern Italy. All observers bear witness to the great unpopularity of the war among all classes in Italy.

DEMAND FOR PAKISTAN

Mr. Jinnah Explains The Scheme

A. P. Bombay, Jan.

Reiterating the Muslim League's demand for Pakistan, M.A. Jinnah in an address to the Muslim Progress Society and Muslim Youth Majlis, asked whether it was possible to have unitary central government over the sub-continent of India which would govern 400 million people. Explaining the scheme of Pakistan he said Muslims were not out for dominating whole of India and they had no machinations and designs to dominate Hindus. What a Muslim League wanted was Muslims, should have an opportunity to have their own governments in two zones which considered as their home and develop their own economy.

Mr. Jinnah asserted that had not yet heard any general arguments advanced against Pakistan scheme and said by consummation of Pakistan the atmosphere would prevail in the country. Mahatma Gandhi, Congress and the Hindu Mahasabha, he said, wanted the unity of India. They would never let it, but they would get probably two-thirds if they would not be greedy and give Muslims third and be done with it.

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

DEFENCE POLICY DISCUSSED

INTERESTING FEATURES OF NEW YEAR HONOURS

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, Jan. 2
The New Year has opened in an unusual atmosphere of quiet in New Delhi. A look round the Secretariat Offices this morning when it reopened after the Christmas holidays found the officials either discussing the honours list issued yesterday or answering greeting cards received for the New Year. Certain important official functions will take place in the Secretariat during the next few weeks. The Reforms Commissioner, Sir Hawthorne Lewis, who by virtue of his position has played a leading role in the Government of India's Council for over a decade, is going on leave at the end of the month for a short holiday in Ootacamund before taking up the Governorship of Orissa. No official announcement has yet been made regarding his successor. At the moment owing to the suspension of constitutional discussions the Reforms Commissioner's office is not very much in the public eye, but as at any time a new situation may arise which will bring constitutional questions to the forefront, its importance is great. It has also to be remembered that as the Reforms Commissioner is the Chief Adviser to the Viceroy on constitutional problems he holds a position of considerable influence. Both Sir Hawthorne and his predecessor, Sir James Duff, were known to be liberal minded, but in the present situation it would be a good gesture if this important office is offered to an Indian. There are not Indians wanting to fill this office, but it remains to be seen whether the desire to increase the number of Indians in key posts—sadly lacking in the past—will be in greater evidence this year.

Defence Policy

Another high official, who also will be leaving the Government of India this month is Mr. Dow, the head of the Supply Department, who has been appointed Governor of Sind. As his duties as Vice-President of the War Supply Board is not to be filled up the question of appointing a successor, Indian or non-Indian does not arise. The hope however is that owing regard to the assurances given in the Central Legislature in the recent discussions of the Standing Finance Committee, Sir M. Zafarulla, the Member for Lahore, and his Secretary, Mr. Jenkins, will at least in part appoint a larger number of Indians to the Department. The most important official function expected this month is the award of the new Commander-in-Chief, General Auchinleck. There is no more any controversy over the question of Indianisation of officer ranks, for the very needs of the war require the recruitment of hundreds of Indian officers and their training on the most modern lines. What is however required is a change in policy which will bring the Defence Department into the relationship with the people's representatives. Formerly the Commander-in-Chief used regularly to attend the Council of State as a member and take part in debates on army questions, but this practice has now gone into disuse. There is general demand in the country for an Indian Defence Member. As it is really by convention rather than by virtue of any provision in the Government of India Act that the Commander-in-Chief is also the Defence Member, the question of the moment is whether the time has not arisen for having a separate Defence Member—a non-official Indian—who can represent the Defence Department not only in the Viceroy's Council but also in the Legislature. This would leave the Commander-in-Chief completely free for his Military duties and throw on the others the responsibility for constitutional functions. As much depends upon the attitude which the new Commander-in-Chief will take, if not actually his initiative, his arrival is being eagerly looked forward to. One reason for a certain measure of hope in the public mind is that General Auchinleck is believed to have large Indian sympathies and the capacity to initiate far-reaching policies.

New Departure

One interesting feature of the Honours list issued yesterday was the inclusion of certain prominent industrialists and research workers who are helping the growth of industries. If this may be taken as evidence of the Government's recognition of the need for a rapid policy of industrialisation and the useful part which Indian industrialists can play in organising new industries, this is all to the good. The knighthood conferred on the distinguished pioneer in industrial research, Dr. S. S. Bhatnagar is welcome for this reason; for it emphasises the importance of industrial research and the need for actively promoting it in every way. Another pioneer who has been similarly honoured is Col. Chopra, whose work in developing indigenous industries is known throughout the country. Industrialists and financiers like Lala Shri Ram, Mr. S. D. Saklatvala, Sir Homi Mehta and others. Men cannot take us far. A useful step has been taken in organising a Board of Scientific and Industrial Research which has already been able to show the vast field open for industrial research. In addition to it there should be a body attached to the Central Government of prominent industrialists who will be able to organise industrial planning on a large national scale and advice the Government of India on the measures to be taken. Such a body is necessary to secure co-ordinated effort by the Government and industrialists together. Just as the Government has been able to secure a research worker on the type of Mr. Bhatnagar for organising industrial research they should be able to secure the services of industrialists also for organising new industries—as is now being done in other countries. A resolution on the subject of industrial expansion will probably be tabled by the Congress Nationalist party in the next session of the Central Assembly.

Thought For The Day

There is no man suddenly either excellently good or extremely evil.

Sir P. Sidney.

Daily News

Bangalore City—January 7, 1941.

India Government's Industrial Policy

Mr. Wanchand Hinachand, the great industrial magnate of India, in a heart-rending statement to the Press, condemns the attitude of the Government of India towards the Industries, of Aircraft, Ship-building and Automobiles. He has given facts and figures to prove that the policy of the Government has been very unsympathetic and arbitrary. Mr. Wanchand puts it what the Indian Industry and Indian public want is positive and vigorous action and not defence and appeasement. He says that the Government should not be afraid to take a strong policy. Press Communications have ever well argued and whatever their total number be, cannot build up Industries. In the present conditions of emergency, Government should give up their usual policy of restriction, but promoting and strengthening Indian Industries and they must cease to continue zealously, the claims of various key industries for assistance or protection more with a view to finding out loopholes in such schemes than to further them.

The irresistible inference of the public will be under such circumstances that the whole outlook of the authorities is fundamentally wrong because instead of trying to overcome difficulties there is undue dilatoriness and a policy which can only be characterised as one of obstruction.

Let us take the instance of the Automobile Industry. Has not the Government communique side-tracked the broad issue of establishment of this Industry? Have not Government, as Sir M. Visveswaraya points out, consistently denied any help to this project previously, on the ground that they were bound by the conditions laid down in the Fiscal Commission Report? Have not the Government come forward with a new plea that they cannot consider the Automobile Industry as part of War effort? Are not Government wrong in assuming that this scheme is one of a mere assembling plant?

In any event, we feel that the attitude of Government is not only antiquated but also unproductive. We are inclined to agree with Mr. Wanchand Hinachand that this is one further proof of bureaucratic obduracy and dilatoriness.

In view of the statements issued by Sir M. Visveswaraya and Mr. Wanchand Hinachand we hope the Government would look into the question again and so all that is within their power to promote the above mentioned industries.

THE SPRIGHTLY CIVILIANS

Two Mysore youths have secured first and second places in the Mysore Civil Service competitive examination and have joined duty as young officers. Thirty long years of patient and laborious work are before them. The civilian's role in a well-ordered Government is both a pleasure and responsibility. Mysore youths have borne the brunt of this onerous work and have proved themselves second to none by their patient endeavours in keeping with the dignity and morale of our Civil Service.

These two youths who have become officers by sheer merit have to discharge many responsibilities from an Accounts Officer to that of sending a man to jail. They know their roles and are very clever in adjusting themselves to the needs of the existing order. Civilians have to go by codes, sometimes good and sometimes bad. Though they have powers of scrutiny and judgment, the red tape outwits them. The civilians are jacks of all trades but they are masters too. Civilians have performed miracles by writing accounts, by managing technical departments and giving our judgments. They try petty cases and have to question persons committing nuisance in public streets. They have to lay down rules of traffic and make endorsements on driving licenses. They are made to promulgate prohibitory orders and keep an eye on subversive activities. Civilians have to hush-hush with Boregoudas to collect rents. They have to sit in judgment over others. Sometimes they have to please and also displease others. Our civilians do these sometimes with gusto and sometimes with reluctance.

The service of a civilian is a period of varying enchantment. Graded salary flows into his pockets. If found unfit a civilian becomes an Amildar. Every young civilian aspires to become the Dewan or at least a Councillor. But the cry of Responsible Government has silenced the wish of many civilians. The brightest or the glamorous desire to become a Secretary to the Dewan or the Maharaja in which case his proximity to a great person turns him great also. The power-intoxicant desires to administer a district always. But the pious and the unassuming walks into an Audit office unnoticed. The civilian Assistant Comptroller is a person who shuns limelight. More so an Audit Officer.

A civilian knows no poverty and hence believes in aristocratic environments. He thinks that the world is also rich and the poverty of the down-trodden never pricks his heart. He hugs safety and more often trapped into mediocrity, unknowingly and ungraciously too. He is arrogant to his inferiors but always bending to his superiors. He likes pompousness in society and gets away from those who are less

HINDI CONVOCACTION

(From Our Correspondent)

Mysore, Jan. 5. Mrs. Rameswari Nehru, President, All India Women's Conference arrived here this morning and is staying at "Yashovilas" as the guest of Mrs. Yashodharamma Dasappa. The Annual Convocation under the auspices of the Mysore Hindi Prachar Sabha took place this morning at the Townhall under the presidency of Mrs. Rameswari Nehru. A large number of persons including many ladies attended the function.

On arrival Mrs. Rameswari Nehru was cordially received by Mr. Ambale Subramanya Iyer, President, and other officers of the Hindi Prachar Sabha.

The proceedings began with invocation by girls and the president was welcomed and introduced to audience by Mr. K. V. Srikanthiah.

Mrs. Rameswari Nehru distributed prizes to winners in various Hindi Examinations. She made a short speech stressing the importance of Hindi in Indian national life. She explained that it was easier to learn Hindi than English. Hindi was part of the common Indian culture while English was completely alien. She also pointed out that Hindi would not kill the mother tongue of people in different provinces but on the other hand it would by combination with other languages enrich them. She suggested to use Devanagari script. She congratulated the ladies of Mysore on their enthusiasm and support for Hindi and hoped that Hindi would be given its proper place. Also she pleaded for liberal grants for the erection of a building for the Hindi Prachar Sabha.

With a vote of thanks proposed by the Secretary and the singing of the national anthem the function concluded.

It is learnt that H. H. the Dowager Maharani, graciously accorded an interview to Mrs. Rameswari Nehru this afternoon at the Palace.

Mrs. Rameswari Nehru paid a visit to the local office of the Mysore Branch of the Women's Conference and in the evening presided over the third anniversary of "Matru Mandali" at Vontikoppal.

She also delivered a lecture on "Harijan Uplift" at the Townhall under the auspices of Mysore Harijan Sevak Sangha.

fortunate than him. He is sometimes more loyal than the King but evinces forced loyalty where political parties come into power. The civilian is at best a person more attracted towards power and all its intoxicant effects.

Mysore Civil Service though devoid of good many evils still retains some. The young elements who are recruited year after year will see that the service is free from many of these evils, which stifles healthy growth. Our congratulations to those two young sports who have joined the service this year.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Here is an item of interesting news from Dholpur. Following a strike of the Municipal sweepers in Madanpura near Shahpur State a band of society women took up the work of scavenging for three days. Equipped with broom sticks and spades these public spirited women quietly went about the work of removing the accumulated garbage and refuse and thoroughly cleansed the streets. The strikers who had been watching the society women at work returned to work without demanding higher wages.

I congratulate the society women of Madanpura. This reminds me of a parade in Bangalore of broomsticks and baskets held in the year 1933 under the romantic leadership of Nilagami Devi, otherwise known as Miss Nili Cramcock.

It was not society women that did sweeping in Bangalore but college youngmen. I do not desire to dwell at length on the romantic finish of the Bangalore campaign.

All India is observing in all solemnity the death anniversary of the Late Maulana Mahamed Ali. I also join in my humble way to add to the tribute paid to the memory of the great leader. There was dazzle and splendour in the Late Maulana. An Oxonian that he was, there was flash and wit in his utterances. It was a pleasant and exhilarating reading to go through the pages of his well edited weekly, "Comrade". It was indeed stimulating and exciting to read the controversial trade that flowed from the pen of that master writer. specially when he paid Lala Lajpat Rai in his own coin. I enjoyed reading "The People" edited by Lala Lajpat Rai and the "Comrade" edited by Maulana Sahab.

As a leader of men Maulana Mahamed Ali was unsurpassed. The success of the movement of the year 1920-21 was in a great degree due to the support of Ali Brothers to Mahatma Gandhi. The Big Brother, was like a lamb and the Small Brother was like a kitten before the Mahatma Gandhi. He was in the doctrine of sacred brotherhood pledged themselves to non-violence and dedicated their service to Mother India under the leadership of the Mahatma. The years 1920-21 were an epic period in Indian freedom history. India pulsed with a new spirit which overcame the British lion and England shake her mane. It is past history. But it is a humiliating memory.

The attachment between Maulana Mahamed Ali and Mahatma Gandhi was so intimate that I was touched with a scene which was enacted in the Madras Congress of 1924. Readers would remember Mahatma presiding over a session and Maulana Mahamed Ali had presided over the previous session which was held at Cocanada. Maulana Mahamed Ali transferred the responsibility of presidency from his shoulders on to those of Gandhi.

Here is the touching scene. Mahatma Gandhi came to the rostrum leaving his slippers behind. Maulana Mahamed Ali with those slippers in his hand came up to Gandhi and got down the rostrum, said "Here I am Sir, slipper bearer". There was a dry eye in the audience. Mahatma Gandhi stirred to the depths of his heart smilingly saying "Bhai".

It was unfortunate that these two great men could not be together for the common cause in the later years of Mahamed Ali's life. It is a chapter and I have no heart to dwell on it. The great Mahatma went to London as a delegate to the First Round Table Conference and died in the Indian Capital, so to say in hand. India mourned deeply at the loss of one of her great sons. One day the country cherished the memory in sweet fragrance. live the memory of Mahamed Ali.

HINDU MAHA SABHA RESOLUTIONS

Vir Savarkar Expounds

A.P. Bombay Jan 5
In a statement issued today Mr. V. D. Savarkar, President of the Hindu Mahasabha, gives what he describes as a correct interpretation of two leading resolutions passed by the Mahasabha at Madras on the subjects of "War Situation" and "Immediate Programme" of the Mahasabha.

DIRECT ACTION

He says the first resolution on war situation, framed the outstanding demands urged by the Hindu Mahasabha, and states in case no satisfactory response was made regarding them by the Government before 31st March, the Mahasabha would be compelled to take direct action with a view to get them fulfilled. The time in which this direct action should be conducted would be definitely decided upon after the above period lapses. These lines were bound to be read as not to come in the direct conflict with the immediate programme as adopted by the Mahasabha, resolution which was also passed unanimously at the session aiming at taking every advantage of the situation created by the war towards furthering the cause of militarisation and industrialisation of India.

MILITARISATION

These two resolutions were not only consistent with, but complementary to each other as they were framed and adopted in the light of leading principles laid down in the presidential address that no policy be adopted or action taken directly or indirectly which was likely to come in conflict with or at the sacrifice of the two main objectives of the war policy of the Hindu Mahasabha, namely, militarisation and industrialisation of India unless, indeed, it became possible in future under some new set of circumstances which could not be foreseen now to resort to means which would promise the certainty of benefiting the Hindu cause even more effectively than this "our immediate programme likely to do so."

ENTRY INTO ARMY ETC

"Consequently even if the Hindu Mahasabha is compelled to take direct action, Hindus all over India should continue to try their best to secure entry into army, navy and air forces, utilise all facilities that are being thrown open to get Hindus trained into military mechanics and manufacture of up-to-date war materials, try to make military training compulsory in schools and colleges, and join the civic guard, and Air Road Protection movements provided always that these organisations are not used against any patriotic political Mehta who congratulated the British workers on their heroic and unanimous decision to fight Fascism to the last and expressed belief that British workers were not only fighting in their own interests but in the interests of workers in India and therefore called on workers and masses in India to support the war against Fascism. The rally condemned the Congress and other "reactionary parties" for not supporting the war against Fascism.

LABOUR RALLY

Mr. M. N. Roy's Address

A.P. Calcutta, Jan. 6
"Let the voice of the Indian Labour be heard not only in this country, but across oceans, so that the world will admire India rising up to position of honour and dignity by contributing to the defeat of Fascism which will mean liberation of the world and India herself" said Mr. M. N. Roy, addressing the Labour Rally this afternoon.

Indo-British Labour Front

He proceeded, "The defeat of England will mean the slave of our fellow-workers in England. That will not promote the cause of Indian freedom. On the contrary, by defeating Fascism the British working classes will be the rulers of the country. Therefore we will form an Indo-British Labour Front in order to defeat Fascism and secure our common freedom. National prejudices and sightedness of certain leaders prevented the world class from recognising far reaching implications of present situation. Not to have the Indian National Congress adopted a policy amounted to helping victors of Fascism, even the Trade Union Congress which claimed to represent the interests of working classes has no practical purpose endorsed harmful policy."

Speaking on the objects of the Rally, Mr. Roy said that to make Indian workers conscious of their grave responsibility so that they discharge their role creditably. Having done that, they win for themselves as well for India as a whole a place of honour of a free and powerful nation.

MR. AFTAB ALI

Mr. Aftab Ali, M.L.A., President of All-India Students Union, addressing the rally maintained that the Government which could not help the working class in the country was the Government of the people and by the people. A Government could only be established in India by victory of British arms.

The speaker referred to industrial development in the country as result of the war which greatly benefit the working classes.

SATYAGRAHA IN BOMBAY

Terrible Air Crash

HARROWING DETAILS

Theories of the Happening

From our correspondent

Burnt wreckage of the plane recognizable was the only visible remains of the Indian National Airways' unlucky Ansonette which crashed this morning within a mile of Delhi Aerodrome. Evidently the machine crashed into ground and caught flame enveloping both Passengers and the Pilot whose charred bodies when extricated appeared almost unidentifiable. One of the two passengers, Lieutenant Colonel Walker seemed to have jumped out of the Machine tragically too late to escape death. The half burnt dead body was discovered lying in a field while his fellow passenger Mr. Rhodes and the pilot Mr. Khan were trapped inside the machine. When the plane took off this morning there was heavy mist rendering visibility extremely poor. Even Motorists on road this morning could hardly see beyond their nose.

The Real Cause

Reconstruction of the accident, the real cause of which cannot be known in absence of a single survivor leads so far to two theories. The first theory is that soon after taking off, the engine of the plane failed and the pilot was unable to make a successful forced landing due to poor visibility owing to mist. The alternative theory is that the pilot lost sense of direction in prevalent mist and while trying to reconnoitre the aerodrome, hit the ground without sighting it on account of invisibility caused by weather. The former theory strikes however to me more plausible in view of Lt. Col. Walkers leap for life. Marks on ground and location of parts give impression as if the ill-fated plane first had its tail struck to the ground, then it nose-dived and somersaulted resulting in the bursting of petrol tank causing instantaneous fire which burned the engine and men in it to cinders.

Bound for Lahore

Sir Andrew Clow Member of Government of India was one of the earliest to go and inspect the scene of the occurrence. The two passengers that were killed were important officials of the Home Department who were bound for Lahore in connection with air raid precaution organisation preparatory to a conference on this subject convened in Delhi. Lt. Col. Walker was appointed ARP Officer of Govt. of India in 1939 Mr Rhodes belonged to Indian Civil Service and was Joint Secretary in Home Dept. Prior to that he was Chief Secretary to Assam Govt. The Pilot Masud Hayat Khan son of Sir M. M. Hayat Khan of Gwalior joined services of Indian National Airways in 1938. He was only recently

Simla Exodus

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, Jan. 3

One interesting feature of the new law is the provision that, as the Viceroy's Council is to be elected by the representatives of the Simla circle, the Government will have to make a special provision for the election of the Viceroy's Council members. The Government have decided to which only the officers of Civil Departments with their personal staff were to go to Simla and the stay was also to be curtailed from six months to four and a half months. The former part of it was more or less strictly carried out, but the latter was given up. Two suggestions have been made for the Government's consideration. One is that the whole of the Government of India, both civil and military, should be transferred to New Delhi in summer months as a war measure. As far as the army authorities are concerned, the decision will have to be taken by the New Commander-in-Chief. Nothing can be said at the moment. There seems to be a fear that the military authorities may not be prepared to take the risk of a transfer to New Delhi as they have been in consideration.

The gathering also included Sir Kenneth Maxwell, Member, Sir Joseph Suman, Finance Minister, Sir Dew Chaw, Communications Minister, and Mr. Thomas, Director, Civil Aviation. The Bombay High Commissioner, Mr. M. H. Khan, Port Trust, who was invited as guest of honor, presided over the ceremony.

The Memorial Committee, headed by Mr. Thomas and also a member of Indian National Air Force staff were present.

Bangalore City—January 8, 1941.

Mysore's Trade

A Government press note gives an idea of the progress of Trade in Mysore during the year 1939-40. It is said that there was a distinct increase in volume and value. The total rail borne trade in merchandise registered an increase from 2,14,08,800 Railway maunds valued at Rs 20,53,36,32 in 1938-39 to 2,20,87,79 Railway maunds valued at Rs 21,73,86,122 in 1939-40.

Considering the question of trade in rice there was a decline under imports from 5.23 lakhs of pallas in 1938-39 to 4.54 lakhs of pallas during the year. It is rather strange that we should import such a large volume of rice to the State. Some time back we perused a note by the Director of Agriculture in Mysore with reference to such a large quantity of import of rice to Mysore. There was a good deal of surprise regarding the area of Paddy cultivation in the State. With the facilities of irrigation that we have in Mysore, it should be possible to grow enough rice that is needed for consumption in the State in also for export. We think some intensive propaganda is needed among our agriculturist population in respect of Paddy cultivation with a view to increasing the agricultural output.

Among other facts disclosed in the report is that the total rail borne exports increased from 7,213,109 Railway maunds valued at Rs. 8,38,03,804 in 1938-39 to 7,21,688 Railway maunds at Rs. 9,02,14,637 in 1939-40. Much of the trade that is not rail borne is not accounted for. This is a deficiency which we think should be made up.

Whether the trade returns are in our favour or not, is to be determined by the extent of the exports over the imports. If the exports are higher than the imports then we can say that we have a favourable trade balance. But can we say this of Mysore? We cannot. For the year 1938-39 the value of total exports amounted to Rs. 12,40,90,861, and the exports amounted to Rs. 9,13,00,000. In the year 1939-40 the value of the exports exceeded the imports by Rs. 1,20,00,000. This is a very small margin. The Government are paying an average of 3 annas every year for these imports more than they derive by the exports. This is really a drain. To this extent Mysore is getting poorer year by year. In spite of our new industries that Mysore should be obliged to have lesser export trade than import trade is really tragic. This is a state of affairs that requires to be remedied urgently.

The Mysore Chamber of Commerce and the merchant community should bestow their serious thought on this vital question which concerns the prosperity of the State and its people.

THE ELECTION INSTINCT

The Election fever is rampant in Mysore with all its good humoured instincts. Friends become election rivals overnight. Cinema star touch is given to those who stand before the public for votes. "I am so and so. I am the Hercules" are the common catch words for those who offer themselves for the people's suffrage. Election is certainly an hurdle for people to break their necks. Money flows freely despite official codes. The essence of service ingrained in the candidate goes to the winds where rivalry becomes keen and distasteful. Looking beyond or behind an election campaign one is tempted to say that all is not well with us. They fight for a principle but forget the fact that they are running into grave risks of provocation by calling the opponent weak and pusillanimous. The success of a candidate depends on his vocal powers of inspiring awe and reverence. When political parties fight the elections, their programme gets them votes. But individuals have an up-hill task to instil love and reverence where there are none before. The Bank balance of so many go up during elections when the same contracts in the case of a candidate. But the Government too take the pound of flesh by forfeiting the deposit of a defeated candidate—a case of pity abounding. Posters are displayed anywhere and everywhere and it is an irony of fate to witness the poster of an unsuccessful candidate who loses his deposit. The posters remain there as a monument to warn others who may run the same risk. Despite official rules coffee hotels become rich during election fights and courts have to sit in judgment over revisions. Ballot boxes are opened by virtue of the powers of a court officer and recounting results in utter defeat where there was a better defeat. All these are election instincts and if it is tinged with good-will and good humour the society shines with brilliancy.

Alleged Case Of Disorderly Behaviour

The case filed by the City Police under Section 56 of the Mysore Police Act against Messrs T. S. Subbanna, Ramarao, Ramakrishna Karanth, Sidarama, Setty, Rajam Setty and J. Swamydas, alleging that they behaved in a disorderly manner on the evening of 18th October last at Subbarayanahere when the Mysore Rashtriya Maha Sabha held a public meeting, came up for hearing to day before Mr. A. C. Nirvane Gowda, Second City Magistrate Mysore.

Alleged Attempt To Cheat For War Fund Collections

Dr. Gillespi of the Holdsworth Memorial Hospital, Mysore has lodged a complaint with the police that a certain person went to her with a typed notice stating that under the distinguished presidency of Mr. D. S. Srikanthakshmi Kantaraje Urs, A. D. C. to H.H. the Maharaja, a benefit music and Bharatanatyam performance would be held at the Jagannam Palace in aid of the war fund, that Mr. A. C. Lingaraje Urs would deliver a lecture on the life and the rule of the late H. H. Sri Mumtaz Krishna Raja Wadiyar and that everyone should liberally help the cause; and when he was asked to appear next day he failed to do so and on enquiry it was found out that the signatures of Messrs H. L. Devaraje Urs, D. Devaraje Urs and A. C. Lingaraje Urs contained on the notice were not genuine. The police have registered a case and necessary investigation is proceeding.

GOLD MINES OF MYSORE

Press Note

The deepest workings on the Kolar Gold Field are 1,743 feet vertically below the surface. Now all known methods of deep mine ventilation have been adopted by the mining companies to provide an adequate quantity of fresh and cool air at all the working places. The installation of an Ammonia Compressor Type Air Conditioning Plant for dehumidifying and cooling the downcast air in the Champion Reef Mine is nearing completion. In all the mines, large electrically driven fans have been installed in the main airways and small auxiliary fans are used to force a sufficient quantity of air through metal or canvas tubing to the ends.

The total number of persons employed in the mining industry in 1939 was 26,449.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I have been favoured with a number of sayings of the month. I pass them all to my readers.

"Out of all this suffering there is growing a harmony which we must carry forward into the days to come".

H. M. the King-Emperor, in his Christmas Day broadcast, December 25.

"We pray that men will grow mature enough to establish a new and just social and economic order".

His Holiness the Pope, broadcasting from the Vatican, December 24.

The British people are irrevocably resolved to give India full political freedom".

British M. P.'s in a message to India, December 23.

"We kept our heads in defeat, we shall keep our heads now in victory, for our task is less than half completed".

Sir A. Sinclair, Air Minister, in a Christmas message to the R. A. F. overseas, December 25.

"One man, and one man alone, ordered the Italian soldiers to ravage their neighbours' vineyard".

Mr. Churchill, broadcasting to the Italian nation, December 23.

"Adolf Hitler is called upon to be the leader of the world, unhampered by anyone".

Dr. Frank, Governor of Nazi-occupied Poland, in a speech broadcast from Warsaw December 21.

"And then we have our wonderful child, which would bring joy to the most miserable of human beings".

Rome radio, December 19.

Here is a tribute to and expectation from youths. They are expected to smash dictators.

Here is the extract.

"For all their frenzied propaganda it is youth that the dictators fear the most. They know that whatever power they can contrive to seize at the expense of one generation will be challenged by the next. The steadfast bearing of the free peoples look forward beyond the victory that will be won by fighting to the new world that must be won by work, and thought, and honesty of purpose hardened by tribulation in the light of that determination. Hitler's 'New Order' is exposed as of no more worth than the paper Reichsmarks which he pours out in plundered countries".

I am told that in hundreds of villages of Maharashtra "Kesari" is practically the only paper known to the public. The word "Kesari" is in the villages synonymous with a newspaper. In parts of C. P. the Nationalist journal "Maharashtra" is called by the village people as the "Kesari of Nagpur".

This is no strange phenomenon to Maharashtra alone. Even in Mysore villages every newspaper is called "Vrithanta Patrika".

This is only a testimony to the fact that that paper was the first to penetrate into villages.

This synonymy is no blessing in all cases. If a mistake should occur in any blessed paper, people would attribute it to the most widely circulated paper. I have known people coming to a Kannada newspaper office of occasions are only enjoyed though at the expense of a good reputation.

Bangalore seeing the mistake some paper and then their action on the wrong man.

The word "Kesari" reminds me of one funny occasion was several years ago when I was in Madras, working as a newspaper office, one afternoon I went with a colleague to a nearby coffee hotel.

Talking about the paper "Kesari" the prompt server who nearly brought a plate of "Kesari" to my friend. I was puzzled to a smile. I told him I had ordered for it. But he said, "What, Sir, you were not a 'Kesari' I thought you were a 'Kesari'". In Madras they call "Kesari" as "Kesari".

What we call "Kesari" in Bangalore is called "Kesari" in Madras. I am not joking, I am only stating a fact.

I am really sorry that Mr. M. Narayana Reddy was taken to death yesterday morning.

It is not that I differ from the view of the Court in the matter of conviction. But I am a soft hearted and feel that life need not have been taken away. Several advanced Capital punishment in Mysore, I thought this of punishment might be abolished. There was the last time there was the sentence of mercy petition was rejected. Poor fellows he is no more.

Death evokes pity. It is an ancient saying. It is there can be no emit death. And so my sympathy as others' sympathies, are for the dead.

Though the plea for abolition of death sentence may be considered too late in the present state, I may quote from an article sent to us for publication. The following is the concluding portion of the article. Says K. T. Bhaskar—

Death penalty serves no purpose which cannot be gained by death in prison. It is a needless barbarism which degrades human life and holds the society as an example the brutality of a savage existence. It is in misarrange of justice and creates wrongs. It has failed in its only function of deterring offenders. It is rightly being condemned by the thinkers of the world and is being discarded by almost every country. It offends the fundamental instinct of reverence for human life. It has no more claim to recognition either the burning of witches or the ordeal by fire. Let us hope that the Governor Andrews that is in our progress will begin abolishing the death penalty. We need our penal legislation to the most advanced principles of criminal justice.

I agree.

The output of gold in 1939 was 314,501,313 ounces valued at Rs. 42,437,375.

The Mysore Duty on Gold Act was introduced as an emergency measure in March 1940 to provide for the imposition of a duty on gold when its price exceeds Rs. 100 per fine ounce. The duty levied is 75 per cent of the excess. Under this levy companies have to pay a sum of Rs. 1,65,768 in respect of gold produced from 22nd March 1940 to the date from which the duty came into force to the Government. A sum of Rs. 3,82,193 was paid before the end of 1939-40; the remainder is payable in subsequent years according to the Rules.

BANGALORE CITY—WEDNESDAY JANUARY 8, 1941

TOUR IN THE FAR EAST

INTERESTING OBSERVATIONS

A PEEP INTO PENANG

(From our special correspondent)

[A Mysorean who is an enterprising journalist, having had abundant experience in the line is touring the Far East. At special request he has been writing to us, for the benefit of our Readers. The following is the first of the series of articles from his pen.]

By my arrival yesterday at Penang, I have entered the first part of my journey to the Far East from India. Regarding my experience on board the ship, S.S. 'Kum Sang', for full seven days between Calcutta and Penang, suffice it to say that on account of the war conditions, the black-out of our vessel was full and complete, so much so that any one went on deck after midnight he had to grope in the dark, the passengers were put to severe test for three days, when we could get only saltish water even for drinking purposes. Some of us began to feel rather queer since it brought about a sort of giddiness and headache. The matter was probably reported to the ship authorities who immediately opened the special reservoir and supplied the required amount of drinking water. It is understood that during the first three days of the journey by such a large number of passengers on what was recently a cargo ship, caused the shortage. It became alright, however, when the special reservoir was opened.

It is a hardly necessary for me to mention the feelings, in these days, of one, on a long voyage on an open sea. Despite the very considerable measures the Government have taken, and the means that scientific inventions have provided, one cannot help feeling the loneliness and helplessness of the situation.

A Pretty City

Penang is a very pretty city. Its prettiness is more marked to a visitor from India, since we have no white city being pretty in India. Even Bangalore which is considered to be a nice city is only partially so, when compared to Penang. Its prettiness is mostly due to Nature that has provided green covered hills in the immediate background, the numerous hill streams in and around the city, the exuberant and free growth of vegetation on the wharfs and rickshaws, and other things of the same class who are hawkers and so on, form an inseparable part of the picture of Penang. They fit in very favourably with the general Chinese population who form an overwhelming majority in Penang. The Chinese occupy all leading positions in the life of the City. In short, Penang looks a Chinese city. The Indian population is not inconsiderable in Malaya as a whole. They are between 7 to 8 lakhs, while the Chinese are between 21 to 22 lakhs. Almost all of the Indians in Malaya being coolies, their upper class who are the natural leaders of the community are so disproportionately small in number, that Indians have become analogous to a coolie community of Malaya. In Penang itself a very strange contrast is noticeable between an Indian and a Chinese. The Indian looks more or less a strange beast brought into the life of Penang, as especially the Tamilians who form the major part of the Indian coolie population gets a very low wage and cannot keep proper standard of living and dress. The Chinese, on the other hand, are very progressive, wealthy, and own leading businesses and shops. The race characteristics are to no less a degree responsible in this phenomenon. The Chinese always aims at building his life, takes risks, is very industrious and hardworking, whereas an Indian lacks in many of these qualities. Consequently, the Chinese progress is much more rapid in Malaya. Regarding conditions of Indian labour in Malaya, and its allied matters, I will make another despatch in due course. Mr. Venkatachar, I. C. S., Agent of the Government of India in Malaya, will be coming to Penang during this week.

Indians and Chinese

I must, however, mention even now, that the feelings between the Indian community and the Chinese is very cordial, and they associate harmoniously in all walks of life. It is a happy augury in Malays that no racial jealousy or any thing of that kind is witnessed between one community and another. Even the Malays (original inhabitants of this land), are getting on very well with both the Indians and Chinese. Though the Malays are small in population (between 21 and 22 lakhs for the whole of Malaya) their language which is considered very easy to learn, is learnt by almost every Indian and Chinese, so much so Mal-

The New Year And The War

As the New Year has been dawning its way, new hopes are dawning in the breasts of weary people that this cursed war would end soon, and that, in a victory for Britain and the Allies. This hope has been nourished and fed by the recent speeches of President Roosevelt. The other day he predicted the defeat of the Axis powers, more recently he pledged help to Britain and proclaimed the U.S.A. as an Arsenal of Democracies. He asked the American Congress for greatly increased new appropriations and new authorisations to carry on what they had begun and for authority for funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressive nations. Mr. Roosevelt also warned the Dictators that America would not be intimidated by their threats. The following words of the American President are worth quoting "In future days, they should look forward to four essential human freedoms—freedom of speech and expression everywhere, freedom of right to worship God in our own way everywhere, Freedom from want and freedom from fear."

We are heartened at the speech of President Roosevelt. But we ask, in the name of the Indian Nation, what is his attitude towards Indian freedom? Does he approve of the British policy in India? What is freedom worth for any nation in the world, if it is denied to India, the most ancient and historic nation on earth? Interested Imperialists have been misrepresenting India to America. India's greatness is not known to the common man in America. The average American newspaper indulges in all sorts of fantastic untruths and exaggerations about India. It is time that the United States sends a competent mission to India to study the situation here. More than Britain, the United States fails at this hour in her duty to India. She should be denouncing herself if she thinks she has paved the way for democracy in the world.

We reiterate the aims of India. India wants freedom for the nations, big and small, in the world. India is against racialism, Nazism and those of Imperialism. Under the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi India is prepared to new world order based upon Non violence.

FIRE SIDES IN WINTER

Fire places are necessary in winter to prevent the "Calorie" from easy escape. Various devices have been put into effect to warm up persons who suffer from wintry vagaries. Electric establishments have invented a variety of heaters which generate warmth at a push of the button. But the poor and the stricken have their own contrivances to preserve the "Calorie". When drawing rooms become resplendent with the flames of a fire place the less fortunate beings get their warmth from a street side glow. Dried leaves, and faggots are heaped in one place and the flames that shoot up keep off the biting wind. This inexpensive fire side enjoyment has an Indian-touch about it, unlike the pompous drawing room fire sides.

Fire sides have been the centres of gossiping and various scandals find a way out especially if the glow of the log were to prevent the nip in the air. Political revolutions have been decided by the fire-side. President Roosevelt speaks to the World sitting at a fire-side and Mr. Churchill smokes his cigar by looking into the glow of a log. It is a common sight in our villages to find people gather round a small fire where the vagaries of the local Panchayet Chairman or the officiousness of the Taluk Amildar becomes the topic of discussion. But fire-sides are the favourite haunts of those who enjoy abundant leisure. Those who work for nothing have to find their own methods of preserving the "Calorie". The Indian housewife who sits for well nigh eight hours near the kitchen oven has no need to look for fire places or the hotel cook who turns out twenty "Masalai dosais" in a minute like the latest newspaper editor need not worry himself for warmth. Sitting by the fire-side has a touch of superiority about it and we recommend those who feel the pinch of cold to run after snug fire-sides.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I add my word of tribute to the memory of Mr. N. Subba Rao Pantulu, Andhra Bhishma. He lived to an age of 85 years with glory. His services to his country and countrymen are recorded in the history of freedom of India. Mr. Subba Rao was an Old Guard of the Pre-Gandhian Indian National Congress. He played the part of a peace-maker. In the year 1914-15 Mr. Subba Rao did his best to bring about a reconciliation between the Moderates and the Extremists of the Indian National Congress. He strained his nerves to bring about a sort of friendship between Gokhale and Lokamanya. He did not succeed. All the same his efforts in that direction are remembered.

Mr. Subba Rao was a great Andhra and a distinguished Indian. He may be considered as one of the builders of Modern Andhra. His memory, I am sure, will be suitably perpetuated by our Andhra fellowmen.

I think it was a couple of years ago that I had the good fortune of seeing Mr. Subba Rao Pantulu on the Nandi Hills. He came to the Stores and he found there, a member of the staff of the 'Hindu' of Madras. Mr. Subba Rao proudly said to the member of the staff of 'Hindu', "You are probably not aware that I am one of the founders of the 'Hindu'. The other day the 'Hindu' paid a deserving tribute to the memory of the Andhra leader. As a journalist I also offer my wreath to the memory of Mr. Subba Rao Pantulu."

It will be of interest to my readers to read what Mr. N. Subba Rao Pantulu wrote about his part in starting the "Hindu".

"As the sole survivor of the band of half a dozen young men who started the paper, I rejoice that 'The Hindu' has completed its Diamond Jubilee of sixty years and that from small and humble beginnings it has become the undisputed great nationalist leading daily in India, read in every nook and corner of the Presidency and circulated abroad as well, with branch offices in London, New Delhi, Calcutta and other places. My friends who took part in starting the paper were Messrs. G. Subra-manya Aiyar, M. Veeraraghavachari, T. T. Rangachari, T. V. Rangachari and D. Keshava Rao Pant who have not been spared to see the glorious position which "The Hindu" now occupies in the journalistic world. All of us were then members of the Triplicane Literary Society, just fresh from College and were eager to start a weekly newspaper, with the ambition of rousing public opinion and guiding it, though without any capital whatever and without any thought whether we would be able to keep it up financially and otherwise and compete with the dailies ably conducted by Englishmen. At first, for a few months it appeared in cyclostyle as a fortnightly and its articles attracted attention and were favourably reviewed in The Madras Mail and other papers. Due to the encouragement of friends we converted it into a regular weekly in September 1878. It was soon felt that it supplied a great want and was received favourably by the public. Shortly after, I had to leave for Rajahmundry, though I continued to support the paper. Other friends also left the conduct of "The Hindu" entirely in the hands of Messrs. G. Subramanya Aiyar and M. Veeraraghavachari on whom the whole burden fell. In the course of five years "The Hindu" grew in influence and attracted attention from the Government and it was accordingly converted into a tri-weekly in 1883, when we all formally relinquished our interest in 'The Hindu' at the request of Messrs. Subramanya Aiyar and Veeraraghavachari who undertook to supply the paper to us during our life time with an option to purchase it when it happened to be sold—a privilege we did not exercise. But the paper published thrice a week was found to be unsatisfactory and inadequate to meet the growing demands of the public and thereupon "The Hindu" was issued as a daily six years later in 1889. Since then its financial difficulties began to grow. Besides, Mr. G. Subramanya Aiyar and Mr. Veeraraghavachari could not pull on together with the result that the former retired from the partnership in 1898 on an allowance of Rs. 75 a month, leaving the entire management to Mr. Veeraraghavachari. But his management did not last long, he could not cope up with growing financial difficulties the paper and he had to give up the paper.

News comes from "Chittoor" that "While a bullock cart carrying a party of pilgrims was proceeding along the Kuntakattupathy main channel, the morning of January 3, the driver of the cart, noticing a motor bus coming in the opposite direction, swerved the cart towards the channel with the result that the bullock got out of control and the cart with its full load of pilgrims fell into the channel which was then running full." The consequence was that

It is common sight to see the bullock carts far when journey in a bus to a fussy places. The bullocks usually get a fright and in some cases accidents happen. This is a matter deserving of the attention of Traffic Board. In narrow roads the bus drivers and car drivers should be instructed to slow down their pace and have some consideration for the bullock carts and the passengers inside them. The bus, symbolic of modern civilisation, should be allowed to run riot over a bullock cart which is the vestige of ancient simple civilisation.

I close today's notes by narrating an experience of mine in connection with the bullock cart. It was six or seven years ago that we were driving a taxi from Haridwar to Lala mana Jhula and back. We observed the remarkable agility and sagacity of a pair of bullocks which quietly with calm instinct went to a side of the road while the cars were driving. There was no cartman. At that road is a dangerous road, one side there are peaks and the other there are deep gorges amounting to a precipice. I never forget that sight of the bullocks which wended their way calmly, unperturbed by hootings and dashes of cars and buses. Whenever I journeyed a bus and a bullock cart across, I remember that sight of the Himalayan Road.

Export Advisory Council GREGORY-MEEK REPORT CONSIDERED

Calcutta, Jan. 8
The third meeting of the Export Advisory Council, presided over by Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar, Commerce Member, concluded deliberations this morning.

The next meeting of the Council will likely be held in the middle of April.

Action taken by the Government on various suggestions made at the last meeting of the Council in Bombay was considered. The Council discussed at length oil seeds, particularly groundnuts and linseed, and recommended that the Government should take minimum prices for these commodities. The Government was not being paid for the margin of profit allowed to shippers. Produce prices were at the mercy of the market and shippers got prices agreed upon by the Government. It is understood that the Government of India promised to give early attention to this subject to remove anomaly.

Surplus Production

Another question considered by the Council related to the surplus production of certain commodities and how that surplus production could be utilized and what steps should be taken to prevent fall in prices of commodities.

There was general support of export industries, especially in paying protection such as in cotton and other goods. Governments should contribute to keep a fair price for commodities concerned.

Gregory-Meek Report

The Council also considered the Gregory-Meek report and the question of sending trade delegations to various countries like East Africa, Australia, South Africa, East Indies, etc., for expansion of trade. Opinions were almost unanimous that such delegations should be sent. The Government auspices, the delegations being shared by the Government and commercial bodies.

At the close of proceedings, the Commerce Member referred to the utility and continuance of the Export Advisory Council.

At Tiljala tension has been prevailing for the past few days over the Kurbani ceremony in the newly built mosque where the upcountry gowallis (milkmen) objected. When Kurbani was being performed this morning stones and bricks were thrown on the mosque which caused commotion among Muslims. The situation was quickly controlled by the police but immediately thereafter, about a hundred people armed with lathis and bricks assembled close to the mosque. As signs of trouble were brewing the police dispersed the crowd and arrested two of their leaders. Subsequently an order under sec 144 CrPC was promulgated in the area which is now being picketed by a platoon of Eastern Rifles, Armed Police and Emergency Gas Squad.

Surplus of Rs. 89,00,000

New Delhi, Jan. 10
The Posts and Telegraphs Department earned a surplus of Rs. 89,00,000, during the year 1940-41. This is the highest surplus since the accounts of this Department were placed on a commercial basis in 1925-26, and has been almost entirely due to the unprecedented increase in postal, telegraphic and telephone traffic due to the war. States Sir G. G. B. Bhowar, Director General, in his annual report for 1940-41.

The Department's revenue shows an increase of Rs. 80,92,000, the total being Rs. 1,28,82,000 as compared with Rs. 47,90,000 in the previous year. This increase is made up of increases in revenue of about Rs. 19,00,000 under "Post Office" about Rs. 40,00,000 under "Telegrams", about Rs. 21,00,000 under "Telephone" and about Rs. 1,00,000 under "Radio" (i.e. Wireless Telegraphs).

On March 31, 1940, the total number of persons employed by the Department was 1,28,820 as compared with 1,17,151 at the close of 1938-39.

A VALEDICTORY To the Mysore University Constituency

Registered Graduates & Members of the Senate

DEAR SIR MADAM,

On the eve of the closing of my tenure of membership of the Mysore Legislative Council (and the re-constitution of that body under the new Act) I wish to record my deep sense of obligation to those whose kindness and confidence have so long sustained me in that position, namely the Registered Graduates and Senate Members of the University of Mysore. It has been my privilege to represent them in the legislature for the last six years; and during this period, I have often had the satisfaction of receiving marks of approval and encouragement from many, and none of objection or remonstrance from any, among them. For all the courtesy and help I have thus received, I beg to tender my assurance of heart-felt gratitude to them.

I consider it proper that on this occasion I should also report to them, briefly though it has to be, the more important points of work in the legislature to which I have attached special importance. I shall just mention the points:—(1) Goal of responsible government to be adopted as the central motive in all constitutional developments; (2) Liberal constitutional reforms to speed up progress in that direction; (3) Opposition to measures restrictive of the liberty of citizenship, like the Press Act and the Public Security Act; (4) Individual liberty consistent with the needs of civic harmony and social progress; (5) Independent scrutiny of policies of public expenditure; (6) Revision of the scales of salaries of public servants so as to secure, on the one side, fairer treatment to lower grade officials and, on the other, closer approximation to levels of income in the professions and the business world, as well as to the taxable capacity of the people; (7) Systematic Efficiency audit of administrative offices; (8) Strict Commercial audit of operations of the Government—industrial and commercial undertakings; (9) Decentralisation of powers, so as to make the University and local self-government institutions more truly autonomous; (10) Larger grants to the University; (11) Special measures to attract educated young men to industrial and business occupations; and (12) Vigorous promotion of the programme of industrialization and trade development. I think there is need to continue emphasis of these points.

While I regret that, for reasons of health and other

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

Their Functions

(From our Financial and Trade Correspondent)

A chamber of commerce is a body of local business and professional men engaged in improving trade conditions, urging legislation beneficial to commerce and the social welfare, and, most important of all, encouraging the growth and prosperity of their community. As some one put it, "a chamber of commerce is a centre for the exchange of commercial thought and a platform for the utterance of commercial opinion."

Chambers of commerce can and do deal with questions of taxation, transportation, education and trade in all its aspects. They are not organised to secure petty business advantages for individuals, but to furnish organised aid to individuals and firms to enable them to develop and protect their business for the benefit of the country. They should not take part in party politics, but should deal with every subject which affects a community's welfare and prosperity.

Most of the trading interests in membership have their own trade sections, while in addition there are standing committees special committees are also appointed from time to time to deal with special questions.

Watch is also kept on such matters as railways and docks and charges in connection with traffic and other like conditions, certain labour conditions and so on, and Chambers of Commerce have been instrumental in effecting substantial savings to traders and manufacturers.

"A great chamber of Commerce" said a President of the United States of America, "embodies the business interests and the civic interests of a community. It needs a large membership if it is to be thoroughly representative. It needs a well-chosen membership if it is to lead public opinion, and, above all, it needs a loyal membership if it is to be a force and not merely a name. It is made up of numerous special interests, and is rightly the advocate of those interests up to the point where they claim more than the community can afford to give them. Then and always a great chamber of commerce will represent the interest of the people as a whole rather than the interest of the more favoured groups of the community."

Last week, we dealt with the value of Advertisement and Publicity. This week, our attention has been drawn to the deliberations of Eastern Conference presided over by His Excellency the Viceroy and to the fact that fifty two crores

What all we desire is that numerous Vartthaka Mandalies, Trade Associations, and Chambers of Commerce in our State should help our beloved Ruler and the Dewan in competing for this Trade and add to the material resources and individual economic prosperity of the sons of the soil. Such organisations in various parts of India are clamouring that they could supply all the wants of the Supply Department. Mysore has sugar, paper, cement, groundnuts, Iron and Steel to sell. We earnestly appeal to Chambers of Commerce and kindred Associations scattered over the State to try to secure at least a fraction of these orders for our Mysore Enterprises and collect statistics in the matter.

Nazis May Invade Italy

Czech President's Views

(BY T.A. Raman)

"A German invasion of Italy is a possibility and a distinctly practical possibility." That is the view Dr. Edouard Benes, the Czech President, expressed to me in an interview.

"I have been very agreeably surprised indeed by the news from Greece," said Dr. Benes. "From the first I recognised that the invasion was a blunder on Mussolini's part, but could not feel certain that it was as serious a mistake as it has proved to be."

"All dictators are bound to take some such false step some time or the other that is inevitable. Now it seems possible that Mussolini has made that fatal blunder which may be the undoing of his regime."

"We have always, however, to bear in mind the possibility of a German invasion of Italy. Hitler might be compelled to start his present move, saving down on Italy when the Fascist regime is visibly tottering."

German Collapse

To my question as to how long he thought the war would last Dr. Benes answered decisively: "The German collapse will come probably in spring, 1942. The Allied war effort will rise to its crescendo next summer and American support will begin to tell decisively."

"The combination of the blockade and heavier air offensives through 1941 will steadily exhaust German resources and sap their morale which has been keyed up to such a pitch for so long. France and the other occupied countries will increasingly resist. A rot will definitely set in and by the spring of 1942 we may expect the collapse."

The world knows and honours Dr. Benes as an apostle of democracy and so I asked him whether he would care now to restate his faith in government by the people. "Yes," he replied emphatically. "More than ever before I am convinced of the necessity of democracy for all progress and certain of its final victory. The war more than others, has proved that democracy is the key to all the precious values of life."

"It was for this reason, too, that the assault of Nazism was directed first against the democratic idea because it would be only over the body of democracy that Hitler could pass to secure his ultimate objects. It is indeed true that democracy has not yet reached its final stature. The economic crises of recent years have revealed that its capacity to solve economic problems was Inadequate. The political crisis which culminated in war demonstrated how difficult it is to solve problems of authority and leadership in democracies. Hitler's propaganda was able to exploit these shortcomings. It is beyond doubt that after the war these deficiencies must be corrected."

Czech Resistance

Speaking of the position in Czechoslovakia to-day and her contribution to the common cause, the President said he had not the slightest doubt that the Czechoslovak people would hold out to the end in their resistance to German oppression, despite all the tortures they suffer.

"Our reports from home," he said, "confirm our faith. I am more than satisfied with the moral endurance of our people in their terrible ordeals. I am proud of them and ask nothing more than that we, their spokesmen abroad, should prove ourselves worthy of their heroism."

"Czechoslovak resistance at home is one vital contribution which Czechoslovakia makes to the struggle. It is worth no less than 4,000,000 Germans, soldiers, policemen and officials, who would otherwise have taken part in the war on other fronts."

"Passive resistance is going on all the time against German war industry and against work of every character which helps Germany's military ends. Frequent executions for acts of passive resistance prove how acutely the Germans feel our indirect aid to the Allies."

"As to direct support, we have a small but good army which, after the collapse of France, transferred its activity to Great Britain and the Middle East. Our armies have taken part very successfully in the war, and later in Great Britain."

MYSORE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

OFFICIAL BILLS BEFORE THE ENSUING SESSION

Bangalore, Jan 9.

The agenda for the ensuing session of the Mysore Legislative Council, which will commence on Jan 15 and is expected to conclude on Jan 17, contains seven official bills to be placed before the session for consideration. Sixty-eight interpellations are tabled. Eleven non-official resolutions are included in the agenda. There is also a schedule of demands for additional and supplementary grants.

Among the official bills are the Mysore Elementary Education Bill, Advocate-General (Designation) Bill, Contempt of Courts Amendment Bill, Mysore Elections Offences and Inquiries Bill.

Among the non-official resolutions, there are recommendations for framing suitable legislations to prevent begging by able-bodied persons, and to organise trade unions in the State for settlement of trade disputes.

There are also two special resolutions, one condoling the death of the Late Maharaja and the other offering local felicitations for the New Maharaja.

Among the supplementary demands is one amounting to Rs. 11,000 to meet the expenses in connection with the prison Reforms Committee.

The Contempt of Court (Amendment) Bill

Whereas it is expedient to amend the Contempt of Courts Act, 1930:—

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Contempt of Courts (Amendment) Act, 1941.

(2) It shall come into force at once.

2. In section 2 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1930, the words "in respect of any pending judicial proceedings, civil or criminal" occurring at the end and the Explanation to that section shall be omitted.

Statement of Objects and Reasons

The Contempt of Courts Act, 1930, was modelled largely on the corresponding enactment of British India. Departing from that enactment, however, it provided that acts of contempt committed in respect of pending judicial proceedings only shall be punishable.

It is considered desirable to remove this limitation and bring the Act into line with the provision of law in British India on the subject. The effect of the proposed amendment will be that any act intended to bring into contempt or lower the authority of a Judge or a Court may be dealt with as Contempt of Court.

THE MYSORE ELECTIONS OFFENCES AND INQUIRIES BILL.

Statement of Objects and Reasons. The recent enactment of the Government of Mysore Act 1940, has resulted in the considerable widening of the franchise. The franchise for the District Boards in the State, which is the same as for the Representative Assembly, has also been correspondingly widened.

As elections will therefore play an important part in the new public life of Mysore, it is considered desirable that the public conscience should be markedly drawn to the danger of corrupt practices in relation to the franchise, whether that franchise relates to legislative or other bodies. It is of the greatest importance, in order to safeguard the free and unhampered exercise of the vote and to secure the successful working of the system of election that the principle of the purity of the franchise should be insisted on in the criminal law of the country.

The Joint Parliamentary Committee appointed to report on the Government of India (Amendment) Bill, 1919, recommended the enactment of such a measure. They said: "The Committee are firmly convinced that a complete and stringent Corrupt Practices Act should be brought into operation before the first election to the Legislative Councils. There is no such Act at present in existence in India and the Committee are convinced that it will not be less required in India than it is in other countries." The Indian Elections Offences and Inquiries Act, 1920, was accordingly passed into law in September 1920.

The present Bill is modelled on the British Indian measure and it is made up of two parts. The first part makes certain amendments to Indian Penal Code, as in force in Mysore, and the Criminal Procedure Code. This part applies not only to elections to the legislative bodies constituted under the Government of Mysore Act 1940, but to elections to all public bodies generally. It penalises the five new offences created by this Bill, namely, bribery, undue influence, personation, the publication of false statement and the failure to keep election accounts.

Part II applies only to elections to legislative bodies constituted under the Government of Mysore Act, provision being made for the conduct of inquiries in regard to disputed elections to them. The Commissioner appointed to hold such inquiries will have the powers of a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1911, when trying a suit. The provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, as in force in Mysore will apply to such inquiries. In addition to certain

BALANCE OF POWER FOR 1941 BRITAIN'S ASSETS

Great Events Looming Ahead (By Cable) London.

The Yorkshire Post Military Correspondent writes:—

If we look at the balance of power for 1941 the following definite assets belong to us: (1) Germany still lacks naval power, while two Congressmen Gudur were rebuked by the Magistrate and discharged. (2) The Luftwaffe is not the dominating factor it was built to be. (3) The balance of raw power has vastly increased in our favour. (4) Raids on shipping routes are checked from development. (5) We have supply worries for 1941. (6) Italy is forced out of the Eastern Mediterranean zone. (7) German planning has to meet the new situation we have created. (8) We are stronger on the Home Front by 100 per cent. (9) A great new army is in actual being. (10) The African Empire of Italy is locked in and cut off from home. (11) All our overseas bases are intact. (12) An almost new fleet comes into commission this year. (13) A doubling of our present big air forces is assured. (14) We are nearer a solution of night bombing than are the Germans. (15) Fifty per cent of the enemy bases are wrecked. (16) The British blockade remains a great menace to enemy strength. (17) Germany has been forced out of her set policy and is planning afresh. (18) Against her own plans she may be forced to act in the Mediterranean and become weak elsewhere, especially for invasion.

We know our deficiencies but they are not so great as those of the enemy. We can overcome them whereas the enemy lacks the resources to build anew. This is a case of a vicious circle tending to weaken the links as the months go by.

The year 1941 should be victorious for us, great though the struggle will be. We are always best in great events, and they loom ahead to test our great new strength.

Other incidental provisions, the Part also enacts that a person convicted under Chapter IX of the Indian Penal Code, as in force in Mysore, will be disqualified from certain appointments and offices. Government are, however, given the power to remove such disqualifications in any particular case. Provision is also made for the maintenance of secrecy of voting.

He said "ಅವಕಾಶವಿಲ್ಲವು" meaning that this is the land of Kshakus and Hindus had a legitimate right over the country.

COMPLIMENTS MR. JINNAH

A.P. Calcutta, Jan. 9

Compliment to Mr. Jinnah, President, All-India Muslim League was paid by M. N. Roy speaking as chief guest at "Id dinner" given by students of Baker Hostel to night Mr. Fazlul Huq, Premier of Bengal, presided.

Mr. Roy said, in the face of the Fascist aggression that threatens Near Eastern countries no difference as regards their future relations can keep Indian Muslims and Hindus divided among themselves. Unfortunately the call did not elicit general response. But there is a section of Indian nationalist movement which can rise above controversy on distant issues. They organised the radical democratic party and responded to the call of Mr. Jinnah actively, participated in demonstration on the 1st November.

Mr. Roy continuing said this was a senseless quarrel about the future constitution of India when the future of India as well as the world should be in impenetrable darkness. Why he asked, should not Muslim League and Hindu Mahasabha and others who did not approve of the policy of the Congress assert themselves and put an end to the present deadlock. He however maintained that only a popular Government could mobilise Indian people to participate enthusiastically in the struggle against fascism.

Mr. Fazlul Huq addressing next said Mr. Roy's sincere efforts for establishing national unity was greatly appreciated by the Muslim community and he could count upon the fullest support of Muslims. He declared that provinces with noncongress Ministries would co-operate with Mr. Roy in every possible way.

PETROL CONSUMPTION

Conference to consider Restriction A.P. New Delhi, Jan. 10.

It is learnt over 30 representatives of Provincial Governments and Indian States automobile associations are likely to attend a conference expected to be held here on 20th January to make a preliminary survey of plans to meet any emergency requiring restriction of petrol consumption. It is emphasised the necessity for action in this direction has not yet arisen, but it is best to be forearmed with a scheme which could be put into force if need arose.

It is probable the United Kingdom scheme will be taken as a model at the Conference which will be mainly concerned with the administrative aspects of any scheme that may be eventually agreed upon. Under the United Kingdom scheme private cars receive arbitrary ration for which coupons will be issued as a matter of routine at various offices. Rationing for transport vehicles is done by the Ministry of Transport Organisation and might in this country be entrusted to Regional transport authorities.

Mr. Spender's Tribute

"From all that I saw the performance of Indian troops at Sidibarani was an outstanding achievement" said Mr. P. C. Spender, Australian Army Minister in a press interview here.

He added the result of fight in North Africa during the past few weeks made vital change in strategic factors. Italy's position in North Africa particularly in Libyan desert is desperate. Her fleet apparently will not come to attempt to protect transport supplies across Mediterranean Sea which Mussolini boasted often to make Italian sea. Today it is less than Italian sea than it ever has been. Britain controls Mediterranean and with that controls key to Middle East.

Daily News

Bangalore City—January 11, 1941.

South Indian Harijan Sevaks' Conference

We have been favoured with a copy of the resolutions passed at the Conference of South Indian Harijan Sevaks held last week at Kengeri. The list of resolutions is so long that we cannot find space to publish all of them in the columns of our paper.

We may briefly review some of them. The conference prayed to God to bless Gandhiji with best health and long life so that he may be spared to guide us long. We also join in this prayer, for Gandhiji's health is very precious to India. He is now at the helm of a campaign which requires his personal guidance. Mahatma Gandhi does not worry himself about all things under the sun. He regulates his body and mind to the needs of the occasion. Sometime back Sri Mahadevi Desai wrote to the press requesting all concerned not to trouble Gandhiji with personal letters and requests. We are glad to learn that Mahatma is keeping fit. A friend of us who is now at Sevagram, writing about Gandhiji says—

"It is wonderful how Mahatma's mind works. Nothing perturbs him. He laughed heartiest on the day of Maulana Azad's arrest. His programme never varies. You may know that Sevagram is practically a Sanatorium and his interest in the patients never flags. His jokes with children never cease. On the whole, the powerful dynamo of his brain is working unremittently."

We have shared the extracts from our friend's letter, with our readers to give an idea as to what the condition of Mahatma's health is.

Now to go to the other resolutions that were passed in the Conference. The Conference recommends to all provincial boards to have special workers and make survey of the existing living and service conditions of sweepers and scavengers in Municipalities and take necessary steps for their amelioration on the basis of the recommendation by the Central Provinces Sweepers' Inquiry Committee. The Conference further urges that minimum wage for adults male and female sweepers should be fixed at Rs. 100 per month and they should be given casual leave for 10 days, sick leave for 1 month and no leave for 1 month and also provided and offer a system of compulsory insurance also shall be introduced.

This Conference as usual stressed on the necessity of Temple entry to the Harijans and concentrated Tamilnad for successfully throwing open some of their biggest temples to the Harijans.

We congratulate the organisers of the Conference on the success with which they met in their work. There is a good deal that our legislators could do to improve the conditions of Harijans in the State. We are looking forward for the day when the important temples of the State would be thrown open to Harijans. That day is fast approaching. We have every hope that in another five years the Harijan Community would show remarkable progress in their several activities. On this occasion we acknowledge with a deep sense of gratitude that the Mysore State has been a pioneer in the matter of uplift of Harijans. And even today excepting in the matter of temple entry the Mysore State has done to Harijans much more good than any other State or Province in India.

THE INDIAN FILMS

Mythological films have a grip over the populace as evidenced by the output in Tamil districts during the course of last year. Among 35 pictures 17 were purely mythological whereas the other half constituted social and landed subjects. Out of the total production of films in this country South India is contributing nearly one third, a figure we may well be proud of. It is an irony of fate that South Indian theatre-goers have lost all sense of sex-appeal whereas their compatriots in the Western Hemisphere swear by sex. The pure philosophic outlook of our people have made them turn round to pure reason thereby avoiding meretriciousness in films. But the general populace are not satisfied with mythology always. They require some "pep" to make them rush to the theatres. Mathuram-Krishnan combination or Kannan-Saigal appearance is all that they want. Even in mythological productions we find a certain percentage of sex appeal. But what about standard in films? We have yet to find out that standard which shall class us as the best in the world. We have an outlook on life which the Westerners envy. We possess a remarkable sense of intuition which has enhanced our rational value on things. We have a civilization which any modern state can conveniently copy, but all these have not advanced us an inch in the standard of our film productions. We cater still to the baser instincts in humanity by exhibiting vulgarity and cheap humour in films. The South Indian Film Chamber who have given a fine record of themselves, will find a way out of this impasse. Our films should not lag behind in quality or standard. We do hope that our producers will see the film house in order.

Health Vigilance In Mysore

How Irrigation Areas Are Protected

Systematic defence works are put up by the Mysore Health Department in the irrigated areas in the State to exterminate malaria and other allied diseases in the locality. The Bureau of Epidemiology and Communicable Diseases is ever at work; the Superintendent going round to conduct inspection work and special surveys.

Further reports of the Health Department for October 1940 reveals that the Superintendent toured for 14 days and visited 16 villages to carry out health engineering measures. The joint inspection of villages under the Irwin Canal in Mandy District with the Executive Engineer, K. R. S. Division and the Revenue Sub Divisional Officer, Mandya, was done. At Channarajanager, the Superintendent delivered a lecture on "Malaria and Prevention" under the auspices of the University. The Members of Council inspected a few villages under the Lokasara Branch where irrigation had been started only recently. At Jog, the Superintendent inspected the labour camps and the valleys round about the Manamp in connection with anti-malaria engineering works with the Superintending Engineer, the Executive Engineer and the Health Officer.

The details of anti-malaria work and the engineering works to be undertaken for the different colonies were discussed at a meeting with the Superintending Engineer and the Executive Engineer. The layout of the Colony and the arrangements for anti-malaria work for the protection of the Madanur colony was also examined. A joint inspection of the Agricultural Farm at Kadulothanahalli was made with the Deputy Director of Agriculture for the selection of a site for locating the colony.

The Malaria Officer attached to the Bureau, visited Belur, Markonahalli and Tippagondanahalli and inspected the anti-malaria work carried on in these stations. He also visited Mandya and conducted spleen surveys in six villages on the Lokasara Branch of Irwin Canal.

Congress President's Programme

Bangalore, Jan. 10

The President met the Municipal Councillors, Ward Committee Members and Local Workers of the following divisions today with a view to discussing with them the ways and means of effective propaganda to be carried out in the respective divisions in connection with the ensuing elections. The programme was as follows:—

8 a.m. Malleswaram. 9 a.m. IV Division. 4 p.m. V Division.

Yesterday the President met and discussed with the Municipal Councillors, Ward Committee Members and Local Workers of the 2nd and 11th Wards the ways and means of effective propaganda.

A Public Meeting was held at Malleswaram at 6.30 p.m. and at 8 p.m. at Vivaswaram under the Presidency of Sri K. T. Bhashyam, President, Mysore Congress. Mr. & Mrs. Thimma Reddy addressed the gathering.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

A Madras message says that, Mr. Bulusu Samba Murty, Speaker of the Legislative Assembly who is now a detainee in the Vellore Jail has grown a beard. This is indeed news. Beard is supposed to be a symbol of wisdom. But in most cases it is only a masquerade. The mania for beard growing is prevalent in Bengal. I have found many young men growing beard.

In our country specially among Hindus, and that, among Brahmins, growing beard had some significance in the past. It was considered as "Dharma". Even now in villages there are some orthodox Brahmins who grow beard when their wives carry. But thank God civilised people in cities have given a go-by to this anachronistic practice. And thus growing beard in cities has no significance.

But growing beard is a religious practice among Muslims and Sikhs. It is so even among Catholic Priests. I have seen some poets and philosophers growing beard. Dr. Rabinathan Tagore has grown a beard. Dr. Seal had grown a beard. I can multiply the list. The Prince of Speakers, the Late V. J. Patel had grown a beard. I hope Sri Bulusu Samba Murty will continue his beard even after getting out of the jail.

In this connection on a reference made to "Encyclopaedia Britannica" I found the following enlightenment about beard. It says:—

"Beard, in modern usage applies to the hair grown upon a man's chin and cheek. When the chin is shaven, what remains upon the cheeks is called whiskers. "Moustache" or "Moustaches" describes the hair upon the upper lip. But the words in the past had less exact meaning. Beard has stood alone for all these things and whisker has in its time signified what we now call "moustache" as in the case of Robinson Crusoe's great pair of "Turkish whiskers".

We are told that the bearded races of mankind have even held the beard in high honour. It is the sign of full manhood, the lad or the eunuch is beardless and the bearded woman is reckoned a witch, loathsome thing to all ages. Adam the primal man, was by tradition created with a beard. The race-fathers have it and the ancient heroes.

Amongst English people, always ready to be swayed by fashion, the hair of the face, has been age by age, cherished or shaved away, curled or clipped into a hundred devices. The age of Elizabeth saw Lawyers, Soldiers, Courtiers and Merchants all bearded. From the Restoration Year the razor comes more into use. Young men shave clean. A Jew or a Turk was known by the beard, an appendage loath as comic.

Lastly, the historian comes. we may speak of the portrait of the Royal House, since the came out of the beardless. The Regent took the fashion, and sat "in white state" but his brother an assessor shaved clean and even the hussar's mess. The Prince Consort wore moustache as a young man in whiskers in later years.

King Edward VIII bearded and today as Windsor grows no beard, George VI has no beard, this generation seems to board growing. For the of that the present generation whether Hindus, Muslims, Christians or Parsis prefer to be clean shaven chin to beard one. Fashion varies from time and this is an age of less men. Personages, who to form themselves except grow beard and Sri Bulusu Samba Murty is one. But of this nonsense about beard growing.

The Late Lakshmanappa Mr. R. B. Tilak had given on January 3, to the trustees the three Tilak trusts, all of them were not handed to the Indian National Congress within one week from the receipt of the notice of death. It is stated that to commence his fast on 10th, that is from yesterday he did not receive any from the trustees.

This news is indeed disappointing. My readers must remember that the late Lakshmanappa appointed trustees to manage public concerns and in certain conditions as to profits should be used in manya while he was with the Congress, but he contemplated, the policy of being pursued by the Congress and the "Maharatta" is not in line with that of the Congress. It is a known fact that the Congress has changed its policy and programmes from time to time. And the Congress and the "Maharatta" are not worshippers at the altar of Gandhiji's Politics. It is clear that the "Kesari" and "Maharatta" have been created by the Congress for a long time. It is also well known that "Kesari" and the "Maharatta" pursue a policy different from that of the Congress. The Maharastrians have urged above two papers to fall with the Congress. Now, manya's son has undertaken fast to bring pressure on trustees to hand over the Congress. We have to watch further developments. It is sure that this "death" will end in some misce agreeable to both parties.

VICEROY AT RAJKUMAR COLLEGE

Congratulates Students on Donating to War Fund

THANKS PRINCES AND PEOPLE OF WESTERN INDIA STATES

Rajkot Jan 11. Speaking at prize-giving at Rajkumar College this afternoon His Excellency the Viceroy said that the most notable of recent changes was the reorganisation of the Government on the lines of the new constitution, throwing its doors open to boys from all parts of India. "I am glad to know that the college has also opened its doors to boys from England who in the present emergency cannot continue their education here."

The Viceroy proceeded to warmly congratulate the boys who have of their own accord foregone prizes they have won and have given me to be devoted to the war fund—substantial donation equivalent to the value of these prizes. The spirit which prompted them to do this is most praiseworthy and I gratefully accept their contribution. It was made in the cause of humanity—a common cause which whatever effort and sacrifice may be demanded, India has shown its determination to uphold."

The Viceroy expressed thanks to the princes and peoples of States in Western India for unstinting generosity which they have shown in contributing to the various war funds and helping in many other ways to further the successful prosecution of war, although the Princes and Chiefs of these States had incurred expenditure to relieve the distress caused by failure of monsoon in this part of India.

Triumvirate to Assist Marshal Petain

M. BAUDOUIN'S STRANGE BEHAVIOUR BEFORE ARMISTICE

Chances of France Re-entering Fight
 (By Cable) London

Vernon Bartlett writes in the News Chronicle:

London diplomats on the 3rd were scratching their heads over the latest news from Vichy.

First came the announcement that unoccupied France is now to be governed by Marshal Petain with a triumvirate, consisting of M. Flandin, Admiral Darlan and General Huntziger. Then came the announcement that the news was "premature" although it was possible that certain changes would be announced shortly.

No tears will be shed in France if M. Baudouin, as seems probable, is leaving the Government. He was Foreign Minister at the time of the collapse when his behaviour towards the British Ambassador, who wanted to know whether France was asking for an armistice, was as strange as his friendly relations with the Italian Government until, assured that an armistice would soon be signed, Mussolini decided that it would pay him to enter the war.

If in fact the triumvirate takes over power, it will still be difficult to predict its influence on the recovery of France.

General Huntziger, for example, fought bravely against the Germans up to the last moment, but, as one of the signatories to the armistice may feel that his honour and prestige are bound up with its strict observance.

Admiral Darlan is known to have been bitter against the British when they were forced to shell the French ships at Oran, but he is probably still more bitterly anti-German and will certainly be opposed to a breach of the armistice terms which allowed the Germans to get control of the French ships.

M. Flandin is a politician who has so allied himself with the Nazis that French patriots will never forgive him but he may well hesitate to persist in a policy of still further surrender at a time when so many Frenchmen are recovering the spirit to resist.

Generally the more affairs in Vichy are controlled by men without military tradition, the more unwarlike people in London will be that we shall not see a competition of the politicians, treacherers and betrayers in the more made the nation's life.

The strict observance of the armistice terms will not further the cause of France's ships or French Coastguard.

The new French Government, of course, are directly under the German control.

BUCHAREST EXPECTS MORE GERMAN TROOPS

Rumanian Attitude To Nazis

(By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph Belgrade correspondent cables:—

The arrival is shortly expected at Bucharest of 1,000 German officers who will be quartered in requisitioned hotels. Nazi press circles in Bucharest prefer to believe the reason for the increase of German troops in Rumania is the desire to intimidate the Soviet and secure a free hand in the Balkans and Near East.

Large orders are said to have been placed with Bucharest tailors for Rumanian uniforms for probable use by German troops who will be used to stiffen the morale of Rumanian troops.

Well-informed people in Vienna state that the position of the Nazis in Rumania is daily becoming more difficult and this is seriously affecting the position of Antonescu's Government. The increase in the resistance against co-operation with the Axis is evident among all classes of the population except the Iron Guards.

People are blaming the Axis or all Rumanian ill, including the partition of Transylvania and cession to the Soviet of Bukovina and Bessarabia. People treat and regard the Nazi troops as an enemy army of occupation and there have already been open manifestations of hatred in some districts as well as continued acts of sabotage.

Leaflets are being circulated calling the Germans usurpers. These are counselling people not to have any form of friendship with them, so that a time will come when they will disappear entirely from Rumania. England's victory, say the leaflets, is sure and will mean the expulsion of Germans and Magyars with the reestablishment of a great, free, independent Rumania.

the struggle and remove the Navy out of Hitler's reach. Soldiers and sailors are more likely to make full use of that freedom than civilians.

One small piece of evidence that the Vichy Government is determined to resist German pressure is the renewed bitterness of the attacks against it in the Paris papers.

The new French Government, of course, are directly under the German control.

Hitler's Anxiety To Intensify Attack On Britain

GERMAN CONCERN OVER AMERICAN AID

Attacks On President Roosevelt

(By Cable) London

The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Times writes:—

All the signs go to show that Hitler's primary concern is to intensify the assault on this country. The German wireless and newspapers are day by day proclaiming that air and sea attacks will be continued with increasing ferocity. They boast less about the prospects of a successful invasion. To cripple British war industries, set ablaze cities and towns, sink all food ships and above all disable Great Britain before American help becomes effective—that is their constant boast and earnest desire.

The whole German plan against Great Britain seems to be based on the assumption that Great Britain cannot hold out without supplies from America. Hitherto German propagandists have ignored chances of effective American help. "They will be too late," they used to say. But Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion that arms should be lent as quickly as possible and his fire-side talk on the danger to America itself have clearly opened German eyes to new possibilities. In their own minds the issue now seems to be like a race towards Great Britain between their own destructive forces and American supplies.

For this reason all the German propaganda services are still attacking Mr. Roosevelt.

The Volkischer Beobachter writes:—"His lies and false statements are intended to create a psychosis of fear among the Americans. His silly fairy tales about Germany's plans for dominating the world are intended to scare those Americans who look on this war as something that is no concern of the Americans. He provides them with the illusion of a menace to America. He tries to make them believe that it is in their interest to become a partner of the British Commonwealth and to support Great Britain."

With an air of injured surprise the Volkischer Beobachter concludes "Neither Germany nor Italy has interfered with American rights and livelihood."

HYDERABAD STATE

Customs Duty

(A. P. By Mail)

Hyderabad, Deccan, Jan. 8,

Certain articles such as machinery, agricultural implements, manure and chemicals for industrial purposes, hides and skins, jaggery and locally manufactured piec-goods were imported and exported duty free with the purpose of helping the agricultural population and encouraging industrial development in the State. In this connection exemptions from customs duty of a total value of Rs. 3.8 crores were given. This is revealed in the Administration report of the Customs Department for 1938-1939.

The report records the total customs revenue for the year at Rs. 1.29 crores which shows a decrease of 4.7 per cent over the previous year and this decrease is attributed to unfavourable agricultural conditions and would have been greater but for the stimulation of imports by the outbreak of war.

The total value of imports during the year was Rs. 12.9 crores while that of exports was Rs. 11.9 crores.

Marshal Petain's New Policy

SIGNIFICANT CHANGES AT VICHY

Signs Of French Independence

(By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph's former Paris Correspondent writes:

The new moves are an indication of Marshal Petain's new policy. By dismissing and refusing to reinstate M. Laval the Germans that he would brook no interference in the composition of his Government.

The disappearance of Baudouin removes a further dubious element. The retention of Flandin, also mistrusted as a politician of the "old gang" may be regarded as the only spot which Marshal Petain has shown to the German desire for a friend in the French Cabinet.

Flandin's influence, however, is considerably restricted. He cannot conduct anything in the nature of a personal foreign policy, since in all major issues he is obliged to consult his two colleagues and any action deemed contrary to the best French interests would be obstructed if not completely refused by the permanent staff of the French Foreign Office.

A french sign of independence is that the newly constituted Consultative Assembly will include representatives of Alsace and Lorraine on the ground that their annexation by Germany is not legally effective until peace has been signed and ratified.

Admiral Leahy, the new American Ambassador to Vichy, will have found cleaning-up operations well in hand and the elements of a far stronger Government emerging.

The creation of a Directorate recalls the Directory, composed of five members, established by the Constitution of France at the end of the French Revolution. In this instance the Directorate ruled in conjunction with two chambers for four years from 1795 to 1799, when it was dissolved by Bonaparte who became First Consul.

Members of the Petain Government and their families are having to live in unheated rooms in the hotel which is their headquarters, according to the Lyons Radio. "There is no central heating and there are no fires in the hotel," a writer says.

"Further, the water supply has been cut off since the intensely cold weather began and washing has become a problem. Canteens for Government officials had to close down owing to lack of supplies."

"Changing India"

We have been favoured with a copy of a new book entitled "Changing India" Mrs. Iqbalunissa Hussain is the author of the book. It has been published at the Hissa Press, Bangalore. Mr. John Spiers has written a nice foreword. The publishers recommend this book to readers say "This trenchant book will be read with interest by all alive to the future of Indian women. It comes from the gifted pen of a Muslim lady whose own life is an epic symbol of 'Changing India'."

At the very least we are very much pleased with this book. It is very nicely printed and beautifully got up. It is priced at Rs 2 per copy, which we think is not excessive.

This book deserves a very handsome encouragement. We may agree or we may not agree with the views expressed in the book. It would be more pleasant and welcome if we disagreed. But how can we? Indians are changing, rapidly changing, and our women have changed and are changing. A few days ago we listened to the Voice of Women in Sir Pattanna Chetty Town Hall. Women of all India, all communities, all ages, spoke in unequivocal terms. They poured out in colourful streams of language, their hopes and aspirations. Women are coming to the forefront. No power on earth can keep them back.

The book under review is by a Muslim woman, who speaks in no faltering language. Mr. John Spiers introduces her to her readers. Her life is an object lesson not only to Muslim women but the women of other communities too. "She took her B. A. degree in 1930, at the Mahatma's College in Mysore, incidentally obtaining a Gold Medal—a really amazing record for a lady who had been brought up in strict purdah, who knew practically nothing of the great world when he was married, and who by this time had seven children. Her eldest son also passed his B. A. Examination two years later." We have no space to give a detailed account of her life. But we would request our readers to get a copy of the above book and read through it. We assure them that they would derive much pleasure by reading the book.

The author has written on several subjects. The title of presentation is simple and direct. The language is clear, devoid of ornamentation. The mind speaks through the word in a clear manner.

She has written an essay in which she pleads that there is no polygamy in Islam. She concludes the article in the following words: "It is high time for Muslims to make a study of the harmful consequences resulting from the plurality of wives and to make the meaning of the Qu'anic Law clear to the less intelligent brethren of the community."

Writing on Purdah and Progress she says "Its abolition by drastic measures is neither practicable nor advisable. It should be attempted gradually and indirectly."

Writing on the position of women in India the author says "Unless the Women of India become brave, thoughtful and active participants in the Educational, Social, and Political activities of their country, India must ever remain backward." We have given enough samples from the book under review. We congratulate heartily Mrs. Iqbalunissa Hussain on her very nice book. We hope our readers and friends will purchase copies of this book, read it themselves and explain the contents specially to women. It is a wonderful book deserving of very rich encouragement.

MYSORE Vs. BENARES

The Mysore team which beat Madras in Bangalore has lost its cricket hold in Benares. We commiserate with our players who had to run a thousand five hundred miles to face defeat. The episode of Lord Visweswara to whose mercy our Mysore boys had to resign themselves proved otherwise. We do not know how Benares came out with brilliancy. Maybe the Mother Ganges was merciful to them in their rivalry with Cauvery. Defeat or success in a holy place doesn't matter. It is said and rightly claimed too that to die in the Municipal limits of Benares takes any one right up to heaven. And defeat in that city is otherwise judged as success. We are not sorry that Mysore sustained a defeat because any remorse to that effect has already been washed by a dip in the Manikarnika Ghat. Between Assi and Varuna defeatist mentality finds no place and it shall never enter the true minds of men. The Mysore Bowlers and Batsmen though lost to Benares have found themselves compensated with a dip in the Ganges and a look at Lord Visweswara. The pilgrim qualification thus obtained will be a sure road to coming successes. Better luck next time.

Excellent arrangements using electrical devices had been made in the Mysore Fort also. The image of Siva from Trinayanaswara Swamy Temple was brought in procession with all the palace honours and an electric "arrow" was shot which "killed" the huge effigy of Andhakasura which had been specially erected for the purpose.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

An Editor of a Madras daily complains that what is called "human interest" would seem to be at a discount in the Indian Press. I also am inclined to agree with this remark. There is too much of politics and communal clashes in our newspapers. Nowadays of course, the papers are full of war news which leads us no where. Added to this, we have the news of Satyagraha, arrests, and convictions.

In the midst of the array of various types of news we are apt to miss and appreciate the news of human interest. It is up to newspaper correspondents, both metropolis and local, to have an eye on happenings of human interest. What is of human interest and what is not, depends upon one's outlook and culture. But a journalist has to tune his interests to those of his readers. He is not worth his salt if he does not know what interests his readers.

A few years ago an enterprising young reporter of a Kannada daily gave a graphic description of a duel between a dog and a cow in one of the interior streets of Bangalore. As a matter of fact, that duel when it was taking place attracted a huge concourse of people. The young reporter who is a born journalist, took the cue from the crowd and gave a wonderful pen-picture of the incident. After all it was a trifling incident from the point of view of philosophers and high brows. But a newspaper writer should remember that he is writing for the delectation of the man in the street. From my experience, I may say once for all, it is the man in the street that is the most generous patron of newspapers. If he approves of any paper, it follows as day follows the night and night follows day, the big people also would patronise that paper. I would in the interest of newspapermen appeal to young journalists to cultivate a humble spirit which can find joy in the small things of life. That is a way of cultivating human interest.

I am sorry I have indulged in a small sermon. But a journalist is nothing but a sermoniser and homily deliverer.

I shall pick out a few news items of human interest. Not that others do not know what news of human interest is, I give them as illustrations.

A coolly named Mooniswami of Chintadripet, Madras fasted on account of 'Vaikunta Ekadasi'. He broke his fast in evening and complained of pain in the chest. His pain grew worse and died.

This is not a very fine item of news of human interest but yet since it is connected with 'Vaikunta Ekadasi' fast, it is a possible item of local news. If it is written in a colourful manner it would make a good story.

I have in my experience a wonderful story. On the 'Shivaratri' day a sadhu who was walking in the evening on the banks of the Ganges in Benares, fell down and collapsed. Hundreds of religious minded people prostrated before the dead body and worshipped it with followings. This is no doubt a good piece of news of human interest.

The other day we read of a great actor while performing the role of Lord Subramanya with a famous song on his lips suddenly collapsed. This is merely an item of news of human interest but a born might write a wonderful and earn immortal fame.

Here are several other items of human interest. A man named Subramanyam, only 18, consumed 3 sulphur on a pavement in Madras, to view to ending his life. The fellow was taken to hospital, his condition is causing anxiety. Such events sometimes happen in Bangalore, and Mysore and other places, but they pass unnoticed. Young journalists would do well to be on scent of such happenings.

Generally the police Commissioner and the Magistrate can supply journalists stories of human interest, which they dress up well and dish before readers.

The story of a death entered into by two lovers, related in the Sessions Court. Unusually, it appears the young man, aged 25, had decided to marry a girl and the marriage also had been fixed up. But appears the parents of the girl changed their mind and refused to offer that girl in marriage to the young man. Naturally, the created utter disappointment in the minds of the two young lovers who fixed a day for committing joint suicide. Unfortunately the girl committed suicide the young fellow, who also stabbed himself did not expire. He was hauled up before the Court and sentenced to transportation for life. The "Romeo-Juliet" business has been happening now and then all parts of the Globe. But journalists who are not vigilant and allow such events to go unnoticed do a disservice to themselves and to the public with which they are connected.

I do not understand why there should be a protest against in Tirupati Town over the question of constructing a motorable road from Tirupati to Tirumala Hills. The road would cost Rs. 3,70,000. When there some months ago a man of Lower Tirupati told that if a road should be constructed to the Hills, the Lower would be wiped out of existence. I do not think so. This is only a fear which is based upon apprehension of things. On the other hand I would think that Lower Tirupati would be all the better for the motorable road to the Hills. I hope in the interest of millions of pilgrims, the work of the road construction would be expedited.

DR MOONJE INTERVIEWED

"Mysore's All-Round Development"

Bangalore, Jan. 11.

Dr B S Moonje, Vice President of the All India Hindu Mahasabha, in an interview to the "Daily News", paid a glowing tribute to the progressive policy of the Mysore Govt. "The point to note with pleasure is the all-round development; particularly industrialisation and rural economic development appear to be a very well planned organisation. I have no hesitation to say, having seen other States, that Mysore is by far the best Indian State in respect of industrial and economic development. Perhaps I may say that British India has to take its cue about many of the points in these developments."

H. H. The Maharaja's Personality

Dr. Moonje had an audience with His Highness the Maharaja yesterday morning at Mysore. He was "tremendously impressed by His Highness' personality, which is full of promise. The manner of His Highness' conversation and the way in which he immediately came to grips with his confidence gave promise that he would follow effectively in the footsteps of the late Maharaja, who was a persona grata with all classes of people."

Militarising The People

The Dewan, Sir Mirza Ismail, was an experienced administrator and a statesman of balanced mind. Dr. Moonje added. The Dewan was doing everything calculated to advance economic development of the people of the State. There was one point however on which Dr. Moonje would like to remark and it was the apparently poor condition of the health and physical development of the rural people. Some kind of youth movement should be started throughout the State, particularly with the student class in the urban area, and the labour classes in rural areas, for giving training to them in physical and elementary military training. "In one word, I would desire the retention of His Highness and the Dewan that full advantage should be taken of the present occasion of the war for militarising the people and establishing an industry with a view to make the defence of India a self contained system."

A.P. Bombay, Jan 11.

Scrutiny of Nomination Papers

Bangalore Jan. 13. Mr. I. S. Rupa, President, Civil Liberties Union, writes:—
The newspapers have published numerous instances of rejection of notices of candidature in connection with the elections for the Representative Assembly and Legislative Council by the Returning Officers as a result of the scrutiny on 10-1-1941. The large number of cases rejected has caused some anxiety in the public mind all over Mysore. It appears that while certain Returning Officers have rejected notices of candidature on certain grounds, other Returning Officers have on the very same grounds not done so.

The Rule which regulates the disposal of objections and rejection of notice of candidature is Rule 96 in the case of the candidates standing for the Representative Assembly and Rule 98 in the case of the candidates standing for the Legislative Council. In both cases the Rules read similarly. I am also given to understand that the matter of interpretation of these Rules is before the kind consideration of the Government, under Rule 93 in the case of the Representative Assembly candidates and Rule 182 in the case of the candidates for the Legislative Council. Clause (a) of Rule 96 and Clause (a) of Rule 98, respectively, of the R.A. and L.C. Rules, enjoin rejection of the notice of candidature when the candidate is not qualified or is disqualified for election under the provisions of the Acts or of the Rules. There can be hardly any grievance if the rejection is made under these Clauses. It has not come to my notice that there has been any rejection under Clause (c) or (b) of Rule 96 or Rule 98, that is, on the ground that the candidate is not identical with the person whose number or name on the Electoral Roll is given in the notice of candidature, or that the signature of the candidate is not genuine, or has been obtained by fraud. The other cases of rejection purport to come under Clauses (b) of Rule 76 and Rule 96, namely, that there has been a failure to comply with any of the provisions of Rules 89, 92 or 93 in the case of the R.A. candidates and Rules 69, 72 or 73 of L.C. Rules in the case of the L.C. candidates. Rules 72 and 73 of L.C. Rules and 92 and 93 of the R.A. Rules may be left out of consideration as they relate to failure to appoint an election agent or failure to enclose the treasury receipt. No rejection on that ground has come to my notice. Therefore the only Rule which is relevant now would be Rule 69 in the case of L.C. Rules and Rule 89 in the case of the R.A. Rules. In both these Rules, which are similar, the hour of presentation and the completion of the notice of candidature in the manner prescribed in Form No. 1 are mentioned. It would appear that on the ground of not complying with the date of birth and age for certain minor alleged

LATE LORD BADEN POWELL "Memorial Parade"

Bangalore, Jan. 13.
To express their deep sense of sorrow, on the sudden demise of Lord Baden Powell, the Chief Scout of the World, a "Memorial Parade" was held on Sunday morning at 9 a.m. in the Scout Head Quarters, Bangalore City.

Nearly 300 Scouts participated in the Parade. Mr. K. Shivasankar, District Scout Commissioner, gave a brief sketch of Lord Baden Powell, and his life and services to the Boy's Scouts movement in the world.

The Scout Flag was half masted.

The following message of His Highness The Maharaja was read and a cablegram was sent to Lady Baden Powell, at Nyeri, Kenya. His Highness's message was as follows:

"On behalf of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides of Mysore, I send this token of deepest admiration of our departed leader, and deepest sympathy in your terrible sorrow."

misdescriptions, the notices have been rejected in several cases. The wording of Rule 76 in the L.C. Rules and Rule 96 in the R.A. Rules shows that the Returning Officers have discretion in their decisions when very minor and not really serious mistakes occur in the notice of candidature. If the age is not stated and the date of birth not given (perhaps on account of the fact that in many cases exact date of birth may not have been known to the candidate himself) it cannot be called a very serious mistake or irregularity. Similarly, if the surname and other names are not stated in full, or if there is any slight misdescription in the name, such as, writing "H i n d u" instead of "General Community", or not writing "Indirammanavar" in place of writing "Indiramani"—these circumstances need not necessarily invoke a rejection. There have been decided cases where, in such circumstances, the Returning Officers have been directed to include the names of candidates by a peremptory writ of mandamus in places where there is scope for issuing such a writ.

I trust that the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore will interpret the Rules in such cases liberally and sympathetically, and allay the anxiety in the public mind.

The New Independence Pledge

Gandhiji's Instructions

A. P. Wardhaganj, Jan. 11.
The new Independence pledge to be taken on 26th January has been issued. It follows the same lines as the previous and expresses belief that India must sever British connection and attain Purna Swaraj or complete independence. It abjures violence and places complete reliance on peaceful methods and non-violent action. It records belief in the various tenets of constructive programme and says "though our religious faiths may be different, we will act as children of Mother India bound by common nationality and pledge observance of Congress principles and policies and keep in readiness to respond to the call of the Congress whenever it may come for carrying on Independence Struggle."

A new paragraph to the old pledge refers to individual civil disobedience and says it is the special duty of every Indian to concentrate on the constructive programme.

Constructive Programme

Gandhiji has issued instructions for the observance of the Independence Day and expresses the hope that every man and woman of India, whether Congress or otherwise, will resolve on 26th January upon dedicating himself or herself to the country's service in terms of millions. Gandhiji exhorts peaceful observance of Congress constructive programme and says there should be no civil disobedience on Independence Day, but Prabhat Pheries, flag salutations, and processions may be followed by public meetings where the pledge may be explained clause by clause.

AN APPEAL TO WORKING CLASS

Mr. Roy's Speech at Jamshepur Rally

A. P. Jamshepur, Jan. 12
The responsibility for defending the world against the menace of Fascism belonged to the working class. Fascism appeared to be with the avowed object of restricting advance of labour and was an instrument maintaining the power and privileges of a few, said Mr. M. N. Roy at Jamshepur workers this afternoon. British workers, he said, were the brunt of that responsibility. "We shall be false to international ideals of socialism if we do not help hand to our British comrades at this moment of great trial."

Mr. Roy continued, the situation created by war enabled Indian workers to improve their living wages and improve in their conditions of life. Decisive battles of this war would be fought not far away from the frontiers of India and if those battles were won by the hordes of Hitler they would before long have overrun India and in that case Indian labour together with the whole toiling masses would have to bear the brunt of Fascist domination. "Any movement for resisting war efforts in India will immediately injure the interests of the labouring classes. They therefore cannot have any sympathy for such injurious movement."

The demands of the Congress were Democracy and Constituent Assembly. He declared the democracy demanded by the Congress was not a real democracy. There was no democracy in the Congress itself.

GANDHIJI AN ENIGMA

Says Giani Singh

Lahore, Jan. 12
"Gandhi is an enigma and failed to understand the significance of his satyagraha. He proclaims he has no intention to embarrass the British Government. He wants Hitler and Axis to be defeated and yet wants the people to give no aid to Britain in the present war. These observations were made by Mr. Giani Kartar Singh, M.L.A. presiding over the Akali Political Conference. He said Gandhiji's satyagraha was undertaken not for freedom of the country but for freedom of speech which was usually restricted during the war period. Gandhiji had merely forced his philosophy on the country. How can they accept the methods adopted by Gurus, Prophet Mohammed and Lord Krishna as unsuitable?"

SIR SIKANDER'S TRIBUTE TO INDIAN TROOPS

Their Example Placed Before India

FORGET COMMUNAL DIFFERENCES

A. P. Lahore, Jan. 15
Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan, Premier of the Punjab, who recently returned from a tour of the Western Desert, paid a tribute to the splendid spirit of comradeship among Indian soldiers in Egypt and Sudan, who fought bravely from all parts of India. "Forget politics for six months," advised Sir Sikandar, "forget communal differences even as our soldiers abroad have forgotten them and concentrate on India winning the war even as our men are doing outside and in six months we will find our problems have solved themselves."

Sir Sikandar believed despite disparity in numbers. Allies are on top both in Egypt and Sudan and now that they have a much larger force there, the disparity is much less. He also referred to Indian soldiers' physical fitness and the high reputation they enjoy among brother soldiers from all parts of the Empire and the respect which their fighting qualities have inspired in the enemy.

TRIBUTES TO INDIAN TROOPS

Sir Sikandar's Review

A. P. Lahore, Jan. 14
Eloquent tributes were paid by Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan, Premier of the Punjab, to the Indian forces fighting in the Western Desert in the course of a two-hour talk on the recent Middle East tour at a reception given in his honour by Ministers of the Punjab.

Giving his impressions of the visit to Middle East, he referred to the marked discrimination between Indian and Libyan soldiers, the former well clothed, well-equipped and the latter ill-clad and ill-equipped. The latter, he said, they showed ardour, they were deliberately overworked, being told Indians would not give quarter to anyone and shoot everyone who came their way. Libyans were greatly surprised at the humane treatment accorded to them. Great achievement in the Western Desert was largely due to the fact that all were members of the great family of British Commonwealth of Nations and had a common ideal, a common cause and common traditions. The common aim was to discuss with the British Government the question of a common front against the Axis powers. A common front was the only way to win the war, he said, and common front was the only way to win the war.

He said that the Indian soldiers were the backbone of the British Empire and that they were the only ones who were not only fighting for their own country but for the whole of the British Commonwealth.

"It is with the war, not politics, that we must concentrate our minds," he said. "It is with the war, not politics, that we must concentrate our minds." He said that the Indian soldiers were the backbone of the British Empire and that they were the only ones who were not only fighting for their own country but for the whole of the British Commonwealth.

Contempt of Court Bill

The last session of the Mysore Legislative Council, according to the old constitution, has commenced its three day session yesterday. There are quite a number of official Bills, coming up for consideration before the Council. About one official Bill, namely, the one relating to Contempt of Court, we earnestly request the members to consider its effect on the Press of the country and dispassionately give their views on it. The existing law in connection with Contempt of Court refers only to pending cases but the Bill placed before the Council is absolute. Even if comments should appear on a judgment pronounced by the High Court, if some passages or statements in the article are not to the taste of any Judge, there is every danger of the writer of the article and the Editor of the paper in which it is published, being hauled up under the proposed law. This is another halter around the neck of the Press. It is argued that if newspapers are careful in their comments and exercise due caution they need not stand in fear of such a law in the statute book. But our experience tells us that in spite of extreme caution and care there are occasions when the Press has to criticise freely a judgment or judgments, when it felt that the judges have not done justice but have done something different. To give a well-known illustration, some newspapers of the State and outside, strongly criticised the substance and the manner of the judgments in connection with dismemberment of some Lawyers, very recently, who were involved in some political cases. As a matter of fact an attempt was made to launch a case against a particular paper, but since it was found that the comment referred to was made in connection with a case which had been already decided but not pending, the attempt failed. The Government perhaps subsequently felt that there was a defect in the existing law and to make it up, they have proposed the Bill in question, which would cover all comments made on cases pending and decided.

In the 116 years passed, it would be a wonder, not only to the freedom of Press but also to the freedom of expression in the "Ulysses" brought him to general notice. It is a rather a public consciousness of the people of the State. A judge is a human being, he also is liable to err. Why then protect him with this new measure? After all, what looks bona fide to the writer, may not look so to the judge and more so when there are clashes of public life in the country. We think that the proposed measure is harmful to the progress of the country which is in dire need of the light of freedom of Press and freedom of expression.

In the wake of the New Reforms it would be wise and statesmanlike not to pass such laws.

THE AUTHOR OF "ULYSSES"

The rebel in English literature is dead and we pay our humble tribute to his powers of originality. Mr. James Joyce whose book "Ulysses" created such a furor in the days gone by will be remembered as one who defied all accepted conventions in language, style and substance. The 900 pages of that sensational novel attracted much attention among men of letters as a portent of certain modern tendencies in novel writing. There is no novel in English language which could stand comparison with "Ulysses". It is a story of two Irishmen with no plot or novel-like grip in it. The whole narrative abounds with microscopic details of one day's life where vulgarities and obscenities have been included to shock the susceptibilities of those who pursue the accepted path in literature.

Mr. James Joyce has outshone Sterne and Voltaire in sheer originality. His "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man" and his "Work in Progress" have been masterpieces in experimental writing. Here is a sample of his incommunicative language which has shocked many as a piece of reckless originality.

"Can't hear the waters of. The Chattering waters of flittering bats fieldmice hawk talk. Hol are you not gone ahome. What Tom Malone? Can't hear with hawk of bats all the lifeying waters of. Hol talk save us

In fact Mr. James Joyce continues in this strain throughout his book "Work in Progress". The last pages of "Ulysses" contains no punctuation marks at all. Mr. Joyce lived to see his labours bear fruit. He never cared for honours or applause. He was content to be called a rebel. If human life abounds with obscenities and vulgarities why should anyone exclude those in narration was the one question which Mr. Joyce tackled successfully. He fought many literary battles and won them. We indulge in vulgar things and we should also stand up when reading them. Ulysses is the answer.

Mr. James Joyce was an Irishman and left his country to seek his fortune in a far off continental place. He was much hated as a rebel in English language, but the "Ulysses" brought him to general notice. It is a rather a public consciousness of the crept into many homes. The young read it, the old are satisfied with the way the novel has taken and many curse it as obscene.

If the stream of consciousness should flow unchecked, rebels like Joyce have to labour in this mundane world. His works stand as a monument to rouse the spirit which is repressed. We can still the real self but what use it is. Mr. James Joyce whose death we are mourning today will be remembered for ages as one who defied accepted conventions in literature. May his soul rest in peace.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

These two or three days the talk in the town has been that of the scrutiny of nomination papers in connection with the ensuing elections. My readers would have already read the various points of view published in the press so far. The reading of the situation showed that there was a ray of hope on the evening of Monday. But as the next day dawned hopes began to wane and yesterday morning they completely vanished. The outlook is rather gloomy. I wish something had been done in the matter.

The Pongal festival has come and gone. In connection with the festival there is lot of merry-going. In the City of Mysore, Cows are made to cross fire. Their horns are painted or dyed picturesquely and with the beat of drums the Cows and bullocks are driven across the line of fire. This is an ancient custom, which is observed in all reverence in Mysore. I wish some enterprising sociological research worker would trace these customs to their source and throw some scientific light upon them. I am inclined to believe that there must be a significance in that custom and we have lost its meaning.

With the turn of the course of the Sun in the Heavens, we perceive a change of weather down below on earth. The afternoons have become rather sultry and the nights less chilly.

News comes from Patna that the coming Patna Municipal Commissioners would be required to take pledge that they would voluntarily cleanse streets and drains of the City to set an example to others. This is one of the conditions in the pledge for those who want to fight the coming Municipal Elections on the Tickets of the Municipal Reforms Committee. A body newly formed with the object of making Patna brighter and healthier.

I am sure the candidates would take the pledge but during Elections it is usual for candidates to make several promises which are conventional that they need not fulfil. I hope the pledge that they take now would not be of that nature.

In Bangalore it is not necessary that our Municipal Councillors should take any such pledge. I shall be content if they regularly go round their divisions once or twice every week, see that the locality kept clean and also ascertain the requirements of the Ratepayers and try to satisfy them as far as possible. I hope the Council Municipal Councillors would infuse a new spirit among ratepayers.

News comes from Singapore that rickshaws may disappear from its streets. At Singapore the rickshaw pullers are mostly Chinese. There are about 70 of them. It appears a big Chinese who recently visited Singapore advised his countrymen to abandon this humiliating profession.

In this connection any visit to Madras would find numerous these Rickshaws and that City. In spite of Gandhi preaching, the number of Rickshaw riders has not diminished. If it be a sin to ride a rickshaw, I myself have committed it several times not knowingly but deliberately.

Thank God! in Bangalore have not that gruesome spectacle of rickshaw pulling which a big Chinese described as "C" and horse" occupation.

But what of human bullock in Madras near the M. S. Good Sheds it is a common sight to see the coolies doing duty bullocks and dragging heavy wagons of load. Can we allow this? Does not human sentiment jar at this?

Very many years ago I witnessed an incident which lingers in my mind not on account of the happening itself but on account of the remark which I heard then. A coolie was carrying a very heavy load so heavy, that he was unable to match to it. But the paymaster insisted on his carrying it further to his house. The coolie was done. The paymaster said, "Really I pity you, but what do, it is your Karma."

This remark has been in my mind. Perhaps in the Karma we not only ourselves but also make suffer unbearable things due to the suffering man. Karma idea may bring in resignation. But it is too much for me to tell man making another suffer and say that it is Karma. I am glad to see in our country the people began to revolt against the Karma.

An Amazing Incident

It passes our understanding how Mr. K. R. Subbannachar could not even get a seconder in the Legislative Council to the notice of adjournment motion to discuss the situation caused by the removal of a large number of candidates of the Government. We consider this to be very extraordinary. The election returns which returned these stalwarts to the Legislative Council, besides what has happened to its members in the Legislature. We are mystified at this gap of silence. It looks like a spell which has overtaken these wise men on the floor of the House when in the circumstances which have come out with their head and leave no room for a question. It is a question to Fate which seems to have spread its tentacles on the destiny of Mysore's public life.

We cannot fail to understand. We are amazed at this record of reticence on the part of the elected members of the House.

Was it not a matter of urgent public importance? Has not the public feeling been roused over this affair? Have not the newspapers dealt with this question in a prominent manner? Is the rejection of candidatures of about 90 people and more a matter for the Legislative Council to sit mum? It is a pity that though the Government were not in the way of discussing this affair, the elected members of the Council were found napping or still worse indifferent. Was not a matter which affected the interests and rights of the members of Legislature? Or is it that the members are convinced that there was nothing wrong in what had happened and all was right? They might have said so in the course of discussion. We ask them: have they not deprived the public of an opportunity of knowing the Government view definitely and pronounced on the matter. Conjectures are doing duty to fact at present. The public are not informed as to what has been the prime consideration of Government in the matter. We are indeed very sorry that the public missed a good opportunity of knowing the Government view. It was also an opportunity for enlightened members to press the public mind on the attention of the Government.

In all matters the result is not important. It is the process that counts. Mr. Subbannachar's adjournment motion, pointing out the charges of wronging the day against the would-be supporters of the fact that is another matter. It should have certainly provided an opportunity on a public reference to be ventilated in a constitutional manner on the floor of the House. The affair would have gone into the records of the proceedings of the Council and would have served as a historic guidance to future generations.

There is no use of dilating on such topics. We are filled with real grief that Mr. Subbannachar's notice of adjournment motion did not find even a seconder in that gallant body. There is no Legislature in India, or for the matter of that elsewhere, to beat this Mysore body, in indifference to popular rights.

SRI TYAGARAJA

Sweetness and light comes from Tiruvadi where the anniversary celebrations of the Saint-composer Sri Tyagaraja are in full swing. Sri Tyagaraja's name is revered throughout Southern India as one who attained salvation through music. Devotion has been blended with philosophy and Sri Tyagaraja's musical compositions abound in varied maxims of pure philosophy in "Sri Rama Matha" and discards it. He would rather go without money than procure for all the cruel wants which the jangling coin would procure. Throughout his long years he lived a life of poverty and his penuriousness fortified his resolute way of life. He cared not for riches, he looked on wealth as pompousness. He turned a deaf ear to his malicious critics. His burning devotion at the feet of Sri Rama and his devotional mode of life enhanced his personal qualities as a Saint-composer.

The lustre and lusciousness which radiate from his songs have inspired this mundane world. Many sing his compositions with reverence and devotion to illuminate their abodes with the pure philosophy of Sri Tyagaraja's austere life. They burn incense at his feet to derive divine guidance. The apostasy of his personality has been the guiding factor with us and we rejoice to remember the Saint's spotless career of eight decades.

Sri Tyagaraja's numerous devotees have been celebrating his anniversary by getting up musical gatherings, performing aradhana and taking out processions. In our own city the Bangalore Gayana Samaja and other individual Vidvans have arranged programmes in praise of the great Composer. We humbly join in their endeavours to honour that great soul who inspired us with his soul-stirring music. Sri Tyagaraja attained his salvation through musical praise of Sri Rama and so also his contemporaries Sri Dikshitar and Sri Shyama Sastry. He dedicated his whole life to free this wretched world from evils and temptations. He spread lustre with his bountiful devotion. Saints like Sri Tyagaraja, Philosophers like Sri Sankara, Teachers like Sri Krishnaraja Wadhyar and Politicians like Mahatma Gandhi have made us today to advance our country's freedom.

Let Sri Tyagaraja devoted to inspire us to greater achievement and towards freedom and glory. Let us learn the lesson of devotion in the service of God, the service of the country and the service of humanity.

BOMBAY LETTER

Bombay, Jan. 10
Mr. N. S. Gubbi, a prominent Mysorean and the Proprietor of a firm of Auditors, entertained Dewan Bahadur K. S. Chandra Sekhara Iyer, Rajasevasaktha B. K. Narayana Rao, Mr. B. P. K. and Mr. B. K. Ramakrishnaiah at tea, in his residence, on the 9th instant. Later he brought them to the Mysore Association and showed them round the new building. They were particularly pleased to note that the Mysore Association had rescued a wayward boy who had come to Bombay without the knowledge of their parents.

These boys are M. Prabhakar, G. M. Dinker Rao and G. Balavant Rao, belonging to a Marathi family residing at Bangalore Cantt. The Secretary Mysore Association is making arrangements to send these boys back to their parents.

The fourteenth General Body meeting of the Mysore Association will be held on the 19th instant in the Association premises at 5 p. m. under the chairmanship of Mr. N. N. Iyengar, its president.

The Mysoreans have much to be proud of at the selection of Mr. Venkatchalam Kadambi B. Sc. as the recipient of Sir Puro Setha Scholarship to get trained as a Ground Engineer in the Air Pilot Training College at Hindon. U. S. A. Mr. Karlam is formerly a student of the Central College, Bangalore. He

The talk of the town is again about the rejection of candidatures of a large number of candidates to the ensuing elections. The tragedy of it is, hopes were raised which were subsequently dashed to pieces. The effect of this on the popular mind is unimaginable. I am afraid this would lead to more strained feelings between Mysore Congress and the authorities. The authorities ought to have taken a more practical view of things. If it were one or two try cases, even ten, they need not have interfered. But when there are about 90 and more candidates, commonsense would say that it would have been within the competency of Government to have interfered and set the matters right.

It is not for me to record here all that I have heard in this connection, why there was sympathy in the beginning which subsequently gave room for indifference and hostility. I am told quite a number of declared candidates made representations to Government that it would be unjust to them if the authorities should interfere in the decisions of the Returning Officers. Thus what was easy at first looked difficult after thought and things were allowed to worsen.

I do not know what the reaction of this on the Congress would be. Whatever may be their future course of action I counsel them to be patient and continue their usual activities. This is no doubt a trying time for them but they may have this consolation that the people are behind them. In spite of this heavy depletion from Congress ranks in the Legislature, the few that are there might do a lot of good and serve as a check against reactionary moves in the Legislature.

As a contrast to Mysore we see in Travancore a return to normal in the political situation. A few days ago we heard that a sort of understanding had been reached between the Travancore Congress and that Government. Though Press communiques were issued denying this understanding, those who were in the know, felt things were improving. As a matter of fact, we find that prominent Congressmen have been delivered from jail. A few days ago I read in the press that Sir C. P. was devising a system of responsible Government to be introduced in Travancore.

It is strange that Sir Shanmugam Chetty is speaking of 'Dravidism'. He has indulged in a veiled attack against the policy of the Indian National Congress.

A Madras daily which is known for its anti-Indian views has patted Sir Shanmugam. It is easy to jibe at the Congress but to offer a solution is more difficult. Simply because one is in a position to criticise, it does not follow that he has any solution to offer. We know how the 'Pakistani' cry has originated. We also know how the Dravidian cry has originated. Sir Shanmugam cleverly evades answers to straight questions. 'One of the questions was whether the speaker supported the demand for separate Dravidian. He would not give a categorical answer to the question, because the demand had not come to say definitely whether such a 'Nadu' should be brought into existence at the cost.' To him the question was whether Dravidianism was inevitable or not. The question was what he brought about that separatist mentality. He answered the question by saying that the sighted policy of a certain class of nationalists was really responsible for the present crisis separation.

We know Sir Shanmugam Chetty too well to take him at his word. He was formed in the Congress, subsequently joined Justice Party, in too much and ascended the Chair of the Speaker of the Congress Assembly. Inspite of his brilliant performances, the election did not favour him in the general elections and since occupation he accepted the Dewanship of Cochin. He is a intelligent man but in politics he moves from the path of the good and suffering. He likes the convenient path and with his long tongue he paves his way for it. Being a big man his utterance find prominence in the Press and we read them. Anyhow the latest query about 'Dravidism' is not without meaning.

The Inter-University Board is now in Travancore in the course of their merry-go-round. They are going to have a time of it there. His Highness the Maharaja gave them a dinner on January 15, which was followed by a dinner by Sir C. yesterday. The Pro-Vice-Chancellor was at home to them today. The members of the Board will witness a parade in Travancore University and will visit Cape Comorin, the beauty spot of South India, where three oceans meet.

News comes from Karachi that H. H. the Aga Khan has weighed against diamond sales in 1945 on the occasion of the Diamond jubilee of his accession to the spiritual leadership of Ismailis. The Imam, Aga Khan, has launched a move to collect diamonds from his followers all the world. Diamond stones needed to balance the Aga Khan's estimated, will be valued at million Pounds sterling. The entire proceeds will subsequently be credited to the war fund. In my opinion that will be a use for the 5 million pounds collected in the share of diamonds. After the war is over I am sure His Highness Aga Khan will be rewarded as a terrestrial kingdom.

CONTEMPT OF COURTS BILL OPPOSITION IN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Mr. D. V. GUNDAPPA'S VIGOROUS SPEECH

Bangalore, Jan 17
 Messrs. D. V. Gundappa, Belur Srinivasa Ayyangar, G. Girmaji Rao, B. R. Puttananappa, D. S. Mallappa, and B. S. Puttaswamy opposed the Contempt of Courts (Amendment) Bill in the Mysore Legislative Council, yesterday.

Rajamantrapravina Mr. N. Madhava Rao, Vice-President of the Council and First Member, presided.

Law Secretary Explains

Mr. H. W. Narayana Rao (Law Secretary) explained that the Contempt of Courts (Amendment) Bill be read in Council. It was impossible, he said, to give an exhaustive list of cases which would amount to contempt under the law, nevertheless it might be stated that contempt could be broadly divided into two classes. Firstly, any act done or writing published calculated to bring a Court or Judge of the Court into contempt, or to lower its or his authority was a contempt of court. This class belonged to the category which was characterised as "scandalising a Court or a Judge". Secondly, any act done or writing published calculated to obstruct or interfere with the due course of justice or the lawful process of the courts was a contempt of court. The definition of "contempt of court" given in the Mysore Act covered both these classes. Departing from the law in England and British India, the Mysore Act had provided that even in regard to the first class of cases, the contempt would be punishable only if committed in respect of pending judicial proceedings. That limitation was, he mentioned, introduced in the Select Committee appointed to go through the original bill, some years ago.

Existing Limitation only Artificial

It was however easy, he continued, to conceive of cases where this class of contempt might be seen in respect of proceedings which had terminated or could not be in respect of any proceedings at all. The Indian law, he said, was not a proper measure to be taken in respect of a judgement which had been reversed or annulled. He said that the law in England and British India was not a proper measure to be taken in respect of a judgement which had been reversed or annulled. He said that the law in England and British India was not a proper measure to be taken in respect of a judgement which had been reversed or annulled.

tions, it was easily seen how very artificial and inexpedient such a limitation was. Even when the report of the Select Committee on the original bill was under the consideration of the House, the Third Member of Council remarked: "The opinion may be held in some quarters that having regard to the fact that it is a moot question whether the Chief Court (as it then was) had not already got powers by virtue of its constitution to deal with contempts, such limitation would really be of no advantage; and whether in that view, it is desirable to proceed with it to the final stage. But Government have decided that having brought this bill to this stage, it may as well be proceeded with to the final stage. In case it is found that the present limitation of the bill to pending cases is found in actual working not to be adequate, the Government will come up again before the Council and they have no doubt the Council will deal with the matter suitably". The bill before the House, he added, merely sought to remove this limitation and bring the law in Mysore into line with that in British India and England. In fact, of all the enlightened countries in the world.

No Suppression of Fair Comment

Mr. Narayana Rao emphasised that it was not the intention of Government in bringing this bill to suppress fair or reasonable criticism. So long as it was couched in proper language, every person had a right to such criticism. The Mysore Act had the advantage over the corresponding British Indian measure that the acts of contempt were defined and limited by the definition and not left to the vagaries of Judges.

The proposed amending bill did not affect this aspect. The Act had been on the Statute book for nearly eleven years and he was sure that no member could say that the Act had been either harshly or unfairly worked. After all the power given was to the highest Court in Mysore and the Court might be trusted to work the Act even after this amendment with the same sense of fairness and with the same discretion as hitherto.

Rajamantrapravina Mr. B. T. Kesavaiah, Vice-President of the Council, presided over the motion.

Mr. D. V. Gundappa's Opposition

Mr. D. V. Gundappa (1st) opposing the bill said that it was calculated to worsen the position for one, who would criticise the doings and deliverances of our judges. The act of 1930, which this bill sought to amend, was, after a good deal of discussion, passed as a generally agreed measure. The aspect of the matter dealt with in the present bill had not been lost sight of at that time, and in reply it was stated by many members that the remedy available in the ordinary law at that date to the aggrieved court was adequate, and would continue unaffected by the new contempt of Courts law. Mr. Gundappa did not think anything had happened within the last ten years to justify their widening the scope of that Act now so as to bring within its purview what was then deliberately left out. The omission of certain phrases proposed in the present bill would remove a desirable limitation on the authority of the courts, which limitation was originally a praised feature of the measure and transfer that limitation to the sphere of the citizen who would scrutinize the working of our courts and their methods.

Present Act Adequate

Mr. Gundappa ventured to hold that the press and the public in Mysore had never shown any tendency to withhold from the judges the respect and deference to which they were entitled. If it was the Government's case that there had been wanton attacks upon the judges, he thought, it was due to the public that the Government should first of all have brought all such instances to the notice of the Representative Assembly and of the Council in the form of a statement and asked for the appointment of a special committee to go into the question of controlling criticisms of the judiciary. The report of such a Committee should have been the basis of legislation and that would be in the true line of parliamentary government. But what was now proposed was a piece of a priori legislation in a matter involving so vital a constituent of citizenship as the right of criticising the conduct of an important class of public servants.

All that was said in support of the bill, Mr. Gundappa went on to say, was that it merely sought to make the state of the law in Mysore a full and faithful reproduction of that in British India. Was it not odd, he asked, that our admiration for British India should be reserved for only such measures restriction of the liberties of citizenship. In the matter of the law of Contempt of Court, British India as it was might not be taken as a model. He would not have even England as it was taken for a model.

"Priori" Legislation

The speaker submitted that no one would ask that attempts made to hamper or to pervert the course of proceedings in a court should be let go unpunished. It was common ground between the Government and the public that comments on sub-judice cases, publication of sensational reports of court proceedings, incitements or hints to witnesses and similar offences against justice should be rigorously prevented. The law as it stood was quite adequate for this thoroughly legitimate purpose in our State. No one would have the law weakened in this respect. What was objected to was the proposed subtraction from the citizen's liberty of criticism and its conversion into a fresh inroad into the judges.

Mr. Belur Srinivasa Ayyangar (Bangalore district) said that the Government had not made any case in favour of the bill. There was not even one single instance for the past several years of injury done by any newspaper to the public cause which necessitated such a bill.

Mr. B. R. Puttananappa (Shimoga district) wondered whether the High Court asked for the amendment bill so as to be free from public criticism.

Rao Sahab Mr. C. Hayavadana Rao said that the British Indian High Courts had some inherent powers of protection whereas the Mysore High Court had not and therefore by legislation such protection had to be given. The present bill sought to give such protection.

Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy (Mysore district) said that the judiciary in the State was quite independent and there was no need to entertain any suspicion about the exercise by the High Court of the wide powers conferred by this bill. However, he suggested that the bill required very careful consideration and so opposed its introduction in this session.

Khan Bahadur Mohamed Abbas Khan, Mr. M. R. M. L. Lakshminarayanan (Government Advocate), Mr. J. M. Imami (Chitaldrug district) and Mr. C. Linga Gowda (Mysore district) supported the bill.

Messrs. G. Girmaji Rao (Kolar district) and D. S. Mallappa (Tumkur district) opposed the bill.

Further discussion on the bill was adjourned for tomorrow.

The House, after interpellations, passed the Advocate-General (Designation) Bill and the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Bill into law.

The House also voted additional grants, Rs. 32,757 to meet the enhanced price on paper supplied to the Government, Rs. 11,000 for the Prison Reforms Committee, Rs. 4,600 for medical department, Rs. 45,500 for civil works, Rs. 2800 for industries and commerce, Rs. 16,002 for agricultural department, Rs. 14,940 for industrial and other works, Rs. 66,600 for Road fund

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL SESSION CONCLUDES

PRESIDENT BIDS FAREWELL TO MEMBERS

A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE WORK DONE

REFERENCE TO REJECTED NOMINATIONS

Bangalore, Jan. 17.—The Council that will meet next will be different in respects from the present. There are bound to be changes in personnel both among the official and the non-official members but I do hope that a large number of those who have gained experience in their places, and that, whatever changes may take place, there will be none in the harmonious relations that have always existed in this House between officials and non-officials and between members of different parties in the determination to uphold the fine constitutional traditions that this House has built up and in the desire to serve, above everything else, the interests of the State.

Thus observed Rajamantraiah Mr. N. Madhava Rao, President Member of Council, in his address winding up the session of the Legislative Council. The following is the full text of his address.

At this is the last session of the Legislative Council under the present constitution, it will be inappropriate to recall the main features of work which it has been able to accomplish during the period of nearly 17 years of its existence. It has met twice or three times every year and enriched the statute book by passing more than 150 Acts. Of these, two were promoted by private members and four were initiated by members of resolutions passed in the Council. This legislation is remarkable not only for its volume but for its varied character, covering, as it does, all branches of administration and important aspects of the economic and social activities of the State. The measures which the members would perhaps recall with particular satisfaction are those dealing with reforms in the self-government, the extension of education to which the session has made an important contribution, the improvement of the land revenue system, the introduction of a Bill of Rights, the encouragement of trade and industry through the standardisation of weights and measures, regulation of patents and designs and establishment of regulated markets and more than all, the promotion of social justice by the removal of caste disabilities, recognition of women's rights, protection of the indebted agriculturists and recognition of the claims of workmen in organised industries in respect of compensation for injuries and of female workers for maternity benefits. The underdog in every sphere has received a large measure of practical sympathy.

Resolutions Analysed

Analysing the resolutions passed in this Council, the Committee on Constitutional Reforms has noted that "178 resolutions came up before the Council, of which 130 were withdrawn with or without discussion and 22 were accepted by Government."

Influence of the Council

Statistics of bills and resolutions, however, can give no adequate idea of the extent of the influence exerted by the Council. His Highness the late Maharaja told the members when he inaugurated this Council and the Representative Assembly in March 1924 "you will find yourself exercising a considerable frequently decisive, influence upon the policy of Government. Not merely your resolutions but all that you urge in debate will be of high importance." Those of us who have long been members of this Council and who have further had the privilege of taking part in the counsels of Government know how true these words have proved to be.

Features of the Next Council

When the Council meets next June, it will be under greatly altered conditions. The Dewan will cease to be the President, although he may address this Council or both this Council and the Representative Assembly assembled together. The Members of the Executive Council will as Ministers presumably take their seats not on the dais but on the Treasury Bench along with their colleagues appointed by His Highness the Maharaja from

Elementary Education Bill

THE problem of Elementary Education in India and in Mysore too, has been a ticklish one. It is not that there is no need, nor do desire, on the part of the people to give more impetus to Elementary Education. In these days of democracy and popular forms of Government, when people have to exercise their votes with care and discrimination, knowledge of the three R's is essential. We desire to have in our country adult franchise. Though some may argue that literacy is not test of capacity to exercise franchise, it cannot be denied that literacy is the basic need of a citizen today. A citizen is more than a voter. And modern life requires an ordinary man, woman and child to know the three R's. In every modern and progressive Government, the most attention of Government is to Elementary Education.

A survey of the conditions of the modern world would reveal to us that in advanced countries there is cent-per-cent literacy or near about that. It is only in India we have hardly 8 in a hundred who know the three R's. The percentage of literacy is too low to call ourselves a modern nation.

We do not say that earnest efforts have not been made by Governments to promote Elementary Education. The late Government was always harping on compulsory Elementary Education in India. We know in some advanced States, Education is free and compulsory up to the standard of University. Also in our State, thanks to the forward policy of the Govt. we are having Education free up to the middle school standard all over the State. And even higher up, there is liberal grant of concessions to poor and deserving students. It is true that small Municipalities, Elementary Education is not made compulsory for that means money. If Elementary Education has not progressed in our State as much as we desire, we cannot blame the machinery of Government or Local Boards. If the 1930 Act did not fulfil the expectations made of it, we do not lay the blame at the door of the District Boards. Where is the money to come from? The Government had no money to make increased grants. And the Local Boards were unwilling to levy cesses. And so, Elementary Education stagnated. And instead of the number of schools increasing, we saw the sorry spectacle of their number reducing.

In our opinion, the problem of Elementary Education is one of finance. It is not regarding the unpleasant matter. Some members of the Government have been criticised for respect of money grants made to the University. There is no state in this criticism. University Education is much needed as Elementary Education. We cannot build the one at the sacrifice of the other. Ours is a poor country, and people cannot make big donations to the University. And the State has to find funds for it.

It is therefore wrong to cast our envious eyes at the University and say, because Government support it, Elementary Education has suffered.

We are living in an age of all rounded progress. We cannot starve any branch of progress, University, Agriculture, Industry and Irrigation. If we have not achieved more, it is due to lack of funds.

Where have we to find funds? It is necessary that people should tax themselves. It is true that whenever any new tax was levied the Government promised to utilise it for Education. When income-tax was levied this promise was made. When the Government were questioned, they replied that they had been spending more than that amount for Education. When people request Government to adopt a policy of prohibition they turn round and say where have we to find money for Education, as that amount were utilised for Education. All these are only excuses. The real fact is we have no money. It is true that there is a good deal of scope for retrenchment in the matter of salaries paid to our officers. We think the retrenchment in this direction has to come in to force—some day if not today. Education cannot wait for ever.

To us it is immaterial whether Elementary Education is in the hands of Government or of the Local Boards as long as there are ample funds. A Government however efficient, popular and well-intentioned it may be, it cannot do without the co-operation of local bodies, call them District Boards, or District Educational Committees. Divesting the District Boards of their powers over Elementary Education is not a great reform. And Government will have to seek elsewhere the cause for the failure of the 1930 Act. The Amended Act cannot also fulfil its purpose if funds are not available. More than anything, the willing co-operation of non-officials is needed more than ever.

With the views that we hold, we feel that the problem of Education, more so of Elementary Education, is one of our ability to meet its cost. We have to pay for it if we want it. Otherwise we shall be repeating formulae with no significance.

THE NEW SILVER RUPEE COINS

The new silver rupee coins are a good substitute for the filthy paper bits, but unlike old rupees it has a fascination of its own. Though neat and tidy in appearance it lacks many qualities which the other rupees possessed. Many haven't had the good fortune to look at it. Patient and silent waiting will result in getting rupees of this sort, one long. It is a master mind indeed that invented this kind of a rupee which has converted those who like to utter counterfeits. The old rupees were hated by everyone. On the contrary it encouraged "private" money, providing our work in the criminal vigilance department. But the new rupees are

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I congratulate heartily Messrs. W. H. Hanumanappa and K. Shamaraja Iyengar on their being elected as President and Vice-President of the Bangalore City Municipal Council for one year. I am really sorry for Janab S. N. M. Razvi. Had he joined the Mysore Congress he stood a very good chance of being elected as President. His defeat in the present election was only one thing and that is not that Mr. Razvi is not fit to hold the Presidency or Vice Presidency but the party alliances are needed today more than individual efforts. Mr. Razvi has been a member of Indian National Congress in Mysore and has done meritorious work in that connection. The people remember his services and the present defeat which was a foregone conclusion need not depress him. Such Mussalman gentlemen ought to join Mysore Congress and strengthen it. I hope the day is not far off when people like Mr. Razvi would join the Mysore Congress in their own interest as well as in the interest of the country.

Mr. W. H. Hanumanappa is an old and respected member of the Bangalore City Municipal Council. He has been in it continuously for the past eighteen years and more. He is not rich nor does he look big in person. But he is a quiet, steady and persistent worker. He has been loyal to the Mysore Congress and has done his best to promote its interests. He resigned his membership of the Assembly and the Bangalore City Municipal Council in obedience to the resolution of the All Mysore Congress Committee passed at Malleswaram. The Congressmen have deservedly rewarded him by crowning him the President of the Bangalore City Municipal Council. With the solid co-operation that he has of members there can be no doubt that his regime would be fruitful to ratepayers.

Mr. K. Shamaraja Iyengar, who is elected as Vice-President, is devoted to Mysore Congress. When all the leaders were in jail he boldly came forward and at great risk to his prospects as a Lawyer he piloted the affairs of the Congress. He is an ardent worker with no pretensions and assumptions. He is a willing and humble worker. The very fact that he was unanimously elected even among Congressmen shows his popularity among them. With the team of Messrs. Hanumanappa and Shamaraja Iyengar we can expect much to the ratepayers.

I perceive there is not so much of buoyancy and enthusiasm in the Congress circles today. The rejection of nomination papers of such a large number of Congress candidates has cast a gloom over the atmosphere. Otherwise the Presidential Election of the Bangalore City Municipal Council would not have been such a tame and quiet affair. There is reflection of this gloom even among ratepayers and the General Public, but we should take this in good cheer and spirit. It is possible for man to convert this seeming disadvantage into an advantage. One thing is certain, whatever the attitude of the authorities, the popular mind is very much grieved over this affair. This will surely recoil on the future.

The Legislative Council Session that has been going on now seems to be a very uninteresting affair. The public at large do not seem to evince any interest. Barring a few members, others would, like automatons, lift their hands to vote with Government. I am sure all the Government Bills would be passed, the most dangerous of them, the Contempt of Courts Bill. I have read the speech of the mover of the Bill. He says "The Bill before the House merely seeks to bring the Law in Mysore into line with that in British India and England and in fact of all the enlightened countries in the world." Mr. D. V. Gundappa referring to this remark gave an effective reply. He asked why was it that "Our admiration for British India should be reserved for only such measures as restrictive of the liberties of the citizenship."

Mr. Gundappa rightly pointed out the profession of journalists is greatly agitated over this question. It feels that there are already too many weapons in the armoury of Government to keep the Press under check. The Conference of Journalists which met in Bangalore last month discussed this subject adopted a resolution to request that the Government may be pleased to drop the Bill.

Mr. Gundappa also said that this is a measure which the profession of Law itself cannot look upon with equanimity. He addressed the Congress thus: "Shr. There are judges. Some of them are to be excessively self-conscious and cannot stand looking at them. It is a matter of common knowledge that in some cases sensitiveness becomes marked in proportion to density of university. We have many of some very distinguished judges laying hold on words or their statements, while who are men holding high position in Government or respected public life and from that position on the bench dictating at random of utter dicta of great dignity or grace. In court over which a judge of character presides, the functioning of even a true bound to become risky. If a Lawyer too happens to be cursed with a sensitive temperament, may the Lord have mercy on him, his life would become intolerable before a judge armed with the extra powers which this Bill would make available to him."

I have rather indulged too much of politics today. I cannot help it. When the Contempt of Courts Bill is amended is passed, even a puff might land the Editor in trouble. I hope the judge would get more thick-skinned and pursue their work with disinterestedness.

The boon of the Radio never felt so much as when I listen to rapturous music. Yesterday morning at Tirumala place the Aradhana at Samadhi of the Great Sri Composer Sri Thyagaraja music and vedic chanting relayed from the Tri-himalaya Broadcasting Station. We and children enjoyed with heart danced to the tune of Tiruvadi waves of music. The inventor of the wireless deserves a statue of devotion every human heart. But Radio how much of joy would have missed.

INDIAN LIBERAL LEADERS' REPLY TO NINE MEMBERS OF THE COMMONS

BELIEF IN CO-OPERATION ON HONOURABLE TERMS

Bombay Jan. 18.
The view that the British Government had so far failed to inspire zeal for the British cause among the people of India, and that the situation in this country, though serious, could be improved beyond reasonable limits, is expressed with confidence and courage, are expressed by prominent Indian Liberals in the course of a signed statement sent to the message to the House of India from nine members of the British Parliament.

The statement says—
We, the undersigned members of the Liberal Party in India, deeply appreciate the sincerity and goodwill which have prompted the nine members of the British Parliament to send a message to the people of India. We cordially reciprocate their feelings. As Indian and British political ideals are the same and the moral sympathy of India is with the forces of democracy at this juncture, we agree that it is a tragedy that India and England are not made to reconcile the two.

NOT SUPERFICIAL MATTERS

We must point out however that it is a mistake to think that the misunderstandings relate to superficial matters. Deeper causes are responsible for the present situation.

We are glad to be told that the idea of looking on India as a country on an equal is foreign to the House of Commons today. This has come as a welcome surprise to us as we have seen in reflection of this spirit in the policies followed in India. At the outbreak of the war India was more warmly sympathetic to Britain than even during the Great War owing to common political ideas. But the British Government unfortunately failed to mobilise Indian opinion and still distrustful attitude. In the political domain we have moved very reluctantly and always too late.

The declaration made by the Viceroy after the outbreak of the war merely re-affirmed that Dominion Status was the ultimate issue of India's political evolution, and there was no offer at that stage of associating Indians with the formulation and execution of war policies. Further the measures taken in respect of the vital questions of defence and industrialization have caused intense dissatisfaction and deepened distrust of British policy which seemed to be based on racial considerations. We agree that the controversy regarding Dominion Status has no practical importance at the present time. But we must emphasise that the controversy can be put to rest only by granting Dominion Status to India and ensuring to her the reality of national freedom.

NO COMMUNAL BIAS

We sincerely say that we never approached any question with the slightest communal bias. We have est communal bias. We have always honestly tried to understand and remove the legitimate apprehensions of minorities. It has always been our aim that the constitution shall fully protect the minority interests and enable the minorities to make their contribution to the solution of national problems. But we must say that although it is apparently conceded that India must be allowed to have a substantial share in the framing of her constitution, yet the task has been made virtually impossible for her by declarations on the part of Government which encourage communal intemperance and thus practically give the minorities and other interests a veto on constitutional advance.

In a recent speech of Mr. Amery the reference to the re-grouping of the Provinces and considerable enlargement of the powers of the Provinces against the Centre and the new type of executive authority and insistence in every official pronouncement on the rights of minorities without a clear statement that the minorities would not be allowed to block constitutional advance by unreasonable demands have, we are afraid, created the impression that Britain is taking advantage of the communal difficulties in order to maintain her power.

Another obstacle in the way of mutual understanding is the distinction made by Mr. Amery between the status and functions of Dominion Status as applied to India and the view taken by the Government of what they regard as their historic obligation in this country owing to the political position occupied by them here over a long period. These obligations are to be settled by them in accordance with their own view of their obligations. In all sincerity we ask our friends to place themselves in our position and then to say whether they under those conditions would have regarded the offer of August 8th of 1940 as indicating the earnest desire of Britain to endow India with full freedom and treat her as her equal.

INTERIM ARRANGEMENT

The interim arrangement contained in the Viceroy's declaration of August must be judged in the light of the circumstances prevailing in India. It is believed that since the Government of India Act of 1935 came partially into operation in 1937 the position of the executive council of the Viceroy has deteriorated. The general impression is that real power is concentrated in the hands of the Viceroy and that important matters are often decided by him without reference to the Executive Council. In such circumstances representatives of Indian political parties cannot be expected to have any enthusiasm for joining the Executive Council merely as departmental heads. The British government failed to give the assurance that is as possible the council will work by convention as a responsible cabinet. Besides, the policy followed in respect of Indian defence and the recruitment of the Defence Forces and the supply department whose activities cannot but have a far-reaching effect on Indian industrial development and the exchange under which Indians labour in regard to appointment to the higher services under the Central Government in general have but confirmed the suspicion that there is no fundamental change in British policy in India and that both in respect of defence and industrial development Britain is guided more by regard for British than Indian interests. Unless the Indian defence forces are nationalised by affording equal opportunities to all classes and Provinces to take part in the defence of the country and by the substitution of British officers by Indian officers Dominion Status can have no meaning. The difference between the treatment accorded to Australia and Canada on the one hand and India on the other in the matter of defence and the manufacture of air craft, shipping, automobile and other industries and the training of air pilots on a large scale, is very patent.

ON HONOURABLE TERMS

We appreciate the appeal made by distinguished members of the British parliament to revise our views of the Viceroy's offer of August 8, but it seems to us that they have not carefully appreciated the situation in India and have not realised the disastrous effect on the public mind of the manner in which the affairs of the country are being actually administered. We believe in cooperation between Britain and India if it could be achieved on honourable terms. Notwithstanding the differences that have arisen, the magnitude of which cannot be minimised, there is every desire on our part to offer our full cooperation but it is in our view incumbent on Government to make our task easy by creating the right psychological atmosphere. The British government has not wholeheartedly said to us, as the members of the Parliament who have addressed the Indian people have done, "join with us in defeating Hitlerism, join with us thereafter in framing the terms of peace and helping to shape the course of the world." How can India which is not assured of her future freedom forget its humiliating position and work enthusiastically for the freedom of England and other nations. We are unreservedly opposed to the totalitarian systems and would genuinely wish that India was in a position to put forth her maximum effort for the cause of freedom and democracy. But we deeply regret that the British Government have so far failed to unify British and Indian interests and to inspire zeal for the British cause among the people of India. The situation in the country, though serious, can be improved beyond recognition if Britain acts with vision and courage. We have here expressed our own views but we believe that they are shared by a considerable section of our countrymen.

PRICE OF PETROL Remains unchanged

A.P. New Delhi, 17.
A Press Note says Oil companies met, the Commerce Department recently to agree on prices to be charged for the first half year, 1941. They placed the materials before the Government of India to show that there has been increase in the cost of both Burma and foreign kerosene oils (both superior and inferior) delivered in India which justifies alteration in prices allowed. This increase mainly account for freight and insurance charges. Government of India accordingly approved recovery of the following wholesale prices during the period 18th January to 30th June. Inferior kerosene Rs. 4-10-6, superior, Rs. 5-7-6 per unit of eight gallons from main port installations representing increase of one and half annas per unit. In the course of his speech Acharya Kripalani pointed out that the importance of Mahatma Gandhi's doctrine of Khadi would not be realised until people realised that Indians were members of a community and the aim of consumption of produce produced by one member and consumed by another would be appreciated.

Today there is a house visit to take pledges for the use of Khadi.

Indian Liberals' Appeal and Reactions at New Delhi

From our correspondent

New Delhi, Jan. 18 (By wire). There have been prolonged conferences this week of the Central Committee appointed as a result of the recent Editors Conference. It is likely that a meeting of All India Standing Committee or another session of Editors Conference may soon be called to review the working of the Delhi Agreement. With the exception of Panjab, here, the attitude of non-cooperation adopted by Muslim Editors Papers no committee has been in existence—the Press Committees established in all the Provinces. But in many Provinces there appears to be disunion in Press circles as to the present position and importance, therefore, the importance of the Standing Committee of the proposed

Liberals' Manifesto

These of the manifesto by Liberal leaders on the eve of the return of the Viceroy to New Delhi has helped to quicken political interest. One important session which the talks at New Delhi have revealed is that those nine members of Parliament who recently signed the appeal to India should be invited to visit this country and understand the position for themselves. As far as the Liberal Manifesto is concerned it is not looked upon as anything more than another appeal to British Government and the official attitude is assumed it is the same as that which should come from the Liberal Parties. In words they appear to think that these leaders how well-intentioned cannot "over goods". On the other hand, there is undoubted importance attached in Political circles to these declarations made by the Liberal leaders. They are holding the Viceroy's appeal inadequate, secondly regarding the reality of National Freedom, thirdly regarding the declaration of defence forces, fourthly, British Government have "failed to mobilize Indian Goodwill owing to their imaginative and still distrustful attitude". In political circles it is emphasised that the very fact that every Liberal leader was formerly seeking to get out with strong strictures against the Government's Policy of "too late", has its own influence.

New Delhi, Jan. 17 (By wire). Mr. M. M. Shafi, leader of the Liberal Party, has been elected to the Defence of India Rules.

WAR SITUATION IN EUROPE

SIR MAURICE HALLET'S SPEECH

At U. P. Provincial War Committee

"NOT EASY TO START AIRCRAFT AND AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY"

A. P. Allahabad Jan. 18

Sir Maurice Hallet, presiding over a meeting of Provincial War Committee to-day said:—"Although the war situation in Europe and Africa is better than in September last and we have achieved great victories of Libya, we must not forget the danger we are up against."

After referring to the progress of recruitment in the United Provinces His Excellency detailed the possibilities of raising further labour companies in the Province, starting of travelling dispensaries for ex-soldiers and serving soldiers, improvement of communication between sepoys overseas and their families and raising 12 companies of military police of which eight have already been trained at Sitapur.

Manufacture of Aeroplanes etc.

Regarding the suggestion that India should by this time have started the manufacture of aeroplanes and Motor cars Sir Maurice said it was not easy to start an entirely new industry because it was difficult to get expert mechanics and complicated machine tools in time of war. Speaking as a layman he thought the need for aeroplanes could best be met by development and extension of existing factories whether in England or America.

Not Being Exploited

Refuting the charge that India is being exploited for imperialist war he declared that India was producing many articles needed for her new army. She was producing many articles needed for other armies and she was receiving full payment. "I want it to be realised by Hitler and Mussolini who may perhaps have been encouraged by anti-war activities of the congress that these activities are having no effect on the supply of men or munitions."

Bangalore City—January 19, 1941

Who have been repeatedly listening to and reading about the grandiose words, war aims and peace aims. Different people have seen different pictures of these aims. The Premier of England, Mr. Churchill is frank and pointed in his utterances. What appeals to the glory soldier he speaks. He is not equivocal. In all his speeches he has made it clear that England is waging this war with the only aim of ridding the world of German War. It is not a war to be won for the sake of winning. It is a war to be won for the sake of ridding the world of German War. It is a war to be won for the sake of ridding the world of German War. It is a war to be won for the sake of ridding the world of German War.

Hitler has not one of human aims. He wants to dominate Europe. He wants to stride like a colossus over the European Continent. In England we are alone, confined to her own activities on the British Isles. Hitler would not have laid his hands on England. He has to gain nothing by occupying England. He had his ambitions over France, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and Poland. In a large measure he succeeded in subjugating those countries, though temporarily. His relations with Italy are clear and well defined. Mussolini is the lesser dictator of the two. He does not command the same resources that Hitler does. It is practically Mussolini that is seeking shelter with Hitler. To-day Italy lies prostrated and Hitler has occupied Sicily with his army. The campaign of Italy against Greece has miserably failed. With Russia and Stalin, Hitler maintains a respectable relation. Though he hated communism he thought it necessary to befriend Stalin.

The war situation today is one of stalemate. England is not free from the fear of Hitler's invasion. She is fully prepared for it but English politicians believe that Hitler would not succeed.

In the meanwhile, the U.S.A. has been showing full sympathy to England. Some say by April she may join hands with England to fight Hitler out. But we cannot definitely say what America is going to do.

The number of seats which have been filled in the Legislative Council as a result of rejection of notices of candidature is 10 and in the Representative Assembly 61. Of these 6 seats in the Council and about 16 in the Assembly seem to be due to rejections on substantial grounds which may be supported by judicial authority, while in the case of 4 seats in the Council and about 45 seats in the Assembly, the rejection may perhaps be said to be due to trivial grounds, as for instance, failure to fill in the age and date of birth column or the denomination column in the notices of candidature.

It has been said in the Press that such rejections are due to a desire to keep out Congress candidates on some pretext or other. As a matter of fact, the rejection is recent of failure to fill in the early and late of both columns did not occur in all the districts but in three of them only, namely, Mambay, Kolu and Chitabag. If these were to drive "against Congress candidates is suggested, it would have occurred in all the districts. Moreover, such rejections have occurred in the case of a large number of independent and Muslim candidates also.

Persons who propose to stand as candidates for responsible bodies like the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council may fairly be expected to fill up applications properly. Unfortunately, however, it has not been so. For instance, one candidate has entered the word "elephant" in the denomination column.

It has also been stated that the notice of candidature of one Sri Indiramma was rejected on the ground that it was not signed as "Indiramanavararu" in the exact terms in which her name appears in the electoral roll. This is an incorrect statement. The candidature of this lady was not rejected on the ground of this trivial mistake. It was rejected on account of the incorrect date of birth entered in the notice as 1-6-14, while the date of birth mentioned in Mysore State Life Policy dated 17th December 1934 (Publication Branch) of the candidate is 1 July 1915.

Analogies drawn from British India on this point are not of much use, since the electoral system there is quite different from that in Mysore. In British India it is not the candidate who gives the application form, but some other person who fills the columns in the nomination paper, viz., the proposer and the seconder, and the candidate accepts the nomination. Further, a person is qualified to stand as a candidate if his name appears on the electoral roll, his age being immaterial. It has therefore been held that substantial compliance with the requirements of the form is by itself sufficient, and that the filling up of the column relating to age are not mandatory but directory.

The Session of the Mysore Legislative Council has come and gone. It has to its record, passing of the Contempt of Courts Act. In the previous sessions the same Legislative Council passed the Press Act and Public Security Act. Composed as it was mostly of reactionaries nothing else could be expected of it. After the Congress members resigned their seats, the others who replaced them did not rise to the expectations of the Electorate, and practically for the last one and half year the Legislative Council became a strong hold of reactionary forces. If I say this Council is going to oblivion unwept, unhonoured and unsung, I am not exaggerating the situation.

Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao's speech of farewell to the Legislative Council is an interesting reading. The First Member essays to review the activities of the Legislative Council for the last 17 years. It has enriched the Statute Book by present more than 178 Acts. Of these only two were promoted by non-officials. Regarding resolutions 178 resolution came up before the Council of which 130 were withdrawn, with or without discussion and 22 were accepted by Government. Regarding the extent of influence exerted by the Legislative Council, Mr N. Madhava Rao says statistics of Bills and Resolutions give no adequate idea.

Mr. Madhava Rao gave some features of the next Council. The Dewan would cease to be the President. The Members of the Executive Council as Ministers presumably take their seats not on the dais but on the treasury bench along with their colleagues appointed by His Highness the Maharaja from among the elected members of the Legislature. This is indeed interesting. On the dais there will only be the President who for the first 4 years will be nominated by Government and thereafter he will be elected by the Legislative Council.

Mr. N. Madhava Rao spoke of the fine Parliamentary traditions of the House. This is indeed a high tribute. I wish a day would come as soon as possible when we Mysoreans, might really with pride call the Mysore Legislature as 'Mysore Houses of Parliament.'

Mr. N. Madhava Rao's speech makes a reference to the rejection of nominated papers to the Legislature, of a large number of candidates. First Member assures Government have given matter careful consideration have come to the conclusion that it would not be proper legal for them to arrogate themselves the function of Election tribunal. I am satisfied with this explanation.

Age is an essential factor for candidature. He must have attained 25 years in the case of the Representative Assembly and 30 years in the case of the Legislative Council. It is therefore very necessary that he should state his age and date of birth in his notice of candidature. It cannot be said that failure to state in clear and accurate terms a necessary qualification for candidature or to place correct and sufficient data for enabling the Returning Officer to satisfy himself whether the candidate possesses the necessary qualification is substantial compliance with the rules.

About 90 petitions have been received invoking the Government.

An unofficial Press dealing with the subject follows. "The number of which have been filled in Legislative Council as a of rejection of notices of dature is 10 and in the representative Assembly 61. these six seats in the and about 16 in the seem to be due to rejection substantial grounds which be supported by judicial authority, while in the case 4 seats in the Council and 45 seats in the Assembly rejections may perhaps be to be due to trivial grounds for instance failure to fill in age and date of birth or of the denomination in the notices of candid

I am given to understand that the rejection on account of failure to fill in age and birth column did not occur in all the districts but in 3 of them only—Mandya, Kolar and Chital. Such rejections have occurred in the case of a large number of independents and Muslim candidates also.

What is the remedy? The Government cannot interfere and they say it is not proper for them to do so. I am glad to understand that the Government will provide a legal remedy by getting such orders set aside. Candidates whose notices have been rejected may proceed in the way of an application to the House of the Representative Assembly. The Rules provides that where the result of the Election has been materially affected by the improper rejection or acceptance of any notice of candidature, the election of the returned candidate shall be void.

I hope the Congress can dates whose nomination have been rejected will this legal course and delay in the matter. They should take heart and fight out the issue. But one thing the Government ought to assure. It should appoint a judge or trial in whose impartiality Congressmen also have confidence and the process should not be delayed too long to frustrate the purpose of enquiry altogether.

ment to exercise the power vested in them by Rule 2 of the Representative Assembly. Rules and to restore the rejected notices. That rule provides that "if any question arises as to the interpretation of these Rules otherwise than in connection with an enquiry held under the provisions of the rules, the question shall be referred for the decision of the Government and its decision shall be final." This rule empowers the Government to interpret the rules, and it is obvious that any interpretation given by them under the rule will have no retrospective effect and cannot set aside the action already taken by the Revenue Officers.

Memorial to be Submitted to Maharaja

Further the orders of the returning Officers accepting and rejecting a notice of candidature for a judicial order and it is not proper for Government to interfere with such orders especially in view of the fact that the rules provide a legal remedy for getting such orders set aside. Candidates whose notices have been rejected may proceed by writ or election suit. Rule 187 of the Representative Assembly Rules provides that where the result of the election has been legally affected by the invalid rejection or acceptance of a notice of candidature, the election of the returned candidate shall be void.

Success At Municipal Elections

In spite of all this injustice, the Congress continued to contest Municipal elections. The signal success that attended the Congress in most of them, particularly in the cities of Bangalore and Mysore where without a single exception all the contested seats were captured by the Congress, is a matter of common knowledge as also the panicky reaction of the Government thereto by the issue of a series of orders prohibiting processions, use of loud speakers, meetings and speeches in various parts of the State hoping thereby to stifle legitimate election propaganda.

The Working Committee after deeply deliberating over the entire situation have come to the conclusion in consultation with Mahatma Gandhi that the election campaign should be intensified in respect of candidates whose applications have not been rejected, that due publicity should be given and propaganda carried on to expose the pitiful wrongs and injustice to which the people are subjected, that a memorial should be submitted to His Highness the Maharaja and that a deputation should wait on His Highness praying for the redress of the grave injustice done to his subjects in the matter of the rejection of over a hundred notices of candidature to the elections to the Assembly and the

The New Theatres Ltd.

Director Nitin Bose has reached almost the concluding stages of shooting of his double version film 'Lagan' in Hindustani and 'Parichaya' in Bengali. Last week "The Music Conference" scene was taken in a very realistic style. The highest award of honour at this 'conference' was carried away by ever charming Kanan. Siagal felt happy at the success of his 'student'. The Music Director R. C. Boral—should get his due share of credit for the finesse of this scene. Players present in this set included Saigal, Kanan, Nawab, Rathin, Jagadish, D. R. Das and others.

All-India Tennis Controversy

We were not aware that there was a controversy in the matter of All-India Tennis. We were no doubt aware of a controversy in the Cricket World and at Mahatma Gandhi's advice Hindus retired from the Cricket contest which was arranged on communal lines. Whether it was communal or not, our youngsters enjoy reading the scores and descriptions of the Pentangular Matches in Bombay.

Coming now to Tennis, we are told by a Bombay contemporary that the standard of Tennis is rather deteriorating to-day. We being not experts in the game cannot accept or reject that view. It is for Tennis enthusiasts of Bangalore and Mysore to examine the question and arrive at a sensible judgement. We, on our part, shall be glad to publish their considered opinion on the matter.

The same Bombay paper says "the fact that an old player like Mahamed Slem can still give many of our youngsters a good run for their money clearly indicates that the older generation had reached a much higher level than the present day luminaries." Tracing the reason for this our contemporary observes "the older generation took far greater pains to develop their game than the present day youngsters care to bestow. There are far more facilities for improvement now than in the days of yore though we must admit that the supply of Tennis Courts is much less to-day than the large increase in the number of players' demands. Therefore the Provincial Associations need to pay extra attention in this direction."

Speaking about individual players it is said that this year's tournament turned out to be a great personal triumph for Ghaus Mahomed, the Indian 'Ace'. He annexed all the three Championships open to him. He was ably assisted by Yudhist Singh and Miss Dubash in the men's and the mixed-double respectively. Young Ifthikar Khan too acquitted himself creditably. The veterans D. N. Capoor and Miss Lark Wood Bridgeland young Indian all the best. Mr. Lala Rao has no equal in her class either in India or Ceylon. Misses Doreen Sansom and K. Hazi also deserve warm congratulations.

Much from all this, there seems to have been controversy over the venue of the All-India Tennis Championship Tournament this year. Madras might have been chosen but they wanted to run it at the time of the India Cup Competition in Calcutta. The All-India Association was permitting it, Madras refused to surrender this responsibility. Naturally, the tournament was held in Bangalore.

Rejection of Nomination Papers

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

Bangalore, Jan 17
Mr. L. S. Raju, President, Civil Liberties Union writes:—
Yesterday (16-1-41) was the last date for publishing the final list of candidates contesting the seats of the R.A. and the L.C. in Mysore. It was hoped that the Government would be pleased to issue orders in the interim directing a re-scrutiny of the large number of notices of candidature rejected and the vast majority of which notices related to candidates belonging to the Congress persuasion. That hope has been blasted. There was a very reliable information that the higher authorities did really wish to intervene and direct a re-scrutiny and orders were, it was reliably rumoured, about to issue to that effect. It is stated that as a result of some protest on the part of parties belonging to a different persuasion (opposed to that of the Congress) there were eleventh hour alterations in the decision of the authorities.

This is very unfortunate, especially as I know that the Government had the power (only if they had the will) to put a liberal construction and interpretation on the rules, and direct the Returning Officers, their subordinates, to act in consonance with such interpretation. Very minor irregularities could have been overlooked. As it stands, there is no uniform principle observed by all the Returning Officers in respect of these minor irregularities.

On the eve of the introduction of the new Reforms and the Elections pertaining thereto, a gloom has been cast by these wholesale rejections instead of joy and vigorous sportsman-like activity in contesting the Elections. People undoubtedly have been deprived of their chosen and best candidates in many places and unless our beloved Maharaja intervenes at this stage, the only remedy seems to me to be by way of election petitions after the result of the Elections. It is a pity that a very large number of election petitions should be anticipated at the very first stage of the New Reforms. Anyhow, it has to be faced and a legal decision will have to be obtained.

A LANTERN LECTURE
By Dr. M. H. Krishna

Bangalore, Jan 26
Under the auspices of the Bangalore Mythic Society, Dr. M. H. Krishna (Director of Archaeology, Mysore State and Professor of History, University of Mysore) will deliver "The Antiquities of Hyderabad at the Daly Memorial Hall on Friday, 24th January at 6 P. M.

Finally the All-India Association gave the opportunity to Baroda.

We are sorry to find that Madras was deprived of the honour. We wish there had been some accommodation mutually. Whatever it may be, may not Bangalore have the honour of having the All-India Tournament in its midst. We are sure the Mysore State which is well known for its hospitality would extend all the help needed, monetary and other wise to the Mysore State Lawn Tennis Association. That would be a good day for Bangalore. June is the best season for Tennis in Bangalore.

TRIBUTE TO MYSORE MAHARAJA AND GOVERNMENT

Bangalore, Jan. 20
A pleasant "At Home" was organised yesterday evening at Mysore Chamber of Commerce by a number of Sindh Bankers and Merchants trading in Bangalore in honour of Seth Lunidasing Satramsing Bajaj, Proprietor of Seth Mangomall Lunidasing and President of the Shikarpur Sind Hindu General Panchayat and Sind Shikarpur Bankers' Association. The party was attended by many officials and non-officials including prominent merchants and bankers. Refreshments over, Mr. Ramnarayan Chellaram, B.A., on behalf of the hosts welcomed the chief guest to Bangalore after a lapse of 13 years. He paid a tribute to his many qualities of head and heart and enumerated some of his public and philanthropic activities which had earned for him the title of Grand Old Man of Shikarpur, Sind. Mr. Ramnarayan stated that the members of the Sindh Community were now finding their rightful place in the public life of this great City and State and that they had given unmistakable proofs of their having fully realized their duty of identifying themselves with the welfare of the people of Mysore. The Bankers, he said, had realized also the necessity of organizing themselves and had recently formed themselves into the Mysore Bankers' Association along with several Joint Stock Banks and local Bankers with Seth Purushotham Sing as its first President. He stated that under the benign rule of His Highness the Maharaja the Sindhis were living here very happily and expressed their feelings of loyalty to His Highness' person and throne and gratitude to the Dewan Sahib and Members and Officers of the Govt. for the regard shown by them all for their interests.

Seth Lunidasing was then garlanded by Seth Lachmansing Chellasing Bajaj.

Replying, Seth Lunidasing thanked the hosts for the opportunity afforded to him of coming into contact with so many distinguished men. He paid a glowing tribute to the great work that His Highness the late Maharaja had done for his subjects and felt proud to be his subject. He felt confident from what all he had seen and heard of the present Maharaja that he would follow the footsteps of his worthy predecessor and continue to maintain the reputation which Mysore enjoyed of being Rama Rajya.

Referring to the worthy and far-sighted Dewan he was impressed by the catholicity of his outlook. Officers of the Govt. he said were all imbued with ideas of service. He blessed the newly formed Mysore Bankers' Association and prayed for success in its objects. He thanked Mr. Ramnarayan for his advice and assistance to the Sindh Community in all matters. The catering was in the hands of The Bombay Anand Bhavan, Bangalore Cant.

The Governor of Leeward Islands is shortly to visit London to take part in the Anglo-American collaboration concerning the leasing of naval and air bases in American possessions.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The talk of the Town these two or three days has been about the Nomination of Probationary Assistant Commissioners. What all they are talking it is not for me to write here. It is enough for me to mention that there is much grumbling and rumbling in the bazaar and the corners of the quiet clubs over this affair. Even those who have power and who are responsible for these nominations cannot prevent people discussing the matter informally among themselves. If the Government order announcing these nominations had appeared a day earlier than the close of the Legislative Council, as sure as anything, some guardians and champions of some communities would have raised a furore over this affair. Thank God the hour of the extinction of the Legislative Council struck and the announcement of the nomination appeared simultaneously.

Professor Amarnath Jha has travelled all the way from Allahabad to Trivandrum to "destroy unpleasant things." I am sorry I beg to correct myself. Professor Jha went there in connection with the Inter-University Board and he advised students to "destroy unpleasant things." It is reported Mr. Jha said that we in India were asked to concentrate on Dharma, Duty and never on "Rights." That was an idea totally alien to Indian mind. I am sorry I have to differ from Professor Jha. His reading of Indian mind and Indian culture is wrong. I would advise him to revise his text books. Indian culture is based on Satya, Dharma and Nyaya. We find high personages omitting the last fundamental. Nyaya is the foundation of the Divine and Cosmic order. Nyaya may roughly be translated as Justice. It may be translated also as Right. The Various Avatars of God, according to Indian conception is to uphold Truth and Justice, which is included in the compendious word Dharma. There can be no Dharma without Justice.

What is Justice? Justice is the rendering to every one his due, right or desert. And so to say that we in India were asked to concentrate never on Rights is absolutely wrong. Dharma accords every one his or her due—that is Nyaya. I would therefore request my readers to challenge every one who says that Indian Dharma excludes Rights. On the other hand each has his right and it is due to him. That is Dharma.

In Ramayana the whole epic concentrates on this idea of Dharma, which includes What is Dharma, if it is righteousness? Righteousness enters into a disquisition to do it to check the spread of wrong idea.

There is a news item of political interest to all States and that is the Courts; of Travancore and Cochin and the respective Councils are taking to amend the Bar Council so as to establish reciprocal regards the enrolment of advocates of both the States. No doubt a healthy arrangement I wish small Indian would club themselves together to have a common High Court of Judicature. Many Southern Maharashtra and Tata States would do well to bestow their thought on urgent matter. This need follows that they should have a common system of Law means establishment of common legislature. Irresistibly leads to a federation of small States, paves the way for big Federation. Whatever it may be it is high time that small States establish an impossible system of Judicial administration.

I give below an extract from a Calcutta daily. 'It has nothing to say of verbosity—

Learning and verbosity not necessarily companions. But the plain man often thinks so, not without cause. Scholarly persons are apt to play fondness for many long words, especially in India, and during Christmas conference saw the profounder the erudite the more polysyllabic protracted must be the language expressing it, some participants in these gatherings seem to suppose. For they may not always personally blame-worthy terminology proper to subjects cannot be discussed and the Natural Science particular have been said during the last century was most intricately hideous. But it is a pity it is conspicuously long words employed where equally concise short ones would do. For example, a paper read before the Indian Science Congress at Benares lamented "the backwardness of methodology in education." Would not "method" conveyed the lecturer's sense?

I am inclined to simple words are more beautiful than long pedantic words.

VALIDITY OF ELECTIONS

Some Misapprehensions Cleared

The Publicity Officer, Mysore Congress, writes:

There seems to be some misapprehension in the public mind as to when exactly the Election Petitions questioning the validity of an Election or Elections can be filed. Rule 165 of the Representative Assembly Rules lay down that within 35 days from the date of the publication of the result of the Election in the Official Gazette, a return of Election expenses has to be lodged with the Returning Officers. Rule 167 lays down that the Returning Officer shall thereafter cause to be published in the Official Gazette a notice of the date on which the return and the declaration have been lodged etc. As per Rule 167 the Election petition has to be filed within 14 days from the date of publication of the result of the Election by the Returning Officer. The accounts and declaration have been filed. It is commonly believed in some quarters that Election Petitions have to be filed within 14 days from the date of the publication of the results of the election in the Official Gazette. This is not the case. The 14 days is to be counted from the date of publication of a notice by the Returning Officer that accounts and declaration have been filed.

Grief of Groundnut Dealers

Representatives of Groundnut interests met in a Conference in Madras at the premises of the Southern India Chamber of Commerce, on the 20th instant. Khan Bahadur Adam Hajeer Mahomed Sait presided over this meeting. It is reported that a number of merchants from the City of Madras and distant parts of the Province attended and took part in the Conference. The members of Shipping Companies were also present.

The position of Groundnut trade is deplorable to-day. In 1938-39 India produced 32 lakhs of tons of unshelled Groundnut, of which nearly 81 1/2 lakhs of tons of Kernels of the value of nearly Rs. 10 lakhs were exported. In that year, 92 per cent of the export of Groundnut from India was made from Madras which clearly shows how dependent Madras is on the export trade of Groundnut. Due to war the Groundnut lost all the principal foreign markets except the United Kingdom. The extent of this loss may be estimated by the fact that in 1938-39 nearly 70 per cent of the total export of Groundnut went to France, Belgium, Italy, Germany and Netherlands. After June 1940 with the capitulation of France all this market is closed for India.

The remaining 30 per cent of Groundnut export trade was distributed between United Kingdom, Burma and Malaya. With the fall of export trade to other countries, Madras naturally expected some relief from the United Kingdom. The food Ministry of the British Isles, could, if they liked, come to the rescue of the groundnut market in India. Naturally there was some negotiation and the Government of India in consultation with the Food Ministry fixed the minimum of £ 10 per ton with effect from September last, but the Government could not agree to enlarging their purchase, consequently, the price of groundnut which stood at Rs. 36 per candy fell down to the lowest level of Rs. 20.

After meeting railway freight, handling charges, market dues, discounting charges, interest, commission, etc. cultivators get only Rs. 2 to 3 per candy. Thus the cultivator has to suffer a loss of Rs. 17 to 19 per candy. This is a very heavy loss. The Government of India has to take steps to regulate the manufacture of the cultivator. This matter was brought to the attention of the Commerce Member, Government of India. No remedy is yet in evidence. There has been no remission of taxes. The cultivators grieve in vain. In this state of affairs it is something to learn that an arrangement has been reached between the Food Ministry and the Government of India for creating a fund for the benefit of agriculturists from the proceeds of a rebate of 25 shillings per ton from South India shipments and 15 shillings per ton from Bombay shipments. There is also another suggestion under consideration namely that the circle of shippers should be enlarged by a liberalisation of the quota system so that new shippers may also be allowed to tender supplies to the Food Ministry and to other buyers.

On the whole groundnut trade has fallen on evil days. We in Mysore are very much interested in the groundnut trade. We export from Mysore a lot of groundnut seed and ground nut oil. The 1938-39 report states that 63,136 maunds of groundnut oil, valued at Rs. 4,73,542 was exported. The report does not furnish figures as regards the quantity and value of the export of groundnut seed. We are sure that the groundnut cultivators in Mysore are hard hit. We hope the Directors of Industries and Commerce and Agriculture in Mysore will enlighten the public as to what steps they have taken in the matter of giving relief to groundnut cultivators and groundnut exporters.

THE CURRY POWDER

"Curry powder has been found to be adulterated with lead" so says the Chief Health Officer of a big Province in India. We are sorry for those unfortunate few who happen to devour these lead bits along with their periodical meals. The curry powder that is sold in the bazaars is different from the stuff used in brahmin houses. The two differ in quality as well as in substance. The neat little packets which strike our eyes when visiting shop fronts contain the unorthodox variety. In South India curry power is a necessity. It can be easily found by its peculiar smell and if the powder is seen mingling with the atmosphere the reaction is easily perceptible in human eyes which becomes tear-laden in no time. So chilly powder finds no easy escape from human perception. But according to the Health authorities if the powder contains lead pieces, the edible value of our daily gastronomic needs fly to the winds.

Curry powder is manufactured on a small scale by our ladies at home. But the impact of Western ideas have driven our ladies to find this stuff in bazaars. Lately the potent of this powder has been entrusted to poor brahmin widows who do not know the art of manufacturing this dangerous commodity in the houses of the blue-blooded aristocracy. They get a small sum for their labour and their state of a Trade Union will come to regulate the manufacture.

Mysore's War Effort

Lord Mayor Thanks H. H. the Maharaja

Bangalore, Jan. 21

The following cablegram dated the 9th January 1941 was sent by the Lord Mayor of London to H. H. the Maharaja of Mysore:

"Sincere thanks for your cable with news of your further magnificent gift to my fund. Your sustained support as well as your ready sympathy for our cause gives great encouragement to us all. We join in your hopes for a speedy just and victorious end to this war."

In another cablegram dated 10th January 1941 to H. H. the Maharaja, the Lord Mayor says:

"Please accept my heartfelt gratitude for your wonderful donation which has now been received. Your fresh assistance will give renewed courage to thousands of poor sufferers and is appreciated by all."

Lord Beaverbrook Expresses Gratitude

In a cablegram dated the 11th Jan. 1941 to H. H. the Maharaja of Mysore, Lord Beaverbrook, Minister for Aircraft Production, says:

"I offer to your Highness this assurance of my profound gratitude for the noble gift you send us. The Mysore Flight will now be reinforced by powerful new aircraft for the battles that surely lie ahead. The hearts of our peoples are uplifted in resolution and defiance by the assurance of sympathy which your generosity brings. In the victory of justice and honour you will have a splendid part."

H. E. the Viceroy's Appreciation

In a letter dated 11th January 1941 to H. H. the Maharaja of Mysore, His Excellency the Viceroy says as follows—

"I have been informed of two generous gifts, one of Rs. 5 lakhs from the Mysore State Government, for aircraft to augment the Mysore Flight of the R. A. F., and one of Rs. 1 lakh from your Highness's privy purse to the Lord Mayor of London for the relief of air-raid victims. These have recently been cabled to the United Kingdom and I can well imagine how much these splendid contributions and the spirit and sympathy which they express will be appreciated by His Majesty's Government and by the people of England, especially at this time. Please accept and convey to your Government my warmest thanks and appreciation of this further proof of the invaluable support of your State in the present struggle."

and sale of this powder. The Central Health authorities would do well to enlist all the poor widows in the country for the manufacture of unadulterated curry powder which would set at rest all the problems of a Food Analyst. It has been a familiar feature in brahmin homes that this powder is kept not in a cool dry place but in a sanctified corner where it doesn't get easily polluted. The powder is touched and used generally after a purificatory bath. It has all the sanctity of a divine-like thing that the stress and strain of modern life has forced people to run to bazaars to get this adulterated stuff. Orthodoxy has been blown to winds, and we look to the authorities not to resemble themselves about this domesticated and sanctified stuff from possible pollutions.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

A Premier of a Province criticised the Indian National Congress Party in the following manner. "Utter lack of realism has become a marked feature of the politics of the Congress Party in India." What is realism? It means being practical minded and worldly wise. The Congress Party is accused of lack of realism because it did not stick to office and is spurning office though thrust upon it. Individual realism means, individual selfishness, grab whatever you can and make hay while the sun shines.

Surely the Indian National Congress has given up the path of selfishness. But if the above Minister means by realism that the Congress has not taken into account the reality of the situation in the land he is making a mistake. None is more alive to realities than Mahatmaji is. The British Government are aware of it. Otherwise, Lord Linlithgow would have succeeded in his policy of expanding the Executive Council. The very fact that he has not been able to carry into effect his policy of August 8, shows that His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State are more alive to the reality of the Congress in India than the above Minister thinks. It is easy in these days to sling mud against the Indian National Congress and its policy. From their sheltered positions many have been indulging in this pastime.

The following is another notable utterance from another big man enjoying a high office. "We must not merely strive for victory on the field of the battle—victory which will come, which is bound to come—we must also strive for a new heaven and a new earth where humanity will be able to find freedom, justice and happiness."

A new heaven and a new earth! These two words captivate the imagination of people. Whatever that new heaven and new earth may be, we are undoubtedly to-day in a hell, passing through its stench and stink. And the above big man is a high dignitary in this world of hell.

The following news is from Slicher.

The Chairman (nominated) of the local Municipal Board, it is reported, attempted to give uncalculated advice to the Court while the trying Magistrate was hearing the objections in relation to the voters' list of the coming Municipal election. The gentlemen who raised the objections are reported to have drawn the attention of this alleged uncalculated action on the part of the Chairman with-out little or no effect what-so-ever. The gentlemen, for the objections, which include some of the prominent members of the local Bar, left the court under protest. The incident has caused a wide resentment in the town.

INDEPENDENCE DAY
Forward Bloc Secretary's Circular
A.P. Calcutta, Jan. 20

In a circular letter to all Provincial and District Committees of the Forward Bloc, the Acting

This is indeed the first walk-out of its kind. — Lawyers walking out of Court.

From my scrap heap I picked the following.

"These unifying disputes between the Thengalais and Vadagalais (two sects of Ayyangars) occupy much judicial time to the detriment of more deserving litigants. Most of the disputes relate to ritual and are merely sentimental in character."

"So much time is taken in deciding disputes between these two sects to the prejudice of cases which possess merit, that we consider that the legislative authority may take into consideration the question whether disputes in regard to temple ritual can be left to the decision of the Hindu Religious Endowment Board without the right of recourse to courts."

These remarks were made by the Chief Justice and Mr Justice Happeal, at the Madras High Court, in the course of their judgement in a Letters Patent appeal, which arose out of a dispute between the Thengalais and Vadagalais of Tirukannamangai village (Tanjore District).

In South India this Vadagalai and Thengalai dispute is very common. I am happy to note that the present day younger generation, have, to be out of this dispute, got rid of forehead marks.

Some old pious Hindus have been loudly complaining that in absence of these caste marks they are unable to find out who belongs to which caste. This is a sad commentary on our caste system, that the castes are to be determined by the forehead marks. May I hope that with the prevailing disappearance of caste marks difference of caste also would disappear. A lot has disappeared and much more yet remains to disappear.

The following is a fine suggestion made to a Calcutta newspaper by a correspondent.

Sir—Let us all take a vow not to shave till the war has ended, and contribute the saving thus effected to a fund called, not the War Fund, but the Peace Fund.

The following will be among the results: (1) Everybody can join including Mahatma Gandhi. (2) The spread of disease germs, air-borne, lip-borne, will be checked. (3) Men will have more time for their families and women for their homes. (4) There will have a manly growth, and a womanly one.—Yours etc.

I am afraid this will lead to deputation of safety dealers to Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar, Commerce Member, Government of India. Corresponding with the fall of value in the above commodity we expect some rise of trade in hair oils.

General Secretary of the Forward Bloc urges that the observance of Independence Day this year has a special significance as the goal of independence is nearer today than ever before.

H. M. Venkataraman, chairman, Mysore Iron & Steel Works, the function terminated.

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

A WEEKLY SURVEY OF INDIAN SITUATION

MATTERS TO RECEIVE VICEROY'S ATTENTION

(From our correspondent)
 New Delhi, Jan 18

New Delhi is anxiously awaiting the return of the Viceroy next week-on or about the 26th January according to present expectation. There are so many matters of immediate importance that the Viceroy's attention will be attracted to them.

The first matter to receive the Viceroy's attention will be the political situation. The Government has been in existence for six months and concentrating on war work. There are many interpretations possible of Sir Sikandar's words, but if he meant by "politics" only political differences, that is exactly the object of the proposal made for a National Government at the Centre-a Government run jointly by the political parties represented in the Central Legislature. The Government is leaving aside for the time being all differences and uniting in a common effort to meet the present war emergency. It is a step which has been taken by Mr. Jinnah on behalf of the Muslim League. This demand for a National Government will gain strength if the Muslim League is elected in the Central Legislature. As the Council of Ministers is shortly to be formed in Delhi it will be possible for Sir Sikandar to raise the question and see if any change is possible for reviving the proposal for a National Government.

Secondly, Sir Sikandar is concerned by the demand that the Government's Cabinet should be reconstructed with Indian majority and important portfolios like Finance and Defence should be entrusted to Indian members. It is however doubtful to be seen whether Mr. Jinnah will allow the question to be reopened. The fact is that many even in Muslim League circles are dissatisfied with the present negative attitude of Mr. Jinnah and would like to see the League taking the lead in making constructive proposals for solving immediate issues in cooperation with other groups and parties.

New Industries

One result of the Commerce Member's recent discussions is the Government of India's decision to establish a new committee to assist industrial expansion. A committee of prominent industrialists is to be set up with the Commerce Member as Chairman to consider all practical ways for utilizing the results of industrial research for starting or developing industries. This is a welcome addition to the many non-official bodies associated with the Commerce Department. It has been felt that if the work of the Board of Industrial Research is to be of service, it is hardly enough to publish the results of their research and leave it to private enterprise to utilize them for commercial or industrial purposes. In a matter of this importance it is expected that the Government will make a more active policy and take the lead in the industrial utilisation of the results of these researches. There is a good deal which the Government itself with its vast resources can do to start new industries. Had this very body of industrialists come into existence a year or two ago and its advice followed for speeding up the industrialisation of the country, its results would have been in evidence by now. One suggestion which has found expression in many quarters is that it is by no means enough to have this committee and that it would be better still to have a prominent industrialist in the Viceroy's Council to be in charge of industrial expansion. To the present Commerce Member himself, Sir Ramsay Muir, who has been exerting himself to promote industries in this country, it would be an advantage to have as his colleague one who has been an industrialist himself and can see the benefit of his experience and knowledge.

Dull Session

The coming session of the Central Legislature will probably be one of the dullest in its history it is not also the sturdiest. The Leader of the Opposition and practically the whole of the Congress are forming the opposition in the Assembly. The task of the elected members has to be to help the small group of Congress Nationalists led by Mr. Ambedkar. It does not seem likely that Mr. Jinnah will take much interest in the proceedings of the Legislative House. The very first list of resolutions tabled by non-official members which has been issued by the office of the Legislative Assembly bears evidence of the general lack of interest. It contains only a few resolutions the most important of which is the one submitted in the name of Sardar Satsangh asking for a conference of Ministers and Leaders of Parties to end the political deadlock. An interesting resolution given notice of by Sir Zauddin Ahmed relates to the present procedure for the grant of emergency commissions which is both inconvenient and unnecessarily costly. At present there are two selections-one in the Provinces by District Commanders and then by a Central Interview Board in New Delhi or Simla. In practice it has been found that many recommended as suitable by the District Commanders have been rejected as unsuitable by the Central Board. Sir Zauddin suggests that there should be only one selection authority for the whole of India which may interview the candidates at the headquarters of the Provinces if necessary. The procedure will relieve the taxpayer of the huge expense involved in paying the travelling expenses of the hundreds of candidates who are asked to

FIGHTING QUALITIES OF INDIAN TROOPS

THIER DASH AND SPIRIT IN MIDDLE EAST

WARM COMMENDATION IN A PRESS NOTE

A.P. New Delhi, Jan 22.

Fighting qualities and spirit of Indian troops in Middle East again received warm commendations, says a press note. Units from this country are at present taking part in a series of dashing actions according to despatches from Sudan. In that theatre harassing operations against enemy is daily increasing in intensity along the frontiers of Eritrea and Abyssinia. On the afternoon of the 10th January and early morning of 12 January large raids by our forces east of Gallabat resulted in severe casualties to the enemy at a very slight cost to our own forces. On 10th January following, concentrated fire by our artillery lightning attack was carried out. Heavy casualties were inflicted by our machine-guns. Our troops advanced under heavy fire and forced the enemy to retire behind Metemma.

The following night in bright moonlight at 2 a.m. on 12th January another terrific barrage was laid down by our artillery under cover of which our troops again advanced. They stormed Italian positions with fixed bayonets. Fierce hand to hand fighting ensued and in several enemy trenches all occupants were killed by hand-grenades. The troops engaged in these operations have received special congratulations from the General Officer Commanding in Sudan for an action "which was particularly well planned and executed with commendable dash and spirit".

Part of Maharatta Troops in the War

Bombay Governor's Tribute

A.P. Poona, Jan 22.

The position of Bombay Presidency's army recruitment generally, and Maharattas in particular, was reviewed by the Governor of Bombay today addressing a recruitment meeting at Poona.

After recapitulating the part played by Indian soldiers in this war, His Excellency added in the last war the Maharattas distinguished themselves in many theatres of war and in the reorganisation following the Great War, Maharatta representatives remained on pre-war level and there was a place in the army for any Maharatta who offered himself. Within a few months several more battalions of Maharatta light infantry would be raised and other arms and ancillary services increased. Until the beginning of the last monsoon the recruiting authorities were able to keep pace with the recruitments in the army. During August, September and October the supply failed to reach the demand, mainly due to agricultural operations. In the last two months current demands were met.

His Excellency appealed to everyone to bring to the notice of qualified men the opportunities now presented to them. His Excellency stressed the importance of good standard of education in modern army and added: "The day has passed

CONGRESS MEMORIAL

NOT YET SUBMITTED

SOME MISAPPREHENSIONS CLEARED

Bangalore, Jan 22.

In connection with the publication in yesterday's issue of 'DAILY NEWS', of some news items from Mysore, in respect of the Mysore Congress Memorial to His Highness the Maharaja, we are informed by the concerned authorities that there is no truth in the report that the Memorial has been submitted to His Highness the Maharaja, though no doubt the Working Committee of the Mysore Congress has decided to submit one. The fact is that it has not yet been submitted.

Mr. K. T. Bashyam, President, Mysore Congress, writes to us, among other things, that "as soon as I came here I called on the Assistant Secretary is also incorrect." Further, he did not see the Huzur Secretary yesterday morning. (We did not say that he saw).

In our yesterday's issue, the expression that we used "An urgent call" has, we learn, given rise to some misunderstanding. We are informed by the concerned authorities, that Mr. K. T. Bashyam, was sent for urgently is not correct. The information is correct that at the desire of Mr. K. T. Bashyam, the Huzur Secretary was prepared to see him and talk to him.

Though we had definitely stated that the visit of the First and the Second Member of Council to Mysore was a strange and surprising coincidence, the association of this news with the Congress Memorial has, we learn also given room for misrepresentation.

Mr. K. T. Bashyam, writes to us that, "So far as I know there is no connection between my coming over here and the arrival of Members of Council."

About the purpose of the visit of Members of Council we are informed that they went to Mysore to submit in person their loyal respects to His Highness the Maharaja for the appointment of their sons as Probationary Assistant Commissioners.

In this connection, we owe a word of explanation to all concerned. All possible care had been taken by us in the publication of that news. Last evening a report was current in Bangalore that the memorial was submitted. When we learnt late in the evening that Mr. K. T. Bashyam, had left urgently for Mysore, and also when we heard that Members of Council were leaving for Mysore, we naturally scented something. We phoned up to our enterprise

The European Cauldron

The affairs of Central Europe are so complex and change so suddenly that it is difficult to forecast anything about that area. This much is certain. The Nazi hand is subtly working in Rumania and the popular indignation against Nazis is great. As to what the repercussions of this disorder in Rumania will be on the general European situation it is difficult to say. But the much uncertainty that Hitler is trying to make up a Rumania what he has not been able to gain against England. The attitude of the U. S. A. seems to have made Hitler a bit nervous and if the rumors that is of course, rumors, that Mussolini expects for separate peace has foundation, he can understand his uneasiness in Rumania. The period around us is quite uncertain and a rather hazardous to make any bold guesses. It is probable that the French Ministers will begin formalizing to the United States to be certain that Hitler is going over the war much earlier.

anybody could imagine. When once the U. S. A. enters the European War, the result is foregone. Speedy Victory for Britain is assured and Hitler will have to go the way of Napoleon or as he has once announced he has to shoot himself to death.

MAKING THE "CONSTITUTIONAL"

Brisk morning walks give the needed comfort to a run down body and the exhilarating happiness which people derive from taking the "Constitutional" keeps their body and mind in perfect order. Promies Churchill and President Roosevelt turn over their daily files after the usual walk and when Mr. Chamberlain was alive he used to walk up and down St. James Park. Morning walks are not the monopoly of the aged. Even the young aspire to indulge in walking exercises. A. P. H the well known satirist used to "walk the Atlantic" during his periodical voyages to the States. He used to cover the distance by continuously walking on the docks till his feet gave way. G. B.S. has a fondness for hiking and his morning exercises have been the usual stunt-giving events for newspaper columnists. Taking the constitutional is it is called has been the rage of modern times.

In India the walking habit is as old as this world. The superannuated few have formed themselves into a conspiracy to walk and become merry. The middle-aged do not worry about walks, though they feel like straining their legs to keep down the nerves getting crazy. The kiddies love to "walk" and on the nice turf to wander. Walking has been the exercise for ages though it has changed shapes and circumstances. Taking a walk with a sweetheart is as eventful as a revolution and much more so if it is interspersed with delicious smiles. Walking has its own fascinations and episodes especially when we go round a flower-garden. A sweet maiden might drop her handkerchief guardedly and the chivalrous male trotting yonder might do well to pick it up thereby opening up new vistas of an inviting nature or friendships might open in to intimacies to result in happy alliances. Such is the story of taking the constitutional.

The broody and the meditative take the constitutional for their philosophic ends, while the young indulge in it for eventful episodes, whereas the middle-aged strain their legs to prolong worldly careers. Walking with a purpose has its own advantages. Walking aimlessly with no set purpose offends the vagabond law and might land anybody in trouble. People love to walk but the same might be misunderstood if visions turn indiscreet and thoughts pollute by the way-side vagaries. For the whole taking the constitutional is a welcome change to worn out nerves.

MUNICIPAL PARTY

(By Mr. J. R. Isaac)

In countries where there are homogeneous constituencies, party systems seem to have worked in the best interests of the State without prejudicing democratic principles. In India, where there are party systems based more or less on communal lines, we have yet to devise a proper system which will be in the best interests of all, without riding rough shod over minority interests. I understand the Municipal party of the Congress has been formed in Bangalore, and I am not yet convinced that a party of this kind is needed to help the work of the Municipal Council where there are no major policies, political or otherwise, taken up but only detail civic duties are undertaken. When a party is having a very large majority, and the party decides the work of the Municipal Council in its own party meetings, no doubt it can carry through its decisions, without a discussion and without even listening to what the Minorities have to say in the matter. When a party is 80 per cent. strong and makes up its mind before the Council meets, it can just carry on its own decisions without heeding the requests or needs of the minority 20 per cent. This will be a Government by the majority, and certainly the minority cannot but bow to it. But is this the best solution for a popular Government? In British India, the provinces which had a Congress majority acted on this principle, that "Might is Right" and what is the result? The Pakistan Scheme-the most disastrous scheme ever invented to break up the unity of the country. The immediate cause of the Pakistan Scheme is not the communal interest of the Muslim League, but it was the iron hand of the majority.

In the first meeting of this Municipal party, it has been resolved that there should not be any more Municipal Lunches during the Municipal meetings. Even in this very small matter the Congress party is going to make its iron hand felt. This indicates how the wind blows. They have decided this simple matter among themselves and their majority will carry it through. There is not even a chance given to the minority to express its opinion about it or make a request. To my mind they have decided to drop the only chance of their coming to friendly relationships and contact with the minorities. They may have by this resolution saved a few hundred rupees, but they have for ever cut off the possibilities of friendly contact and mutual understanding of "give and take" and making it possible for others to see that there is no aloofness in their attitudes. No one can belittle the social side even in Municipal matters. To my way of thinking, the opportunity this is afforded in social contact such as this is of great value in carrying on civic duties harmlessly in an atmosphere of friendliness and brotherly feeling. The Congress stands for real 22 living inequality and untouchability is there not an opportunity here to put into practice what they believe? Or has one member still whether there is an superiority-complex in the personal habits of some of our leaders which prevents them to have this social contact with the minority communities? Madras, the Congress, with its desire to give up Untouch-

A PUFF OF SMOKE

A friend of mine passed the following cutting from a newspaper to me. It reads thus:—

"You are forbidden to talk to your companions about anything you see in Berchtesgaden. You are forbidden to talk politics. You are forbidden to enter any part of the building where you have not been expressly told to go. You are forbidden to write letters or to keep a diary. Forbidden to whistle (it appears that Hitler has a horror of this.) You are forbidden to speak to the Fuehrer unless he first speaks to you. (This was heavily underlined.) Whenever you meet the Fuehrer you must bow your head."

These instructions were contained in the book of rules which I had to follow implicitly when I was a servant in Berchtesgaden. But I escaped from Germany and on my way to Brazil wrote my book in which are to be found facts concerning Hitler, which have hitherto been unknown to the general public.

In these days anything is believed of Hitler and people are prepared to read anything of him that appears from friendly and unfriendly quarters. Such descriptions serve only to enliven the reader.

This is an old item of news from Lucknow.

The Lucknow Khadi and Industries Exhibition observed five minutes silence as a protest against the arrest of Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit. All work was stopped and lights were dimmed.

We had heard of silence
but not of dimming of lights
That too is one way of showing our grief.

We are told that the Editors are going to assemble again at New Delhi on February 1. I hope this time at least there will not be any aftermath of controversy. Mr. Mahadeva Desai should be punctual in his attendance and have his full say on the matter. There should be left nothing for him to ventilate in the Press afterwards. It was an ungainly controversy that raged in the press among newspapermen. The newspapermen who are expected to be peacemakers should not quarrel among themselves. They should set a good example for unity and concord.

Sir Maurice Gwyer in his inaugural address at the Dell Library Association made some pertinent remarks about libraries. He said "Libraries are not merely collections as they too often are, of dusty books on dusty shelves." This is a sad commentary on the way in which we keep our libraries.

Some years ago a library movement was started in Mysore but due to lack of encouragement it died out. I feel that time has come to resuscitate it. I have also another important idea. To me it looks that libraries should be open all the 24 hours, specially the night lity, has not been able to patch up the social differences between Brahmin and non-Brahmin, and the result is not only bitterness between communities but also justice party and self-respect movement.

I do plead that in the best interests of progress in our beloved State that the leaders who kindly take a note of warning and not act with an iron hand because of their majority are bringing about similar disasters to our midst, but try to wield their power to accommodate themselves to the needs and requirements of the powerless and the few.

hours because it is then that most of the work-a-day people have leisure. There should be something like an atmosphere of lounge in a library. Such as those who wish to have short discussions into books should have an opportunity to do so in the calm and cool hours of the night. Perhaps the people of Bangalore, may laugh at my idea, but to me it looks, the way in which we conduct our library requires revision. I wish some intellectual guides are appointed in every library to help students of knowledge to get at the new books.

In the streets of Bangalore we see to day processions, demonstrations of distressed labourers. I wish the authorities showed greater consideration to their working class. Their responsibility is very great. The functionaries of Law and Order can also exercise a good deal of tact and patience in handling such situations. Greater restraint and understanding sympathy is needed to tide over crises. I would also put in a word of friendly advice to labourers. Whatever their demands may be let them observe the principle of true non-violence in their speeches and actions.

Mr. Jinnah and Mr. Fazlul Huq contradict each other several times. Mr. Huq is in office while Mr. Jinnah is not. Mr. Jinnah's attitude of intransigence does not seem to evoke much response from Mr. Huq. Even Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan does not agree with Mr. Jinnah in all his statements and actions.

“The Fast-to-death” of Mr. D. B. Tilak does not seem to have had the desired effect. The trustees of the “Kesari” and “Mahratta” have stuck to their guns. Mahatma Gandhi has advised Mr. Tilak to end his fast. In the meanwhile some body has filed a complaint against Mr. Tilak before the Court that he is attempting to commit suicide and thereby committing an offence against Law. The case actually came up before the City Magistrate Court Poona, and the judgement is keenly awaited. In all probability Mr. Tilak would be induced to give up his fast.

News comes from Madras that the general body meeting of the Truth-Seekers' Fraternity was held sometime in Madras. T. Yuvaraja of Pithapuram is the Vice-President. I do not know what the programme of the fraternity is. I'm sure the public at large would be interested to get a report of the activities of the Truth-Seekers. Is it merely a name, or does it signify anything?

ELECTION

Enquiry

Civil Liberties Union, writes under date Jan. 21 :

Apropos the observations of the First Member of Council in

In his concluding speech at the recent session of the Legislative Council regarding the rejection of notices of candidature to the Legislative Council and Representative Assembly by the Returning Officers, and also the statements appearing in the press relating to this matter, it is significant to note (and I desire to draw particular attention to some) that the Government have themselves created a record precedent in the matter of interfering with and setting right the rejected notices of candidature by the Returning Officers.

At the recent Municipal Elections for the Third Division one Mr. G. V. Rudrappa's notice of candidature was rejected by the Returning Officer as it was not in accordance with rules. The Government were approached and there was a direction to include his name and he contested the elections. The Municipal Election rules (Vide Rule 15 among others) are similar so far as the powers of Returning Officers are concerned to those of the Legislative Council and Representative Assembly. What is more, there is not any rule in the Municipal Election Rules corresponding to Rule 182 of the Legislative Council and Rule 203 respectively of the Representative Assembly Rules which give powers to Government

The word "Election" occurring in these Rules 202 and 203 obviously relates to Election Enquiry after an election petition is filed under Article 105 of Chapter VIII of the Indian Constitution. The Legislative Council and Representative Assembly Rules, respectively. Other than in the case of enquiries, the Government have full power to construe the Rules and have full jurisdiction to interfere with the decision of Returning Officers in proper cases and set right matter in the early stage.

GROUNDNUT PRICES

Letter To Govt. Of India

Sir, H. P. Dastur, Kt., Chairman, The All-India Groundnut Syndicate Ltd., Bombay has addressed a letter to the Commerce Member, to the Government of India in connection with the recent reported decision that shippers of groundnuts should pay a rebate to the Government of India of £150 per ton of groundnuts shipped from Madras and £40-150 per ton shipped from Bombay on account of the British Ministry of Food.

The All India Groundnut Syndicate, Ltd., Sir H. P. Dastur says, cannot be classed as a merchants' shipper making a huge profit by buying at a low rate from the growers and selling at the high rate offered by the Ministry of Food, for the simple reason that it does not at all buy from the producer, but merely sells for them their produce to the Ministry of Food at the stipulated price. As a result the producers get particularly low share of the price, there being no huge profits representing the wide difference between the buying rates in India and the selling rates in London. Any rebate for credits from the syndicate in the circumstances, according to Sir H. P. Dastur, will present to a demand for a rebate from the producers and acts

Mr. Amery And Indian Situation

— 100 —

In the House of Commons a question was put to Mr. L. S. Amery, secretary of State for India, if he had any statements to make on the progress of discussions between the Viceroy and Indian Political Leaders. What was his reply? Here it is. He said there had been no further discussion and no substantial change in the political situation since his last statement on November 20. From November 20 to January 21 it is two months and to Mr. Amery, there has been no change in the political situation in India warranting any notice from him. This is somewhat amazing. Either Mr. Amery believes in what he says or he does not. Even though thousands of men and women, young and old, have been marching to jails in India, quiet and non-violent, Mr. Amery has not observed it. Has he had no reports from India about the situation here? We, for ourselves, cannot appreciate this ostrich like mentality. The press in Britain and the press in India is full of statements by friends of India who would like to see the Government in India pass one's understanding how the Secretary of State for India could accept with complacency the position in India of rule by Governors and Advisers. The constitution has come to a stand still and British Parliamentarians have expressed their concern over it in no uncertain terms. Simply because money is pouring to War Funds in India, Mr. Amery should not comfort himself that there is nothing for him to bother about here. This sort of attitude cannot continue long. The Englishmen who live in India, including the Viceroy and Governors, realise the pinch of the shoe. Sitting 7,000 miles away and that, in the midst of war fumes, Col. Amery may afford to turn a blind eye to India but Lord Linlithgow cannot. In the Eastern horizon war storm is brewing. Japan has thrown up her challenge to America. In this situation unless the man power of India is fully mobilised for India's defence one cannot say what would happen. This is the time for Britain to boldly come forward and declare India a free nation and a free ally to England. With Mahatma Gandhi at the helm of affairs India is sure to save the nations of the world from the blood of Peace and Non-violence. India would be enabled to play her historic role in creating a new world order based upon Love, Peace, Brotherhood, and last but not least, Non-violence.

India is now looking forward to America to exercise her moral pressure over England to concede India her birth right of freedom. With a dependent India, tagged to the Imperialist wheels of Britain no lasting and permanent peace can be established in the world. Great men have said so and we repeat it a hundred times.

SURPLUS MALES

The coming census will show the incongruities and anomalies of the sex in India. It is often revealed by Statisticians that the population of both sexes should never vary from the fifty-fifty figure and any disparity in that equality finds the social structure in jeopardy. Leaving aside the larger social field where the sex equality is a matter of certainty the ball room vagaries on account of surplus males have revealed problems of unmitigated importance. It often happens that where there are a few debutantes eager to have dancing partners there will be several males waiting to be fixed up. The entreaties and pleadings for high and the appointment of shows a spotless surface without the lady's inviting scribble. The "surplus male" ball room becomes an enigma to the eagerly awaiting damsels who desire to trot on the floor to the tunes of the dance music.

Even more so is the dilemma in the outside world where males equalize females. Any slight disparity in this figure drives people to madness and possible promiscuity. How shall we decide this enigma? Leaving aside those ball room problems the census authorities have to find a way out for the seemingly incongruous way the sexes take their birth. If the Providence wills it there is no other way out. It shall be the human way to bear with sex disparities and adjust our mode of social living unmindful of the temptations and evil consequences of surplus sexes.

DECLARE INDIA A DOMINION
Resolution Before Central Assembly

New Delhi, Jan 22
That India should be declared Dominion is recommended in a resolution tabled by Maulvi Abdur Rasheed Choudhury (unattached member) for discussion in the budget session of the Central Assembly. The resolution also asks for immediate steps to be taken without waiting for termination of the war so that power of British Parliament so far as India is concerned be permanently vested in the Viceroy.

A Resolution sponsored by three members of the Muslim League party recommends that Chaimen, Karachi, Bombay and Calcutta Port Haj Committees be appointed ex-officio members of Port Trust Boards on three places respectively.

SHATPANCHASIKA

(A Review)

We receive with great pleasure, the new book "Shatpanchasika" with an English translation and a free English rendering of Sri Bhattacharya's commentary thereon by Pandita Bhushana V. Subramanya Sastry Esq., B.A., the well known translator of Brihat Jataka, Jataka Parijata, Jatakatawa and other famous works on Indian Astrology.

To understand the merits of this new book, it is but right to know those of the original. "Shatpanchasika" is an invaluable treatise on "Queries" (Prasna) composed by Prithuyashas, the son of that celebrated Astronomer and Astrologer, Varahamihira of King Vikrama's court. It is a very short work, containing only 56 stanzas but condensing, in a very deft manner, all aspects pertaining to "Query"; and as such very clever and detailed handling of the contents inevitable to appreciate the work thoroughly. But to do this is impossible unless the reader has got a standard knowledge of Sanskrit which the original work, like many of its kind, presumes.

A translation, therefore, of the work into English was long needed; and we now have it in this new book. The translator has taken a lot of sincere interest in rendering a faithful and clear English translation not only to the original but also to the precious commentary thereon by Sri Bhattacharya. No efforts have been spared by the author to add copious notes and suggestions wherever necessary.

Like the original, this new book also contains 7 chapters. They are:—

1. On general principles.—This chapter deals with the several rasas and their divisions Navamasas and the like; the benefic and malefic nature of planets; the strength of bhavas and planets as considered in queries; the several Karakats of Rasas and bhavas; and the most important division of signs into their mineral, vegetable and animal positions.

2. Marching and Returning. Success and defeat.—These two chapters deal with war problems and one's success or defeat therein.

3. Good and bad.—This chapter helps one to find out the good or bad that may occur to the querist on any occasion. It is specially useful in definitely finding out the fate of a person who has fallen ill.

4. Enquiry about one who is abroad.—The heading of the chapter needs no explanation. Every one of us will be much anxious about the welfare of a person who is abroad; and this chapter helps us to have a definite knowledge about his welfare.

5. The recovery of the lost.—This chapter contains matter useful to one and all. The characteristic feature of this chapter is that it contains the descriptions, at large, of the 36 decanates into which the zodiac is divided. This chapter helps us to trace out definitely the age, appearance, caste and other whereabouts of the thief. It tells us, in an equally definite manner, the fate of the thing stolen.

6. Miscellaneous.—This chapter contains something about marriage. More than that, it tells us how to predict the

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Dr. G. S. Arundale is an esteemed honorary contributor to almost all the newspapers of India, known and unknown. He relays his weekly meditations on politics in a simple homely style. Newspapers publish them as space permits.

The one prominent feature of Dr. Arundale's articles is that he wants freedom for India with no less ardour than a born Indian. But the difficulty is that he does not agree with Mahatma Gandhi's politics and the present policy of the Congress.

Writing of the latest Independence Pledge of Congress to be taken on 26th January, Dr. Arundale says "So on Jan. 26 we shall have the unedifying sight of large numbers of unfortunate and misguided people taking this unpatriotic pledge, etc." Not content with this, he indulges in some unworthy observations. "During the whole of my recent tour I have hardly come across a single Satyagrahi who did not regret having to go to jail, but who saw no alternative save that of political extinction so far as his Congress caste was concerned. What a sorry business it all is at such a time as this when India cries aloud for great leadership and is given only a narrow and destructive Fanaticism."

I cannot approve of this type of tirade against Congress.

Why not Dr. Arundale himself assume the role of a leader of his description. Dr. Arundale is known to India for the last thirty years and more. When Dr. Besant was managing the Central Hindu College of Benares, Mr. Arundale was its principal. When Mrs. Besant severed her connection from that institution, Dr. Arundale resigned his job and settled in Madras with Dr. Besant. Dr. Arundale has been a devoted and lifelong follower of that great lady. In the field of theosophy, education, journalism and politics, Dr. Arundale has walked behind Mrs. Besant. When she conducted "New India" Dr. Arundale was in it. When she was interned at Ooty, he was with her. In the "Home Rule" days Dr. Arundale contributed a lot to the impetus of the movement.

Dr. Arundale though austere looking, is inwardly a man of good humour. His speeches are characterised for their simplicity and innocent humour. He is a good teacher of boys. An educationist there are very few that can equal him, but a teacher of grown up men and women he has no place. Dr. Besant died. Dr. Arundale stepped into her shoes in her positions. But he is a poor substitute for that lady.

And as such his writings are no more vapourings of a frustrated Dr. Arundale is neither here nor there in Indian politics. He would do well to leave the field and devote his labour to constructive educational vities.

Dr. Arundale in one of his latest articles refers to his experiences in Rajputana. This is what he writes:—

India with her mighty traditions with her age old glories she must be three to help in the new world. And I could clearly when I was in Rajputana. I came to Bikaner, what India give that no other country can give. I watched His Highness the Maharaja move about in the streets in his car and I heard the shouts of the Father of his people among his children. If I were to have memory, that would suffice me. How wonderful can be the fate of a Ruler, how wonderful can be the affectionate reverence of the people. That is a priceless asset, it is a gift, it is wonderful, and it is its own aura, its own fragrance, its beauty, that is needed not only for victory to be won but for the to be won no less.

What Dr. Arundale says Bikaner he would see a third fold in Mysore. The devotion of the people of Mysore to Maharaja is unsurpassed.

I wish Dr. Arundale to avail himself of an opportunity to visit Mysore during Dasara and the Birth Day of the Maharaja.

How fate balked Mr. George from reaching that side of his dying wife is broadcast by Keuter in the following manner:—

Some concern is felt for Mr. Lloyd George who was shaken when the car in which he was travelling yesterday in an attempt to reach the bedside of his wife who has since died—crashed by the side in Welsh mountains.

The elderly statesman, who is suffering from the shock caused by Lloyd George's death, is confined to his room and has been advised to refrain from continuing his journey.

Even the Wizard of Wall Street is punished by fate. This matter for philosophers, metaphysicians to speculate research upon. For my part I would put it down as a result of the workings of fate, even our Gods were not advent of rain during the rainy season.

This small and unique book is the first of its kind and it is self-sufficient; for it contains everything needed by the text without making reference to other works. It has a sufficiently profuse index also arranged in a very useful manner. It is a guide to the learned and an instructor to the novice. We are quite sure the book will be of great use to the readers.

LACK OF COOPERATION IN FRENCH WAR FACTORIES

Machine Tools Removed To Germany (By Cable) London
 The Washington correspondent of the Daily Telegraph cables:
 Lack of cooperation by French factory workers and managers engaged in armament production has retarded such proportion according to information from Washington, that the Germans have in many instances abandoned the effort to use French plants.

They have instead stripped them of their machine tools which have been sent to Germany. As a result, the French factories have been given so-called requisition receipts.

This is equivalent to saying that the machinery has been stolen. The excuse made is that it will be used to offset the costs of the German army of occupation.

ALLEGED KIDNAPPING AND CHEATING

Case In Allahabad

From our correspondent
 Allahabad
 Police is on the trail of men who conspired to remove a married woman with a Smith school master who came to Allahabad in quest of a girl for a wife.
 It is alleged that one Mr. Seeru Mal, a teacher of a Municipal School in Sand came in quest of a match for himself in U. P. M. Agra. He was met by a person who offered to find a bride for him in Allahabad.
 Eventually it was settled that Mr. Seeru Mal gave 200 rupees, he would be married to a girl and he was married to a Kumbhar girl in the Christmas week.

While the newly wed couple were at Agra the girl revealed the story of her life. She was a married woman with a child and that her husband was alive. She had quarrelled with her husband and had been brought to Allahabad by some one from Chhapra on misrepresentation and was eventually married to him forcibly.

The complainant returned to Allahabad and demanded his money from those who had arranged the marriage, failing to get redress he lodged a complaint.

Police has taken over the matter and two cases under kidnapping and cheating have been registered. The girl has been removed to the local branch of Sir Ganga Ram Widow Home.

LESSONS OF BATTLE BETWEEN WARSHIPS AND PLANES

Value Of Aircraft Carriers

(By Cable) London
 The Manchester Guardian Air Correspondent writes:
 The recent battle between British warships and German and Italian aircraft has demonstrated once again the powers of resistance of our warships against air attacks.

It can be assumed that aeroplanes from aircraft carrier illustrious, one of the ships hit, followed the dive-bombing attack and which resulted in the destruction of at least 12 of the enemy. The engagement reveals again the value of aircraft carriers in war at sea. In the past much doubt has been expressed about the wisdom of commissioning vessels of class which cost more than £ 3,000,000 to build and entail immense running costs. In this Mediterranean action the inclusion of the illustrious with the naval forces attached to the convoy made possible the presence of fighter aircraft. Similarly without the

AN INDIAN APPEAL

TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

(AP) BOMBAY, Jan. 22
 That President Roosevelt should interest himself in Indian affairs and help to solve Indian constitutional deadlock was urged by "Jinnahboom", Bombay Gujarathi Daily in the course of an editorial.
 Characterising the inaugural address of President Roosevelt as "bible of democracy", the paper adds, that the President should be requested to arbitrate and give his decision in the matter within six months after the War. The decision should in time be endorsed and given effect to by the British Government within one year. Such a proposition, the paper asserts is bound to be widely endorsed on all sides.

LEGAL

Bangalore, Jan. 21.
 The City Magistrate, Bangalore convicted and sentenced one Mr. G. S. Sastry under Section 377 I. P. C. to pay a fine of Rs. 100 and in default to suffer simple imprisonment for a period of one month. And if time is recovered it should be paid as compensation to the complainant.

The Prosecution alleged that the accused Mr. G. S. Sastry drove his car No. M.Y. S.A. 294 in a rash and negligent manner on Shankarmutt Road from south and north and dashed against a car No. M. Y. S. A. 780 driven by one Mr. G. Sambasivaiah on Sir Puttannachetty Road from west to east at the cross of the above said road and caused injuries to the complainant and damages to the car.

Illustrious and Eagle, which carried Fairey Swordfish and Blackburn Skuas, the night assault on the Italian capital ships at Taranto could not have been carried out.

In the Norwegian campaign, too, fine service was given by the aircraft carriers Ark Royal, Furious and Glorious. The two last named carried three fighter squadrons to Norway at the shortest notice and the Swordfish torpedo-carrying machines which attacked German warships at Trondheim Fjord were flown from the deck of the Furious. In these operations the aircraft carriers were subjected to intense dive-bombing attacks, but they received no serious damage although the Glorious was sunk later by enemy surface craft.

In actions such as those which have already been carried out in the Mediterranean, when enemy air attacks suddenly delivered call for instant air protection, the aircraft carrier, with its speed of over 30 knots and its 70 fighters planes, plays a vital part.

Rejection of Nomination Papers

(By wire) Wardhaganj, Jan. 24. Mr. H. C. Dasappa, Chairman Mysore Congress Parliamentary Sub-Committee wiring from Wardhaganj says:—
I refrained from making any statement hitherto, but because of the Congress decision to wait in deputation on His Highness the Maharaja, I mention a few points.

The reasons advanced by Government from not interfering in the decisions of the Returning Officers are lame, halting and unsupported by precedents. I may remind the Government that they interfered in the Mysore Municipal Elections in 1937, three days before the election and postponed, it to remedy the grave wrong.

Attention may also be drawn to yesterday's leading article of the 'Hindu'

His Highness the Maharaja, himself being a student of politics is well-versed in such matters. He has a liberal outlook. I hope His Highness will have a correct appreciation of the situation involving greatest injustice to the people.

It is not too late to remedy the wrong, do justice to the people and restore public confidence. The Government has to do this in its own interest no less than that of the public.

Mr. AMERY'S STATEMENTS

Political Significance Attached

WILL VICEROY TAKE UP THE MATTER ?

NEW DELHI SPECULATION

(From our correspondent)

(By Wire) New Delhi, Jan. 24. Undoubted political significance attaches to the fact that on the eve of Viceroy's return to the capital Mr. Amery has made another statement which though it marks only a slight improvement on his previous declarations has certain interesting features. The opinion in official circles is that this statement should serve as an incentive to leaders of Indian parties to get together and find that measure of agreement necessary for the solution of the problem.

What further move the Viceroy will take after his return is still not clear but it is believed that Mr. Amery's object has been to prepare the ground for a possible move by the Viceroy. On credit side may be mentioned the friendly tone of Mr. Amery's statement in its emphasis on "essential unity of India" fairly clear answer to those thinking in terms of partition and the most important of all is the definite declaration that essentials there is no disagreement. Mr. Amery has responded to the demand of the country that what has been called British obligations in India should be defined, their limitations which he has mentioned. On the other hand the main difficulty still remains when he proceeds to commend the August offer again and continues to insist it is from Indian side that the only effective new approach can be made.

Negative Policy

The report which one hears from political observers at New Delhi is nothing stands in the way of Govt. giving up its present negative policy and coming out with a positive offer that it would agree to the formation of National Government and the Legislature are

Mr. Amery's statement is a sort of compromise between the formidable and the National life has been put forward that the Government of India should be a Government of National Government. The Government of India should be a Government of National Government. The Government of India should be a Government of National Government.

Some Surprise

In Political circles surprise is expressed at the two statements of Mr. Amery. First is the fact that the present Executive Council of the Viceroy is working in a spirit of collective responsibility. This claim as has been shown over a long period of time is not a new one. It is a claim which has been made many times over. It is a claim which has been made many times over. It is a claim which has been made many times over.

INDEPENDENCE DAY Madras Govt's Attitude

Daily News

Bangalore City—January 25, 1941

A Sling At The Spinning Wheel

Sir Andrew Clow, Communications Member, Government of India, in opening the session of All-India Road Congress held at New Delhi held stress on the need for road transport. He made several suggestions but our view is that whatever suggestions he may make will not bring much against hand spinning. He seems to have said voluntary labour would solve the problem of road transport and bring quicker results than hand spinning. We do not understand what relation there is between hand spinning and rural transport. The countryside is indeed in need of great net work of all weather roads. The Government can do a lot in the matter. But whatever the official agency may do, it cannot succeed unless and until the co-operation of villagers is forthcoming. In olden days, when the Government machinery was not so complex, and when villages enjoyed full autonomy, the villages in a spirit of commune, repaired their own tanks, dug their own wells, educated their own children and constructed their own roads. They did not seek for outside guidance in matters connected with the improvement of their villages. The Village so to say was an autonomous republic. There was full co-operation among villagers. Village Panchayets were village tribunals settling the disputes that arose between individual villagers and collective villagers. A succession of foreign invasions did not disturb the autonomy of villages. But with the advent of British administration, and foreign exploitation of India's wealth and industries, villages suffered. Their initiative was killed. The Government machinery, and the numerous Panchayets, and thus destroyed the nerve centre of villages. The modern state, made to incorporate the villages, has failed because the Central Government do not desire to invest them with any real power.

This being the case, the problem of villages can be solved only by a genuine Swadeshi movement in which the Government must avoid excessive interference and let the village Mahatmas lead by their constructive programme. A village set on fire and burnt down is not the same as a village that is burnt down. Hand spinning is a constructive industry which should be encouraged and not suppressed. The Government should not suppress it.

The Government should not suppress it. Hand spinning is a constructive industry which should be encouraged and not suppressed. The Government should not suppress it.

Sir Andrew Clow would do well not to set it the spinning wheel. His suggestion to officials, businessmen, doctors, and agriculturists to give a few days of voluntary labour to build and maintain roads is indeed a good one. But it is possible of attainment only when a patriotic movement is at the helm of affairs. Sir Clow is poetic when he exclaims "Imagination glows at the thought of the bureaucrat being released for a few days from his files for open roads, the business man losing a few sleepless pounds in healthy exertions, the doctor getting an unusual tonic, the journalist writing his sermons in stanzas, and the school master learning in a new school."

This is indeed a vision of the future which is happy to contemplate. In fact India is to-day in the grip of a happy vision under Mahatma's leadership. The entire Congress organisation is a voluntary body filled with people of vision. If vision is lacking, it is in Whitehall and New Delhi. Sir Andrew Clow's speech makes pleasant reading but for the sling at the spinning wheel.

"PRIVATE" MARRIAGES IN MYSORE

Marrriages have been grouped by the official and non-official by a District Revenue Officer. It is curious indeed that the prohibition order which controlled political gatherings should contain an enabling clause to make matrimonial ceremonies an exception. But the distinction between official marriages and unofficial marriages offends a section of our State subjects who might invoke legal interpretation. The wedlock of youth with his desired jansel has never been subjected to the vagaries of ministerial pronouncements but it is significant that an officer sitting on a high official pedestal should command the people in his jurisdiction to perform only "Private" marriages and not "Official" marriages.

King's English has been well fortified by possible onslaughts. But Maharaja's Kannada remains as defenceless as a western desert fort before the British advance. If literary anarchists spring from the bureaucracy, legal meanings and interpretations get twisted out of shape as seen from the Taluk Officer's order. The lynx-eyed scrutiny of the Officer's display of Kannada reveals a sorry state of things. Grammar has been blown to winds, punctuation has no value, and it reads like James Joyce's "Ulysses" to comprehend its exact scope and meaning. The prolix style of the order and the prurency with which it is viewed by the general public and the many-sided interpretations derived from it have been the features of a "caveat partnership" for which the Bangalore South Taluk Amaldar has become famous. We are not assuming that only "Private" marriages are allowed and not "Official" marriages, by virtue of the powers conferred under Section 45 of the Mysore Police Act. We hope a better standard of Kannada composition will prevail in this kind of literary efforts. We trust the Government's attention to the Government's language policy around the Government.

Subbanna, Ramarao, Ramakrishna Karant, Siddarama Setty, Rajan Setty and J. Nirvanegowda, Second City Magistrate Mysore. But as the witnesses could not be present the case was adjourned to Saturday, February 1st next.

PROTECTION OF LIVESTOCK IN MYSORE

Systematic Visit of Officers to Villages

Bangalore, Jan. 23. The work of the Veterinary Department in Mysore is one of constant vigil to stamp out diseases and epidemics amongst livestock. There were 81 Veterinary Hospitals and Dispensaries for the treatment of animals at the end of 1939-40. New Dispensaries have been opened at Mulbagal and Bettadapur.

Work in Villages is all important, for it is in these Mysore's livestock wealth is concentrated. The Veterinary Officers visited 14,585 Villages, treated 66,174 cases of sickness amongst livestock, performed 62,662 castrations and conducted 1,214 operations during their tours in the State. The staff attended 116 cattle fairs at which, in addition to the treatment of sick animals and castration of scrub bulls and conducting demonstrations, much propaganda work was done. The number of fresh cases admitted for treatment was 3,24,319 and the number of operations and castrations conducted was 2,45,458 and 36,645 respectively.

Generous donations were received from some philanthropic persons for the constructions of Veterinary Dispensary Buildings which demonstrate the keenness and interest shown by them in providing facilities for the improvement of the cattle.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

There seems to be ferment in the student world today all over India. Even lady students are not free from it. We are hearing of strikes and fasts. This clearly shows that some sort of indehale unrest is in the air. Wise men may condemn the attitude of such students.

Such condemnations do not go a long way in relieving the situation. The best thing under the circumstances would be for elders to be patient and bring round youngsters by kind treatment. Weilding of the big stick would give room for further provocation.

News comes from Calcutta that the Girl Students of Vidyasagar College have struck work. News comes from Ahmedabad that the students of Gujarat College are also perturbed. Mahatma Gandhi has advised the Ahmedabad students to exploit all avenues before embarking on strike. If finally they resolve to strike its success depends upon the strength of students.

I understand the public men of Ahmedabad are interesting themselves in terminating the misunderstandings between the students and the College authorities.

News comes from Madras that most of the Hostel Students in the Madras Christian College, Tambaram, did not take their food yesterday. Some did not even take their coffee in the morning. The Students are however attending their classes. It is stated that the contractor of the mess has been asked to distribute their food to the poor.

Here is an interesting story of an expelled Student of a Cawnpur College who has made a resolve to fast unto-death.

"I hope the Government would not be prejudiced of my past history, will be pleased to do justice by withdrawing the principal's expulsion order No. 123/c dated December 23, 1940 January 24 the latest because by now I am so short in my percentage of attendance that it would be too difficult for me to make it up by the time of the final examination of B.Sc. (Ag.). If the Government, however, has determined to ruin and finish me totally then I will be glad in offering all my possible help by preferring to court death on the college lawns, by fasting and not drinking water, even with effect from the morning of January 25 as a protest against the Government's repressive policy towards the students' civil liberty. During this fast I shall also observe complete silence unless compelled in some urgent matter," declares Mr. Raghuvansh Ratna Gour an expelled student of the Government Agricultural College of Cawnpore, in the course of an open appeal and ultimatum to the U.P. Government.

All these instances go to show that the student world as a body is affected. The remedy does not lie in victimising any student or students. The remedy would be much worse than the disease. I am happy to think that in Mysore State the Students have not been affected by the infection which is raging beyond the Frontiers. I am inclined to think that the authorities here are more conservative and do not precipitate matters as the people have done elsewhere. There is no reason to be alarmed.

We are informed by a Delhi Indian newspaper that the Delhi Emperor's grandsons will offer Satyagraha. Here is a news item.

It is reported that Mr. Nizam's grandson of Bahadur Shah Zafar, last Moghul Emperor of Delhi, has written to the dictator of the Government of India for permission to offer Satyagraha.

Mr. Noor Shah, it is believed, poses to show anti-war slogans on the Delhi Fort (Lal Kila).

Here is the story of a Mahatma of a Temple, who has threatened to fast unto-death. The news is from Lahore.

The agitation recently started by the removal of the statue of the Sula Mander, the premier of Lahore, has gone a step further. The decision of the Mahatma to undertake a fast unto-death at the premises of the Sula Mander, for starting the fast today the Mahatma announced that he would not give up until the Mahatma of the Sula Mander was removed.

It may be mentioned that several letters against the conduct of the Mahatma of the Sula Mander were recently published by a local Magistrate in the course of an inquiry report on the death of a man of the pathshala attached to the Mahatma.

Here is a monstrous story of a husband who is alleged to have burnt his wife to death. The story is from Allahabad.

Because she was dark complexioned a young girl is alleged to have been burnt to death in the early hours of morning here by her husband. It is suspected that the husband was in love with another girl and wanted to get rid of his young unfortunate wife who apparently did not love him. The girl was taken to hospital in a precarious condition where she soon died. In a declaration, the girl is reported to have made an allegation of forcible burning by her husband. The husband is being condoned and the Police has issued a warrant for his arrest.

It appears that the husband fasted in bed, put kerosene oil on the bed and set fire, preventing her from escaping by gagging. The girl is supposed to have struggled hard to save her life. The husband ran away after seeing the neighbours on the scene when the portion of her body was found severely burnt and she was removed to hospital.

The man who is reported to have committed a crime is not a human being, is a monster.

In the land of the Mahatmas, Parliaments and the Home Civil Liberties two papers have been suppressed. This is the news item.

Britain's leading communist newspaper "Daily Worker" has been suppressed by the Government under Defence Regulations.

Another left wing periodical "The Week" has been suppressed.

The Home Secretary is reported to have these papers systematically published and calculated to foment agitation and successful prosecution of the war by an official announcement.

This clearly shows that the Daily Worker of England does not see eye to eye with the bosses of the war. The Daily Worker does not see eye to eye with the bosses of the war.

BASIC FACTORS WHICH ENSURE ALLIED SUCCESS

Polish Premier on Military Outlook

No Hate in Post-war Settlement

GENERAL SIKORSKI'S MESSAGE TO INDIA

(By T. A. RAMAN.)

European statesman I have seen has created quite the effect on me as General Sikorski did when he received Tall, well-built, quiet-voiced and deliberate, the Premier of Poland gives an impression of strength and easy dignity. But he is impressive even than these qualities is his serenity.

He speaks with emotion, he speaks readily, but one feels all the time that here is a man at ease with himself, his mind is set up, unlikely to be overthrown by any transient feeling or passing circumstance.

All his life General Sikorski stood aloof from party strife, the politics of his country. He is a man consecrated to one definite mission, the redemption of his country. Yet despite his passionate devotion, he is able to discuss affairs with detachment and with an unpersonal objectivity which are deeply impressive. I asked him for a frank estimate of the Polish position. "That," he said, "would require a long time on strategy. I cannot say that now, but I'll put out the basic features which are our ultimate triumph.

The first of these is quite simple: that the whole concept of the blitzkrieg has failed. Hitler conceived it, it was a lightning stroke which would dash and completely crush resistance. It went very far, didn't quite succeed and had to succeed totally or undergo radical revision. That's what has happened now.

The Allied resistance not only continues but grows in strength and takes the offensive. Hitler's successes are indeterminate and they are growing serious. He finds himself with a long war fraught with incalculable possibilities. He hasn't been defeated, it is only his basic strategic conception has been crushingly dashed and proof of that is what we've seen in the last few weeks. Coming from one prospect to another Hitler is frantically improvising and improvisation you agree isn't a German trait. That's complete. That's his fundamental plan gone wrong.

And if the blitzkrieg was a man's speciality, the Allies aim that a long war is their ally.

The second striking feature," said General Sikorski, "is the importance of morale. Morale has played a more important role than men in this war, but now, morale is even greater part. In any previous struggle in which this war is in the nature of a social revolution where men, even civilians, play a role. You see civilians are actually taking more of the brunt than the morale of the whole nation and there cannot be any doubt that the British morale will outlast the German. "Equally in the occupied countries resistance increases daily. Suffering and torture have but stiffened morale in Poland. On the other hand I have most reliable confidential reports, received in the last few days, that anti-war riots have broken out in Italy.

"There then you've the two basic factors which ensure the eventual Allied victory—the failure of the blitzkrieg concept and the deciding importance of national morale."

Italian Collapse

I asked the Premier whether he expected an early Italian collapse. "Certainly," he answered, "if the pace of the Allied offensive is kept up. Hitler can indeed screen Mussolini for a time by sending a few divisions to stiffen morale, but once the rot sets in, such an expedient cannot avail. On the contrary it may precipitate the collapse. Even for such a daring gambler as Hitler, a German penetration of Italy will be an extremely dangerous step to take. The people who will not fight for Mussolini are certainly not going to fight for Hitler."

I took up the point of morale in Poland again and asked the General a series of questions. His summing-up was as follows:

Morale in Poland

"Our contacts are numerous and up-to-date. Speaking from the most reliable reports, I can assert that suffering has not welded the steel into the soul of the people. Their determination to oust the conquerors is unshakable.

"Not one public man of many from all sections whom the Germans approached would agree to help them in governing. We've no Quislings in our midst and if fourteen months of torture haven't broken our morale, nothing will.

"My people are suffering a terrible ordeal," said General Sikorski, closing his eyes. "But unarmed and overwhelmed, they endure and resist with spirit unbroken and faith unshaken. Beyond the welter of their sufferings they look with tranquil faith to the future. That is the Polish spirit and that is the reason why Hitler flung himself so furiously against us. He'll find yet that it's impossible to destroy a nation of 30 million people."

Despite all that General Sikorski suffers over the German atrocities in Poland, his first remark on the subject of post-war reorganisation was that there should be no hate in the terms of the peace.

"When victory is won," he said, "it will largely be the triumph of the common man everywhere. Social justice in each nation and between nations should be the guiding principles of the peace. The mistakes of Versailles must not be repeated, nor the errors of the post Versailles period of

A. I. C. C. CIRCULAR

TO MEMBERS OF LOCAL BODIES

A. P. Wardha, Jan. 23
It is understood the A. I. C. C. has issued a circular to all Congress members of local bodies asking them to resign if resolutions against the policy of the Congress were passed at their meetings. It is understood a general permission will not be given to Congress members of local bodies, municipalities and district boards, to offer satyagraha.

GANG ACTIVE

A. P. Peshawar, Jan. 23
A Sepoy of Jandola Scouts was wounded when a hostile gang pressed with Government forces at Zabi Pass off Jandola in South Waziristan border this afternoon. Earlier today the gang attacked Masud lorry near Khirga Manzar Jandola road and deprived the driver of his belongings.

Pacifism which was noble and generous but naive. Germany exploited that sentiment to arm himself to surprise and overwhelm Europe. There should be no scope in this peace for any such development by any nation.

"Hitler parades as the champion of a new order. We see that order functioning already in Poland. To that brazen masquerade we must oppose the sincerest devotion to peace and justice and a world organisation in which there is no place for any herrenvolk to trample on the rights of other peoples.

Message to India

"And now," added General Sikorski, "I'd like through you to convey a message to India. We've received thousands of letters from Indians of all classes expressing the deepest sympathy with the cause and sufferings of my country. Countless Indians have also given large and small gifts for Polish relief.

"May I, through you, thank all of them for this sympathy? Poland was also profoundly impressed by the message of sympathy from Mahatma Gandhi at the beginning of the war. Indians, you may know, have always been popular in Poland. They were the welcome of visitors. Contacts between the two countries were few indeed, but Indian philosophy and literature have always been popular in my country and the younger generation particularly was deeply attracted to them. Hundreds of your books have been translated in Polish, including all the works of Rabindranath Tagore. From your general philosophic outlook and deep instincts and your ancient civilisation, I know your people cannot but be on the side of justice, liberty and goodwill and bitterly opposed to aggression and brute force and the suppression of individual liberty.

"The soul of India cannot be Hitlerised. I know of your internal problems and difficulties. It is not for me to judge them, but I feel sure you can satisfy all your national aspirations within the framework of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

"When this war is won—and I am a hundred per cent sure it will be won sooner than many of us dare yet imagine—I would wish nothing more than an increasing development of relations between our two peoples. Once again, thank you India, and I wish you a future as great as your past."

WHO IS WINNING THE WAR?

Views Of Three American Observers
(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph New York Correspondent cables:

Three opinions that Britain is winning the war were given by American journalists and commentators at a meeting of the Association of Foreign Correspondents of the United States on the 16th.

The speakers were: Quentin Reynolds, European representative of Collier's Weekly who has returned to the United States from London with the latest film "Christmas under Fire," a Ministry of Information "short" which he will show to members of both houses of Congress at Washington; Edwin Hartich, Berlin representative of the Columbia Broadcasting System; Milo Thompson, Chief of the Associated Press Bureau in London.

This is what they said:
Quentin Reynolds:—Britain just can't lose.

Edwin Hartich:—American observers in Berlin believe Germany has already lost the war. Nobody who was not in Germany when the R. A. F. started its raids on Berlin realises what a staggering blow to German confidence in Nazi leadership this demonstration of the fact that the capital cannot be protected from air attack.

To the ordinary German failure to conquer the British Isles means defeat, because all other theatres of war are regarded as side-shows. If Hitler fails in this, and Americans in Berlin believe he will fail, his regime will collapse.

Milo Thompson:—All they hope for in England is a German attempt at invasion, because they are sure it will fail. Even if it did not and the Germans occupied the entire British Isles, the British would not be beaten. They would go on fighting.

All I want personally is to get back for the Nazis make their invasion attempt. I don't want to miss it.

COMPLACENCY OF OFFICIALDOM

Mr. M. N. ROY CONDEMNS

A. P. Calcutta, Jan. 23
Mr. M. N. Roy in reply to the Secretary of State's latest statement says there was no use of throwing the entire responsibility on Indians. He added the British Government was a factor in the situation. As long as the Government allowed themselves to be paralysed by the obstructionist policy of the Congress, other Indian leaders would not have an opportunity of playing their part. Cooperation of Indian leaders who fully realised the danger of Fascism and therefore favoured India's voluntary and energetic participation in the war would create a condition which according to Mr. Amery was necessary for transference of authority to Indian hands. Complacency of officialdom in delaying solution of problem of India's defensive and striking power could not fully be developed unless reasonable and realistic Indians were allowed to shoulder responsibilities.

CAN RUSSIA MEET GERMANY'S NEED?

What Helsinki Paper Thinks

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph New York Correspondent cables:

According to the Helsinki Trade Agreement, the Russian oil supply to Germany is limited to 100,000 tons.

While the Russian oil supply to Germany is limited to 100,000 tons, the country's requirements reach 4,500,000 tons. The country's oil consumption is estimated to be between 15 million and 20 million tons.

By diverting her entire petrol export to the Reich the Soviet could supply 1,500,000 tons. Russia however has undertaken to send petrol to other countries notably to China and the Balkans.

The present Four-Year Plan for expanding output is not expected to be effective before next year.

With 3,590,000 tons for Rumania and Germany's 3,000,000 tons of synthetic petrol, the Reich might receive a maximum of 8,000,000 tons, equivalent to about half the amount wanted.

Russia's cotton production at the beginning of 1938 proved insufficient for her own needs. The following year she exported 18,000 tons. Germany's peacetime cotton imports have reached 352,000 tons.

GOERING "DESCENDED" FROM HENRY II OF ENGLAND

(By Cable) London

Herman Goering may be planning to add a crown and some ermine to the heavily-burdened Goering wardrobe.

German newspapers are claiming a broadcast picked up by the "Daily Express" radio station have implicated a Goering in the last Marshal.

"It is estimated," the news is a direct descendant of Henry the Lion. Duke of Saxony and Rumania and such as King Henry the Lion of England (1154-1189) was a Goering. He married Henry the Lion.

★ SALEM FIRE HAVOC

A SERIOUS DISAPPOINTMENT

MR. D. V. GUNDAPPA ON THE NEW CONSTITUTION ACT

Bangalore, Jan. 26
"The new Act is a serious disappointment to those who cherish the ideal of responsible government. What would they do now? In my humble judgment, they should go on with their agitation, by all constitutional means, both on the floor of the legislature and outside."

Thus observed Mr. D. V. Gundappa, M. L. C., in the course of his lecture on "Political Progress in Mysore" delivered yesterday evening at the Sir Putanna Chetty Town Hall, under the auspices of the Maharajapet Club.

After tracing the growth of constitution since the time of the British Commission, Mr. Gundappa said that the Act of 1940 was an improvement over the Act of 1923. But the new act, he added was not designed to vest any degree of effective control over the executive in the hands of legislature. With many minor changes, it simply perpetuated the old regime of autocratic paternalism. Mr. Gundappa continued "Unhelpful and unsatisfactory as the new constitution is, I am one of those who are anxious that it should be inaugurated in an atmosphere of good will and trustfulness all round. Especially is this to be desired in view of the fact that it is at the beginning not only a new constitution, but also of a new reign. The loyalty we owe to the young Maharaja would make us desist from acts which may embitter the public and queer the pitch for the new regime. Even if we have to work a constitution that is not good, we must not lack good spirit."

Mr. Gundappa was glad that the Mysore Congress had entered the lists for the coming elections but he was sorry some of its candidatures had been disallowed. He thought the Government had power to make new candidatures possible. He was unable to see how the Government could justify their refusal to intercede in this matter. Rejecting notices of candidature was virtually to prevent the elector's field of choice and so to interfere with the fundamental right. He said that it was the public that stood to lose by any misuse of the returning Officer's authority. He prayed that the Government might find it possible to alter their attitude and ensure that no other party "let me say my elimination for the Government with which the Government has acted in the free of so much to provoke

Referring to the Election Offences and Inquiries Act which was passed this month by the Legislative Council, Mr. Gundappa said that certain phrases of the Act were vague. The phrase "undue influence" in section 171-c was one such. Some thought that crying slogans like "Mahatma Gandhi-ki-jai" or exhibiting Gandhi's portrait at a meeting was exercising "undue influence". If interpretations of that kind were judicially upheld, he said, great injustice was likely to be caused to the elected and the electors alike, and great public irritation was bound to follow.

Mr. R. S. Narayan, Secretary of the Club, proposed a vote of thanks.

Bangalore City—January 26, 1941

Independence Day

All over India Independence Day is celebrated with great devotion. It is something like a religious observance. India lost her independence several centuries ago. Thank God, due to the self sacrificing labours of millions of our countrymen we are feeling to-day the distant rays of the rising sun of India's independence. The present war whatever it may achieve or not is going to achieve one thing. It is going to reshuffle the existing order. As to what the new order would be, it is difficult to precisely define. But this much is certain that India will emerge in a different manner from what she is to-day. The World opinion is already in favour of a free and independent India. Whether Providence linked India with Britain, or India's Fate decreed India's thralldom to Britain, that is past history. It is as we take it. There is no use of sugar-coating a bitter pill India lost her freedom and she has to gain it to-day. As Mahatma Gandhi has declared several times, India would prefer to give the friendly hand to Britain, as a free nation. There is no meaning in Britain's denying freedom and democracy to India under the pretext of India's disunity. While thanking Britain, for her solicitude to India we would politely request her to leave her to herself. The moment the meddling hand of Britain's is removed from India, things will automatically set themselves right. India of to-day is not the India of the eighteenth century when it became a helpless pawn in the hands of unscrupulous traders. The history of India during the days of the East India Company is full of double dealing and chicanery. Edmund Burke did a service for all time by indicting the Company rule in India. Though the accused potentate escaped with an acquittal, history would not forgive him. This is all past history. We do not want to dwell on this late hour. Enough of that. Let India prepare her self for the coming dawn of new Indian Freedom. None can stop its onward march. The observance of Independence Day should serve as a symbol of the coming dawn of India's freedom.

TWISTED DEFINITIONS

Part is defined as a small assembly where number of persons gather on invitation but when the number of persons attending is more than a hundred it is called a convention. The difference between a convention and a conference is that in a convention the members are elected by the members of the assembly while in a conference the members are elected by the members of the assembly.

thoughts the morning gets a reputation of its own. The recent scene of a noisy conference contains the word "noisy" which has been in vogue for some time. It is a word of a peculiar nature. But it is the duty of those whose scripts have a legal bearing to be scrupulously careful in their choice of words. The word "party" has a charm of its own but when it is associated with a wrong word the meaning is lost.

Funeral processions can never become social parties as it is understood by clever common sense. Mistaken notions of word-usage offends the taste and manner of English writing as revealed by the script in question. Funeral processions have been mistaken for funeral parties without knowing how and when a gathering is constituted. Prof. Amarnath Jha was kind enough to appreciate the many-sided lapses of Indian-English writers in a recent peroration at an up-country town, but it is no excuse to deliberately kill the language by improper compositions. We are sorry that men of eminence and literary luminaries should offend the good taste of King's English by freely mixing words of no meaning.

The words "Funeral parties" have an unwholesome taste but participation in it has been permitted by an august District Magistrate by virtue of his extraordinary powers. To conduct a "funeral party" people have to die in thousands as is happening in the theatres of war. We commend the Magistrate's order to the general public as a piece of "ingenuity" unsurpassed. The mass deaths which he has contemplated by an enabling clause to his curious order is well worth a study.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Sri Vinoba Bhave is again in jail. Mahatma Gandhi discovered him to the world. All those who have come in personal contact with Bhave know what a sincere and high soul he is. I have seen him personally doing the highest and the humblest work with the same amount of passionate devotion. In the Sabarmati Ashram, he would be the first to wake up and the last to sleep. His first action as soon as he rose in the morning was to do the scavenging work in the Ashram. He would wash his own hands clean and wash all the closets and see that every lavatory was kept absolutely clean with no stink.

Having finished this work, he would ring the waking bell of the Ashram and summon all to the morning prayer. Some of our readers do perhaps know that the morning prayer of the Ashram is conducted at about 4.30 a.m. Bhave would lead the prayers with his musical voice. Himself being a profound student of Sanskrit language and Indian philosophy he would pronounce every sloka with due accent and emphasis in its proper place. Mahatma Gandhi has very high admiration for Bhave. He would place his example before every new inmate to the Ashram.

The Hindu Maha Sabha is now on the war path. They have appointed a Central Council of Action and they are going to have Provincial Councils of Action. Their direct action is scheduled to start on 31st March. It would indeed be very exciting to contemplate that Dr. Moonje, Veer Savarkar, and Bhai Parmanand would be starting the direct action. What type of direct action that would be they have not disclosed. They have only told us that it would not be of the same variety as that of the Congress.

What would the Muslim League do? The newspapers interpret the latest speech of Mr. Amery in a way unhelpful to the Pakistan idea. The Delhi correspondents of various newspapers have been spinning long yarns of speculation as to what would happen after the Viceroy's return to New Delhi. In this connection they give their own commentaries of Mr.

Amery's latest utterances. They feel that Mr. Amery has gone by to Pakistan idea. The emphasis on "essential India" has lent colour to this view. In view of this phase of the British Policy, I am sure Mr. Jinnah would give a lead to the Muslim League. Who knows that may also be another type of direct action?

Thus in India by next March we shall be having three different streams of direct action. We have already running in the Congress direct action. We shall be having the direct actions of Hindu Maha Sabha and Muslim League. Southern India, Dravidan people may also raise the standard of direct action under the lead of the Periyar.

Independence Day is going to be celebrated all over India. The Madras Government has decided not to ban this observance. But in Travancore C.P. has banned this observance saying that it has no place in an Indian State, which pledged to the British Crown by ties of treaties. This is a strange argument and unconvincing too. How can a K.C.S.I. allow such observances in a State over which he presides? The Dewan? I am sure Mysore is not going to follow the lead of the K.C.S.I. All actions here are sympathetic actions that of the British Government. When the British Government does not ban it as certain anything there will be no ban in Mysore also.

There is one observance which I have to make. Local officers have been continuing the Mysore State Congress and have been issuing prohibitory orders on all sides. The observance is not a big thing warranting their attention.

Bangalore to-day is calm, splendidly. All Bangalore people, in spite of the march of processions of laborers are not perturbed. They feel that it is the right of laborers to ventilate their grievances in a non-violent constitutional manner. I hope this dispute will be settled amicably between the competing parties.

A Literacy Trust For Mysore

(T. L. A. ACHARYA)

The main obstacle in the way of the promotion of literacy in our country is the unhelpful attitude of the Government, which in the popular terms means lack of financial support, and the apathetic attitude of the public towards education. Education has been and is the Cinderella of the State in India. In the literature, an energetic literacy scheme can function only as an occasional adjunct. It must be reinforced and strengthened by a State-sponsored unceasing compulsory primary education. Our trouble is this: we lack of the continental immensity of the ignorance of our masses, we are terribly shocked at the extent of our illiteracy, but we do not think about it. In this year of grace, it is necessary to realise that it is not the subjective value of our talk or our intentions or our efforts that is important but the social worth of our talk, our intentions and our efforts.

Hermann Ranching reports Hitler as having made the following utterance to a group of personal friends: "Universal education is the most corroding and disintegrating poison that liberalism has ever invented for its own destruction. We must at an end to what is known as universal education." Hitler is bent on to destroy universal education because he cannot play the challenged despot in a community of men educated, very much alive and conscious of their rights. Democracy has failed, degenerated, become a rule or money-bag rule or a vote-catcher's paradise because democracy lacks an educational social base. I would go to the extent of saying that any man in Mysore who talks of democracy or talks of political reforms does not possess the right to do so unless he has made, or is prepared to make, a thousand human beings that are in his area literate.

Somebody has taken pains to calculate that, at the present rate of educational progress, it would take a hundred decades for India to become completely literate. I should think the gentleman is an optimistic dreamer. He takes for granted that our population will mark time for a thousand years! In fact, our population figures are shooting up sky-high and the present census will throw up a staggering increase, perhaps, a far behind. A correct and scientific reading will show that literacy is not keeping step with the increase in population, literacy is actually on the increase, too. This is not a comfortable thought for an honest Indian.

I have had the opportunity to watch adult literacy campaigns in three British Indian Provinces. I must mention that I happen to be the Secretary of the Bangalore City Literacy Campaign Committee. Everywhere work has been sporadic, unorganised and inefficient. I know of one or two cities where adult literacy has been pressed into the service of electioneering propaganda, even in a fever, charts were hung in ill-ventilated and dimly-lighted rooms, people were about hectoring, some of the coming millennium and a good many tasted the new dawn with their morning tea.

The elections were over, a few walked into the Council chamber and the new literate acquired a nodding acquaintance with four letters of the alphabet, not enough, in the case of men whose names were spelt with five letters, to write even their names!

I think, to-day, I can mention Russia with a good conscience and without turning round, in fear, to find a policeman behind my back. Russia, twenty years ago, had an eight percent literacy — the same as ours at the present time. The latest statistics reveal an astounding achievement, almost cent percent literacy. I believe in Russian official statistics. If a man cannot read and write, he cannot live in Russia. There is quite a lot of talk of literacy work in India; but not even as much a little scraping of the enormous ground has been achieved. I know of only one State in India where adult literacy work is under the wing of a Government. Kashmir. I also know that in Old Persia, now truncated and called Iran, the Government is directly conducting a thorough-going literacy drive. It is my earnest hope that Mysore will take it up with enthusiasm and carry it through to fruition. I want the "model" State to become a helpful and live model. I bank on the new Maharaja, young, educated, cultured, radical and eager to serve his people. I even dream of seeing him going about the land setting up a black-board, with chalk in his hand, writing out the alphabet and stinging the others into emulating him. Something in the nature of a literacy-struck young Kemal Pasha.

I suggest the formation of a Literacy Trust for Mysore, taking its name from His Highness with his liberal patronage. If the editor of the "Daily News" permits, I will draft and lay the scheme before the public for approval and study. The Government in the Education Department must come out with a big recurring annual grant and life members who will pay, say, Rs. 5000 a year and ordinary members, with a subscription of a Rupee per year will have to be enrolled. The Trust will have its own printing and publishing department to put out a constant stream of literature in the language of the people. I would give a copy of Ramayana and a history of Mysore, written in the most simple Kannada, to every new literate. If we are serious about the work, in a City like Bangalore half the number of houses, all the temples and mosques, all the vacant buildings must be converted into Schools and most of the educated must transform themselves into teachers. I know there are over four hundred teachers of municipal schools in Bangalore who are prepared to take up the work for a meagre honorarium of five rupees a month. All communal bodies could be liberalized, oriented, if they are prevailed upon to convert themselves into institutions for the promotion of literacy. The University, the Department of Education, the High and Middle schools, the Municipalities and other local Boards, Mills, Factories, all these must come in as active participants. Literacy more and more of it, must become the front line of social reconstruction.

I would even start in a humble way with a "Learn-to-sign your name" campaign. But I would buttress my efforts with a parallel "Go-to-School" campaign to keep the movement alive and to propagandize for compulsory primary education. I would start with the Nine District centres, in the first instance, then spread my wings and touch the smaller taluq and other towns and finally make my appearance in the halls of the Village panchayats.

All this demands money. Voluntary services there but you cannot depend upon it for a State-wide abolition of illiteracy.

Thought For The Day

Misery is only removed by removing selfishness.

Daily News

Bangalore City—January 28, 1941

Madras Corporation

A pigunt situation has arisen in connection with the Madras Congress Municipal Party's behaviour with reference to a resolution passed by that body in respect of contribution to War Fund. It is reliably learnt that the members of the Madras Congress Municipal Party will shortly be directed to resign from the Corporation Council. Mahatma Gandhi seems to feel that the party can serve no useful purpose in the City Council when once the Council has been allowed to contribute a sum of Rs. 10,000 to the Madras Governor's War Fund. This decision will be duly communicated by Mr. A. Kala Venkata Rao, General Secretary of the Andhra Provincial Congress Committee, to Dr. U. Krishna Rao, leader of the Congress Municipal Party.

Our readers would remember that when Mr. S. Satyamurthy, was the Mayor, a resolution was proposed to contribute some amount to the War Fund. It was rejected by the Council. Now again the resolution came up before the Council and was passed by a majority. The attitude of the Congress members was well-known. It is to be seen what further developments will take place in this connection. If the Congress members resign, there would be re-election. If the Congress should follow the policy they have been adopting in connection with the Central Assembly, the Congress members might seek re-election. Or, since their services would be required for Satyagraha they might be asked not to contest the Elections.

With the Congress it is a matter of principle and policy. The action of the Congress Members of the Madras Corporation would have its reactions over all Municipal bodies of British India.

PREFERS QUALITY TO QUANTITY

Mahatma's Policy

(A.P.) AHMEDABAD, Jan. 26. Mahatma Gandhi prefers quality to quantity in his present plan of individual satyagraha declared Acharya Kripalani, General Secretary of the Congress addressing a gathering of congressmen in the Congress House this morning.

He said Gandhi did not want any communal clash, and did not wish to bring matters in the state struggle. He explained the intention of Mahatma Gandhi to satyagrahi to pay up fines if fines were imposed, on them.

BONE OF CONTENTION
RE:- BONUS.

The Binny Mill Terms.

SHARE-HOLDERS & WORK PEOPLE TREATED ALIKE

(From a correspondent)

Bangalore, Jan. 27. The Bone of contention regarding the payment of Bonus in the Bangalore Woollen and Silk Mills has resulted in Stay-in-Strike which commenced last Monday.

In January 1940 a notice was put up on the notice board by the management.

The notice inter alia stated thus:-

The Bonus for the half year ending 30-6-40, was paid in August 1940, in accordance with this notice at the rate of 10 per cent. which was the rate of Interim Dividend declared by the Company on their Ordinary shares. The following terms regarding Bonus are current to-day.

In future the half-yearly Cash Bonus, if not forfeited for any reasons referred to here under, will be paid at the same rate per cent. on wages as that of annual rate of dividend declared each half year on the Ordinary shares of the Company.

As the accounts of the Company for the half year will have to be compiled before the rate of dividend can be decided, the Bonus in future cannot be paid until a month or six weeks later than the usual date of payment.

There have been some years in which results have not permitted the payment of any bonus or dividend, but at the time the Cash Bonus was introduced in 1919 it was intended to be a payment dependent on the profits of the Company.

In recent years the shareholders have suffered a reduced dividend and for a shorter period the workpeople received a reduced rate of Bonus. All the other benefits, however, which the workpeople receive in the form of gratuity fund, housing, school, food stores, cheap cloth and various Welfare activities have been continued and cost the Company a very large sum of money. It is entirely contrary to the original idea of payment of the Bonus that work people should receive the Bonus at a higher rate than the dividend to the share holders. In future the Management has decided that the share holders and work people shall be treated alike, and as from this half year, provided there has been no stoppage of work during the half year owing to strikes or lock-outs, the Bonus will be paid subject to the terms of this notice.

DR. N. B. KHARE'S ADDRESS

Criticises Congress

Nagpur, Jan. 27. There may be many ways of gaining independence but Gandhiji's constructive programme was not one of them, observed, Dr. N. B. Khare addressing a public meeting on the occasion of Independence Day. Satyagraha launched by Congress, he added, was not for winning independence but for preservation of that organisation.

Continuing, Dr. Khare emphasised the need for India rendering aid to Britain in the present war.

In the course of the letter Mrs. Majumdar says that the Premier was constitutionally responsible for what had happened, or was happening though his responsibility would be limited. He had failed in the great task he undertook nearly four years ago. The Province to-day was in a state of exasperation and crying for immediate reform and demanding at the same time a cabinet that would be able to introduce reform without delay. In the rural areas, hunger and starvation was the lot of millions. Taxation was increasing.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I opened a Bombay daily morning. It is amusing to see what various forms and shapes cheating takes. In a big city like Bombay cheats are in hundreds in thousands. Even a comparatively small city like Bangalore cheats are in abundance. Every alternate evening we see pickpockets thrashed the street of Chitpet.

I myself have been a victim of pickpockets several times. The first shocking experience I had of pickpockets was in my college year. Some obliging relatives mine made me a present of a couple of rupees. I did not close it to my elders in the house. With those two rupees in my pocket I went to see the Moharam tamasha. I do not know when, somehow at that time, my pickpocket made away with my rupees. My grief knew no bounds. That whole night the next day I did not touch morsel of food. On one side there was shame and on the other there was the loss of precious money.

The Bombay paper reviewed the activities of pickpockets by week says "Almost all cases occur in crowded localities at tram junctions and outside cinemas when a queue is present to purchase tickets. The logical precaution, says the paper, against such thefts is, to keep all valuables in inner pockets particularly fountain pens and money purses which are frequently seen protruding invitingly from pockets and to exercise particular care when moving through crowded places. Strangers who show a tendency to "accidentally" brush against persons should be treated with suspicion and necessary handed over to the Police for enquiry."

There are other kinds of thieves. There are thieves who steal articles from parked motor cars. This is rampant in the Great Road locality.

Here is an instance of cheating jewellers. A muslim aged about 30 accompanied by an eight-year-old boy, went to a Marvadi jeweller's shop and asked the shopkeeper to send three pairs of gold rings on approval as members of the boy's family desire to make a purchase. The rings were sent with an employee of the firm, who accompanied the Muslim to a building nearby. Here the Muslim took the rings and entered the building after asking the jeweller's representative to wait outside and look after the boy. As the Muslim did not appear, the boy was questioned and he stated that the Muslim was strange to him and he had accompanied the man on the promise of being given some money and tea.

Ornaments purported to be gold had been pledged at pawnshops and an amount proportionate to their value in gold had been advanced to some persons. The pledging the ornaments. The ornaments were subsequently found to be of silver interplated with a thin layer of gold. Needless to say, the pledging the ornaments did return to redeem them.

Immunable are the ways and means adopted by cheats to impose on the gullible. Some are too cautious in these matters. Anyway people should be warned.

Foundation Laying

Popular Agitation

Then began the third stage, that of popular agitation for a liberal constitution, the stage through which we are now passing. The voice of the public awakened and trained largely by the action of the State itself, became loud and unignorable in the time of Sir Albion R. Banerji and the Seal Committee was the result. The people's Convention that met in December 1919 had asked for the appointment of two men selected from the public life as members of the State Council and the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council had pressed this request and suggested other liberalizing reforms. The Government of that day chose to meet the demand with vague assurances, soothing to the ear, but not satisfying to the heart. If two non-official citizens chosen from the ranks of public life had then been actually taken into the Council, as had been done 40 years before then, that should have gone far to improve the human material of our public life and made for a larger pace of progress. But we were only given an assurance which was neither here nor there.

Demand For Responsible Government

by the execution of their obligations and their own hands. A self-respecting people would like to be less mere dependents and beneficiaries for all time. The old bureaucratic constitution offers no inducement to a citizen of talent and ability to devote himself to the public life. Responsible Government can stir the public spirit of the citizen, can make it active and purposeful, can give him a living interest in the life of the State and so mobilise the energies of vast bodies of the public for the purpose of planning and working for the good of the State. It is at once a process of moral and intellectual education for the individual citizen and a means of securing a kind of administration for the public which will be sensitive to their manifold and varying needs. If things do not go in a way satisfactory to any large body of the public under responsible government, they will be able to know whom to blame and how to deal with them. Under the old regime, they have neither this opportunity nor the power to enforce the correction of a wrong or promotion of a right, nor the inducement to prepare themselves for the active service of the State as significant citizens. In fact, their citizenship is at present without meaning and purpose. Their individuality has no meaning or value to the State.

Record of L.C.

At the time of proroguing the old Legislative Council eight days ago, the President of the day took occasion to pass in review the record of that body formed under the Banerji constitution of 1923. He of course meant to be kind, and tried to point out that there was much in that record to console and gratify the members. But each member has the duty of examining the matter for himself and deciding independently the value of his performances there. I for one am not pleased at my record; and I think several of my colleagues are filled with a similar sense of futility and failure. If we may claim credit for helping anything good, that service was possible only when we could say ditto to the Government. By his own initiative the non-official was able to achieve little in a positive sense. When non-official was unable to say ditto to the Government, his was a voice in the wilderness. He was unable to prevent a thing unacceptable to the public if the Government had once made up its mind to pass it; and occasions of the Government not having made up its mind before coming on the floor of the Council are not known to me. But it is only truthful and fair to admit that our insignificance and impotency is to be attributed not solely to the dominant position assigned to the Executive Government in the old legislature by the 1923 constitution. That was no doubt a powerful cause; but there was another which cooperated with it—namely communal and other divisions among non-officials.

The non-officials gradually came to realize this. They saw after a few years' experience on the 1923 constitution that at best it could help them to agitate for a few jobs for individuals, that it could never enable them to rise higher than to play second fiddle, that there was no large or lasting inspiration in that kind of work. The appeal of a nationalistic and democratic cause touched their hearts, and they saw the pettiness of getting lost in perpetual communal warfare. So swelled the cry for responsible Government; and at last to meet that cry in some measure was appointed the Srinivasiengar Committee of 1938—39

The outstanding recommendation of that Committee is the one advising the Government to declare responsible Government as the goal of Mysore's constitutional progress. Though only by a majority and though in unnecessarily timorous language, it has given its finding in favour of our ideal.

When we speak of political progress, the aim which we have in view as the destination of that progress is responsible Government. First, ordered and efficient administration, then benevolent and philanthropic administration, finally popular administration, responsible administration these are the three rungs of the political ladder, each helping towards the next. From bureaucracy to paternalism and from paternalism to democracy has been our evolution. Not that the earlier stages were once unnecessary, but that they are obsolete at present. The third is the stage that is due to Mysore now.

New Act

morals of some men fishing in the waters of Government. It has been definitely under promise, and if the non-officially recommended ministers were clearly meant as a means of transition towards that end, the case would have been very different. As it is, the public in general can feel no enthusiasm for this gift.

The new Act has made the representative Assembly a body of legislation; but whether it will prove such in fact looks doubtful. The majority require a two-thirds opposition vote to become effective is almost impracticable. As regards the budget, the Assembly gains practically little by the new reforms; and in other matters, the Assembly seems to be not worth special mention.

Summing up

To sum up, the new Act is not designed to vest any degree of effective control over the executive in the houses of legislature. With sundry minor changes, it simply perpetuates the old regime of bureaucratic paternalism. The work of the legislature is mainly of three kinds; (1) legislation, (2) financial sanction, and (3) criticism and correction of the administration. For the next few years, the legislative programme of our Government is not likely to be very heavy or very important. All conceivable repressive measures have already found a place in the statute-book. There is no scope for any general measures of new or enhanced taxation. Legislation hereafter would generally be of a kind affecting only particular trades or sections or of a social or philanthropic nature; and such measures are not likely to cause any general and State-wide controversy. Moreover, most of our governmental legislation has been and is apt to be of the

Japan's Sky-High Ambition

Mr. Matsuoaka, Japanese Foreign Minister, addressing the Budget Committee of the Lower House made a fighting speech in which he criticised United States in unmeasured terms. He is angry with the U.S.A. for its friendly relations with China. He is also intolerant of the view of the United States that Japan ought not to dominate the Western Pacific.

The Foreign Minister of Japan lays it down that Japan as a nation of mission, appointed to fulfil a high destiny must dominate the Western Pacific (mind the reason given) not for herself but for the sake of humanity. This is indeed a tall claim unsustainable in the face of recent facts. Japan is filled with an ambition to dominate the Eastern horizon. Her alliance with the Axis powers signified nothing but her inordinate ambition of Hitler-like dimensions to Japanese the East. China has been resisting this stupid claim, in a very remarkable manner. The recent successes of China have unnerved Japan. And the bold policy that the U.S.A. has been adopting with respect to Britain as against the Dictators has made Japan revolve in her own mind as to what the future consequences of all this would be. She is afraid that as a result of this war she would be pressed back to her island home, stripped of her distant stretches. Mr. Cordell Hull, did not mince words and condemned the aims of Japan in unmistakable terms. Mr. Matsuoaka tries to remove the erroneous impression that Japan was exhausting her national power. If America should take part in the war the Foreign Minister of Japan made it clear that Japan would rush forward to rescue her friends in difficulties. He said "No one in Japan raises the question of what she should do in the event of America entering the European war." The Foreign Minister tries to soften his harshness by saying "the developing of friendly relations with America has always been and will always remain Japan's sincere desire."

The only way for Japan to save herself from the coming disaster is to take her hands off China and allow that great and ancient country to establish peace and orderly rule within her own frontiers. Then and then only will Japan be able to insure love and confidence in the hearts of the peoples of the Asiatic Continent.

THE VANISHING FREE LUNCH

The provision of delicious edibles in the local Municipal Council, has been watched with a measure of economy. That means a day's dinner lost to all. It is a pity that a splendid opportunity is being lost. The house to purchase still adds the main vanishing of Indian cooked meals and salaries but it is given

THE SCORING IN MIRZA SHIELD TOURNNEY

Win for Central College

Bangalore, Jan. 27
The Central College Cricket Team qualified for the finals by beating the Sullivan Sports Club by 32 runs yesterday, in the Mysore State Championship Cricket Tourney for Sri Mirza Shield. The chief feature of the match was the tall scoring by both the teams. Batsman dominated.

The following are the scores: The Central College Cricket Team: 311 (C. J. Ramadevi 119; B. V. Ramakrishna 84; Raja-selkar 56; Maniswamy 21; Rangaiyengar 12; N. Edwards 5 wickets for 44 runs; E. Godfrey 3 wickets for 82 runs).
The Sullivan Sports Club: 279 (B. Frank 72; Edwards 64; Fitzgerald 36; Smalley 23; H. Suresh 31; Atkinson 15; Dayananda Rao 19; Rangaiyengar 5 wickets for 61 runs; Vigiasarathy 3 wickets for 33 runs).

The Central College and Engineer College will play in the finals.

A CINEMA STAR'S VISIT TO INTERMEDIATE COLLEGE

Bangalore, Jan. 27
Miss Leela Desai and party, this afternoon, paid a visit to the Intermediate College Bangalore. Mr. M. Sessa Iyengar Superintendent and the Secretary of the Intermediate College Association received them at the entrance of the College. A meeting of students was held in the quadrangle of the College where she had a conversation with them.

Then the party visited the Intermediate College Association. They were impressed very much with the arrangements.

Guests were treated to light refreshment.

a go-by by the present Congress councillors who see a vision of pure economy behind the steaming plates full of dainty little edible bits which go to tickle the saliva in men. The aspiring tongue which needs taste never swerves on the side of payments. It would rather relish free lunches than delight on paid dishes especially in times of war when dearness allowances are not forthcoming by those in authority. There is the hidden fascination over a free lunch plate and a free cup of coffee than to receive the bill to be promptly paid at the counter. Those who are accustomed to get things done quickly never worry about others' comforts. When a generous Municipal council provides free lunch to its members as well as to those who scribble for the sake of our City Fathers' advertisement that supply should at all costs be retained.

The abolition of tiffin to call it in Indian English—is a small matter in itself. The charm of free and hearty discussion over the familiar cup of an afternoon tea is lost by the hurried economy drive of our City Fathers. There is no higher delight than the inviting bite of a cutlet or a delicious sip from the tea cup. It was strange indeed that the worth of our Khadder-clad City Fathers should descend on the free lunch plate which at the moment has no defence save the centre and the stomach. Our City Fathers should restore the plate and the sip.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

News comes from Hyderabad that the Police authorities have prohibited a debate on the subject "Whether India could attain Swaraj through non-violence." In the opinion of the police the subject was a political one which they thought fit to prohibit. If police are given such powers, woe to Civil Liberties!

Sir C. P. Ramaswamy Iyer is heroic if nothing else. He wishes to make it perfectly clear that there is no intention to grant responsible Government in the sense of an Executive responsible to and removable by the Legislature. Is there responsible Government in any other sense, I ask. Sir C. P. would do a service to the world by enlightening on this subject. While Sir C. P. has reiterated the Government's intention, the State Congress stands unflinchingly by its objective of responsible Government under the aegis of the Maharaja. There is a fundamental element of conflict between Sir C. P. and the Travancore State Congress. I do not know when Mr. Thanupilly and his friends will have to go back to their cells in prison.

The disappearance of Babu Subash Chandra Bose is a sensation of the first magnitude. I hope he has not been kidnapped. Such things are possible in Calcutta. The world knows that Subash Babu has a turn of spiritual mind. But if what Sardar Sardul Singh states is true I wish to submit this is not the opportune time for Subash Babu to retreat from the mundane world to Aravinda Ashram. There is no use of any far-fetched speculation until we hear definitely where Subash Babu is. When I received the telegram yesterday I was more than disturbed. The latest message says that he has not arrived in Aravinda Ashram.

Mahatma Gandhi writing to one Mr. Sharma says "No one can hope to be Satyagrahi-good health apart-who does not spin regularly. On no account are sickly or ill people to go to jail." According to Mahatma Gandhi falling ill is a sin and an offence as grave as any other sin or offence deliberately committed by man. To Mahatmaji one's body is a trust endowed upon him by Providence to serve Him and his fellow men. Mahatma Gandhi in his rules laid down the Ashram takes severe notice of people who fall ill constantly.

All India Hindi Journalists assembled in a Conference New Delhi recounted the culties experienced in the Journals as a result of the cost of paper and foreign service. The difficulties were same with regard to Kannada papers. But strange to say, the Conference of Kannada Journalists held last year in Belgaum the Chairman of the Reception Committee indulged in a tirade against Kannada papers in respect of their language and style. The glorious achievement of the conference was to pass a resolution appointing some experts to find suitable equivalents for technical scientific words. But it entered no body's mind to think about and speak of the real difficulties besetting Kannada papers in respect of finance, increased cost of print and increased subscription of foreign news service.

A couple of months ago the All-Mysore State Journalists assembled in Bangalore. A. M. Hayles, Editor of 'Mail Mail' laid it down that the papers were gone when country language papers could ask for concessions in the matter of service and other facilities. But Hindi Journalists have expressed a different view am inclined to support Hindi Journalists whose difficulties are more or less the same as those of Kannada Journalists of Kannada papers.

The other day I wrote of a Cawnpore student who resolved to fast unto-death. I learnt he was arrested by the Police subsequently. I wonder what he is going to do with him.

Dr. P. Varadarajulu Naidu speaking of the direct action to be adopted by Hindu Mahabha says that it is not going. Hitherto I thought direct action meant defiance and going. I am thankful to Dr. Varadarajulu for giving a meaning to that word. He has taken away a good lot of stress and temperature from what was

MAHATMA ENQUIRES ABOUT SUBHAS

SARAT BOSE'S REPLY

Calcutta, Jan. 29. Efforts to trace Subhas Chandra Bose for the last three days by his own people as well as by the police failed to find any clue to his whereabouts and intentions. Circumstances indicate renunciation. Daily News

Bangalore City—January 30, 1941

The Strike

More than a week has elapsed since 7,000 workers of the Binny Mills have gone on strike. There have been appearing in the columns of the Press some scattered news items of the affair. We have been very carefully watching the movement. It is not without anxiety in our mind that we observe such a huge number of workers thrown out of their proper sphere of work. A strike is a recognised method for labourers to ventilate their grievances and for mulate their demands. There is nothing wrong in a strike provided sufficient notice is given to employers and all avenues have been exploited. In the present instance the strike is due to bonus. The workers desire that the certainty of a ten per cent bonus should continue in preference to the possibility of more or the risk of less by reason of the dividend basis. The Statement on behalf of the workers states "The desire of the employers that workers should share the profit and loss of the concern is too sudden and too compelling to persuade the workers of the bonafides. It is feared and very naturally that dividends will in future fall below the ten per cent, true by reason of expenditure items being increased, particularly towards capital works and reserves, over which the workers can have no control and which the Shareholders will approve as the owners of the property. What guarantee is there that the authorities will not set apart huge sums towards capital and reserve and declare a poor dividend?" The workers are unwilling to accept the principle.

It is stated that the workers had been making this point clear since last July itself but the authorities would not hear. "Hence the workers had to go on strike as a last resort to signify their protest."

It is to be admitted that there are really some points of contention. This is a matter for negotiation and settlement. The Labour Commissioner, should take early steps to bring about a settlement in the matter. All these days due to a good deal that the workers are having, the strike is fully non-violent and peaceful. The authorities of Law and Order also have behaved ably without precipitating matters. We feel that the dispute is capable of amicable settlement. The Strike Committee is requested to state that workers will go back on day some conditions. There should on no account be victimisation of the labourers.

We hope the non-official citizens would take a greater interest in the matter and bring about a happy settlement of this affair

THE POLLUTED FOOD

Present day students are cosmopolitan in their outlook but when it is the question of sitting for food they begin to shirk their social obligations. Some students of a Sanskrit School have refused Hostel food as a protest against the introduction of the common mess where food is served irrespective of caste or creed. It is incomprehensible how the common food becomes polluted by the sight of others. In Hotels and eating houses sweets and other eatables are exhibited in a glass case for the benefit of those passers-by whose tongues might get tickled. But no one minds the way in which Hotels exhibit their products. Taking food with others is a social obligation but in India it has been reduced to ridiculous ways. The so called community eating during big functions has become purely communal and those who happen to take their birth outside the community which feeds on special occasions have to spread their leaves far from the purview of those orthodox few. The touch and the look of something might create dangers of a worst type. It is a familiar sight in many houses that brass cups have been kept specially for those friends who might belong to the other community. After the sip the cups are washed by tamarind and cowdung water to make it pure. These cups are kept in a separate cupboard the key of which remains not with the house wife but with the house servant. It is the duty of the servant to manage guests belonging to the other community.

Untouchability must go but what about foods which get polluted by a mere look or touch? The nearness to God which some communities claim has pushed them to undesirable lengths and the pollution of food is the latest of those. When people go to coffee-clubs for their daily refreshments, it is absurd to sit on a high pedestal of orthodoxy. Food cannot be polluted by sights. We hope the Sanskrit school boys will look around and see for themselves the changed outlook in society.

MYTHIC SOCIETY

A Lantern Lecture

(From a correspondent)

Bangalore, Jan. 25
An ordinary meeting of the Mythic Society was held on Friday, the 24th January 1941, at the Daly Memorial Hall, at 6 p.m. where Dr M. H. Krishna M.A., D Litt. (London), delivered a lantern lecture on 'The Antiquities of Hyderabad'.

Dr. M. H. Krishna commenced his learned discourse with a reference to the excavations at Maski and Kopal where the results yielded exceeded the most sanguine expectations formed. Remains of the Neolithic and microlithic ages were discovered leading on to the famous historical dynasties of the Mauryas and a Satavahanas. He then described the cave structures and painting at Ajanta and Elora, dating as far back as about 150 B. C. and going up to the 10th or the 11th century. The evolution from the Buddhist chaityas to the magnificent Chalukyan temple with their varying developments under different regional influences, but keeping to one generally uniform plan in the main, was beautifully illustrated by means of pictures and lantern slides. The temple at Hampi and the brick work there making out a floating temple as it were was graphically mentioned and its close resemblance to the Hoysala structures in Mysore was beautifully brought out.

The Moslem architecture at Gulbarga and Deogiri resembled the Bahamani type while those at Bidar resembled the Shahi. Hyderabad is rich in Hindu and Muslim monuments and the Government of H.E.H. the Nizam are spending large sums in their conservation.

Mr. S. Srikantaya, while thanking the lecturer for his excellent discourse said that it was not easy to understand why the people of the olden times thought it fit to construct such beautiful structures at places far away from the easy reach of man, in clofts of hills and on the river side, spending huge sums of money and vast amount of patient labour over them; would that be because they were in quest of peace, and wanted to have haunts where they could calmly meditate on the Divinity? And he hoped that scholars like Dr. Krishna would unravel the mysteries surrounding these intricate questions.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

"If Hitler came to India" is a question which Dr. G. S. Arundale answers in his latest despatch. This is what he says:

Sometimes there are people who tell me, of course very confidentially, that there are young and even older people who like to listen to the German Radio and that they believe more in the broad-casts from the German Radio than they believe in the statements of the B. B. C. Of course there are many people who like to live in a state of sensation and excitement, who like to creep about, after having listened to some sensational bit of news that does not come over the B. B. C., and say, "Do you know what I heard over the German Radio last night?" Then they get very mysterious, their eyes become very narrow, their brows very beetling, they look over their shoulders to see if anybody is listening when they make these wonderful disclosures. Of course, the Government is very wise in letting people, at all events in their homes, listen to the German Radio. But even those people who do listen and believe, they know perfectly well that if we were to have Hitlerism in this country, Gandhiji would not be at Wardha, he would be in a more restricted place of residence if alive at all. That there would not be freedom in India we know perfectly well. One of the things we have to realize is that however little we may be satisfied with the freedom we have, it is better than the far less than nothing we would get under Hitlerism."

My reading of the situation is that there is not the ghost of a chance of Hitler winning this war still less of his going over to India. Yes, if Hitler should be captured as a war prisoner we may give him a home in India. I would invite him to Mysore and provide him a shed at Byramangala so that he may supervise the tank construction work. And after the tank work is over a tablet may be put in which the names of all those who contributed to the construction of the tank may be inscribed, including of those Mysore Congress prisoners who carried shovels of earth on their head, walking bare-footed on the burning soil of Byramangala.

When I am writing of Byramangala, my mind flies back to Meher Baba who with his followers laid the foundation of a new Ashram to be constructed. I do not know what has happened to that project. I learn that Meher Baba has retreated again to his silence. If the Ashram were complete, Hitler might have been admitted as an inmate of the Ashram and styled as "Hitler Baba."

Here is an announcement from the Post Office of London "Letters, printed papers, and parcels for Aden, Burma and India posted approximately from November 9 to November 14 have been lost by enemy action" That is why I did not get my copies of 'London Times'.

When I am thinking of this enemy action I am reminded of a standing enemy in my office premises, who, without notice, quite against all odds of war, destroys my files of newspapers and The other day several newspapers including the Daily Jubilee supplement of the Daily News was destroyed by the enemy. My office-I mean the white one I am carrying on a "Blitz" campaign against this enemy. I shall communicate the news few days later.

News come from Meerut the Superintendent of Police has issued orders for the rounding-up of the so-called fortune tellers, who roam about the streets and Cantonments. Some of them have been arrested and their trial it was revealed they had several previous convictions. I wish all the fortune tellers of Bangalore, both City and Cantonment, rounded-up under Delhi India Rules and impounded Byramangala. The Government would be very thankful to Police authorities if they should undertake this work.

People have been phoning me up incessantly to know what has happened to Subash Babu. He is the son of my programme. I certainly have published "Daily News" and "Times". But unfortunately he has done so. Not only that, he has given a slip even to his relatives. If I were stationed this side of the screen, I would never have been caught myself like that fellow who called Subash Babu to slip away.

Reuter flashes from Washington that President Roosevelt is bed with a slight cold. Private Secretary seems to be more sensible than other Private Secretaries. He sees no harm giving out the news of his indisposition and saves him and the public a lot of trouble.

A Washington message that a Comet was observed in New Zealand. It was seen South-East at the rate of 10 degrees daily. It is said that a new discovery. Two superstitious cultured people consider the appearance of a Comet as an ill-omen. In a comet was sighted in the People connected it with the death of King Edward VII. The Nizam of Hyderabad was all superstition. It may be, the appearance of a Comet from New Zealand body something evil. There is a war, which may go to other horizons. Since belief has been long prevalent that the movements of heavenly bodies influence the affairs of men, it is not unlikely that comets have been as particularly potent influences. They are associated with plague, famine and pestilence. There is a scientific study of comets which deserves carefully studied by readers.

The Jinnah-Hug Correspondence

We have perused with great interest the correspondence that passed between Mr. Feroz Khan Noon and Mr. Jinnah of the two gentlemen we find Mr. Noon more anxious to end the stalemate in India. He is convinced that the present situation is intolerable. He is stronger of the opinion that unless there is unity among the communities on the principle of one and two there will be no constitutional advance and no prospect of a better India at the present moment. To him the present Government in India Act is a disaster. It gives too much power to the Governors and the Governor General in Council but all the responsibilities to the Ministers.

What is the reply to Mr. Jinnah? He says "I quite appreciate your desire for peace and settlement and nobody desires more than I do, but the question is 'When?' When the other party has declared a war and is holding a pistol at your head, what do you propose that I should do? What do you think of the aim and the object of the Congress in launching civil disobedience? Is it not obvious that they want the British Government to surrender or yield to their demands? At whose cost? Over our head and at our cost."

Even a child knows that Mr. Jinnah is twisting the facts to serve his own ends. Does not Mr. Jinnah know that the Congress are not at war with anybody? Mahatma Gandhi and the Congress are very anxious to arrive at a reasonable understanding with the Muslim League. But Mr. Jinnah sticks to his Pakistan. What can Congress do? Can it commit suicide? The British Government wanted that from the Congress. But Mahatma Gandhi pulled the Congress out of that predicament. He did not press the demand of independence. He wanted the basic minimum of civil liberty. But Lord Linlithgow turned the request down. What fruit is it? We request Mr. Jinnah to free his mind from its prejudice and, dispassionately consider the problem. If he likes he can change the entire situation. We hope Mr. Jinnah will revise his own ideas about the Indian situation and arrive at the right conclusion.

"BILLET D'AMOUR"

Those who have seen the pantomime "Simpson Beauty and the Beast" will remember how Evelyn Laye to whose credit goes a new kind of war gift. She has decided to give up her "Billet d'Amour" for the sake of those who are despatching peace and democracy. Evelyn Laye has been the recipient for cartridges, your tin and those who are now controlling the destinies of mankind.

HORTICULTURAL SHOW

Cancelled At Present

Bangalore, Jan. 30. The Horticultural Show which was to be held on 1st and 2nd February, 1941, has been cancelled on the advice of the Public Health authorities on account of Plague-infected squirrels having been found dead in Lallagah.

Mr. Waring the well-known U.K. novelist. Wads to those little masses of loose paper substance used for the charge of powder in a gun or to be more precise love-letters written from a damsel to her dear darling make good wads. If the raging world war depends on love-letters Evelyn Laye has no objection to give them up. It is a matter of pure self sacrifice that people living in that cosy little England should come forward so readily to give up their love-letters for the manufacture of wads.

Scented love-letters turn out to be good wads and the fragrance so radiated shall ease the odium and monotony of the nightingale. The pull of the trigger has a charm of its own and when billet-doux are used as wads for cartridges affectionate love grips those who see cupid-pere among them.

The secrets of love-letters shall never be violated under the defence provisions and belligerence gets an added prominence by the surcharge of fragrance in the atmosphere. The contents of a 'billet d'amour' shall become the private property of those who own it and never shall it influence the fighting spirit of a soldier who might see the vision of his dear damsel behind the puff of the cartridge smoke. The mirthful touch given to a heart-rending atmosphere makes fighting an easy task and more so when love letters are used as wads. Evelyn Laye has to be congratulated for her readiness to give up her love-letters before wads for cartridges, your tin and those who are now controlling the destinies of mankind.

HELP TO AIR RAID VICTIMS

Congress Members Walk Out In Municipal Meeting

Bangalore, Jan. 30. Seven Councillors, forming the Congress party, staged a walk out of the meeting of the Bangalore Cantonment Municipal Commission, held this morning, when it voted Rs. 1000 for the Air Raid Victims Relief Fund on the motion of Mr. W. Sinclair Vice President of the Commission.

Mr. H. H. Carleton, I.C.S., Collector and President of the Commission, was in the chair.

Mr. W. Sinclair, moving the resolution, said that the amount was to be used for charitable purpose and no political considerations should come in the way of passing the resolution.

Mr. S. Sundaram Ayyar, Leader of the Congress Municipal party, opposing the resolution, said that the Municipal Law did not permit of such an expenditure. The Municipal revenues were to be spent, according to the Law for the benefit of the citizens.

Though the object for which the resolution wanted money was most laudable, and though the Municipal Commission could sympathise with it, Mr. Sundaram Ayyar said that as the law stood, the Commission could not subscribe for the fund.

Mr. Abdul Latheef expressed his surprise at the opposition of the previous speaker for the resolution which sought to help a humanitarian cause. He declared that the Commission should not be talked of as being unsympathetic for the suffering humanity.

The President explained that the law did not prohibit this expenditure and the Commission had already donated for the Red Cross and St. Dunston's funds.

After some more discussion, the resolution was carried by 20-7 votes. All the Congress Party members voted against the resolution, while the rest of the House supported it. Immediately after the resolution was carried, all the Congress party members left the house as a protest against the passage of the resolution.

The Commission granted Rs. 200 for the Bangalore Assigned Tract Girl Guides institution.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

It is reported that pigs featured prominently in a recent colloquially used in the Madras Corporation. The Commissioner had submitted a note for levying a tax of one Rupee per half-year per pig. There was an interesting discussion over this proposal. Mr. Damodarudu Naidu said that no tax should be levied on pigs. Dr. Syed Namathulla suggested that the rearing of pigs should be prohibited.

Mr. T. G. Lakshmanaswamy, Mudaliar carried on a tirade against pigs. Here is what he said,

"Mr. T. G. Lakshmanaswamy Mudaliar complained against the predatory habits of pigs especially in his division of Chintadripet. He complained that they roamed the streets, charged the dustbins and overturned them and turned the night hideous with their squealing. He uttered a warning that if the City Council did not now wake up and act in the matter they might even invade the precincts of Ripon Building!"

Mr. G. Selvapathy Chettiar said they should neither have the rearing of pigs nor the tax as proposed. Finally on Mr. Hameed Khan's motion the Council decided to come to no conclusion in regard to the matter, and to pass on to the next item on the agenda.

Pigs are indeed a great problem. Though people despise this animal it does a lot of good to society. In rural parts it does duty for scavenging. In England pig is a very delicious animal. They take special care to rear pigs, to provide delicious dishes.

In India Pig is a term which throws some community people out of balance. It amounts to calling names. But Hindu Mythology does not despise pig species. God Varaha has saved this earth from a demon. Even today there are quite a number of devotees who swear by Varaha-swamy.

In Hindu homes the brush of Pig's hair is a sacred thing. It is called 'Varaha Kattu'. Idols of God are cleansed with this brush. Somehow this most unromantic animal brings conflicting thoughts to an Indian mind, whereas to an English mind mouth waters at the very mention of the name of Pig.

This word Pig attached to various names gives different meanings. When we fail to convince a man with our arguments, we call him 'Pigheaded'. When we see an uncouth eater we say "he eats like a pig". A variety of Iron is called 'pig iron'. Oblong mass of metal usually Iron, from smelting furnace is called Pig. On refer-

FOREST RESEARCH WORK

BANGALORE, Jan. 29

The equipment of the Forest Research Laboratory in Bangalore has been completed and the experimental nursery extended. For raising a demonstration, plantation and studying the conservation of soils, a parcel of land measuring 19.25 acres adjoining the Indian Institute of Science was got retransferred. The completion of the internal housing and decorative equipment of the Forest Museum was attended to. In the field, scientific sylvicultural work was carried out on some important economic plants ring to dictionary I find it colloquially used in the sense of greedy, dirty, sulky, obstinate or annoying. Buying a Pig means buying a thing of no value. Bringing one to the fine market means taking a venture. Pigs means that wonders might happen. Rearing the Pigs is a position of pleasure (cool) but a sty is a dirty bowl. A wiggly means a dirty cloth.

We know what a pig means it is plait of hair from back of head, especially worn by Chinese and Manchus, by young soldiers formerly and now. Perhaps not many realise that Pig tail means twisted into thin rope. The word 'Pigment' is not even the remotest of pig. It means colouring material used as paint or dye. It means natural colouring of a tissue.

I am sorry I have travelled very far in connection with word pig. But it is useful times to go into such excursions.

Wednesday night at 9-10 P.M. in Radio that Babu Subash found and arrested at Jhal Behar only to be informed 10-30 that the news lacked firmation. The same happened with regard to the A. P. M. At about 9-30 they sent a message that Subash Babu was arrested and arrested at the above mentioned place. Subsequently advised us to cancel the message. I am really anxious about Subash Babu's whereabouts. Mr. Bose goes in sympathy for the old mother of Subash Babu had been fasting since Subash could be persuaded to a little food only on Tuesday evening. It appears he directed that the doors of Bose's room are to remain open day and night lest he should be them closed when he came back. None can equal Mr. Bose's heart. She has more of a prodigal son than her own wise son. A mother's heart is out in sympathy for her prodigal son. It is not the justice or fair dealing that tempts a mother. It is purest cent-per-cent in essence. It is all kindness and love. There is no calculation or weighing of issues. To a mother, immaterial whether her son is drunkard, gambler, murderer, the worst criminal among her he is her son. To him all her sympathy and kindness. She would do anything for him. Nothing equals a mother's love either on this earth or heaven.

in the neighbouring research experimental nursery. A complete investigation of species of commercial value was conducted and a working section on commercial scale was started. A view to find an outlet for the wood species in the shape of manufactured articles. In 1939-40, Rs. 2,152 were spent in the laboratory. The Advisory Board was constituted to review the progress done in the Laboratory. It will guide the future progress of the work with helpful suggestions and advice.

Our New Delhi Letter

A Fateful Period

From our special correspondent)

New Delhi, Jan 23
A fateful period for New Delhi begins with the arrival of the Viceroy on Sunday next after the statements issued by prominent leaders in this city as well as questions asked in Parliament indicate the general attitude in both the countries towards the end of the year initiative to end the deadlock. A good deal of work on the line of action taken by the Viceroy proposes to meet his return. At the same time the manifesto issued by the Liberal leaders in Congress circles is being taken up by the position in its demands. Taken side by side with previous statements issued by the Liberal Party on the Viceroy's offer of the resolution adopted by the Liberal Federation in its session, the present manifesto discloses a progressive change in Liberal views in the opinion of the Congress stand which has attracted considerable criticism especially the unqualified criticism of the present offer which as one commentator put it, could well have come from the pen of a Conservative himself. In official circles the stereotyped answer to one gets is that the manifesto of the Liberal leaders will be received with the careful attention of the authorities, but it is not gaining the fact of the issue of this statement is timely and helpful. The task which awaits the Viceroy to apply his mind to the question again and see what should now be done in the light of what His Excellency himself said in Calcutta and the general trend of public opinion in the country as disclosed since then. The most important lesson which the last few weeks has brought out is the advisability of letting matters take their own course. The position has been so complicated by this long delay and the emergence of various new factors that a solution is by no means easy, but as an attempt has to be made sooner or later the sooner it is done, the better will it be.

WILL HITLER ATTEMPT INVASION?

London
The Daily Express Political correspondent writes:
Hitler and his Chief of Staff, Marshal Keitel, now have their plan drawn up, the two phases, it is believed, are a spectacular attack in the East and mass assaults on our bases in North Africa. Important strategy, but secondary to the real thing which is (2) the attack on Britain. There is little doubt in London that an attempt will soon be made, probably preceded by an intensive air blitz.
The British forces are fully prepared for this attempt and will counter action.
It is likely that Hitler will launch big forces to support his attack in Albania. This move has the double effect of diverting another centre of British strength to divide British strength.

HAVE DICTATORS DECIDED ON GREAT OFFENSIVE?

Malta, the First Objective?

London, By Cable
The Daily Mail Geneva correspondent writes:—
Hitler and Mussolini have decided on a great offensive in the Mediterranean starting with the occupation of Malta, reports reaching here state.
The decision is said to have been made at their meeting which was reported to have taken place at Berchtesgaden. Mussolini and Ciano arrived back at Rome on the 21st.
According to reports from Zurich, Berlin military circles state that Hitler has decided to supply Mussolini with all the help necessary to free the Mediterranean of the British Fleet, thus cutting British communications with Greece.
The German High Command is reported to be convinced that this will be possible only when Malta is in Axis hands. Therefore a mass air attack on Malta will start the proposed invasion.
Reports from Rome say that the newspaper Piccolo has promised "unusual events and facts," following the meeting between Hitler and Mussolini.
All the world knows, the paper said, that this was always the sequel to talks between two dictators.
In Berlin the Nazi newspaper Schwarze Korps said that each setback to Italy was a blow at Germany.
"Those who have fallen at Bardia are added to the account of Churchill whom we promise on the day of settlement to hang on the gallows," the newspaper added.
Vichy dispatches have reported that General Franco may see Hitler soon. But this is denied in Berlin.
At the same time it is announced in Budapest that General Bartha, Hungarian Minister of Defence, has been asked to go to Berlin to confer with Marshal Keitel, Chief of Staff of the German Army.

"MORAL EMBARGO" LIFTED BY U. S.
Chances of better relations with Russia
By cable. London.
The Daily Telegraph Washington Correspondent cables:—
No official explanation was offered of the decision to remove the "moral embargo" on the sale of aircraft, of the materials essential to their manufacture and patent processes used in making high quality aviation petrol to Russia.
This placatory gesture does not, however, mean that Russia will necessarily be able to obtain these supplies in the United States, since they will be all subject to the export licence system. In any case American manufacturers now have all the home and British orders they can fulfil.
Improved diplomatic and political relations with Russia are, however, expected to follow the American action. Some observers think this may help to dissuade Moscow from giving greater aid to Germany.

PROHIBITION IN U. P.
A. P. Lucknow, Jan. 29

R. M. N. ROY INDICTS CONGRESSMEN

OPEN LETTER TO GANDHIJI

"Blind Followers"

Puri, Jan. 31
Indictment of what he describes as "strange behaviour of Congress followers" is made by R. M. N. Roy in the course of an open letter to Gandhiji in which he refers to the disturbance created by a dozen young men at a meeting addressed by Gandhiji at Puri.

Mr. Roy says "Such extraordinary large gatherings to be addressed by me only prove that Congress policy is not sound except by blind followers."

"Call a Halt"
Mr. Roy adds "Their (Congressmen) loyalty to Congress is devotion to your creed expressed in attempts to limit freedom of speech to all themselves and those individuals who are made with the help of Mahatma Gandhiji-ki."

Given rigour of your doctrine of nonviolence you should regard those attempts as violations of your doctrine of nonviolence.

Attitude To War
Referring to Congressmen's attitude to war Mr. Roy says: "We wish that Britain should be defeated because they have never persuaded themselves that Indian freedom will automatically result from their defeat. Apart from the obvious absurdity of this fatalistic attitude, it is certainly not pacifistic and conscientious objection to war."

VINDICATE LIBERTY OF PRESS

Gandhiji's Appeal To The Press

A. P. Wardha, Jan. 30
"As I had no intention of extending civil disobedience to special press laws and ordinance I stopped the three Harijan weeklies whose chief aim was to propagate non-violence and what is known as constructive programme. I do not want so far as possible to extend the scope of civil disobedience beyond the present limit, but I do not know I can exercise that restraint if the press abdicates its function of publishing relevant news" says Mahatma Gandhi in a letter addressed to Editors of newspapers of India.

Gandhiji appeals to the press not to succumb to the "gag" but assert its independence by publishing all satyagraha news in its fullness.

He adds it is open to Editors to criticise and condemn the movement or statements that may be issued. "Editors can signify their disapproval of the gag by either publishing an offending statement and risking prosecution or even confiscation of the press or by stopping publication of their papers altogether by way of protest. These are the only two out of the many ways for signifying your disapproval."

Gandhiji refers to the forthcoming meeting the Standing Committee of Editors at Delhi and says:

"The Committee is expected to fearlessly vindicate the liberty of the press. It must cease to be the power it should be if it submits to suppression of free public opinion."

Krishniengar Road, with instructions to submit its report within three weeks from this date and that all further land acquisition proceedings regarding the continuation of the B. V. Krishniengar Road be kept in abeyance pending consideration of the report of the Committee or until further orders of the Council.

The resolution was carried nem con. Then the house rose for the day.

The special Committee will meet to-morrow evening to consider the question.

Gandhiji says the responsibility of those editors that represent British-owned press in India is very great at the present moment.

Gandhiji concludes by saying that he represents "unadulterated nonviolence whose spread can do nobody any harm. It is not a force and it is not a religion. It could have anything in common with Nazism or Fascism because I happen to oppose imperialism."

The Liberty Of The Press

—100—

The Conference or Editors is going to meet at New Delhi today. The last Conference achieved no dissenting results. But there were many points where doubts still continued. After that conference the attitude of Government of India and of various Provincial Governments did not materially alter. Even today we see the "National Herald" of Lucknow issuing without a leading article. Securities are demanded of several papers.

It is an open secret that the Press in India does not enjoy the full liberty that it ought to enjoy. This being war time, also, the Government is naturally more strict. The Censors and Press-Advisers control the liberty of the Press and also impose of these handicaps, the Press in India, has been serving the public in a remarkable manner. The Editors have imposed self-restraint on themselves. They have been doing everything in their power to serve the cause of Truth and Justice. But yet there continues an atmosphere of distrust and suspicion between the authorities and the newspapers.

It is to clear these misunderstandings and arrive at a satisfactory plan of working that the Editors are assembling at New Delhi. Mahatma Gandhi has at this opportune moment issued an appeal to the Press not to succumb to the gag but assert its independence by publishing all Satyagraha news in its fullness. It is undeniable that the newspapers have not been able to publish the Satyagraha news in its fullness. We have not been publishing the details of the trial, nor the statements of the accused before the Court. What ever Associated Press sends in the briefest manner we publish. Naturally Mahatma Gandhi is not satisfied with this state of things. He says "Editors can signify their disapproval of the gag by either publishing an offending statement and risking prosecution or even cancellation of the Press or by stopping publication of their papers altogether by way of protest. These are the only two out of the many ways for signifying your disapproval. Most say, against the Press that it would cease to be the press if it should be if it submits to suppression of free public opinion."

Gandhi has practised what he is preaching to-day. The movement we found that there was an interference with what is published in England by the authorities has stopped the publication. This is an extreme course of action, which no newspaper is ever capable of. But I think it is the duty of the press to be emancipated from the heavy state costs. Mahatma is a great man, but he is not the one of the Congress would surely have the same effect over its deliberations.

WHAT IT LOOKED LIKE

THE FIRST MUNICIPAL MEETING

(By Journalist)

Our newly elected City Fathers, gave a foretaste of Responsible Government by conducting their deliberations with grace, charm and dignity. Nineteen Congress Commissioners took part to transact their first agenda of modest twenty subjects. Out of the nominated block five were present. The whole council presented a social scene hitherto unknown.

Sitting from the Press Gallery I could get down the varieties of road gear used by the Congress party members. There was no uniformity observed. Nine members wore pure white Gandhi caps. The Leader was striped with his black khadi cap. Three Congress Councillors looked like gazetted officers in their thick khadi turbans. Two were satisfied with their thin khadi turbans. The Secretary of the Congress party and the council Vice President wore plain white turbans. It was difficult to make out who was who among Congressmen by their disregard of uniform head-gears. The Mysore Council stole a march over Bangalore. I pity our men.

At five minutes to 3-30 eighteen members of the Congress party and four members of the independent group walked in with pleasant smiles on their faces. The President entered the hall with a file adding grace to his dignified position and took his seat. It would have enhanced the prestige of the house if all had stood up when the President entered the hall. No one got up and the business bell rang as usual.

In ten minutes the elections to several statutory committees were disposed of. Voting was by show of hands and no one questioned the procedure as it complied with the standing order. The Congress have nominated the City Improvement Committee, the Bye-law Committee, the Market Committee, Langharkhana Committee and the Audit Committee. Dr Royan finds his place as the chairman of the Health Committee because there are no doctors among our Congresses.

Mr. B. Subbiaya looked to me a clever heckler to whom the Executive have to render accounts. When the question of certain supply of medical equipments came up for discussion, Mr Subbiaya was all militant and drove the Health Officer to answer all sorts of questions. It looked like a cross examination in a Sessions Court. A nice scrutiny indeed.

Mr Subbanna is the youngest of our City Fathers. He is so young and as one put it, he is the baby of the house. It was pleasant to watch his keen civic interest and I found him studying the agenda, like an examination going student. He has a stout commonsense to me credit. I wish him a long civic career.

The question of allowances to the President and Vice President was disposed of without much ado. Mr Royan withdrew his proposition after an urgent resolution which was

EMIR OF TRANSJORDAN BECOMES AIR COMMODORE

(By Cable) LONDON

The Times Aeronautical Correspondent writes: Emir Abdullah, wearing R.A.F. uniform attended a ceremonial parade at the R.A.F. station at Amman in Transjordan to celebrate his appointment as an air commodore in R. A. F. Transjordan and R. A. F. flags flew side by side at the parade and the khaki and red uniforms of the band of the Arab Legion and the blue of the R.A.F. made a vivid setting.

The personal pension of an air commodore was handed to the Emir by the Officer Commanding the Station and when the Emir had expressed his thanks his standard was broken at the mast head. The parade gave the royal salute and advanced in review order. Then followed an impressive drive past of armoured cars and fly past of aircraft.

brought before the house by special leave and disposed of. Several subjects were deferred to a later date.

On the whole the meeting had a good and auspicious beginning. Mr. Raju looked to me like Mr. Satyamurthy in the Delhi Legislative Assembly Hall with his numerous books and files. The Secretary of the Congress party was a veritable "walking encyclopaedia" of Municipal laws being a good sentiment to his leader. I wish the present council a useful civic career.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Sir R. K. Shanmugam Chetty, Dewan of Cochin, speaks in a strain different from that of Sir C. P. Ramaswamy Iyer, Dewan of Travancore. In the recent session of the Legislative Council of Cochin, a demand was made for Responsible Government in Cochin. My readers would remember that a few branches of administration are now in the hands of a popular Minister responsible to the Legislature. It is heartening to read the tribute paid by Dr. A. R. Menon, Minister for Rural Development, to the Maharaja and the Dewan. He said "His Highness the Maharaja has graciously surrendered his power of his own free will in respect of the transferred departments and in their Dewan they had a zealous advocate of Responsible Government. The reforms were already working successfully and the people were becoming politically homogeneous." It was replied on behalf of Government that the Government of Cochin Act provided for the transfer of other departments to the control of popular ministers.

Sir R. K. Shanmugam Chetty replying to the debate said that he stood pledged to successive stage of Responsible Government and that his position remained unchanged. His Highness the Maharaja had full power to decide from time to time what subjects were to be transferred to the popular control of Ministers.

This assurance of Sir Shanmugam Chetty ought to set at rest once for all the argument that the treaty relation between the Paramount Power and the Ruler stood in the way of establishing Responsible Government in States. In these circumstances it is rather strange to find Sir C. P. Ramaswamy Iyer standing on all fours against Responsible Government, in the sense of Executive being responsible to the Legislature. These two strains speak in two different directions. But the last remark that in Cochin there is a political storm as seen elsewhere.

We in Mysore, are in an anomalous position. It is a vast Iyengar Committee, the goal of Responsible Government to be declared in the Mysore Constitution Act. Known to themselves, did accept that recommendation. And the two popular powers that are going to be established according to the new constitution need not at all be subservient to the legislature. This sense is a more realistic position than the one in Cochin. In my opinion, even though the Constitution Act a healthy convention may be established, choosing the Ministers who are the maximum amount of confidence of the Legislature. Mysore if things should move smoothly the Mysore Congress Party is bound to be in majority in the Lower House. In the Assembly it was the height of statesmanship to summon the leader to step down to assume charge of the government. Even in the Legislative Council in spite of such hedges, the Congress Party sure to be the largest party. If the constitution is altered to the needs of the times, it is not difficult to take the Congress Party in the Legislative Council as the minister.

I am an optimist by temperament. I always hope for the best. It is my feeling that the political situation in Mysore yet be redeemed. If the Dewan takes a long view and moves with the spirit of the times, it would be well here also.

EDUCATION IN MYSORE

Bangalore, Jan 30

Mysore spent the impressive sum of over Rs. 71½ lakhs on public instruction in 1939-40 including that on University education and the Technological Institute in Bangalore. Out of this amount the Government spent nearly Rs. 55 lakhs which works out at 76.7% of the total expenditure. The total amount provided for scholarships, excluding those awarded in the University was Rs. 1,46,000.

The number of public institutions of all grades in the State rose from 6988 to 7064, and their strength from 3,44,133 to 3,62,287.

The number of High Schools for boys rose from 34 to 36 due to the opening of an aided High School at Bhadravati and an unaided High School at Seshadripuram, Bangalore City.

There was an increase in the number of Middle Schools for boys from 313 to 319, and in their strength from 43,624 to 46,832 which included 2,464 girls.

The number of Upper Primary Schools for boys on 1st March 1940 was 319, with a strength of 33,013, including 5174 girls, as against 311 schools with a total strength of 31,499 including 47,22 girls in the previous year. The number of Lower Primary Schools rose from 5651 to 5706, with an increase in strength from 2,08,151 to 2,09,277. The increase in the number of girls was due mostly to the grant-in-aid primary schools out of the sum of Rs. 1,46,000 sanctioned by Government for the pursuance of the policy of expansion of primary education.

The number of High Schools for girls rose from 9 to 10, and an increase in the number of pupils from 816 to 954.

The number of special schools for Muslim girls rose from 919 to 935, and their strength from 1,08,000 to 1,10,097. Besides, there were 7,148 Muslim pupils in other schools, raising the number of Muslim pupils receiving instructions to 47,124 or 13.30,374 were boys and 10,000 girls.

There were 432 schools for the education of Depressed Classes with a strength of 10,539. There were 12,704 pupils in Depressed Classes in the schools.

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

A Weekly Survey

POLITICAL SITUATION ANALYSED

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, Jan. 26

statement by Mr. Amery, the arrival of a new Commander-in-Chief, the return of the Viceroy to his capital after the celebration today all the country of the Independence Day is the beginning of a New Order for New Delhi. Amery hopes so, but the statement issued by Mr. Amery is sufficient to depress the mood. It has been said of Amery that he speaks too much and too often. And every day it is merely a cloud of gloom and grief—not that practical touch of statesmanship which in an instant transform a gloomy situation into something fully new. Every time it is the feeling which it brings-how the better it would be for Mr. Amery to come over to India to study Indian conditions before he chooses to speak on this again! If he had accompanied the new Commander-in-Chief, General Auchinleck, and been in New Delhi today it would have been at least disposed of charge that these long-range statements based on incomplete knowledge and incorrect understanding of the Indian problem have little purpose at this time. For some reason which is difficult to appreciate, Mr. Amery is still unwilling to pay the country the compliment of admitting that he is at the head of the India Office and has to deal with Indian problems day to day. It cannot be that the British Cabinet cannot spare him for even a few weeks, the reason is that he or his Government do not consider the Indian question sufficiently important or urgent to warrant a Secretary of State, it would be a pity indeed.

Why This Vagueness?

It is a matter for some satisfaction, however that the Viceroy at least has returned to his capital. In his case the complaint has been that his Excellency does not speak often enough and that he does speak says too little. It took months even for the much-advertised August offer to make its appearance. And now it is nearly six months since it was made it still awaits its precise definition without which it can hardly be expected to be treated as a definite political position. In answer to this we are generally told that the leaders of parties should get the Viceroy and secure the needed elucidation. In this connection it is worthwhile to recall that Mr. Jinnah had to say in the course of his speech in the Central Legislature, the Leader of the Muslim League said: "... when I am obdurate and I want really a proper voice, I will take you as my partner. So you will also have a partner. What will be my partner? I will give you two jobs to do. One is to control the total number of representatives. What is the controlling authority? I can tell you. What will be the days.

portfolios? I cannot tell you. It means really, to put it shortly, I will have you as my partner, but I will give you only one pie there. That is the position as described by the leader of one party who had several long interviews with His Excellency. So as the word "expansion" is all that has been vouchsafed to the country, its very vagueness deprives it of any political value as a definite and fully-worked out scheme to meet the country's demand for National Government.

Only Course

There have only been two important public statements made by the Viceroy on the subject since the August declaration was made on behalf of His Majesty's Government. In his address to the Central Legislature, all that was said by His Excellency was that though the offer still remained open the proposal to expand the Executive Council had been for the present suspended. In his Calcutta speech, the Viceroy went one step further and while candidly accepting the reasonableness of the claim for a National Government in India, claimed that his offer of "expansion" met the demand for a National Government to the extent possible under present conditions. It was an important claim to make but so far as the actual offer is concerned, it still remains what it was in the August declaration. One had reason to expect that the Viceroy would come out with full details in explanation of his August offer in order to show how it conforms with the essentials of a National Government as understood by the public. Though some weeks have passed since the Calcutta speech was made these details have not yet been made known to the public. In the meantime, Mr. Amery has come out with his declaration that the offer is a "generous and far-reaching one" and that it "still remains open." But what is the offer? At this grave crisis in the country's history when time is an all important factor it may not be too much to hope that the Viceroy will immediately come out with full details of the scheme and try to justify the claim which he has put forward. If it is "generous and far-reaching," where is the difficulty in rescuing the offer from its present vagueness and presenting it in its full picture to the general public? If, however, the idea of further negotiation is still there in the official mind, the best, if not the only course, is to call a conference of all those concerned and have a frank interchange of views.

LONDON LIFE UNDER BOMBARDMENT

SPANISH JOURNALIST'S IMPRESSIONS

Tribute To Women

(By Cable) London

The following message, despatched to the Madrid catholic newspaper, Ya, by its London correspondent, Senor Felipe Armesto, is quoted in the Daily Telegraph:

"Those who have read the objective descriptions of the bombardments on London are apt to receive a far more terrifying impression than has been produced in reality. Spaniards who recently arrived here, were above all surprised by the strength of character with which the population resists and the tenacity with which Londoners not only maintain their customs but also intend to continue maintaining them despite all commotions. As a matter of fact, if you wander today through the principal streets of London, these gaps and wounds are really not very alarming. Sheer utter destruction has not for one moment gained ground.

Those buildings which received partial damage have, in the calm of the last few weeks been repaired and brushed up until practically as good as new. Those which had been too badly damaged have been pulled down, and the debris cleaned up. Broken glass is being replaced by other material, while shop windows have been adorned with such good taste and effect that they are more than agreeable to the eye. Moreover the City of London is an enormous monster, capable of suffering the most tremendous blows without batting an eyelid, and capable also of swallowing without indigestion as much fire and brimstone as can rain down from heaven or ascend from hell. Something of the same nature occurs in regard to its wealth which is so old established and deep-rooted that it can continue to exist without support. In the first days of the September bombardments a sinister change was observed in the tidiness, clothing and appearance of the inhabitants. But little by little and due to one of those natural reactions which constitute the secret of the strength of the British public, the inhabitants began again to shave themselves, sleep and generally tidy up themselves. So today London on the surface appears not much worse dressed than it was before the war."

In a subsequent interview with the Daily Telegraph, Senor Armesto supplemented his message by saying: "Air bombardment of London is from a military viewpoint useless, and if the Germans are attempting to break the morale of Londoners they will fail. It cannot be done. As a sign of London's reaction to raids, I may mention that a week ago I toured many shelters and found them half empty. People are now staying at home. Incidentally the shelters are more comfortable and hygienic than they were." Senor Armesto is impressed with the demonstration of London women, but he told me it was only what he expected, because they were the quiet non hysterical type. The only difference he notices in them, compared with pre-war days, is that so many are now wearing uniforms and 'big boots'.

HERR HITLER SPEAKS

Confident Of Victory

"We Pray To God, He May not Forsake Our Struggle"

Hitler was given prolonged ovation when accompanied by Dr. Goebbels he arrived at Berlin Sportpalast to give his speech. Chief of armed forces, Cabinet Ministers and leading members of the party were on the stage which was decorated with usual Nazi emblems.

Dr. Goebbels' Preliminary Speech

Dr. Goebbels declared the meeting open and said: We know difficult weeks and months are ahead but you, my Fuehrer can rely upon German people.

Hitler's Address

Hitler began in a solemn and deliberate tone with a usually lengthy historical review and said that American Scholars entrusted by President Roosevelt with the tasks of examining the cause of the world war had established that Germany was free from guilt. Hitler went on to allege that British Empire was created in three hundred years on brute force. War after war was waged by Britain.

In the course of his speech Hitler uttered a warning that whoever wants to help Britain, must know that every ship that comes near our torpedo tubes will be torpedoed. If American States should attempt to intervene in European conflict our aims will change at once. Europe will resist such an attempt.

British aspirations for world domination he said had been frustrated by the rise of European nations-Germany and Italy. To check this rise according to Fuehrer, Britain started war of 1914. Germany was never defeated in the last war. Her failure was due to unique accumulation of personal incapacity. German nation has learned from this a lesson and it has not forgotten anything either. German Democracy was a miserable conception. Only constructive ideas were found in Nationalist and Socialist camps which fought each other bitterly. These two camps had to be brought together and we have achieved this consolidation. Nazi party he said, was built purely by persuasion. National Socialism conquered Democracy in Democracy and by Democracy. I received my mandate from German nation.

Foreign Policy

His foreign policy said Hitler could be summarised in one sentence-Abolition of Versailles. My innumerable speeches and memoranda were animated by a single idea to achieve a peaceful revision of the treaty. But the league of Nations mistook a former soldier for old traitors of 1918. My peaceful efforts failed because they were opposed by combination of plutocratic Jewish hate instincts and ambitions of refugees. I never had a single point of dispute with Britain and offered her my hand again and again. The only difference was that on colonies and this was not urgent problem. Colonies he said, were "accessories to Britain." Yet she "trying to them with avarice of an old miser."

If War Lasts Long

Hitler went on to assert that British Labour leaders were now plagiarising social ideas of Nazism. It was last long enough he added this will have disastrous effects.

INTRODUCTION OF BR. SEA CUSTOMS

At Ports of French Establishments

(A.P.) Pondicherry, Jan. 21

The Associated Press is specially informed by the Government of French India that the convention relating to introduction of British Sea customs at ports of French establishments in India was signed on the 26th January and that it will come into operation from February 15th 1941. Article 21 of the convention states Governor General in Council undertakes to pay the Governor of French establishments in India for so long as the agreement remains in operation Rs. 6 lakhs and twenty thousand in British India currency on the 1st April of each year.

A AND B CLASS PRISONERS

Distinctions Removed

A. P. Madras, Jan. 30

The Government of Madras have decided to remove all distinctions between A and B class political prisoners except in the case of allowing furniture.

Roosevelt's lease and lend bill to aid democracies was approved by Foreign Affairs Committee to House of Representatives.

rous effects for Britain. They will have to send Mission over to us to take over our social programme. Speaking of his offers since the outbreak of war, Hitler said, when I put my hand to Britain after our lapse in the West I was met by sneers and insults. They met on me.

Warning to America

Hitler then warned America against helping Britain. He said, useless to predict an outcome with Italy or that Italy will come out. Equally useless is to invent a revolution in Germany. Wherever we can strike at Britain we shall strike at it. British think they see proof of their victory in a few misfortunes which have befallen to our partner I do not understand their argument.

Relation with Mussolini

Speaking of his relations with Mussolini Hitler said: We two are neither jews nor business dealers. If we have joined hands this is handclasp of men of honour.

Concluding Hitler said: If British think that by propaganda and lies they will alienate German people I must say they should not have slept so long. It is as ridiculous as their present attempt to try to bring about estrangement between Italian people and Duce. We enter the new year with armed might which is prepared as never before in German history.

This spring we will begin U-boat Warfare and our enemies will then feel we were not asleep. We are confident we shall achieve victory. We pray to God may He not forsake our struggle in new year 1941.

After speech Dr. Goebbels shouted: Command My Fuehrer We Obey and shall follow you.

As a curtain raiser to Hitler's speech Goering issued proclamation to German people stressing Hitler's and Germany's achievements in which he declared according to German Radio, "Nation must with gratitude to its leaders recognize its destiny and determination to fulfil its duty to the uttermost."

HELPING MYSORE'S RAIYATS

Subvention Farms

Bangalore, Jan. 31

The Department of Agriculture has always been the friend of Raiyats of the State. In Mysore, systematic efforts are made to assist the Raiyats to produce better crops and to improve their standard of living. For example, Subvention farms in the Raiyats' holdings may be considered the first stage in the transmission of the benefits of Agricultural research to the Raiyats' field and for testing which of the several good varieties of seeds or which manurial formula is best suited to the locality. With a view to assisting the Raiyats to improve their standard of living, the Government have sanctioned subvention farms for the purpose of conducting experiments in the Raiyats' fields. In all these cases, seeds and manures were distributed free. The demand for improved varieties of seed has considerably increased. To cope with this demand, seed farms were started for the several crops, such as ragi, paddy, groundnuts, sugarcane, etc., the total number of seed farms started being 236.

The charge against Horakappa was that he had stabbed his wife Mallamma on her neck with a knife on 15-4-1940 and succumbed to injuries in hospital after 5 days' treatment.

Mr. A. Shrinani appeared for the appellant on behalf of the Legal Aid Society, Government Advocate.

DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED FOR LIFE

Bangalore, Jan. 31.

Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Subrahmanya Ayyar dismissed yesterday of an appeal, preferred by Muniswamappa against the sentence of death for an offence of murder under section 302 I.P.C. passed on him by the Bangalore Sessions Judge, commuted the sentence to transportation for life, holding that Muniswamappa committed the crime out of a fit of anger.

The case for the prosecution was that Muniswamappa, Kadagodi in Hosikote taluk, stabbed Jagannath, of the same village, to death on 19-7-1939 because Jagannath cut off a bund across the Government channel put up by the Government to water the garden he was cultivating.

Mr. S. Venkatapathy appeared for the appellant, Government Advocate.

The correspondent of the Evening Standard cables:

Goering's newspaper, the "senner National Zeitung," says the German public is aware of the eventual downfall of the Italian colonial Empire.

Standing Committee Of Editors Conference

INFORMAL DISCUSSIONS PROCEEDING

ATTEMPTS AT REACHING A WORKABLE FORMULA

(From our correspondent)
(By Wire) New Delhi, Feb. 1
Only informal discussions have been going on this morning among members of the Standing Committee of Editors which is due to meet at a regular session this afternoon. It appears that the Government's views on the Central Committee's memorandum are already in the hands of members. There is a hopeful feeling that some workable agreement may be reached at the meeting.

Firstly the fact that the full text of Gandhiji's letter to Editors has found free publication in yesterday's papers—unlike its predecessors—has created a favourable impression. Secondly it is understood that Government's assurance is that they have no intention to depart from the Gentleman's agreement reached with the press last year and recognise also that Indian Press generally have honoured it.
Apparently Government have also in their mind individual instances of certain papers which in their view have sought to infringe the agreement. But it is said this will not affect the general policy of Government.
As regards Gandhiji's statements the assurance is likely to be forthcoming that there is no intention to suppress them. But the right claimed by Government is that in no case can they allow anything to impede war effort or anything which is likely to be used by enemy for adverse propaganda. The general line taken is the publication of anything which is in the nature of instructions, directions, for carrying on Satyagraha movement offends the last year's agreement. Objection is also taken to publication even factual news, in such form as to constitute propaganda.

On the side of Editors several proposals are under consideration including the one that when the Press Adviser takes objection to anything in important statements like those of Gandhiji's, he should be the first to consult the Central Committee and generally abide by its advice. Consultations are going on for arriving at a workable formula which will satisfy both sides.

AXIS PRESS AND AMERICAN NEWS (By Cable)

London.
The Washington correspondent of the Daily Telegraph
cables:

The Administration has internally called the attention of the United States Press to the treatment given to American News in the Press of Tokyo, Berlin and Rome. Summaries received by the State Department show two features to which members feel that more attention should be given in the United States than has hitherto been the case.

The first is the way in which strikes and delays in American defence industries are always played up and made into "lead" stories. The impression is created that the whole defence industry is being slowed down and that the great majority of American workers are unpatriotic.

The second feature is the way in which anybody who attacks the President's Lend and Lease Bill at the hearings now being held before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the house of Representatives is immediately treated as a hero and given unsolicited praise.

An informal hint has also been given by officials that Axis newspapermen in the United States are not following the accepted traditions of their craft and are merely giving a distorted picture of the country.

Birth-right Of Constitutional Agitation

We are more than pleased with the way in which Mr. Thana Pillay, President, Travancore State Congress has been wrestling with Sir C. P. Ramaswami Iyer, to wrest power from him to people. He is not daunted by the Dewan's statement that there was no intention to grant Responsible Government in the sense of an Executive responsible to and removable by the Legislature. Observe how he replies the Dewan. He says: "This is the idea of the Government at the present time, but it would not be denied that the people could consider what system of Government would be best suited to Travancore, and what changes should be made in the existing system, and that they could do educative propaganda on these matters in a peaceful and constitutional manner and their views on the Government."

This bold and unyielding stand of the Travancore Congress is to be much appreciated. In spite of the hectoring, bullying, and brow beating methods of Sir C. P. Ramaswami Iyer, the State Congress President stands firmly to the objective of the Congress and proclaims the people's right in the matter in an unmistakable language. There is politeness combined with unyielding firmness.

The State Congress President makes it unambiguously clear that that body has no intention what ever of embarrassing Government. On the other hand Mr. Thana Pillay claims that it would be helpful to the Government. He expresses his satisfaction at the declaration of the Dewan that the Government have no objection to the conduct of normal political work by any organisation within the State and will not stand in the way of constitutional political agitation.

We are glad to note that Travancore State Congress has earned its birth-right of constitutional agitation. The reading of the political history of Travancore in the past three-four years clearly shows that the Government did not allow even the constitutional agitation in the State. Consequently the State Congress had to pass through much suffering and travail. Thank God, Sir C. P. Ramaswami Iyer realized the folly of hectoring the constitutional agitation or Responsible Government and has now given full scope to it. When even the constitutional agitation is set on rails, it cannot stop until the objective is achieved. But there is one condition to be fulfilled. Those in authority that ask people to confine their activities to constitutional agitation must play the game and bow to the popular will expressed in a constitutional manner. A survey of British Indian political history of the past half a century shows that the failure of the powers that be to respond to constitutional agitation led to the frustration and collapse of the constitutional movement which crossed its borders and entered into the serene flow of Satyagraha which as sure as sun's rays penetrated into the dark and dingy chambers of reaction and expelled into extinction the forces that held back the political progress of India. Let not Foreign Government repeat what British Government did in British India. Let them be wiser by experience.

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Jan. 31. One Subbamma had filed a case against one Boramma, an old lady of 70 years of age, alleging that she pledged with one Sharadamma, the jewels the complainant had entrusted to her as an old friend, and thereby committed a Criminal breach of trust.

Nagarajanna, Mysore City Magistrate, who tried the case found the accused guilty and convicted and sentenced her to pay a fine of Rs. 500 or in default of payment of fine to undergo rigorous imprisonment for six months. The Magistrate further ordered that if the fine is recovered the whole amount should be paid as compensation to the complainant.

HIRIYUR MURDER CASE

All Accused Convicted
(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Jan. 31. Mr. H. Nanjundiah Sessions Judge, Mysore disposed of the case connected with the alleged murder that took place on the 8th of April last at Hiriyr village in T. Narasipur taluk.

Patel Veerappa and 10 others were the accused in the case.

The charge against them was that due to illwill they attacked one Lingappa and caused him several injuries as a result of which he died later, and also they caused injuries to one Basappaadevaru and to one Seethalli Madappa by attacking them with clubs.

The Sessions Judge who tried the case found all the accused guilty under different charges and hence convicted and sentenced Patel Veerappa, Muddabasavaiah, Basiah and Mahantadevaru each to transportation for life, Veerappa, Subbiah, Hutchiah and Basiah each to 18 months rigorous imprisonment and Mahantiah, Chikkeeraiah and Marimahanta devaru each to 2 years rigorous imprisonment.

WAR PLANE BALL

A.P. Bombay, Jan. 31. Although precise figures regarding proceeds of last night's war-plane ball are not yet available it is now certain that the amount will exceed one lakh. It will be recalled Western India Turf Club undertook to contribute an equivalent amount if the proceeds exceeded hundred thousand mark. It is thus possible as the result of this single event to purchase not one but three fighters for the Royal Air Force.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

News comes from Lucknow that a seven year old boy, accused of lifting a tailor's piece of cloth from a valuable shop, in his statement before the Magistrate said "I badly needed a coat. I could not afford to buy one, and I was sure that no one would give it to me for the mere asking."

So he helped himself. This is an apt illustration of practicing the precept "beg, borrow or steal."

News comes from Rome that the Yugoslav Government have forbidden two American journalists to use the Telephone for a week. This is a strange way of punishing journalists. It is said that these two pressmen initiated reports of disorders in Turin, Verona and Milan. And the Columbia correspondent has been forbidden to use the Belgrade Station for broad-casts to U.S.A. for three weeks.

Authorities have several ways of punishing wronging journalists. In some countries they are expelled from the borders. In some countries facilities given to them are withdrawn. In some other countries they issue orders banning the paper. In all such cases, in 90 per cent of them the pressmen are innocent.

Some Mysore people are considering it a very big thing that Italian war prisoners are impounded somewhere in Mysore. I for one do not think so. There is no pride in it. It is a matter of so much inconvenience and annoyance. All the same Mysore has to help the Imperial Power. But it is enough to know that it is no favour conferred on us.

"Temporary huts for officers" is the heading given by a newspaper to a news item which says "It is proposed to build temporary houses or 'huts' for a certain number of Gazetted Officers at an estimated cost of Rs. 6 lakhs, at New Delhi. It is explained that a number of Gazetted Officers are at present housed in tents, which are more expensive to maintain than the temporary houses." I referred to a dictionary. A hut means a small mean house of rude construction. In military parlance it means a temporary wooden house for troops. A hut is a construction which is meant for a small or temporary period. It is to be considered if 6 lakhs of Rupees should be wasted on constructing such mean temporary structures.

The Gudur Joint Magistrate, Mr. R. Galletti, i.c.s. has been creating a lot of amusement, if not excitement, by his remarks about satyagrahi sentences also are to a fine of four annas to two annas and how the Madras Government have been permitting Quixote to function as a pirate. It may be the enjoy and provide fun.

A Madras Daily in many months watching under Ramesh column "There is much to be learned from Ministers chosen by the Maharaja in the Legislature. But premature to think of etc." That enterprising person has "taken" people. He may names but people are understand I have names in my pocket for me to narrate the wonderful stories that been hearing of Ministers. It is slant to all that. But I cannot one funny story. I am about half a dozen have already booked for fine motor cars. I none would take these seriously. For, after destiny is in the hands. Many a time there is a slip between the cup and

There is a lot of amusement among people with how a plague-stricken man managed to die within precincts of Lal-bagh now all of us have to be mourning. The natural show was given up entertainment was assumed and for a number of days into Lal-bagh is forbidden penalty is too severe.

I conclude today's note a news item that I read morning paper about Mr. Sub Chandra Bose, who is found. Here it is.

While there is no reliable news Mr. Bose's whereabouts, rumours are cropping up. Some rumours gained some currency. (Hoogly) that Mr. Bose is performing a "Homa" on the banks of the Tribeni in the part of the district. Enquiries relatives showed that it was not Bose, but a Sankar who looked Mr. Bose from a distance.

Mr. Bose's friends and relatives to have received from the Government and have renewed their enquiries satisfied with the information given in the newspapers, a large number of people are visiting Mr. Bose and having a look round his tiger skin, hall burned down, silk cloth which is supposed to have been left behind by Mr. Bose become objects of attraction.

ITALIAN RADIO ON FALL OF TOBRUK

Help Expected From Germany
(By Cable) London

The Italian radio on the 24th pretended to take the loss of Tobruk lightly and commented that its fall was foreseen after the loss of Bardia.

There was a significant emphasis on the support which the Italians expect from Germany. Declaring grandly that Italy would make no peace "without first wiping the British Empire off the map" the Rome radio declared: "Germany does not intend to play the traitor to Italy."

Italy. The German people honest, loyal, magnanimous, understanding Germany gained a warm place in the hearts of the Italians even a few disreputable Italian crats, whose chief occupation to play golf."

MR. SPENDER INTERVIEWED

From our special correspondent (Camp)

Singapore, Dec. 1940. Australia is primarily a Pacific nation and is therefore interested in keeping the Pacific free from any disturbance, but while Australians are confident that they can be maintained in this policy, they are not unmindful of the fact that the Australian Government policy realises that in these times it is essential for a nation to be strongly armed," declared Mr. Percy Spender, Australian Minister for the Army, who made a short visit to Singapore, and on his return journey to Australia yesterday Mr. Spender was interviewed by the press on the subject of his despatch. Continuing, he said, "Australia considers Singapore a vital link in the Pacific chain, and my visit can be taken as an indication of the importance with which this area is regarded in the Commonwealth."

An army of 200,000 men has already been raised, pursued Mr. Spender, "while 130,000 men have been enlisted for service overseas in the A.F.E. Many of these are already serving either in the Middle East or Great Britain. The Empire Air Scheme, which is additional to Australia's air strength, has already raised over 30,000 while the Navy has taken an active part in operations in various theatres of war. By June 1941, over 150,000 men will be employed in munition production alone."

Referring to the relations between Australia and the United States, Mr. Spender said that the United States sympathies for the cause of the Democracies had placed these two Pacific nations much closer together, for they had common interests and common aims. The appointment of an Australian Minister to Washington was an indication of the closeness of Australian-American relations. These two nations had a common interest in keeping the Pacific ocean free of its name and in maintaining good relations with all Pacific countries. "The Dutch in the East Indies are very close to us," said Mr. Spender continuing, "and the very friendly relations which exist between our two countries are deeply appreciated. The appointment of Sir John Latham as Australian Minister to Tokyo is an example of our endeavour to remain good neighbours to Japan."

"There can never be any misapprehension as to where Australia stands. It is with the Empire all the time. We claim and we are as an equal partner, the right to employ a part in the formula of Empire policy on matters in which we have a vital interest, and there can, on Empire matters, be only one policy."

Whatever the future may hold, Australians realise that Australia's Empire her destiny is inextricably bound up with it. We know that the road which lies ahead will lead up to victory and that we are prepared to follow it. The British people know that they may be in the front line in the one boat, and in the end they will remain until

BANGALORE C. & M. STATION MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Resignation Letter of Congress Members

Bangalore, Feb. 1. Congress members of the Bangalore Cantonment Municipal Commission numbering seven tendered their resignation to the Hon'ble the Resident in Mysore through the President of the Municipal Commission last evening.

The resignations are sequel to the adoption by the Municipal Commission at its meeting on 30th January last of a proposition donating a sum of Rs. 1,000 to Air Raid Distress Relief Fund.

The letters of resignation are understood to state that the Commission was following a policy contrary to that of the Indian National Congress as evidenced by the contribution of Rs. 1,000 at its meeting on 30th January last to Air Raid Distress Relief Fund. The contribution was all votes of the provisions of the Bangalore Cantonment Municipal law.

It is believed that the Congress will contest bye-elections if announced by authorities to fill up vacancies caused by the resignation of Congress members now.

It might be stated that the Cantonment Municipal Party is perhaps the first in India to practically carry out the suggestion contained in the circular issued by A.I.C.C. asking Congress members of local bodies to resign their seats if the bodies acted contrary to the policy of the Indian National Congress.

opened yesterday at Singapore by the President of the Municipal Commission, Mr. L. Rayman. In the course of his speech Mr. Rayman pointed out that the aim of the Passive Defence Service was to help the population of Singapore to protect themselves. He wished the Club success not only during the period of war, but also many years thereafter.

Aliens in Malaya

It is understood that all aliens in Malaya will be called upon to re-register from Jan. 1, 1941) when the Central Registry of aliens which is said to aim at tightening the control of foreigners will begin operating with the Inspector General of Police as its head.

The most important features of the new system of registration is that aliens will have to give the most complete personal details of themselves, while foreigners in transit (those who stay in the country for any period within 14 days) must disclose reason for their visit and their proposed itinerary before they will be allowed to land.

The General Registry functions under the new Registration of Aliens Bill which came law early this month.

Foreigners passing through the country have not before been required to give particulars about themselves and their reason for coming to Malaya.

A DREAM-MYSORE

Electricity and Democracy

(T. L. A. Acharya)

I project a dream-Mysore. It is a dream and yet not a dream. It is certainly, not a day dream of a dream, born of somnolence caused by an overloaded stomach. It definitely is the dream-child of straight thinking. I am not, I tell you, indulging in a gratuitous piece of rhetoric.

Let me tell you what I mean. Mysore is the home of electricity. Mysore possesses incomparable electrical strength. Mysore has electrical energy in inexhaustible abundance—tapped, tapable and inviting to be tapped. What does that mean?

"Where does Democracy come in? You may ask. It is this way. If you believe in electricity, if you make up your mind to bank upon electricity for redemption, you land your self, for good and all, in a belief in democracy. It may be a novel angle of thought for many, it does involve a little brain-sweat, but if you believe in electricity you dare not avoid or resist that conclusion, that is, if you are given to honest and pragmatic thinking. If Sir Mirza Ismail dreams of electrifying Mysore, as I have reason to believe he does, he must be at the same time dreaming of a democratic, hungerless, diseaseless, poverty-less and free Mysore. Electricity is the sworn enemy of conservatism. Given a sporting chance, electricity will bring about—if I may borrow a scientific term—a catalysis of autocracy. For, autocracy, of any shade or description, will find it hard to live in the same room with electricity.

Ask any scientist who has thought about the social functions of science and he will tell you what electricity can, and ought to be allowed, to do. Electricity is the most potent of liberating and liberalising forces that the human mind has devised. It is an instrument of real freedom, freedom from the terrible thrall of human drudgery. Sit down in quiet place and remove all the cobwebs from your mind and start thinking about what electricity has in it for man. Somebody has said, beautifully, that there is no safety-clutch on the thinking faculty, no lightning conductor on the house of thought. If you are impeccably honest with yourself and do not let prejudice run away with your mind, you will find your thought process conjuring up a great vision where electricity will resolve all difficulties and scale all impedimenta. If you follow the lead of electricity, you will see economic freedom and economic happiness just round the corner. And it is just a tiny little step, an easy walk-over, from economic freedom to political freedom, to democracy with a deserving capital D.

Towards this consummation, towards achieving our Dream-Mysore, happy, contented and free, we must have electricity in "widest commonality spread."

BRITAIN'S "MISTAKE" IN CAPTURING GENERALS

(The Cattle)

London. Mr. William Randolph Hearst, the American newspaper proprietor, commenting on the British capture of Italian generals wrote in the New York American of January 24. It was a great mistake to take these generals out of the war, for they were not badly equipped in modern batteries and armoured divisions.

If the capture of these generals kept up Mr. Hearst's idea of a younger Italian army, it is to be commended and certainly doing something with the Italian forces.

Give a thought to the history of electricity, for a moment. Consider, what power has been harnessed, gas interests and other interests have sought the coming tale of electricity. Today, the battle is on, between electricity as allowed to be the logical leader of its progress to human good, and the machine, which will be the servant of man, to human freedom. Fortunately, for us, in Mysore, there are no such vested interests and the path of Electricity is not riddled with hurdles.

My point is this. Mysore, in its resources to bring about an economic and social revolution within a stipulated period of time, say, ten years. We can demonstrate to the whole world that, without bloodshed and without a new type of social machinery, or a Communist bureaucracy, we can usher in a new era of economic and social justice and wipe out poverty and Marxian terminology is not only liquidate hunger. Mysore can do it and do it gloriously, provided her people acquire a will to share and a will to work. Mysore, I say, can and must do it and give the world an object lesson. What is more, I say, to achieve this dream, this New Mysore, you do not need a revolution. The present administration need not resign to harness Electricity to the good of Mysoreans. What it demands is faith, faith in Science, faith in social advance, faith in the integrity of the people, faith in Democracy, a slight political and administrative readjustment, a slight liberalisation of Secretarial despotism and a real eagerness to serve the masses, the miracle will happen. What is needed is not an ever-present exhibition of omnipotent power but a wide and still wider distribution of Electric power.

I submit Sir Mirza has done the trick. Then as Electricity every where. But he must follow it up, pursue it and give Electricity a chance. We have Electricity everywhere. It has invaded small towns, it is going into the village. I do not grudge Bundab, I know Channarayana has stolen the leadance of the South Sky. Very good. But I want more. I have heard a said that Electricity can fertilise barren soil. I want Electricity for production in factories and in the cottages, in Hospitals, in Schools. I want it everywhere. I want Electricity to eradicate social injustice. If we will only let Electricity help us. We can even have a taxless Mysore.

I want Mysore to come into its own. I am all agog with excitement when I think of our Electric riches. I am out to tell all in Mysore, all those who will listen to me, that Electricity means Democracy. You are not a Democrat if you do not believe in Electricity.

A NEW FACE ON THE SCREEN

(Contributed)

It is not often that the Indian Screen offers an altogether new face in an important role. Mostly the roles of heroines and heroes go to veteran artists who have worked their way up from the bottom of the ladder. There are advantages as well as disadvantages in this. A leading role is the reward of work well done. But by the time an artist comes to a position where he or she is featured, staleness has already set in.

On the other hand if a new artist is given an important role for the first time, no one is certain whether the speculation will be a success. No such doubt however attaches to Nalini Jaywant, the young artist discovered by Director Virendra Desai, who will appear on the screen for the first time in her life in National's next release, "Radhika". She is a young lady of only 15 years of age who was up to a few months ago, attending her school and not a Film Studio. Director Virendra Desai happened to come across her at an amateur theatrical performance and was struck with her remarkable beauty and obvious talent.

Since then when he made further enquiries, was pleased to discover that she was very good at dancing and singing.

Radhika is now complete and is in the editing room and it is expected to be released in Bombay immediately after Puj.

The proceedings commenced with invocation by the "Jaya Scouts".

Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswamy, Honorary Secretary of the Red Cross Society, presented the annual report narrating the good work done during the last year. He eulogised the services of the president of the function for Red Cross Society, and also thanked many doctors and others who had rendered valuable assistance and cooperation during the baby week. He pointed out that in total 1308 babies participated in the shows held at different centres.

Mr. Anantharaman's Speech

The following is the full text of Mr. K. V. Anantharaman's speech:—

I am very grateful to you for the cordial welcome that you have extended to me and to the members of the Red Cross Society, for the very generous terms in which they have referred to me, and to the small services that I have been able to render to them. The Honorary Secretary in his report has referred to the various considerations which make it apt that I should preside on this occasion. Those considerations relate to the official association that I have with certain activities directly and indirectly connected with Red Cross Work. But the consideration which prompted me the most to accept the kind invitation to preside over today's meeting was the one of personal pleasure in associating myself with the valuable work which is being done energetically and efficiently by the local branch of the Red Cross Society for the amelioration of the population of the City. The Secretary has referred to the apparent conflict between the two kinds of activities which the Red Cross Society promotes, viz., the activities for the alleviation of the sufferings of those who are fighting in the war and those relating to the maternity and child welfare work which are a special field of effort in times of peace. Behind this seeming diversity, there is a fundamental singleness of purpose. The Red Cross in both cases seeks to mitigate suffering. The cause of suffering in the case of war is the enemy. In the other the enemy is disease or ignorance. Both the activities have to be carried on at the present time and I am glad that the need for this double effort has not made you diminish the intensity of your activities. The report which the Honorary Secretary has just now read to use of the celebration of the Child Welfare and Baby Week is a most interesting one. The celebrations have been carried out in a very well organized manner, the opportunity having been afforded to every part of the city to participate in them. There are some who are sceptical of the good that these celebrations do. I am personally inclined to think that the type of mentality that takes this view will consider any effort of any kind of doubtful value. Celebrations such as this, carried out in an organized and systematic manner not only lead to the spread of sound and valuable knowledge to the people of the City but also focus attention on our deficiencies and difficulties and thus make it possible to fight by concentrated effort the factors that stand in the way of the improvement of the conditions of the people.

Maternity And Child Welfare Work

Maternity and child welfare work in the Mysore City Branch of the Indian Red Cross Society has elicited both approbation and recognition in the State as well as outside. The Mysore branch of the Red Cross Society has every reason to be proud of the magnificent work that they have so far achieved and of the great lead that they have given in the matter to the rest of the State. I heartily congratulate the President and members of the Society on the great success which they have achieved.

Awakening Among The People

I should not like to close my remarks without referring to certain matters which have been mentioned in the Secretary's report. I am very greatly interested in your vision of the arrangements for further developing maternity and child welfare work in the City. Medical Science and knowledge about public health have now developed to such a great extent that conditions and diseases which were beyond our control formerly can now be tackled satisfactorily. But if that is to be done we have got to set about in an organized and systematic manner. There is a rapidly growing awakening among the people on the subject. Twenty years ago, it was difficult to persuade people to come in and use our hospitals. To-day it has become difficult for us to provide accommodation for those who flock into our hospitals. This change is due, not, as some cynics might say, to the increase of diseases but to the realization by the people that diseases can be cured and that every one should attempt and in fact has a right to live a full and healthy life. With this awakening on the part of the people, it is necessary for all those who are interested in the work to make satisfactory arrangements so that the ignorance among the people on the subject of public health may be removed and facilities may be created to tackle the problems which arise in the different parts of the City.

Nursery Schools

I am equally interested in what has been said regarding the multiplication of nursery schools and the manner in which such schools should be run. More knowledge as such is not of much value. It is valuable to the extent it affects and influences human conduct. A man who acquires a lot of knowledge and who does not know how to love and properly, cannot be considered at all to be a truly educated person. A man who has stored up a lot of knowledge which he has not assimilated is often a bore and frequently a nuisance to his fellowmen. The problem of proper education in general is the most important of our problems. To educate the growing child in the right ways of life and conduct, and in the right attitude to society is far more important than the absorption of innumerable scraps of learning. I do hope that in this important field, the experiments you are contemplating will be crowned with success.

Collect Funds

"I should like to make an appeal to you. Public interest in Maternity Child Welfare and other work done by the Red Cross has become well established. The visible proof of this is the distinguished gathering of ladies and gentlemen at this morning's function. In order that the work may be systematic and efficient throughout the year, it is imperative that all who are interested in the work should enlist themselves as members of the Red Cross Society. They should meet often, exchange ideas and experiences and advise office bearers to carry on and develop the work. They should also take steps to collect the necessary funds. There is a lot of generosity forthcoming, but it has only to be mobilised."

Mr. Anantharaman distributed ambulance certificates to those who had received training and prizes to a number of babies that were successful at the contest.

Brij Mohan Kumar, the five months old child of Mr. S. V. and Mrs. Meenakshamma Parasuram, living in Chamarajapuram, Mysore, secured the championship prize.

Prizes were also given to some of the scavengers of the Municipality who have kept their houses clean.

Rev. Sawday proposed a vote of thanks and the function concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

ALL INDIA NEWSPAPERS CONFERENCE

Standing Committee's Resolution

New Delhi, Feb. 1

The Standing Committee of the All India Newspapers Editors Conference met this afternoon under the presidency of Mr. K. Srinivasan, Editor of the Hindustan Times, and passed a number of resolutions.

A resolution moved by Mr. S. A. Brelvi and seconded by Mr. A. S. Iyengar said "that in order to ensure satisfactory working of the Delhi Agreement this Committee is of the opinion that (a) it is desirable for the Chief Press Adviser as far as practicable to consult the Central Press Advisory Committee in matters in which he is inclined to advise non-publication and (b) report to the Central Advisory Committee at its next meeting all those cases whereon he deemed it necessary to advise non-publication."

Another resolution moved by Mr. Tushar Kanti Ghosh and seconded by Mr. Arthur Mooran: "this committee having considered the correspondence between the Provincial Press Advisor to the Government of Bengal and convener of the Bengal Provincial Press Advisory Committee regarding the publication of a report concerning the camp most strongly deprecates different interpretations of Defence of India rules by official provincial interpreters as placing Editors in an impossible position. If as the Bengal Press Advisor states he is passing for publication a message by the Press Advisory Committee it does not constitute 'release' permit, the normal working of newspaper offices will be rendered more difficult."

Another resolution moved by Mr. Brelvi stated that the U. P. Government had not taken any action with regard to Sainik newspapers, Agra, as suggested in the resolutions of newspapers Editors Conference in Delhi in November and of the U. P. Provincial Advisory Committee. The Committee noted with regret the demand of security from the National Herald and requested the U. P. Government to withdraw the orders now in force against Sainik newspapers and the National Herald.

"The Standing Committee is glad to note that the authorities appreciate the importance of Mahatma Gandhi's position in public life in this country and the interest which attaches to his utterance and statements. It therefore requests the Government ordinarily not to ban publication of statements issued by Mahatma Gandhi and in cases where they are inclined to take such a step they should consult the Central Press Advisory Committee before passing any orders thereon."

PUBLICATION OF SATYAGRAHA NEWS

SUBJECT DISCUSSED IN DELHI EDITORS' MEETING

Helpful Attitude of Chief Press Advisor

(By wire) New Delhi Feb. 3.

A fair amount of success has so far attended the efforts of the Standing Committee of the Editors now in session. The fact that both sections of the Press—European-owned and Indian owned—have so far worked in co-operation has made the task of the committee lighter than was anticipated. One solid achievement gained is to impress on the authorities the importance which public attaches to Gandhiji's statements. There is every reason to think Government will adopt the suggestion of the Committee that the Central Committee should be consulted in cases where the press advisor is disposed to advise non-publication. Though the resolution has been worked in general terms the feeling among Editors here appears to be that having understood the feeling in the country the authorities hereafter will not interfere with Gandhiji's statements. The bigger question which has been under discussion relates to publication of satyagraha news. It is not likely any detailed resolution will be passed on the subject but as the chief Advisor was present during discussion he is well aware of the feeling among Editors. The opinion generally is that there is no justification for imposing any further restriction may have adverse effect on the smooth working of the agreement. The suggestion is to authorities is that the agreement give full scope to the Press in issuing fresh or continuing restrictions regarding publication of satyagraha. It is likely Government will accept this view. The real problem facing the committee is the lack of co-ordination between the centre and certain provinces in the working of press advising. It is only the Viceroy through the help of Governors that can bring about this co-operation and co-ordination. From this point of view, the interview which the President had with the Viceroy previous to the meeting has special significance. No need is felt for a separate deputation to the Viceroy for the President can communicate by letter what he wants to say to the Viceroy. The helpful attitude of the chief Press Advisor Mr. Desmond Young is being mentioned in the talks. Today Mr. K. Srinivasan meets the Commander in Chief and the officials of the Home department before meeting the committee this evening.

EASTERN GROUP SUPPLY COUNCIL

Representation to States
A.P. New Delhi, Feb 4
Claim for representation of Indian States is understood to be among the points awaiting settlement with regard to the formation of the proposed Eastern Group Supply Council which is expected to be in working order as soon as possible after Sir Archibald Carter, president, arrives in India.

It might be recalled that when the Eastern Group conference was proposed it was urged on behalf of the Princes their Order should find representation. Subsequently they were given two seats. Proposal now made for representation on Supply Council is believed to be under consideration of the Crown Representative. It is however suggested that while formal permanent representation will not be possible or desirable in view of the need to make the Council a small compact body, arrangement may be agreed upon whereby whenever matter likely to affect Indian States come up before it for discussion, the States representative would have an opportunity to be heard. This it is pointed out would be analogous to the position accorded to Ceylon and possibly to some other Empire Units.

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

By-Election Question

CONSTITUTIONAL POSITION

(From our correspondent)

NEW DELHI, Jan. 30

The first act of the Viceroy after his return from tour has been a good deal of comment in the country. The notification in the Gazette ordered the Governor General to declare vacant the seats of those members of the Central Assembly who have been sentenced to imprisonment for more than one year sounded a little unusual—particularly because the public was awaiting the result of the Viceroy in a spirit of curiosity that some new approach for a political settlement might be initiated by His Excellency. As misleading accounts have appeared in certain papers, let me make the position clear by stating the rules under which the Viceroy acted. The Electoral rules (sub rule 2 of rule 5) of the Central Assembly lay down that a person against whom a conviction by a criminal court involving a sentence of transportation or imprisonment for a period of more than one year is pending shall not be eligible for election for five years from the date of the expiry of the sentence. This has to be read in conjunction with a subsequent rule which says that "if any person has been elected or nominated subsequently becomes subject to any of the disabilities stated in clauses a, c, d, f and g of sub-rule 1) or in subrule 2, 3 and 4 of rule 5 or of rule 22 as the case may be or fails to take the oath of affirmation prescribed in rule 24 within such time as the Governor General considers suitable the Governor General may if he disqualifies him be removed under rule 24 notification in Gazette, vacate his seat to be vacant."

Constitutional Position

The cumulative effect of those provisions is to make it obligatory on the Governor General to declare the seats vacant. In reply to a charge that there has been undue haste in declaring these seats vacant, official explanation is that as soon as official intimation of the sentence and convictions are received by the Governor General he is in duty bound to take immediate action under the rules and declare the seats vacant so that bye-elections may be held without unnecessary delay. There is no reason to suppose that the constitutional position of the Congress party is in any way affected by these rules. It seems to be that the Congress party though it has no intention of leaving these bye-elections uncontested, has for some time now ceased to take much interest in the Legislative forum. Its activities have taken a new direction, it is quite prepared to entrust its work in the Legislature to other parties and individuals who choose to take interest. So far as the Government of India Act, 1935 is concerned, the rules are different. According to section 69 (1) e, if a member shall be disqualified for being a member of a Provincial Legislative Assembly or Legislative Council, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, the seat of that member shall be vacant.

INDIAN TROOPS IN ITALIAN EAST AFRICA

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 4.

Indian troops—mechanised cavalry and infantry and engineers are in the van of present operations in Italian East Africa, says a press note. The latest despatches report exceptionally fine work by sappers and miners in gorge near Keru. Retreating Italian forces had cut deep craters in the road through gorges and strewn it with land mines and other obstacles until it completely blocked. Indian troops are finding themselves much at home in the country where they are now fighting which often resembles North-West Frontier.

victed of an offence by a court in British India or of a State which is a Federated State and sentenced to transportation or to imprisonment for not less than two years unless a period of five years or such less period as the Governor acting in his discretion may allow in any particular case has elapsed since his release. Under this rule the seat of any Congress member sentenced to more than two years in any of the Provinces in which the constitution is working like the Punjab, Bengal or Sind will have to be declared vacant. The position is not the same in the other Provinces where the Constitution is now under suspension, for all those sections of the Government of India act governing the constitution and working of the Provincial Legislatures have been suspended. There is no practical necessity for declaring seats vacant or holding bye-elections.

Wrong Assumption

It is therefore wrong to assume that this action of the Viceroy carries with it some political significance. In the course of comments two different assumptions have been put forward. One is that the Government are anxious to test the strength of the Congress in the coming bye elections. Another is the inference that the Government do not expect to have any political settlement and have therefore decided on this step. Both appear to be wide of the mark. Nobody is in a position to foresee how exactly the political situation will develop in the coming weeks, but so far as the notification declaring the seats of convicted Congress members vacant is concerned, official circles state definitely that it has no bearing whatever on the political situation. All talk of testing the strength of the Congress is now out of place, for the Government with their numerous agencies are not without adequate information on the course of political feeling in the country and do not require this test at the moment. It was only yesterday that the Viceroy was able to hold a meeting of his Executive Council. Apart from urgent administrative questions calling for immediate decision, such as the future of the Simla exodus, it is believed that general political questions including the demands of the Indian Press on the subject of existing restrictions were discussed. A good deal of interest is to be noticed in New Delhi in the coming meeting of Editors. Though the problem before them is a difficult and complicated one—largely because of the anomalies inherent in the present political situation—hopes are not wanting that a formula may be found to satisfy the Press in its desire for all reasonable liberty in the matters of publishing news and views.

In the opinion of the Committee the temporary disappearance of the weekly has left void a in Indian journalism."

SIGNIFICANCE OF RUMANIAN REVOLT

Germany's Alleged Hold on Country

(By Cable) London

The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian writes:—

There is still no clarity about the situation in Rumania where unrest and bloodshed has been very real, except that General Antonescu, the Premier, has broken the Iron Guard revolt. How it came about that Horia Sima, the Iron Guard leader, broke away from General Antonescu, who is Germany's man now that the Iron Guard has done work of internal disruption and Rumania has passed under Reich control, is still a matter about which no definite news is available.

It is not easy to see how Germany has profited, and at the same time it is difficult to see how the revolt could have taken place if Germany really had the firm grip she was supposed to have had.

It seems most probable that faction fights have been fought out in the Iron Guard and that Germany, sitting securely on Rumania's economic assets, thought she could stand by, but in so doing let the situation get out of hand. The German "new order" in the Balkans has suffered in its prestige, to say the least.

But internal disorder in Rumania has not checked the steady increase in German troop concentrations in that unhappy country where the Reich can dominate and also threaten other Balkan States, even if she cannot keep the peace she so loudly proclaims.

The new party formed in Paris of pro-Nazi Frenchmen and known as "National Popular Party" has for its programme full Nazi domestic and social programme while its foreign programme includes exploitation of Africa by European and Franco-German cooperation.

IRON AND STEEL

Export Restricted in Burma

A. P. Rangoon, Feb. 3

Owing to a heavy increase in the demands for iron and steel in those countries in which they are produced in order consequently to conserve the existing stocks for use within Burma, licences for export will only be granted in very exceptional circumstances, says a press communique.

The communique adds "It will be remembered that India is a producer of iron and steel while Burma is not, and although export to India is not at present prohibited, it is not in the interests of Burma that stocks held in the country should be depleted by exports to India. Traders therefore are advised to restrict sales to India to quantities of which they normally exported to India prior to war."

CLOSETOP AMILDAR'S ORDER

Congress President Criticises

Bangalore, Jan. 4

Shri K. T. Bhaskar, President, Mysore Congress, has issued the following statement to the Press:

I desire to bring to the notice of the public the conduct of the Amildar of Closetop Taluk, which I consider to be grossly unjust.

Shri T. Madiah Gowda, B. A. B. L. Advocate, is a Congress Candidate for the Legislative Council from Bangalore District. Amildars of almost all the Taluks in Bangalore District have issued prohibitory orders preventing meetings except under a license obtained in some taluks. License to hold election meetings by Congressmen was totally denied. But on the application of Shri Madiah Gowda for license to hold a meeting, the Amildar of closetop has issued the following order:

The order has already been published in our issue.

It would be almost unnecessary to comment on the grave injustice of the above order. Why should not the meeting be held in the evening? Why should not a loud-speaker be used? Why should not the speech be anti Government in the sense that it criticises the policies and programmes of Government? Why should not the administration be criticised? Why should not ideas be expressed merely because some set of people get determined to feel offended at them? Are ideas to be suppressed to suit the fancies of different sets of people? The catch in it is only too obvious to need emphasis. Why should the candidate abide by every direction of the Police, irrespective of such direction being lawful or otherwise? The last condition regarding security to be furnished is really scandalous.

A practising Advocate of the High Court and candidates for the Legislative Council is called upon to submit to these humiliating conditions before he can address his constituency as part of his election propaganda.

I invite the attention of the Government of Mysore to the conduct of this Amildar, prevent such gross injustice and abuse of power being perpetrated on the people.

A GUNDULUPET COMPLAINT

A Correspondent wires from Gundulpet that the Government officials are interfering in the elections and canvassing votes for independent candidates. A telegram has been sent to Huzar Sahib, the District Officer, to the Maharaja and the Chief Secretary in this connection.

BANGALORE BANK AFFAIRS

Examination of Ex-Chairman

Bangalore, Feb. 4

Mr. P. G. D'Souza, Ex-Chairman, was examined today before Mr. P. Medappa, District Judge, Bangalore C. and M. Station, in connection with the public inquiry into affairs of the Bangalore Bank (now in liquidation).

Mr. D'Souza said that he did his best to ensure that the agreement between Mr. N. S. T. Chari, Managing Agent of the Mysore Tannery, and the Bangalore Bank was strictly enforced. Mr. Chari's time there was in increase in the Tannery staff but the cost of production was slightly reduced. Till the end of February 1937, Mr. N. S. T. Chari had not overdrawn greatly from the Bangalore Bank.

Question: What sort of inspection did you conduct with the Tannery management?

Answer: I was not expected to inspect every account. We had accountants and auditors.

Continuing, witness said that Mr. N. S. T. Chari drew Rs. 600 per mensem, but he was entitled to more if there were profits. Mr. Chari left the Tannery in July 1937.

Regarding the preparation of the balance sheet of the Bangalore Bank for the year ending 30-6-1937, there was discussion between the witness and auditors with special reference to the valuation of the assets by the Tannery inclusive of unsold stock. The profit of Rs. 23,000 shown in the balance sheet of the Bank as the profits carried by the Tannery during the year ending 30-6-1937 were anticipated profits and not realised profits.

Question: According to para 7 of the agreement, only net sale proceeds should be taken into account. How were you justified in taking anticipated profits as basis for calculating profits?

Answer: There is nothing unusual in that. Answering further questions, Mr. D'Souza said that Mr. Haldwell, who had been agent of the Bank, after leaving the Bank, brought a suit against the Bank for provident fund. That suit was compromised and his full claim paid. It was done so in the interest of the Bank.

Replying Mr. K. Nanjundya (who appeared for shareholder Mr. K. Srikantayya), Mr. D'Souza said that the Mysore Government had made an offer of Rs. 1,20,000 for the Tannery in October 1937 but the offer came down to Rs. 1 lakh in 1938. The witness as Chairman of the Bank had stated in his speech at the shareholders meeting in February 1937 that Mr. N. S. T. Chari had offered then Rs. 2,18,165 for the Tannery.

Question: Was not that statement made only to hoodwink the shareholders?

This enables the Institute to provide for Industrial Research Rs. 46,000 which is in addition to the sum of Rs. 22,000 which is expected from the Government of India.

THE BINNY MILLS STRIKE

BANGALORE, Feb. 4.
The Strike is continuing. The labourers have been collecting funds in kind and coin for the relief of Strikers.

Kaisari Hind Mill Strike is also continuing.

KURCHI JATRA

BANGALORE, Feb. 4.
Apprehending infection of cholera and plague, the authorities have prohibited pilgrims from entering Kurchi village in Srirangalahalli South Coorg, on February 25 in connection with the jatra.

Answer: I do not think so.

Answering Mr. E. A. B. one of the shareholders, Mr. D'Souza said that he (D'Souza) had taken a loan which the rate of interest was "wrongly put at 12 per cent but it was changed to 9 per cent when he became chairman of the Bank. The director's salary was Rs. 10 but witness had taken excess of it because he had to go to the Bank every day owing to the Tannery work, it was not against the Articles of the Association.

Then the witness was reminded by Mr. E. A. B. When witness came to the Bank, Mr. N. S. T. Chari had drawn for the Tannery. Chari was asked to refund overdrawn amount and notices were issued. When D'Souza became chairman of the Bank he found the position of the Bank a difficult one, but large amounts had been advanced. He took steps to liquidate those amounts and to cover those amounts and to liquidate the position of the Bank. Even a meeting of directors was called for in June 1937. The position of the Bank improved little and, as long as witness was the chairman, the Bank had been able to pay deposits in respect of stabilising the position of the Bank, the Mysore Government offered to advance loans and other Banks offered to advance loans. But the directors did not want to destroy the liquidity of the Bank and the Bank would get on with outside assistance.

Mr. K. Bhaskar, who appeared for Madras Bar appeared for the Liquidator and Mr. E. A. B. witness.

IS GANDHIJI'S ARREST IMMINENT?

NO GROUNDS FOR REPORTS CIRCULATED

No Change in Political Situation

EDITORS' STANDING COMMITTEE

(From our correspondent)

(By wire) New Delhi, Feb. 5.

It is understood that Government will carefully watch the reactions of the Indian Press to the resolutions. Various suggestions have been put forward by the Standing Committee and it is expected the result will be made known at the next meeting of the Central Committee. There is no little doubt that Govt. will accept the working arrangement proposed by the Committee and will give it a full trial. The declaration made by the committee that the Indian Press is wholly opposed to totalitarian doctrines of fascism and nazis and has no intention of hindering Britain's war effort against her enemies has been particularly welcomed in official circles. It is emphasized in official circles that there is no intention whatever to interfere with the legitimate publicity of news about the political movement in the country so long as it does not impede war effort which is at the moment the main consideration. The Viceroy's personal interest in keeping cordial relations between Govt. and the Press which he showed in inviting Mr. K. Srinivasan, President of the Committee to an interview leads to a hope that he will personally pursue the matter with the Governors of the provinces and bring about a co-ordination of policy throughout the country. Some Governors are shortly to visit New Delhi in order to meet the Viceroy—one was here last week—this will provide an opportunity for personal discussion.

Political Situation

No change in the political situation is however anticipated in the near future. Though there appears to be no ground for the reports circulated recently that Gandhiji's arrest is imminent the official attitude remains the same as before, to wait and see what the political parties propose to do to get together to resolve differences. The Assembly however an opportunity will be available for general discussion as Sir A. P. Maitland's motion for a Round Table Conference will come up on the twentieth inst. As the Muslim League's executive is also due to meet sometime then certain well-known leaders who have been interesting themselves in the question of the political settlement are also expected to be in New Delhi at the time, interesting developments are anticipated but few immediate change in the political situation.

Indo-Burma Trade Negotiations

OPENING OF CONFERENCE

Sir A. R. Mudaliyar's Welcome

New Delhi, Feb. 5
Cordial goodwill and determination to reach early agreement was expressed by Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar and U. Saw leaders of Indian and Burma delegations respectively at the opening of the Indo-Burma Trade negotiations to day. The Meeting adjourned. Some Indian nonofficial advisers left Delhi and will be summoned when required.

Welcoming the Burma Delegation Sir A. R. Ramaswami Mudaliar said that their relationship on the commercial side had been for several decades one of free trade between both the countries. Some years ago when Burma was separated from the larger India which then existed certain arrangements were entered into which preserved the then existing trade relationship. They were now there to see how far this trade relationship could be readjusted to meet the new conditions that had arisen in Burma. Sir Mudaliar expressed the hope that whether the course of negotiations be smooth or rugged, the essential spirit of friendship and goodwill which existed between the two countries would be a potent factor making them understand each other's point of view and hence the negotiations might conclude they should be as good friends then as they now were and always had been.

"Proposals of the Government of Burma relating to the terms of the new trade agreement have been framed with full consciousness of the previous history of the two countries. The long and harmonious trade relationship between them and the fact that India is Burma's best customer and also a country from which Burma obtains the bulk of goods her population consumes year by year" observed U. Saw, Premier of Burma and leader of the Burma Trade negotiations today.

"My colleagues," he added, "come to the Conference invested with full powers by the Government of Burma to accept suitable terms and enter into new trade agreement with the Government of India with effect from 1st April 1941. With the undoubted goodwill existing on both sides, I earnestly trust the results of the labours of the two delegations will be a new agreement to mutual advantage."

SIR P.C. ROY FUND

Gandhiji's Sympathy

Thought For The Day

He that endeavoureth to withdraw himself from obedience, withdraweth himself from grace

Daily News

Bangalore City—February 6, 1941

What is Culture?

Sr. Girija Shankar Bappa, a broadcast address from Deen on the night of January 31, gave a very fine definition of Culture. Many before him have defined it. It baffles definition. Culture is a progressive thing. What is ignorance to a flower, Culture is to a man. Culture is not mere knowledge. It is not cleverness. It is not even wisdom. It is all this and something more. According to Sr. Bappa, Culture is the training of human spirit. To say that it is wisdom, is to take away from the innate worth of a man. We may say a man of Culture is the best creation of God. As W. B. Mallock puts it, Culture is not a substitute for life, but the key to it. A cultured life is a full life, like the life of a blossomed flower. There is beauty, there is perfection, there is fullness of content and fullness of spirit. Culture radiates joy, radiates calmness and radiates sense of fullness.

In a highly thoughtful address Sr. Bappa, said Culture is not spread by the sword, nor have any element of arrogance in it. It recognises the infinite possibilities for good of the human spirit and the evil of suppressing any of them.

In these days when the world is steered in barbarity and cruelty of war-mongers, the voice of Culture is smothered in the explosive noise of the cannon. But the day is not far off when the war smoke would vanish and the sun of Culture would shed its rays brilliantly on the face of the earth.

We are very happy to conclude this article with the definition of Culture given by Sr. G. S. Bappa.

"To sum up, Culture is no other than the flowering of man's spirit, nourished by experience, coloured by sympathy, quickened by intelligence, neither about, nor austere, nor otherworldly, but gracious and kindly and deeply human, not content, but attractive, lighting its radiance, brightness and warmth, compassion, self-tolerance in ease or in company, self-composure in difficulty, and a source of solace in sorrow, strength in danger, endurance in privation, comfort in adversity."

This picture is no other than the ideal of the perfect man depicted in a Bhagavadgita.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

The Publishing Officer, Mysore Congress issues under date 2nd Feb. 1941 the following instructions to candidates and voters.

The attention of the candidates and voters is hereby drawn to the following Rules which are very important.

1. Repetition voting. As per Rule 16 of the Assembly Rules and Rule 17 of the Council Rules no person shall vote at a General Election in more than one territorial Constituency or more than once in the same Constituency and if a person votes in contravention of this Rule all his votes shall be void.

Further according to Vth Schedule, if a person applies for a voting paper in his own name when by reason of the fact has already voted in the same or some other Constituency he is not entitled to vote, such an act would amount to corrupt practice.

NOTE:—The effect of these Rules would be that if a person's name is to be found in more than one territorial Constituency e.g. the Urban and the Rural Constituency in the same Taluk he is entitled to vote either in the Rural Constituency or in the Urban Constituency And not in both. If he casts his vote in both the Constituencies his vote becomes invalid. Further if a candidate through ignorance or otherwise votes in more than one Constituency he will not be entitled to sit in the Houses of Legislature as his act of voting in that manner would amount to a corrupt practice. The recent Corrupt Practices Act make those who vote in more than one Constituency liable to punishment i.e., liable to a fine or imprisonment or both. Hence it is requested that all the Candidates and workers should bear this Rule in mind and make it known as widely as possible. This is more important because the Rule in the past which allowed a voter to exercise his vote in more than one territorial Constituency has been changed.

K. T. BHASHYAM.

This Rule does not apply to Special Constituencies like Labour, University, women, Planting etc., which are not territorial Constituencies as far as this Rule is concerned.

NOTE NO. 2 Number of paid Agents that can be employed by a candidate under Rule 169 of the Assembly Rules and Rule 148 of the Council Rules the Government have issued the following Notification on 3rd January, 1941.

"They are further pleased to direct that the number of persons who may be employed for payment by any candidate in connection with any such election shall not exceed four, and that a person so appointed should not be disqualified under the provisions of the Government of Mysore Act, 1940, or any of the Rules thereunder, from being a member of the Assembly or the Council or from voting at elections to the two Chambers."

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The talk of the town is the appearance of the Comet in the Southern Horizon. Innumerable people, young and old, of both sexes, were straining their eyes last evening to have a glimpse of the Comet. Some people were pointing with glee to some spot on the sky exclaiming "there it is, and so on." Due to flood of moonlight the brightness of the Comet is not perfect. If the comet should persist to stay on to the dark half of the month, it could be clearly seen. Reports are being received from mofussil places that the comet was observed. Those who were very anxious might make a pilgrimage to the Science Laboratory of the central college, and seek the aid of the Professors concerned to observe the comet through the Telescope. I am sure the central college authorities would oblige such pilgrims.

I am glad to note that Mr. R. B. Talak has broken his fast. He achieved his purpose in drawing the attention of the Congress High command to his point of view. He told the Press representative that the Congress High command leaders communicated to him that they would take up his case and on this assurance he was requested to break his fast.

Sr. Manoharlal, Finance Minister, Punjab Government, paid a visit to the Yeravada Central Prison and met Sirdar Vallabhai Patel and all the Congress Ministers now undergoing imprisonment in the Yeravada Jail. Political weather recorders presume that this has something to do with Sir Sikander Hayat Khan's peace move. This is only a conjecture and nothing more than that.

Radio installed in the neighbourhood of the Municipal Council is taking up this matter seriously. Radio is a nuisance to the poor residents of Kodaikanal. Congress loud speakers in Mysore are a nuisance to the candidates of the opposing party and obliging Magistrates. If music becomes a nuisance, there is no harmony in heart and tolerance in your mind.

We are informed that the Principal of the Loyola College, Madras, has returned unconditionally to the Students' National Flag which he contested on January 26, in connection with the Independence Day celebration. The Students congratulated for having indicated their own honour as the honour of the National Flag. It is a matter of regret that the Principals of the other colleges should not resort to such repressive action.

While we have been waiting for news as to the whereabouts of Babu Subash Chandra Bose, it is amusing to note that the Magistrates of Calcutta have issued a series of warrants against him. Babu Subash Chandra Bose would be glad at the result. I am certain Babu Subash Chandra Bose has not been away with the idea of being arrested by the Police.

AN APPEAL TO STUDENTS

A. P. Mysore, Feb. 5

The following appeal has been issued to the members of the Mysore State Students Federation by Mr. K. M. J. Sadig, under date, Mysore, February 5.

The State Students' Conference recently held at Bangalore has materialised in the reorganisation of the student movement in the State. This long overdue task has been accomplished at a very opportune moment. The Students have affirmed their whole-hearted sympathy and solid support to the Federation by joining it in large numbers.

The question of the affiliation of the M. S. S. Federation with the Central organisation will crop up in the natural course of things. As the student world is well aware, the A. I. S. Federation, after its Nagpur Session is broken into two camps and an internecine quarrel is being carried between the two. The various political parties in India are exploiting the student platform to propagate their own ideas and ideologies, thereby breaking the solidarity of the A. I. S. Federation and creating a rift in the ranks of the students.

Our political leaders must understand that they are neither serving the cause of the country nor helping the student advance. The students must be left free to pursue their programme and policy unimpeded. Of course, also, our political leaders should welcome mere advice and meddling.

The first and foremost thing any student organisation should give an incentive to the student to study the many problems confronting us today—social and economic. This becomes an impossible political organisation, with our affairs. The appeal to the student is to join the student body. Mysore not to have the State Students' Federation associated with any one of the sections of the A. I. S. Federation.

The students of Mysore, keeping with the tradition, once again shown proof of 'nationalist mindness' by electing Mr. M. A. Kadir as the President of the Mysore Hindu Muslim Students' Union. The greatest need of the hour is that can best be achieved by the majority community tolerance, sympathy and heartedness towards the minorities. The Mysore Students' Union have set an example following by the rest.

VIGILANCE OF INCOME-TAX OFFICERS

Saves Eschequer nearly Rs. 3,00,00,000

New Delhi, Feb. 6.—The latest Administration Report of the Income-Tax Department reveals that but for the vigilance of the Department the eschequer would have lost nearly Rs. 3,00,00,000. Had the returns made by assesses been correct a sum of Rs. 3,00,00,000 or about 27 per cent of the actual revenue from those persons alone, would have been lost in 1938-39. The 12,000 new assesses discovered while about 10,000 assesses were struck off the registers.

Various methods resorted to for evasion of tax were the maintenance of double sets of accounts, omission of purchases, suppression of sales, omission of sources of income, maintenance of accounts in fictitious names and deduction of expenses.

Two big mica merchants' accounts in support of returns showing small profits on purchase visit to their place, the real account books showing much higher profits were discovered and the merchants were fined heavily.

A day-book produced by a chhoti chettiar showed he had deposited certain amounts outside British India. It was found that he had in fact received these amounts as advances in British India and was penalised.

Fabricated Accounts

The attempt of a meat contractor to evade tax by producing inflated accounts showing profits by inflating the price of sales of cattle and devaluing the sales was foiled. The contractor was fined Rs. 7,500 for having paid as composition.

Another contractor attempted to show his income from contract outside the Province. A penalty was imposed on him.

A timber merchant was found running a separate business in the name of one of his employees. The case was recommended for prosecution and was subsequently compounded. A firm commission merchants tried to conceal a part of its income by crediting it to its employees. Fraud was detected and the firm was penalised.

An assessee discontinued maintaining in the head office an account for the branch in Indian States, hoping to evade tax on the remittance of the attempt did not succeed.

An assessee who attempted to conceal his income from interest share of his profit in a venture was also penalised.

Another assessee credited items to the personal account of his deposits, and he had to pay Rs. 2,000 as composition.

A person returned an income of a little over Rs. 3,000. Examination of the accounts showed that purchases and sales had been understated and many certain items at base value had been omitted. The assessee was assessed on an income of Rs. 28,000 and subsequently previous year.

ITALIANS BEING PREPARED FOR "SELL-OUT" TO HITLER

Crown Prince As Puppet?

(By Cable)

A Daily Express reporter in New London cables—

Italy, according to messages from Rome, is being prepared for a sell-out to Hitler. It is reported that Crown Prince Umberto will become the Chief of Staff in place of the sacked Badoglio. But the Nazi General Staff's great influence will be behind him.

POLICE CASE

Bangalore, Feb. 5

How efficient Police watch over bad and suspicious characters risen in detection of crime is revealed in the story of one Ramaswamy alias Hamid who was sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two months in the Bangalore First Magistrate's Court.

On 27-8-1940 the said Ramaswamy stole two brown bed sheets bearing dhoti marks from the house of a respectable citizen at Malleswaram. Of late, such petty thefts have risen in number in the City. The Court Department deputed one Mr. Kaarem Khan, a Police Constable to keep an eye over suspicious people loitering near about the City Market. The Constable found a person disposing of some clothes in the City Market. The Police Constable suspected this fellow and brought him to the Sub Inspector. Naturally questions were put to that person as to whose those clothes were. He fumbled. He was immediately arrested and the house in which the fellow resided was searched by the Police. They recovered about 25 varieties of clothes from him.

The Police chargedheeted Ramaswamy alias Hamid. The Magistrate found the accused guilty and sentenced him to two months rigorous imprisonment.

Personal

Mr. Walchand Hirschland Managing Agents, Air craft Factory left for Bombay, Rajakavya prastha, Mr. N. S. Subba Rao left this morning for Mysore.

Recent enquiries revealed a further income of Rs. 22,000. The question of prosecuting the assessee was under consideration at the close of the year.

Information collected from Civil Court Registers brought to light a mill-owner's attempt to conceal an income from interest of about Rs. 7,000. The result was a penalty.

Even the proprietor of a large Raj was tempted to evade tax by showing in his suspense accounts a sum of nearly Rs. 1,00,000 received as royalty. A penalty of Rs. 10,000 was the result.

A dealer in silk goods produced inventories of closing stock which were incorrect. When detected he prepared another set altering the figures in various ways. This fraud was also detected and the assessee was visited with a penalty of Rs. 2,000.

One assessee with a money lending business did not record in his accounts heavy transactions of Rs. 60,000 and Rs. 80,000 and the account books produced were found to be faked. Prosecution was instituted against him and the case was pending at the close of the year.

Improved Trade Conditions

The total demand for income-tax and super-tax during 1938-39 was about Rs. 21,00,00,000 which, after allowing for refund, left a net demand of Rs. 18,00,00,000 as against a total demand of Rs. 20,00,00,000 and a net demand of Rs. 17,00,00,000 in the previous year. The net collection in 1938-39 was about Rs. 17,00,00,000 as against Rs. 16,00,00,000 in the previous year.

Abichchatra—City of 3rd Century B. C.

FILLING THE GAP IN INDIA'S HISTORY

Archaeological Discoveries in U. P.

New Delhi, Jan. 6

Important discoveries which might help in filling up the gaps in India's ancient history are expected to be made at Ramnagar in the Bareilly District of the United Provinces. The site has been identified as the City of Abichchatra, the capital of ancient Panchala, which corresponds roughly to the modern Rohilkhand Division. The city is on an elevated triangular hillside of rolling mounds, covered with thick layers of bricks and potsherds, surrounded by a broad brick wall, rising in places to nearly 50 feet above the low plain outside. The wall shows bastions and angles at various points and is nearly three-and-a-half miles in circuit. The bricks used in the wall are unusually large, being 21 to 24 inches long, indicating an early age from 100—300 B.C.

Except for a rapid survey, nearly 70 years ago, by General Sir Alexander Cunningham, the first Director General of Archaeology, the site at Ramnagar has received no attention from the Archaeological Department. The present discovery ensued from a recently undertaken survey of promising ancient sites in the Western United Provinces and systematic excavation is in progress under the Direct supervision of the Director General of Archaeology.

A Relic of the Gupta Empire

Two high mounds, 30 to 50 feet high, stand inside the city and seem to be the remains of terraced temples, but there is nothing in the configuration of the mounds to distinguish different parts of the ancient city. A broad partition wall appears to run from north to south dividing the city into two unequal parts, the eastern one being smaller than the western. Excavations are in progress in the western part, over an area of about 350 feet each way, where several houses, lanes and streets have been brought to light.

The temple and houses of the city that has been exposed so far appear to belong to the epoch of the Gupta Empire—400—500 A.D.—and there is little doubt that the ancient capital was evacuated sometime about the Hun invasions of the fifth century A.D. The city must have been in existence for nearly a thousand years before desertion.

As excavation proceeds layer by layer earlier occupations will reveal themselves. It is also proposed to dig trial trenches in an isolated mound in the eastern part of the city. This area it is believed, was abandoned at an earlier period, sometime in the early centuries of A.D. and earlier settlements may be expected to be found nearer the surface there than in the western area.

Historical Results from Systematic Study

Systematic work demands that the findspot of every object should be accurately recorded, both as regards position and depth and this is being done with regard to all antiquities that are found, even in the case of commonest objects like pottery. The entire area of the city has been marked out into squares of 500 feet each. The area under excavation is divided into 100 feet grids, sub-divided into ten feet squares bearing an identification mark.

The pottery finds are neatly arranged in a pottery yard where each ten-feet square is marked on the ground by a corresponding tiny square and the pottery found in each square and in each successive level carefully distinguished and studied. This system of classification is being adopted for the first time in India and is expected to yield important archaeological results. The system will prove a basis for studying the sequence of pottery, as has been done with conspicuous success in Egypt and other ancient countries.

Already the material for a corpus of pottery collected by the Archaeological Survey from about 200 sites in western U. P. and eastern Punjab is being studied at Delhi and the pottery found in regular excavations during the last few years by the Archaeological Department will form the pivot of future studies.

Besides yielding important historical results, the excavations at Ramnagar from the first training camp for junior officers of the Archaeological Survey and scholars and apprentices both of the Government of India and from the Indian States. The work at Ramnagar and Raghat near Benares will prove a good training for young Archaeologists in the up-to-date methods of field Archaeology.

BINNY MILLS STRIKE

Bangalore, Feb. 6
 Mr. N. D. Shankar, Secretary, Binny Mills Workers' Strike Committee has issued the following statement to the press:—
 "I was not present in Bangalore City on the day the Strike broke out. I came to Bangalore on the second day of the Strike not on hearing that a Strike had taken place but as usual Shri G. V. Chellam, Secretary of the Labour Union and many workers approached me as to what is to be done. I have tried my best to keep them peaceful, united and disciplined. I have tried my best for a compromise too. I have stopped the procession thinking that it may disturb the public peace. Our Government is also helpful in keeping peace with the workers and they have not taken sides. I think as there is no trade union legislation in Mysore, the Government cannot intervene and set the matters right. I have struggled hard to maintain peace amongst the workers until today and I will struggle in future too. The Mills' management might have known by this time that all their efforts to break the unity of the workers is a failure. Neither I nor any of the workers have any idea of impeding the war efforts. What all I want is the interests of the workers should be safeguarded. I will try my level best in all manners possible to maintain a peaceful atmosphere."

BANGALORE BANK AFFAIRS

Mr. F. M. Xavier Examined

Bangalore, Feb. 5
 Before Mr. P. Medapa, District Judge, Bangalore Cantonment, Mr. F. M. Xavier, Ex-Director of the Bangalore Bank (now in liquidation) was examined today in connection with the affairs of the Bank.
 The examination was on the recommendation contained in the Official Liquidator's report submitted to the Court.

The witness stated that he was a director of the Bangalore Bank from March 1936 and chairman from November 1937 to middle of 1938. When he became a director there was considerable amount of dissatisfaction about the management of the Bank. But he did not remember that at the Shareholders' meeting held in March 1936 there was a good deal of criticism made about the advances made by the Bank to the Mysore Tannery and the working of the Tannery. After he became a director of the Bank, the Board of Directors took some steps to improve the management of the Tannery a Sub Committee was appointed and the Chairman was authorised to supervise Messrs. Fraser and Ross were appointed to prepare monthly accounts. Mr. Xavier stated as there was separate arrangement made to look after working of the Tannery, he, as a Director of the Bank, did not personally supervise.

Continuing Mr. Xavier said that the Directors took the responsibility of declaring an interim dividend of 4 per cent for the half year ended 30-6-1937 through Mr. N. S. T. Chari, Managing Agent of the Tannery, had drawn monies from the Bank over and above the limit prescribed for the purpose and though there was a talk of floating a company to run the Tannery efficiently. It was true that the declaration of interim dividend was more serious and a great responsibility for the directors than the declaration of final dividend by the general body of shareholders. But it was done on the basis of the auditor's report.

Replying Mr. A. E. Blaney, a shareholder of the Bank, Mr. Xavier said that the Bank had no right to trade under the Articles of Association but when he became a Director of the Bank he found that the legacy had to continue. The witness admitted that he had a fixed deposit of about Rs. 40,000 in the Bank at 6 per cent. Generally the Bank allowed 5 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent interest, but the witness was a "favoured constituent."

The court rose for the day. Mr. P. R. Kurnatnam appeared for the witness and Mr. K. Bhasiyam, of the Madras bar, for the Official Liquidator.

THE ALLEGED FORGERY CASE

Consideration of Mr. S. K. V's Petition

Bangalore, Feb. 5
 The alleged forgery case against Mr. S. K. Venkatarama Iyengar, Advocate has been posted to the 10th of this month for trial.

In the meanwhile Mr. S. K. Venkatarama Iyengar had submitted a petition through his counsel to the Sessions Judge praying that the trial of the alleged offence of forgery itself was unnecessary in view of the finding given about the "Will" in question by the Special Sessions Judge who tried the accused in the Bangalore Advocate Murder Case.

This petition came up today for hearing before Mr. G. Paramasivaiah, District and Sessions Judge, Bangalore City.

On behalf of the accused Advocate Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Iyengar of Madras and Mr. H. S. Raja Iyengar of Bangalore, appeared.

Mr. G. S. Doraswami Iyer, Public Prosecutor was present on behalf of the prosecution.

Mr. Doraswami Iyer raised a preliminary objection with regard to the petition saying that the case had been posted for the 10th of this month and on that day according to the rules of Code of Criminal Procedure the charge would be read out to the accused and then the accused would be called upon to say whether the accused would plead guilty or not guilty and after that stage only, the grounds of this application might be taken for consideration and that would be the proper stage for consideration of this petition.

Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Iyengar arguing said that the reading of the charge to the accused was a matter left entirely to the Court and that he had no objection for reading it out and the arguments heard.

After hearing both the sides, the Judge passed orders upholding the preliminary objection raised by the Public Prosecutor and ordered that the proper stage for consideration of this petition would be only after the commencement of the trial on 10-2-1941 which date has already been fixed.

Manzilagah Building

INDIA'S LATEST AND MOST UP-TO-DATE ARSENAL
TWENTY-THOUSAND COOLIES WORKING DAILY
ROW UPON ROW OF HEAVY CALIBRE BOMBS

A.P. Somewhere in India, Feb. 6

A year ago this spot was a part of vast rolling countryside devoid of building or cultivation. Now it is a vast arsenal still only partly completed, but already in use. It is the special correspondent of the Associated Press. "As I passed through closely guarded gates protected by a line of high steel railings, I was met with the sight of a busy activity," says the correspondent. "All round me were new buildings, long dug, roads were being prepared and buildings were in the course of erection. 20,000 coolies, I was told, are working daily in order to complete the construction as soon as possible."

Before visiting the magazine I was asked to surrender my watches and metal articles as a precautionary measure. Swat houses from where constant watch is kept could be overlooked at strategic points on the arsenal. It is told the arsenal is so constructed as to be virtually unbreakable. They are so constructed as to be almost invisible from air. Magazines contain types of munitions and are filled with them. Row upon row of heavy calibre bombs are stacked in long rows. As I left the arsenal I saw yet further impressive evidence of India's ever-growing resources.

Tell the German people that my convictions are shared to the full by an overwhelming majority of my fellow countrymen of German descent. They too believe in freedom and human rights. Tell the German people that we German Americans reject and hate aggression and lust for power on the present German Government."

RAILWAYMEN'S FEDERATION

REPRESENTATIVES MEETING RAILWAY BOARD MEMBERS

Standing Finance Committee

(From our correspondent)

(By wire) New Delhi, Feb. 6

It is understood at the coming meeting of the Standing Finance Committee two important proposals are likely to be brought forward by Government of India for sanction. One is the appointment of Calcutta of Special Commissioner of Income-tax to deal with matters as at the Bombay office opened in winter, 1938. The Calcutta Office will come into existence in April next. The second proposal is the appointment of three New Indian Trade Commissioners with headquarters in Canada, South Africa, and South America respectively.

Informal talks are proceeding among the representatives of the Railwaymen's federation, who have arrived in New Delhi for Saturday's Conference with the Railway Board to redress allowance. The Federation's representatives are Messrs Jannadas Mehta, Guruswami, S.C. Joshi and Chatterjee.

The talks suggest that a demand will be put forward for some relief to the employees with salaries of above rupees thirty five and below rupees one hundred for whom no recommendation has been made by the Court enquiry. If Government agrees to this suggestion it is likely that Railway Men's federation's representatives will agree to a grant of rupees three as dearness allowance to workers with salaries below Rs. thirty five which the Court has recommended.

BANGALORE BANK AFFAIR

Former Agent Examined

Bangalore, Feb. 6

Mr. W. H. Haldwell, Agent of the Bangalore Bank now in liquidation, was examined today before Mr. Medappa, District Judge, Bangalore Cantonment, in connection with the affairs of the Bank. Mr. Haldwell was the witness to be examined in public enquiry.

Mr. K. Bhashyam, of Madras bar, who appeared as the Official Liquidator, examined the witness.

Mr. Haldwell said that he was the Agent of the Bangalore Bank from 1915 to March 1940. The Bank had advanced Rs. 100,000 to Mr. Mackenzie, who was giving the Mysore Tannery, was true that Messrs. Mackenzie and Rose, the Banks' agents, had remarked in their letter to the Bank dated June 23, 1939, that the Bank's resources were not justly the loan to Mackenzie of such a sum as Rs. 2,50,000.

As Mr. Mackenzie did not up to the loan, the Bank was to take up the working of the Tannery. If the Bank had not given the loan, the Tannery would not have been in the interest of the Bank.

After the Bank took over the Tannery, Mr. Vatal's had previously worked as Mr. Mackenzie's manager. Mr. Vatal's management of the Tannery, in the opinion of the witness, was more successful.

In the second year of its work under this arrangement, the Tannery yielded a net profit of Rs. 22,000. Mr. Vatal was the Manager of the Tannery when witness left the Tannery in March 1936. Witness said that on principle it was the Bank to trade, but it had been forced to take over the Tannery.

VOTE FOR CONGRESS

SIND MINISTERIAL AFFAIRS

MR. JINNAH REPUDIATES AZAD AGREEMENT

Admonition to Individual League Members

Bombay, Feb 7

Mr. Jinnah, President of the Muslim League in a statement on Sind Ministerial affairs refers to Congress President Maulana Abul Kalam Azad's visit to Karachi in connection with the reshuffling of the ministry and the agreement arrived at under which Mr. Mirbundeali, the present Premier should resign making way for Mr. Alla Bux as Premier and also instal Sir Ghulam Hussein Hidayatullah in the cabinet. He adds as far as he has ascertained the facts it was clear there was no Muslim League Party as such in the Sind Legislature though individual ministers were members of the League and that Sind Provincial League knew nothing about the Azad Agreement. Mir Bundeali who is supposed to have agreed to resign premiership on 15th February denies he was a party to any such agreement. He says "The so called Azad Agreement obviously intended to get rid of Mir Bundeali and include Mr. Allabux and Sir Ghulam Hussain both of whom were deadly opponents of the League, with two Hindu Ministers and thereby the leading two members of the League remain in the cabinet in their individual capacity and passing this show a coalition with Muslim League."

Mr. Jinnah asserts two individual ministers have not the sanction of the League Party behind them in the Assembly or the sanction of the Provincial League. If the Muslim League Ministers cannot carry on Government the only honourable course for them will be to resign from the ministry and sit in the opposition. But as individuals they decide to continue, then the Muslim League cannot accept responsibility of the passing off as league ministers. He hopes Mr. Allabux will not become Premier or Sir Ghulam Hussain be brought in the cabinet under a threat that otherwise the present ministry will be broken. If such a thing should happen the responsibility will rest on those who are bent on preventing the Muslim League Party being formed with the other two Hindu Ministers, namely the Congress and the Hindu Independent Party are left intact and free to work together and in hand.

CENSUS OPERATIONS

SRI V. D. SAVARKAR'S SUGGESTIONS

Bombay, Feb. 7

A plea that the Census authorities should allow every person to describe his religion or community or caste by the name he chooses was made by Mr. V. D. Savarkar, President of the Hindu Maha Sabha in the course of a statement on census operations now proceeding throughout the country. Drawing the attention of Hindu leaders and workers to this serious matter he calls upon them to get this grievance redressed as quickly as possible, interviewing such officers or enumerators and impressing upon them that such refusal on their part would be directly opposed to Government orders and the promises given by the Census Commissioner.

The Statement adds that the census officers or enumerators cannot dictate that they should call their religion or community only by one word against their own wish. It is no matter for Government to decide so far as the census is concerned as to what name or term the citizens should choose to describe religion or community they belong to. In exhorting the Hindu leaders to pay the most urgent attention to this matter, the Statement concludes that every person must be allowed to describe his religion or community or caste by the name which he or she chooses whether the name be single-worded or multi-worded and the census officers are bound to record it accordingly.

VOTE FOR THE CONGRESS

TO-DAY'S GENERAL ELECTIONS

I am here by the orders of Mahatma Gandhi But my thoughts are in Mysore. On this, the most critical phase of our movement I can only pray to God that my brothers and sisters of Mysore, of every taluk, town and village will make it a religious point to go to the polling booths wherever there are Congress candidates left and record their votes in their favour.

I am happy to find the heroic efforts our President and other co-workers are making in spite of unfair bans and gagging. May the Mysore people show their unity, strength and patriotism and help the early realisation of freedom. May theirs be a glorious example to all other States.

A TRIBUTE TO MYSORE'S INDUSTRIAL POLICY

Mr. Saroj Kumar Basu (Lecturer in Economics and Commerce, University of Calcutta), in his book on "Industrial Finance in India" (published by the University of Calcutta), writes in very complimentary terms to the singular success of Mysore State-aid to Industries in Mysore. A relevant extract from the book is given below—

"Mysore easily comes first in the matter of State encouragement for indigenous industries. There is no other State which has adopted a more enterprising policy of State-aid for its industries or has achieved a greater measure of success in that field. Ever since the Mysore Government framed rules in 1913 for the grant of loans to facilitate industrial and agricultural operations, it has followed an active policy of State-aid to industries. It has established institutions under its own management, such as the Government Soap Factory and the Metal Factory; has carried on experimental and investigation work; and has assisted industry in every possible way. The granting of loans for the purchase of machinery for industrial purposes and sometimes also for working capital has been a special feature of the State policy."

"The Government has taken steps in some concerns or given guarantee to private banks to advance loans to the concerns. The mill industry, now one of the most flourishing industries in the State, has been assisted by loans, advances and cash credits. Cotton mill received Rs. 8 lakhs through the Mysore Bank in the form of cash credit. Two woolen mills were specially assisted either directly or through the Bank of Mysore. The Mysore Cotton Co., Ltd., the Mysore Premier Metal Factory, the Mysore Pharmaceuticals, Ltd., the Art Litho Press, the Tintalite Tile Factory, the Aryan Pottery Factory are some of the industrial concerns financially assisted by the Government. The Department of Industries has started by loans or otherwise a number of flour mills, rice mills, pumping plants, etc. It has also assisted cottage and small industries and is reported to have been responsible for bringing into existence in various parts of the country nearly 500 concerns owned by small capitalists."

"The industrial loan policy of the Mysore Government has been attended with singular success. The Government has spent very little money. Since the introduction of the policy of financial aid in 1913, the total amount sanctioned in respect of industrial loans up to 1930—31 was Rs. 14,55,124-3-6 of which Rs. 9,64,032-9-11 was recovered. Only Rs. 54,503-2-10 was written off."

Mr. Collins, C.I.E., I.C.S., former Director of Industries in British India and afterwards Director General of Commerce and Industry, Hyderabad, pays a high tribute to the industrial policy of the Mysore Government in the following words:—The State Government that active encouragement of industry can be undertaken without loss of public funds and to the great benefit of the country."

GERMANY MAY HELP ITALY TO SECURE SUPPLIES

Advice of Hitler's "Economist at Large"

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph New York correspondent cables: Messages reaching here from neutral sources in Rome say that Clodius, Hitler's "economist at large" is understood to have agreed in Rome that instead of draining Italy's Nazis must give her increased foodstuffs and raw materials. The Germans are already shipping coal at the rate of one million tons a month as well as metals, lumber, chemicals and the like.

The Germans have now recognised, it is learnt, that they must get foodstuffs from Hungary and Rumania for their Fascist ally and increase their shipments of synthetic petrol and oil. Nothing can be done about the shortage of fats which remains Germany's most serious problems.

MYSTERIOUS ILLNESS OF EUROPEAN STATESMEN

(By Cable) London
The Daily Express writes: General John Metaxas, Dictator of Greece, died from a third mysterious illness to attack a European statesman within the last week. The seriousness of his condition was not known to the Greek people until at the last moment it was reported that he had had an operation on his throat.

This has added to the stream of reports about the illness of General Antonescu, the Rumanian Premier.

At first he was reported in Berlin to have influenza. Now it is being said that his illness has been "inflicted on him."

The latest—and most delicately phrased—information available from Bucharest is that the General has "eaten the wrong food."

The third statesman whose illness has not been explained is Count Csaky, Hungarian Foreign Secretary. He died on the 27th January.

SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS NOT GOING ON LEAVE

(By cable) London
The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph writes:

A report was circulated by the Berlin short-wave radio to the effect that Sir Stafford Cripps, British Ambassador in Moscow, would be starting shortly on "prolonged leave" which would probably be the first step towards his resignation.

In fact, Sir Stafford Cripps has not applied for leave and there is no reason to suppose that he contemplates leaving his post in Moscow. On the contrary it was recently understood that Lady Cripps was leaving England with a view to joining her husband in Moscow.

The policy pursued by Sir Stafford since he went to Moscow is known to be fully endorsed by the new Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden. It may therefore be assumed that the Berlin report is no more than another example of wishful thinking.

ROME RADIO'S ATTEMPT TO ALLAY ITALIAN ANXIETY

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph writes: The Rome Radio has once again attempted to allay Italian anxiety over the Libyan disasters and to prepare the public for more bad news.

"It is possible that the British will advance further," said the commentator. "But that is only because, for a short while, the initiative will have to remain in their hands and this gives them the advantage over us."

"However difficult it may be to wrest the initiative from them we shall arrive at a conclusive phase and then comes the victory."

The Italians were told to "await the news, should it prove to be good or bad with fortitude." The commentator added "It cannot always go on like this. Italy is merely going through a transitory stage."

THE ASSOCIATION OF INDIAN INDUSTRIES

Bombay, Feb. 1
The Association of Indian Industries, an Organisation for the promotion and protection of small and medium scale Industries (as distinguished from organised large scale Industries) has done much useful work during its existence of over 5 years.

It is a noteworthy feature, that this Association has organised an All India Manufacturers' Conference to be held in the third week of February under the presidency of Sir M. Visvesvaraya, K. C. I. E.

This is the first Conference of its kind since the Industrial Conference organised along with the Annual Session of the Indian National Congress has ceased to exist. It will, therefore, be a unique gathering of representatives of many an industry from all over the country. The response to the Association's appeal to the various Industrialists and Commercial Organisations all over India for holding the Conference has been very encouraging.

It is proposed to discuss various problems confronting these Industries, a few of which are stated below:—

1. Industrial finance with special reference to these Industries. 2. Labour Legislation, Tariff Policy and the Store-purchase Policy of the Government. 3. Technical assistance and research. 4. Possibilities of developing new Industries and disseminating correct information relating thereto. 5. Difficulties and hardships experienced by existing Industries. 6. Foreign competition from Non-Indian Industries established in India. 7. Difficulties in securing essential Raw-materials. 8. Problems relating to Transportation, Marketing and Inter-provincial trade barriers. 9. Establishment of Regional Committee all over the country.

It is expected that all those who are interested in the development of Indian Industries will give their whole-hearted co-operation and support to make this Conference a success. Any further information will be gladly furnished by the Association of Indian Industries, Albert Buildings, Hornby Road, Fort, Bombay.

Acquitted of Charge of Cheating

A. P. Bombay, Feb. 6
Sir Richard Temple and Stanley M. Standage, Directors of Temple Thomas and Standage Limited, today were acquitted of charges of cheating and criminal breach of trust. They took their trial before the Criminal Sessions of Bombay High Court on charges of cheating and criminal breach of trust in respect of a sum of Rs. 5,000 deposited in the firm by an employee. The allegation was that the sum was paid as security and the money had been utilised for purposes of the firm. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty and the judge concurring acquitted the accused.

M. Laval is understood to have concluded an agreement with Nazi authorities for the cession of French fleet and also the use of naval air bases in Mediterranean and African ports. Germans seem to be demanding the ratification of this agreement, or alternatively to restate Laval in the Cabinet with plenary powers.

DAYLIGHT RAIDS-BRITISH AND ENEMY

(By cable) London

The Air Correspondent of the News Chronicle writes:—

For three days the German Air Force has bombed Britain by daylight. These are not new tactics, nor is this a new phase of the war in the air.

Immobilised by bad weather in the Low Countries and Northern France, which has prevented night operations by bombers, the German air force is doing what little it can.

These attacks are a repetition of the hit-and-run raids in daylight of last year when the Germans took advantage of cloudy conditions to sneak over Britain in cloud masses.

From their hiding place in the clouds they are now dropping bombs blindly. They carefully avoid coming out from the thick stuff because above it fighters are ready to deal with them. Below, and in view of the ground, guns would have a fine target.

The R.A.F. recently began daylight raiding of the Germans in the occupied territories with bombers and fighters but only on days when visibility was good enough to locate aerodromes, harbours and military depots. These raids are to be intensified, but, as an officer of the

HITLER'S ATTEMPT TO SECURE A FLEET

(By cable) London

The Military Correspondent of the Yorkshire Post writes:—
To secure a fleet Hitler is building in every yard and seeing French and Italian ships. Build and acquire as he may, however, Hitler cannot overtake our margin of strength or match on ship yards, and as the complete is not particularly successful against moving warships, it is handicapped at the outset for any invasion plan.

What Britain will do After Victory

The latest and outbreaks in the world were not unexpected. We are not having any prophetic vision, one may still venture to say, as to the course of the war. Our guess is that Britain will come out victorious. We will welcome her victory though without any resultant damage to India. What terms she will offer to Germany, we cannot forecast. We do not mention Italy, as she is a mere appendage of Germany, not a dependency. Though we cannot say that we are not interested in what Britain's attitude in the future will be, we are interested in what her attitude may be towards India after the conclusion of the war. Some political parties in India demand—that is the word—fancy—a promise from Britain that within one year or two after victory India is to be a Dominion Status of the Westminster Statute variety. We guess that Britain will not give any such effective promise. An effective pressure is not to be put upon her. An effective promise is one which the British Parliament will be bound to honour, and a promise can be made only by an Act of Parliament or something equivalent to it, if by using the words effective we do not suggest any use of violence. Effective violence on India's part is out of question. But effective non-violent pressure is neither undesirable nor unimaginable, nor fantastic.

Our reasons for anticipating that Britain will not agree to India to have a political status like that enjoyed by Canada or Australia may be guessed.

Men who have long enjoyed and its fruits do not will, or easily give it up. It is human nature. But it is not only owing to that general power that Britain will not part with. There is a special reason.

Britain has been spending money for defending herself and for crushing defeat on her enemies. If these amounts had come wholly from her public treasury, even if it would not have been unfair for her to seek to reimburse herself after the conclusion of the war. But they come from public debt. The Government must be back with interest. Even if these were treated as donations given by the lenders to the Government, the lenders would be impoverished and would not get rich again. And huge loans taken from the United States of America must be repaid and the vast quantities of munitions and other war materials, including aeroplanes, tanks, etc., purchased on credit from the U. S. A., must be paid.

For some reason or other, the war the state of Great Britain and Britishers in general had to incur to have unusually large amounts. Great Britain is a comparatively small country and its natural resources are very abundant, have been greatly developed and improved. Therefore the Government and people of Great Britain must derive wealth from the British Empire. That part which is spoken of as the British commonwealth of Nations, cannot be exploited, because the Dominions are autonomous and can successfully resist any attempt at exploitation. India is peopled by hundreds of millions of sober and hard-working men and women whose labour can be exploited in exchange for small wages. They are intelligent, too, and can easily learn new scientific and mechanical processes. In addition to such excellent exploitable human material, India contains vast mineral, forest and animal wealth yet untapped and sources of power also which stand in need of development.

Our forecast, therefore, is that after the war there will be an extensive and intensive campaign of exploitation of India carried on by British imperialist capitalists and industrialists and, in order that such exploitation may be carried on unhampered Indians will be kept as powerless as today to prevent it. That is to say, there will not be any real transfer of power to Indians. Of course, just as in the name of Reform and Provincial Autonomy the Government of India Act of 1935 has further weakened Indians by promoting provincialism and communalism and, by means of the provisions of the chapter on Discriminations in the Act, has facilitated British exploitation of India, so some fresh 'Reforms' may be granted after the war, having a spurious appearance but really debilitating the nation. After the war there may also be such fresh legislation as would make it harder to carry on the struggle for freedom than it is now.

So in our opinion Indians should make haste to occupy as great a part of the industrial field as they can while there is yet time, and also diligently make as much use of the present opportunities for non-violent struggle for freedom as possible.

But as our community men are having from time immemorial, the addition of Shreshthi (setty) at the end of their names, our Sangha was registered as "KURUHINA SETTY SANGHA" in 1928 and so it is requested that all our community people will kindly see that our community is denominated as "KURUHINASETTY" during the ensuing census.

"Raj Nartaki" At Bombay

Wadia movietone's latest liturgical production "Raj Nartaki" is to be released today at the "Royal opera house" Bombay.

As we see it

It is a great pity that Hindi films even after they have become years old, are yet not released in the City. The directors, even when they take up their third production, the first of their will not yet be released in the City. The difficulty is that the theatre owners want to make as much money as possible by releasing the pictures as slowly as possible. Even when the other theatre owners come and beg them to give a picture, they refuse it because of their short minded policy.

It is possible to release all the pictures of the leading producing concern in one theatre! Of course all the pictures can make money.

Suppose there is a theatre that has booked all the pictures from the leading producing concern. He wants to release the pictures in order by which time the other pictures will be years older, for the good pictures run for months. The number of pictures will be increased where as the former pictures, will be yet running.

To stop these difficulties the owners must have a broad minded policy and hand over the other pictures to others who are badly in need of it. Of course, they may not be willing to give their pictures to others. But we request them that they may run the pictures for half the period which they are capable of and give it to others for the other part.

It is, over the disgust of the public, we have written this, and we hope the theatre owners will come to an agreement with the others and give us fresh pictures often.

C. F. E. Launches Big Publicity

Messrs Calcutta film exchange have started a grand Publicity campaign to usher New theatres "Nartaki" which is awaiting release at the Star Talkies, Madras. Mr. M. B. Sayed, the Manager is personally attending to every detail in this regard.

Kardar has started "Swarni". Sohrab Modi is sweeping on his "Al-lander the Great". Badami is taking delight in his "Holiday in Bombay". Khosla is busy with the preliminaries of "Cleopatra". Jayant Desai is engrossed in "Veddyocha Bazar". Homi Wadia is courting "Bombay wall" and Acharya is having the experiences of "Nyaya Sanaar".

H. H. THE MAHARAJA'S HOSPITAL FUND SWEEPSTAKE AN APPEAL

(V. Sundaramurthy)

Brothers and Sisters,
You will agree with me that an educated Indian, with an honest mind and endowed with a keen social sense, cannot avoid thinking of the huge problem of medical relief that we are faced with. The magnitude of the problem cannot be exaggerated. It is those challenging us and demanding solution. Our administrations must do more and still more. I would say that the extent to which the State organizes medical assistance is the measure of its efficiency and to that extent it deserves support. But Government is either slow about it and we cannot wait. As such, the public must play its part, here and now. The problem is one of extreme urgency.

There is already His Highness the Maharaja's Hospital Fund started in 1937 by my late Father, Mr. V. Manickavelu Mudaliar. It is my intention to make of that a nucleus for an all Mysore drive for creating more and still more medical facilities for the people of Mysore. Towards this end, I have planned to run a Sweepstake, twice a year, and once after year, to be called H. H. The Maharaja's Hospital Fund Sweepstake.

May I appeal, in all sincerity and with all the earnestness that I have in me, to the people of Mysore, specially to all those who realize the need and who are able to pay, to assist me in organizing this Fund?

You know of the thousands and thousands of mothers who get crippled for life for want of medical assistance, because there is nobody to give it to them when and where they need it, don't you? You know of the infants who die before they are born or who die soon after they are born? You know of the thousands who are victims of horrible diseases and whose life is a death agony, a slow and protracted agony? You know of the lakhs and lakhs of people, who, because of ignorance and poverty, are the voiceless slaves of disease and uncomplaining victims to medical quackery? Don't you hear the groans of the diseased from a million homes? Have you not seen the spineless mothers shedding sad tears, mothers with large families, and with no money to buy medicine? Medically diseased are preventable. We can prevent them. Happy are those parents who get the results of scientific education. But the results of scientific education cannot be obtained free. We must have money to buy them. We want hundreds of hospitals for open diseases, thousands of hospitals for chronic diseases, and thousands of clinics and dispensaries.

GENERAL ELECTIONS IN BANGALORE

Bangalore, Feb. 8.
The General Elections to the newly constituted Assembly and Council were held to-day. There was on the whole a polling boom. There was only one independent candidate to the assembly as against three congress candidates. Polling was very poor. There was hardly any life and enthusiasm in any of the polling booths. The polling of votes will take place on the 10th instant.

Mr. K. T. Bhasyam, President, Mysore State Congress, and Mr. W. H. Hanumanthappa, President, Bangalore City Municipal Council, and the principal members of the various political parties, were present to survey the voting.

Mr. S. Narayana Rao, Municipal Commissioner and Retiring Officer, and Mr. Wynne, Superintendent of Police also were present at the polling stations.

THE CORPSES OF HUSBAND AND WIFE

Bodies Identified

Bangalore, Feb. 9

In connection with the news published in 'Daily News' under the caption "Two corpses found" on the 6th inst. we learn that some more interesting details have been received by the Bangalore Taluk Police recently. It seems one Mallappa of Cubbonpet (Bangalore City) has identified those two bodies (it may be recalled these two dead bodies were found in Magadi Road) and it has also been stated that both the dead persons were husband and wife and that they were his son and daughter-in-law. It is also stated that the person who identified those corpses was in search of those two persons who were missing for the last few days. Further Police Investigation is proceeding.

Think of the time, when there was illness in your own home and you suffered inexpressible and unbearable agony and looked up to Heaven and prayed to God to spare the life of your beloved one, your wife or your husband, your brother or sister, or your little one, the flesh of your own flesh. Think of this and turn your attention to all those homes, specially in the villages, where similar scenes are being enacted at this moment, similar suffering is being endured. You had the wherewithal to buy relief. To one such as you there are thousands who have only God—be not desirous to help them.

You must help. Give your mite. Those suffering every where. Mysore calls for you. Lend a hand, please. When the Sweepstake commences at your door, give him a nudge and say "Yes, with pleasure."

BRITAIN'S TRADE FOR DECEMBER 1940Excess Of Imports Over Exports
Of £ 660,596,000(By Cable) London
The City Editor of the News Chronicle writes:

The December trade figures complete the tale of our overseas trade for 1940. The year has closed with an excess of imports over exports of £ 660,596,000 about £ 260,000,000 more than in 1939. It is evident that this visible deficit to a far great extent has been covered by the realisation of capital assets such as gold and investments than by our invisible exports.

The December figures are fairly satisfactory. The total of exports of £ 25,050,000 is better than for November and October, while imports at £ 73,575,000 are but about £ 13,000,000 down on December last year. Compared with December 1939 foodstuffs imports are down by over £ 17,000,000 and raw material lower by nearly £ 5,000,000. On the other hand imports to manufacture articles are up by over £ 9,000,000 mainly as a result of imports of vehicles (including aircraft from the U. S. A.) and iron and steel.

PALESTINE ARABS' REACTION TO LIBYAN CAMPAIGN(By Cable)
The Jerusalem Correspondent of the Times cabled on Feb. 8:

The capture of Tobruk, following so soon after the British defeats at Bardia and Sidi Barrani, has had a wholesome effect on the Arab population in Palestine who have emerged from a "wait and see" attitude.

Representative men of the British victory is one thing, and for democracy in the whole. Even those who in one time regarded British rule in local disputes and were hypnotized by the recently irresistible advance of the Nazis are now moved to action at success of British arms.

Muhammad Pasha, the paramount sheikh of the Jordan section of the Arab people in Libya, writes that he knows of no one people in Libya who are against the Arabs and regrets that he and his men are not able yet to aid in the fight, but hopes to do so.

Rashid Jha Ibrahim, a known citizen of Haifa, among the Seychelles, says: "The British victory in Libya is really the liberation of the Arab inhabitants at the beginning of a new era of independence, which, together with the renewal of former glory and culture, are the aims of all the Arabs. He hopes that all Arabs, especially Palestine Arabs, will from Britain all their demands and remain true to a strong basis of understanding and friendship with Britain."

The fact that Palestine have had longstanding enmities with Britain is not over, but as Sultan Tuqan, Mayor of Nablus, others have emphasized, they are only family quarrels which could be settled by negotiation.

The keen interest of the in the course of events, indicated by the fact that the publication of the Government's weekly Arab paper entitled "War and Peace" outstrips any daily newspaper.

POLICE OPEN FIRE ON MUSLIM CROWD IN CALCUTTA

SIX ROUNDS OF CARTRIDGES FIRED

Calcutta, Feb. 10
Several policemen and employees of the Calcutta Tramway Company were injured when trams plying in Upper Circular Road were pelted with bricks and stones by a mob.

The trouble is reported to be a sequel to the dispute which arose on Saturday over the passage of Moharram Tazias. All traffic was suspended owing to the trouble which is still continuing. The Commissioner of Police and his deputies together with a large police force arrived at the spot. Several arrests have been made.

A later message says that the Tramway Company complained to the police that their newly erected overhead wires have been considerably damaged by tazia processions. Following this complaint the police took into custody 70 persons which caused excitement among the people who assembled in front of the tram depot and are alleged to have attacked trams injuring a number of tramway employees.

Premier Mr. A. K. Fazlul Huq and Home Minister Sir Nazimuddin visited the scene helping to restore order.

Police opened fire on a Muslim crowd which persistently stoned the tram depot. Six rounds of gas cartridges were fired which resulted in the dispersal of the crowd.

Police made a lathi charge in order to disperse the crowd without any success.

The situation is now under control. The entire area is now being guarded by armed police. Half a dozen persons are reported to have been injured during lathi charge. So far no case of injury by police-firing has been reported.

Mr. Churchill's
Broadcast Address

England, in a broadcast address to the Nation and the Empire on the evening of 9th inst. instilled renewed courage and hope in the minds of his hearers. He began his address by saying "We have stood our ground and faced the two Dictators in the hour of what seemed to be their overwhelming triumph and we have shown ourselves capable so far of standing against them all alone." No truer words were said. It is a tribute to the remarkable resistance power of England against odds that Mr. Churchill deserves to be applauded for what he has done for England. He took charge of the helm of affairs when there was depression and pessimism in England. With no words but solid deeds he steeled England and to-day England stands vindicated. England has withstood the onslaughts of the enemy in, an unprecedented

We in India have been watching with anxious interest every foothold of the war in the Western Front and the Middle East. We have nothing but admiration and praise for England and India, working well in unison, and making calm and steady success. There need be no doubt in the mind of any one as to the final phase of this war. England's victory is assured. The liberation of India is a foregone conclusion.

For there is only one thing wrong. If Mr. Churchill had dared, he would have been the first to take the whole of India with him. It is he had dared and secured India a free nation, the Indian National Congress, with all its moral and material resources, would have been the first to follow. Yet, in England, America, and elsewhere, no one could be commanding such material resources. India, but its whole soul was unshaken if it had the moral leadership of the Congress.

Even now it is not too late. If I find tomorrow, when I can request Manmata Gandhi, we can open a new chapter at a workable understanding with regard to India, Pakistan and the international community. It is up to Mr. Gandhi to put forward his plans and ideas. I have no objection to that.

KANNADA LITERATURE PURE AND POLLUTED

The "Statesman" of Calcutta writes in an

The he-men, which have been described as the poor man's peep show, have for a twelve month presented human eyes with the nightly spectacle of bright planets close to one another. Four of these wand-trem drew men's gaze in Mayh last year, two in June. A boy now are not alone in providing something to look at. Visible to the naked eye is a larger wanderer, a comet with a long tail New Zealand saw it first, the Ceylon and South India and now that the news is out, there will be much searching of the skies, for a bright comet is a thing to be re-remembered. Many recall a wonderful sight, with tail from zenith to horizon, in 1910, still more are aware, if only from seeing illustrations of the Bayeux Tapestry of the impression that comets made on our forefathers. Even to day perhaps there are people who consider a comet not nice to know, who would rather it were visible only in a large telescope or a photograph.

To them it occurs that "when beggars die there are no comets seen," and that if one perceivable to the naked eye can be pointed to, something may be amiss. But most people nowadays consider that superstition. When Pluto, the outermost planet, swam into humanity's ken some years ago, astrologers replied that their science drawn up in ancient days, was not affected by such a parvenu. And th perhaps is the best way of looking at comets.

To the astronomer with his spectroscopes and telescopes there are objects in the heavens more interesting objects like the nebulae and variable stars that seem more intimately connected with the fundamental structure of the Universe. Compared with these great luminaries in the depths of space comets with their thin substance—a star suffers no diminution in lustre when seen through their thick parts—are “such stuff as dreams are made on.” Air, it is said, is 250,000 times more dense than the average comet. All cometary orbits are held to be elliptical and are travelled round in anything from many centuries to a few years. The sun's rays make comets luminous as they approach it and also force their tenuous matter out into a backward stream that mankind calls the “tail.” This pursues a similar orbit and often gives rise to another spectacle of the skies—the shooting stars. Some comets return at fairly regular intervals, but prediction is beset with difficulties. Calculations are often overthrown by the “pull” exerted by the outer planets, especially Jupiter and Saturn, now conspicuous objects in the night sky. Halley's comet, whose path stratches between Neptune, appeared in 1531, 1681, 1692, 1759, 1835 and 1910. Another was observed in 1933 when at its farthest point from the sun, an unprecedented feat of observation.

Coronis can be seen by telescope alone many number as many as eight or ten in a year, but of their bright brethren many gets a glimpse of only some 20 or 30 in a century. So let us make the most of our present comets before it becomes fainter and speeding away. It is in a high state of excitement being near that gigantic power house, the sun, but is travelling fast and may be doomed to extinction in outer space before the time comes for a re-appearance. Those who have seen it say that it is to be found between the bright stars Fomalhaut in the Southern Fish and Achenar in the sprawling lion Eridanus and is at present in the Phoenix, whose principal star recedes from the solar system at a mere four mils a miles a day. In our cometary performance there may perhaps be found this topical moral, that compared with the majestic movements of the heavenly bodies man's struggles seem petty indeed.

DETAILS OF SATYAGRAHA
Statement Wanted By A.I.C.C.

P. Wardhaigum, Feb. 9
It is reliably learnt that as some Provincial Congress Committees have not yet sent information asked for by the All-India Congress Committee regarding details about Satyagraha namely names, imprisonments, fines, nature of Satyagraha etc the Sewa gram camp office of the AICC, has again sent intimation to Congress Committees for speeding up the work as the AICC wants to issue a comprehensive statement about the movement for Public Information. This will also, it is reported, relate Government figures as also Mr. Amery's statement about the total number of Satyagrahis.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

My heart is filled with grief that on the sacred day of Moharrum, I have been receiving reports of communal disturbances from different parts of India. In this respect our State of Mysore stands as a shining example to other parts of India. Much depends upon our respect to others' feelings. Mankind constituted as it is of different faiths and different beliefs, it is absolutely essential that we should respect and tolerate other people's religions. It is the very essence of civilization that we should allow every man to pursue his faith.

India has been noted for its tolerance of other religions. So to say she has given shelter to several refugees, who fled from other countries to protect their religion. How is it then, that we have so much of intolerance today? My diagnosis of the situation is this. There is a certain amount of aggressiveness attached to some religions. It is this aggressiveness that cuts at the root of religious harmony. Why should people of one religion force their observances on others to the point of creating a disturbance? Is there not room in this God's world for all religions? I think there is something wrong in the very conception of religion, among our people. The spirit of conversion and propaganda is at the root of the matter. The essence of propaganda is such that to drive home what you consider to be truth you attack and ridicule others' religions and practices. If we desire all religions to live in concord with one another, our propaganda methods ought to change vital-

There is also another point. In the matters of religious observance and practice people speak of their own rights. And in enforcing their rights, clashes are inevitable. India has been singularly unfortunate in not being able to reconcile these various rights. For example, I have received a report from somewhere in India that some Mahamedans cut off an Aswatha tree to take their procession forward. Here comes the trouble. Aswatha tree is sacred to Hindus and when Mahamedans cut it off it results in heart burn and clash. In these circumstances it is up to the leaders of these communities to persuade their followers not to come into clash with one another. It is wrong to consider that you can spread your cult at the point of sword. The moment the thought of violence gives place to the calm of non-violence all troubles would end. The time has come for India to revise all its religious ideas, the time has come for Indians to cease fighting among themselves in the name of their respective religions. If Indians make up their mind it is not difficult to establish religious harmony in India.

It is indeed sad that on the day sacred to the memory of Imam Hussain to commemorate whose martyrdom Moharrum is celebrated, there should be sporadic outbursts of communal disturbances in India. We have very great reverence for the memory of Imam Hussain

"CONQUER OR DIE"
MESSAGE TO BRITISH
NATION AND EMPIREMr. CHURCHILL'S BROADCAST
ADDRESS

"Deeds Not Words"

"We stand on our ground and faced the two Dictators in the hour of what was to be their overwhelming triumph and we have shown ourselves capable so far of standing against them. In the words of the Prime Minister Churchill opened his broadcast address to the nation and the Empire on Sunday night. It is the saddest more than five months since I spoke to the British Nation and the Empire on broadcast."

In war time there is a lot to be said for the motto "deeds not words". All the same it is good to think and look round from time to time and take stock, and certain our affairs have prospered in several directions during the last four or five months far better than most of us could have ventured to hope. After heavy defeats of the German air force by our fighters in August and September, Hitler did not dare attempt invasion of this Island although he had need to do so and had made vast preparations. Baffled in this mighty project he sought to break the spirit of the British Nation by bombing first London and afterwards our great Cities. It has now been proved to the admiration of the world and our friends in the United States that this form of blackmail by murder and terrorism instead of weakening the spirit of the British Nation has only roused it to a more intense universal flame than was seen ever before in any modern community. The whole British Empire has been proud of the mother country and they long to be back as our over here in even larger numbers. We have been doubly conscious of our role as a dominion the Crown across the thousand ocean spaces. There is no part of our empire more worthy of that role and preserve it.

The Dark Winter Months

All through these dark winter months the enemy had had power to drop three or four tons of bombs upon us for every ton we could send to Germany or return. We are preparing so far as possible, this as we suffer the darkest very cold, but some warm London and our far Eastern friends are in the same position. The command of the British Empire is a Waterloo. They are not the conquerors of the world.

do not wear scarlet coats, they are just ordinary English, Scottish, Welsh, Irish men, women and children standing steadily together but their spirit is the same, their glory is the same, and in the end their victory will be greater than the famous Waterloo. All honour to civil emergency services of all kinds—emergency and regular, voluntary and professional who have helped our people through this terrible ordeal the like of which no civilized community has ever been called upon to undergo. More than two thirds of the winter is now gone and so far we have had no serious epidemic. Indeed there has been no increase in illness despite improvised conditions in shelters. That is most creditable to local medical, sanitary authorities to our devoted nursing staff and Ministry of health at whose head Mr. Malcolm Macdonald is now going to Canada on other important duties.

We have broken the back of winter and as daylight grows the A.F. grows and is already certainly the master. Day light attacks may be sharper but they will be shorter. There will be more opportunities for air and service of all kinds. So if our first victory was the repulse of the invader, our second was frustration of his acts of horror and torture against our people at home.

In Africa

Meanwhile down in Africa, a wonderful thing has happened. One of the two Dictators, crafty old-blooded, black hearted Italian who had sought to gain in Europe cheaply by stabbing the British Empire behind the back got into trouble.

Without the slightest provocation spurred on by lust for power and brutish greed Mussolini attacked and invaded Egypt only to be hurled back ignominiously by the heroic British army who have carried off more glory than the glories that from the classic age have gilded the name of Rome. While Mussolini was writing, smugly after the Greek lach in Albania, General Wavell and Wilson who are charged with defence of Egypt and Suez Canal in accordance with our treaty obligations, since task one time seemed so simple received very powerful reinforcements in men, cannon

Sidi Barrani

There began that series of victories in Libya which have broken irrevocably the Italian military power in the African continent. Here then at Libya is the third considerable event upon which we may dwell upon with some satisfaction. After referring to the early stages of the British advance in Libya as a most hazardous advance Mr Churchill continued: The brilliant decisive victory at Sidi Barrani with its tens of thousands of prisoners proved that we had quality of manoeuvring power, weapons superior to the enemy who had boasted so much of his virility and military virtues. It was evident that all other Italian forces of Eastern Libya were in great danger. They could not easily retreat along the east road without running the risk of being caught in open by our armoured divisions and longlands ranging far out into the desert in tremendous swoops. They had exposed themselves to being attacked piecemeal.

Gospel Saying

Wavell, our able leader and all allied ardent men of the British Australia Indian Imperial army saw their opportunity. At that time I ventured to draw General Wavell's attention to the gospel saying mentioned in the seventh verse whereof you all know or ought to know it is written "ask and it shall be given you and it shall be opened unto you". Army of Nile has asked and it was given. They sought and they have found. They knocked and it has been opened to them. In the campaign of nearly eight weeks which should long be studied as a model of military art an advance of over four hundred miles has been made. The whole of the Italian army in Libya is reputed to exceed hundred and fifty thousand men has been captured or destroyed. Anyhow the entire province of Cyrenaica nearly as big as England and Wales has been conquered. Unhappy Arab tribes who have suffered from the brutal Italian rule have been freed. These heroic survivors at last have seen their oppressors in disorderly flight or leap off in endless droves as prisoners of war.

Egypt and Suez Canal are safe and the port base and airfields of Benghazi constitute a strategic point of high consequence to the whole war of Eastern Mediterranean.

Churchill continued: "I have dwelt on this incident not because it disclosed the source of danger in the Central Mediterranean but rather to show that there, as elsewhere, we intend to give a good account of our selves, but after all, the fate of this war will be decided by what happens on oceans and in the air and above all this Island. It now seemed certain that the Government and peoples of the United States intend to supply us with everything necessary for victory."

Help from the United States

Churchill recalled that in the last war the United States sent a vast army of men across the Atlantic, but this was not a war of vast armies. "We do not need gallant armies which are now being formed throughout the American Union. We do not need them this year, next year, or, as far as I am concerned, for any year, but we need urgently supply of war materials and technical apparatus of all kinds."

We need them here and we need to bring them here. We shall need the great mass of shipping in 1942 far more than we can build ourselves if we are to maintain and expand our war effort west and east. We must expect Hitler to do his utmost to prey upon our shipping and reduce the volume of American supplies entering Great Britain. He had never understated their danger but he had complete confidence in the ability of the Royal Navy aided by the coastal command airforce to meet every changing phase of this state-mated struggle and that, sustained by courage, our merchant seamen, dockers, and workers of all our port we should outwit outmanoeuvre, outfight, outlast, whatever the enemy's malice and iniquity could contribute to his fight. Dealing fully with the "greatest issue" Churchill recalled Sir John Dill's warning yesterday, Hitler might be forced by strategic economic and political stress of Europe to try to invade the British Isles in the near future and said that that warning nobody could disregard. This is truly a mortal struggle and we have been working night and day to have everything ready. Of course we are far stronger than ever before, incomparably stronger than in July, August, and September. Our navy more powerful, our flotillas more numerous, we are far stronger actually and relatively in air above these Islands than when our fighters beat off and beat down Nazi attack last autumn. Our more numerous, more far better equipped and than September and still more than July and I have the most confidence in our Commander-in-Chief General and in generals of proved ability who under him guard the quarters of our land but more all I put my faith in the effective resolve, conquer which will animate nearly million Britons with weapons in their hands.

It is not an easy mission to invade in the Great Britain without seas and air and what would be waiting invader but said that must drop one word of Next to cowardice, over-confidence leading to slothfulness was a crime. The Nazi in Britain last autumn were more or less invited affair. Hitler took or less for granted when he surrendered that we were in too, but we did not and to think again. Britain may be supported by much equipment apparatus all and manufactured during. We must be prepared for attacks parachute glider attacks, with foresight and fortitude.

Churchill emphasised to win war Hitler must of Great Britain. He may heavy forces to the States, tear great provinces of Russia and even march gates of India. He may his course more violent out Europe and Asia to avoid his doom. Within month that passed, move once happy countries holding down by brute intrigues, are winning the treacherous yoke of as nothing ever has so fiercely, widely among before.

Appeal to Pres. Roosevelt

Concluding, Prime referred to the letter of President Roosevelt addressed Wendell Willkie and his hearers: "What is I shall give in your great man three times head of the nation and thirty millions. I answer that I shall give you confidence in us. Give us your blessing, and your confidence all will be not fail or falter. We weaken or tire. No shock of battle or trials of vigilance wear as down. Give us and we will finish it."

Yesterday afternoon the votes of the Urban constituency were counted and following the declaration of Mr. Y. V. Kumaraih, Independent candidate as elected to the Representative Assembly some people resorted to violence and acts of rowdism. They smashed the window pans. The Amildar was the Returning Officer, people rushed into his office room and attempted to assault the Returning Officer and the Independent candidate. The police intervened and cleared the office of the rowdies. The District Magistrate on receipt of telegraphic message came to this place accompanied by the S.D.O. and D.S.P. and Reserve Police and returned to Bangalore after order was restored. The incident has created a sensation. Resentment prevails in the town.

[Another report says that after counting was over when the result was announced that there were 72 invalid votes, the congress candidate desired to see it, but the Amildar seems to have refused permission for this. The trouble started with this. People seem to have rushed to the spot. When the D.C. and D.S.P. went there, there was practically no disturbance. It is learnt some arrests have taken place.]

Bangalore City - February 12, 194

There is a common-sense view which our readers would do well to be aware of. England is not in the grip of a famine and the strange idea has been put forward that she has to purchase arms and war materials from America. More is needed for this purpose than is so paid for. The Indian Government has no American currency means to pay for American supplies.

The fact is that the Indian rate of exchange is such that it is impossible for the country to obtain foreign currencies at all. It is true that there are some ways and means by which India can export

There are also other aspects to be considered in connection with the problem which will be dealt with and subsequent to. Any way, the speaker who requires the earnest consideration of our listeners and of the common man is to educate on sound lines.

JOG FALLS HYDRO-ELECTRIC PROJECT

H. H. THE MAHARAJA'S VISIT

Chief Engineer's Note

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS IN THE STATE

(DAILY NEWS SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

Jog Falls Sagar, Feb. 10.

His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore accompanied by high officers visited the Jog Falls project to-day. His Highness was shown round the works which is in full swing.

The following brief note was submitted to His Highness by Mr. N. Sharabhoja, the Chief Engineer.

"The magnificent Jog Falls on the Sharavati river have been known as one of the grandest of natural spots not merely in picturesque Mysore but in the whole world. To harness this great source of potential power for the service of the State for the generation of electrical energy without in any way interfering with their majestic glory has long been under the serious consideration of the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore. The immediate need for starting hydro-electric works was fully appreciated by His Highness the late Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur as a natural sequel to the phenomenal rise in the industrial activities of the State during his illustrious reign and he accordingly pleased graciously to lay the inaugural stone of the Jog Falls Hydro-Electric Works on the 5th February 1939 overlooking the gorge below the Falls. The project was taken up for construction soon after and the constructional activities are now in full swing.

The country in the neighbourhood of the Falls appeals at first sight as Nature's own playground where man appears an intruder. To traverse this area of wild forests in order to investigate the most favourable sites for the several component works forming this colossal work estimated to cost rupees 280 lakhs was a matter of considerable hardship and a decision has now been taken regarding all the sites except the generating station for which geological and engineering surveys have, however, been completed.

Based on the gaugings conducted during the years 1918-19, an agreement has been entered into with the Government of Bombay, according to which there may store any quantity of water during the monsoon season. During the Jog season - November and January - the water in the river at the Falls has to be maintained at a minimum of 400 cusecs, if necessary, by letting down water from the reservoir, in order to preserve the scenic beauty of the Falls. According to this agreement, the Government of Bombay, if required, electrical power up to a maximum of 5000 H.P. on a long-term basis, mutually

First Stage
The project provides for works for the generation of electrical energy in four stages 32,000 H.P. each. From the forecast of the demand for electric power for lighting and industrial needs in the State, it is clear that there is an immediate need for the first stage and a fair chance of consuming the power produced in the second stage in the very near future, over and above the power that can be generated at Sivasmudram and Shimshapura to the extent of 69,000 H.P. and in emergencies up to 80,000 H.P. It is therefore proposed to design our works so as first to generate 64,000 H.P. and to be capable of extension in future to produce another 64,000 H.P. or, even more, by suitable additions which will prove economical now and in the long run.

The main works contemplated in the project are (1) a storage reservoir, (2) a barrage lower down to pick up the water which will be taken to a Forebay through (3) a power canal, and thence through (4) high pressure penstocks to (5) the generating station where the turbines drive the generators located therein.

The storage dam is necessitated by the enormous fluctuations in the river flow as between the rainy season and the summer and is located at the site known as Hirebaskar No. 2, near Madenur, about 13 miles upstream of the Falls. This site was decided after detailed examination of seven alternative sites, as being the most suitable for making use of the resources of the river to the fullest extent and as offering the most favourable rock formations in the river bed to found the masonry dam 1,625 feet in length. The height of the dam for storing 8,850 M.C.Ft. required for the first and second stages will be 72 feet above the river bed and 16 feet more for storing up to 18,000 M.C.Ft. needed for the third and fourth stages.

The maximum flood in the river estimated at 160,000 cusecs will be passed through 6 undersluices 10'x25' (high) capable of discharging 10,000 cusecs each and through 10 siphons, similar to those successfully used on the Marconahally Reservoir but larger, each to discharge 10,000 cusecs. The flanks not being rocky, will consist of earthen embankments.

The water stored at Hirebaskar will be let into the river valley and picked up at a barrage near Karagallu about 10 miles lower down, as, owing to the difficult nature of the country, it is not practicable to start the canal right at the dam. It was also not possible to build the main dam at Karagallu as this site did not offer foundations suitable for a high masonry dam. The barrage consists of 10 vents

60' wide between masonry piers 10' wide and will be controlled by lifting gates prepared at the Bhadravati Iron and Steel Works, capable of discharging the maximum flood, at the site, of 250,000 cusecs.

The Barrage
Parallel to the barrage and 100' down stream is constructed a bridge over the river for through communication with the West Coast and the Works. This bridge is connected with Bangalore-Honnavar Road by an all-Mysore Road thus obviating the necessity of leaving Mysore territory when travelling to the works and the falls. The bridge has 21 vents, 35' to 40' wide between masonry piers spanned by steel trusses manufactured at Bhadravati and covered with a decking of reinforced concrete with Bhadravati steel and cement.

The power canal starting from the barrage is 13 feet wide at bed and 10 feet deep capable of conveying 1,012 cusecs needed for the final stages of the Project to produce 128,000 H.P.

The works on the dam, barrage and the first section of the power canal are progressing briskly. There are two Construction Divisions, one at Madenur for the dam works and another near Karagallu for the barrage and generating station works, under a special Superintending Engineer. The quarters for the temporary staff at both the places are protected against malaria by the adoption of anti-malarial measures at the instance of the Department of Public Health.

Generating Station
There are three alternative sites for the generating station from which the most favourable will be selected. Of the three factors (i) a safe alignment for the canal, (ii) a suitable profile on the hill slope for the penstocks and (iii) the capacity to use the water to the fullest extent or the maximum head at the turbines, each site lays claim to two of the advantages. The nearest site or the G2 can utilise only 1,228 feet (Gross) of head as against 1,328 feet by the G.S.F. and 1,443 feet by the Anebley site. G2 has a further disadvantage of being inaccessible by road so that the conveyance of heavy machinery to the generating station will be rendered difficult. On the other hand, the G.S.F. has an unsafe profile for 2,000 feet of the penstock route while the Anebley site has a difficult alignment for the power canal. The G2 and the G.S.F. have both 3 miles length of canal whereas the length of canal for the Anebley site is 7 miles with 4 siphons totalling about 4,250 feet in length. The length of penstocks for the G2 site is 3,600 feet while for the G.S.F. it is 7,853 feet and 4,280 feet for the Anebley site. The most advantageous site under these conditions will be decided by the Hydro-Electric Committee appointed by Government, as early as possible.

Penstocks
The low and high pressure penstocks of lengths depending on the site will convey sufficient water to the turbines for the production of 32,000 H.P. There will be two units supplied by each penstock, each turbine being rated at 17,500 H.P. and each generator at 16,000 H.P. The electrical energy will be transformed by means of 15,000 K.V.A. transformer banks to a suitable voltage for transmitting the power to Bhadravati, where

JOG FALLS GRANDEUR

His Highness's Visit

HIREBASKAR SITE INSPECTION

'Truly The Eighth Wonder'

(Daily News Special Correspondent)

Jog Falls, Feb. 10.
Great enthusiasm prevailed in Sagar, Talaguppa, Jog and other way-side villages, when His Highness the Maharaja Sri Jayachamaraja Wodeyar drove through the roads to reach the famous Jog Falls to-day.

Elaborate arrangements were made to accord a grand welcome to our young and obnoxious Ruler of the State. The new Talaguppa Railway Station which has been completed for traffic looked gorgeous with flags and festoons. People from far and near began to gather from the early hours to catch a glimpse of their Sovereign.

As the special train consisting of several yellow saloons steamed in and made a halt His Highness came out smiling. The First Member of the State's Executive Council together with the Chief Engineer, the Chief Electrical Engineer, the Superintending Engineer, the Deputy Commissioner, the President, District Board submitted their respectful loyalty and welcomed His Highness.

There was loud and hearty cheering from the vast section of His Highness's subjects who gathered under the Station premises.

Drive To Hirebaskar

His Highness accompanied by several high officers drove to Hirebaskar Dam Site where a huge reservoir is being built to impound the waters of the river Sharavathi as an adjunct to the Hydro Electric works. Mr. S. G. Forbes gave a detailed account of the work in progress through many charts and blue prints which were spread at a convenient place. His Highness was greatly delighted to go through the plans and procedure of this huge undertaking. After the necessary inspection, the party reached Jog after driving through Talaguppa Town.

At The Mysore Bungalow

As His Highness's Car entered the grounds of the Mysore Bungalow the 900 feet Falls truly the eighth wonder of the world caught the young Ruler's eye. The roar of the Roarer, the shooting of the Rocket, the majesty of the Raja and the grace of the Lady Blanche, provided a grand setting to His Highness's temporary residence.

In the cool hours of the day His Highness inspected the Barrage & the Forebay and the place where power is to be generated. He was immensely pleased with the steady progress.

Sight For Gods To See

In the night it was a sight for Gods to see. Hundreds were lit up and thrown down the deep chasm, the glow night. The made the Falls look with added grandeur. His Highness the Maharaja took his seat on a high place overlooking the Falls when the fire works commenced. It was an awe-inspiring sight to watch the flares jumping down the precipice illuminating the whole scene with an orange-colour setting.

With a wonderful sight implanted in the minds of everyone who were privileged to see the famous Falls, the day's programme came to an end.

There will be similar transformer banks for stepping down the voltage to that required for use in the industries there and elsewhere. The transmission line will be 75 miles long and fully protected from lightning by overhead ground wires and lightning arrestors. The generating station will be 236' long by 60 wide and is designed to accommodate in the first instance, four main generator units equivalent to 64,000 H.P., all high and low tension switchgear, and the auxiliary station apparatus such as pumps, exciters, etc. The station will be so designed and constructed as to be capable of being extended without disturbing the previous installations in the III and IV stages.

The power produced by this Project will be consumed all over the State, raising the revenues of the Government Department to more than a crore and a quarter of rupees when the first two stages are fully utilised. There will also be a corresponding increase in the indirect revenues and in the improved economic life of the people, which is of inestimable value to the State.

H. H. THE MAHARAJA'S SPEECH AT SAGAR

Sagar, Feb. 11

The following is the substance of the speech delivered by His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, directly to the audience presented by the Town Municipal Council of Sagar.

Mr. President and Members of the Sagar Municipal Council,

It gives me very great pleasure that the first address that I should receive on the first of my tours in the State should be from a town which has it in its power to recount many benefits received during the reign of my late revered uncle. You have been connected with both Shimoga and Talaguppa by railway. You have advanced in matters of education and public health, and your trade has prospered. Your town is already in process of electrification. You have great prospects in front of you as the industries which are being developed in the district advance and as the great new electrical project of Jog takes shape. And I think that you will find that these facts will to a great extent meet one of the requests made in your address, namely, that encouragement may be given to the people of the Malnad in the matter of industrialization. You also ask for special facilities in the matter of education and employment.

With reference to this request, I am glad to be able to inform you that my Government are now the new scheme through which they are proposing to take elementary education under their direct control, are also proposing to develop 1,000 new schools and ultimately to give one to every Malnad village with a population of 300 and upwards. Meanwhile, in the matter of employment, it is a standing rule of the Central Recruitment Board that preferential treatment is given to candidates from the Malnad.

High School

As regards your High School, I am afraid that it is not practicable to grant your request that you should be relieved of the whole cost of its maintenance, as that would be contrary to a general policy which affects a large number of similar cases. I am glad to be able to tell you, however, that a grant will be given you towards the cost of the extension of the school building as soon as your plans and estimates are ready.

Water Supply

Lastly, as regards water supply and drainage, I find that a water supply scheme was sanctioned by the Government in the year 1938-39, but could not be taken up because of the yield of the well sunk in the bed of the river Varada was found to be insufficient for your town. A revised scheme for sinking a well in the Kugre valley did not meet with your acceptance, and you have now proposed to have a bore well sunk at the junction of the Sannanehalli and the Varada valley. I am glad to be able to advise you that an estimate for Rs. 1,000 has been sanctioned for the purpose of testing the scheme thus put forward by you. I entirely agree with you as to the urgent necessity for accompanying an increase in the supply of water with a proper scheme for drainage. The Director of Public Health is being asked to formulate a drainage scheme for your town, and on its receipt my Government will consider sympathetically the question of assisting you in carrying it out. I trust that the inauguration of these schemes will enable your town to continue the remarkable advance it has already made in prosperity and in the amenities that are given to its people.
